Cost-of-Living Index Climbs One-Tenth of Point

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's new cost-of-living yardstick, the consumer price index which went into operation today, climbed 1-10 of a point during August to 116.1 from 116.0, the Bureau of Statistics reported today. This created a paradox in measuring living costs through price changes, for the old cost-of-living index, which the new index replaces, actually reported a 1.1-point decline during August to 186.5 from 187.6. The new index, result of two years of study and revision in measuring price changes, is based on 1949 prices equalling 100. The old index, in operation for more than a dozen years, is based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100.

PUBLISHED BOTH INDEXES

Herbert Marshall, Dominion statistician, told a press conference that both indexes will be published simultaneously for the next six months in order that industry and labor may make adjustments in labor contracts bearing escalator clauses.

After that, the old index will be eliminated and only the new consumer price index will be published by the bureau month by month.

Escalator clauses in labor contracts provide a wage boost if the cost of living rises, or a wage drop if living costs decrease.

L.E. Rowebottom, head of the bureau's prices section, who accompanied Mr. Marshall to the press conference, said the new index was far more accurate than the old and therefore it was an actual fact that living costs measured by price changes went up during August and not down.

Big disparity between the two indexes was in measuring food costs. The new index found that food costs climbed to 115.8 from 115.7 during August, while the old index showed a drop to 234.2 from 238.0.

ON SEASONAL BASIS

Reason for the paradox, said Mr. Rowebottom, was imbedded in the new system of measuring the importance and influence of food costs on the index on a seasonal basis. Under the old system, the method of measuring food costs remained constant throughout the year.

Under the new system, the measurement fluctuates in accordance with consumer purchasing habits. Consumers have a tendency to buy more fresh vegetables, dairy products and meats during the heavy production periods when prices usually are low. Therefore the bureau considered that these items

Chinese Troops Make Gains In Canadian Area

By BILL BOSS

WEST SECTOR, Korea (CP) — Chinese Communist infantry, attacking under heavy artillery cover, nipped off a forward section of Little Gibraltar tonight.

Little Gibraltar, a massive hill with abrupt sides and adjoining rock ridges, cannot be located exactly because of censorship restrictions. It has been identified for many months with the area defended by the 1st Commonwealth Division, of which the 25th Canadian Brigade is part.

United Nations troops there had been exposed for several days to intensive "softening up" by enemy mortar fire. Late this afternoon it was thickened up with an artillery barrage that reached 100 rounds a minute at its peak.

There was a lull at dusk. Then the Chinese Reds launched a heavy assault under cover of more artillery.

OVERRAN POSITION

First reports from the battle ground said the wave of Chinese overran one United Nations platoon position.

United Nations artillery and mortars at once boxed off the area to prevent the enemy from following up his early gain and give the small body of defenders a chance to reorganize and counter-attack.

Censorship apparently made it impossible for Boss to identify the defending platoon by nationality. It may be a week before this ban is lifted. Boss for almost two years has been Canadian Press staff writer assigned to cover the military activities of the Canadian armed forces in the Orient.

This is the first mention of Little Gibraltar in recent dispatches reporting Chinese assaults on U.N. positions. Today reports from Seoul indicate there also is action farther east, in the central sector. South Korean infantrymen regained the crest of another hill, Iron Horse against counter-attacking Chinese.

Other hills named in recent dispatches — none may be located exactly — include White Horse Mountain, Sniper Ridge and Triangle Hill.

Little Gibraltar is known to be northeast of Seoul, overlooking a road that leads through rough terrain toward the South Korea capital.

Nothing in reports from the front indicates that recent Chinese activity is part of a general Communist offensive. The Red pressure seems to be tactical, rather than strategic, with the aim of improving advanced positions. It has been announced no position in the main United Nations defence line has been taken by the Chinese.

Eight Municipalities Submit Private Bills

PARIS (CP) — Private separation bills are expected to be submitted to the Ontario legislature by eight southern Ontario municipalities.

The municipalities—Paris, Dundas, Fergus, Preston, Hespeler, Elmira, Whitby and Napanee — formed the Urban Municipal Association here last night with seven other municipalities to carry their grievances directly to the government without recourse to the Ontario Municipal Association.

They claim county road costs are unfairly distributed between the county and the municipality.

W.G. Woods, a former reeve of Preston and chairman of the association's provisional executive, said a brief submitted to the department of highways early this year brought no response. The brief asked that towns within counties be placed on the same basis as cities for sharing county road costs.

Rebels Capture French Town

HANOI, Indo-China (AP)—The Black River town of Van Yen fell yesterday before a Vietminh offensive straining French Union lifelines in the "little Korea" of northwest Indo-China.

The Communist-led, black-uni- [illegible] Saturday, to put traffic on the upper Black River under their guns.

Outnumbered French Union infantry and paratroopers fought doggedly in the rugged mountains near the waterway in an effort to stem the offensive.

At heights ranging up to 1½ miles, they battled the Vietminh on grassy plateaux and along trails through the jungle.

Britain Building Up Atomic Bomber Force

PERTH, Australia (Reuters)—Britain is building up an atomic bomber force, Air Chief Marshal Sir William Dickson of the R.A.F. disclosed today.

"We have started making the bombs and the aircraft to carry them," Dickson said after his arrival here from Singapore on a round-the-world flight.

Consolidated Press Bought By Jack Cooke

TORONTO (CP)—Jack Kent Cooke, youthful dynamo of radio, sport and the publishing field, last night announced the surprise purchase of Consolidated Press—a move which his announcement said makes him "the biggest national magazine publisher in Canada."

Mr. Cooke, who celebrates his 40th birthday Saturday, immediately indicated an objective of a new national weekly news magazine for Canada. Already the publisher of the monthly New Liberty magazine, he now takes over control of the Toronto weekly Saturday Night; the Canadian Home Journal and several other magazines published by Consolidated Press.

There was no information as to details of the transaction, including the purchase price, and he did not state exactly whether the proposed news weekly would be an entirely new magazine or a change in format of one of the newly-acquired publications.

PLANS NOT DIVULGED

Mr. Cooke did not indicate any immediate plans for Saturday Night, national slick-paper weekly of opinion and criticism once described by an American publication as "a newsy cross between the Saturday Review of Literature and Harper's Bazaar." Founded in 1887, Saturday Night became a news magazine in October 1949, continuing its traditional heavy coverage of Ottawa, business and women's news with addition of departments on world affairs sport, religion and radio.

In 1951, B.K. Sandwell, its editor-in-chief for many years, became [illegible] and was succeeded newspaper man and then managing editor of the Globe and Mail.

Mr. Cooke takes over as president and publisher of Consolidated from Mabel Sutton, who had held the post since the death in 1922 of founder Harry Gagnier while still remaining one of Canada's least-known publishers.

Start Drawing Numbers On Irish Sweepstakes

DUBLIN (AP) — —Pretty Irish hospital nurses began drawing numbers today for prizes totalling $3,721,452 in the 76th Irish sweepstakes. The first ticket pulled from the big gilded drum was that of two Jacksonville, Fla., residents.

Officials announced that a total of 2,510,666 tickets had been sold for this sweep which is based on the Cambridgeshire Handicap one week from today over the Newmarket course in England.

There will be 33 big prizes, including 11 of $140,000 each for those who have tickets on the winner of the horse race.

Holders of tickets on the second-place horse will get $56,000 apiece and those whose entry finishes third will pick up $28,000.

Attlee Wins On Bevan Issue

LONDON (Reuters)—Labor members of Parliament today approved an ultimatum from party leaders ordering Aneurin Bevan and his left-wing rebel group to disband or get out of the party. The ultimatum was put to a private meeting of the 296-member parliamentary Labor party. It was in the form of a motion calling for the immediate abandonment of all organizations within the party other than those officially recognized. It further called on all members to refrain from making attacks on one another, either in the House of Commons, in the press, or on public platforms.

The motion was carried by 188 votes to 51, according to sources present at the meeting. Not all the 296 members were present.

VICTORY FOR ATTLEE

The verdict represents a victory for leader Clement Attlee and his orthodox section of the party. Had the vote been negative he would have had to resign.

Bevan, smooth-talking Welshman has wooed a considerable section of the party to his policy of more socialism and less rearmament.

The split has widened in recent months with factional bickering scoring headlines in the British press and damaging Labor's election prospects.

At the party conference last month Bevan and five of his supporters were elected to the executive committee, the party's ruling body, ousting such prominent figures as Herbert Morrison, former foreign secretary, and Hugh Dalton, once chancellor of the exchequer.

Trade union leaders, loyal to the Attlee camp, declared open war on Bevan and his followers.

Bevan did not go down without a struggle. He made a speech asking for the vote to be deferred. A number of speakers seeking a last-minute compromise at the meeting made an appeal that the party leaders should withdraw [illegible] disband his group.

But Bevan himself would not agree to this course.

Mau Mau Warns Whites Murder Their Fate In Kenya

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters)—Knife-wielding members of the anti-white Mau Mau society hacked a leading tribal chief to death last night for tipping off authorities to secret oath-taking ceremonies, police disclosed today. The Mau Mau also killed a native policeman assigned to protect the chief.

The discovery of the mutilated body of 70-year-old Chief Nderi in Nyeri, 60 miles north of here, heightened the already-tense mood hanging over this British colony. He was one of three senior Kikuyu tribal chiefs. Another, Chief Waruhiu, was slain Oct. 7.

Today, the remains of another secret Mau Mau ceremony were found in the outskirts of Nairobi with a dead cat swinging from an archway of banana stalks. A scrawled note pinned to the cat warned that from today on, all Africans working for whites will be killed.

WILL KILL WHITES

At the same time, white residents of Kenya received a circular letter in the morning mail declaring "we will kill you like you are murdering us today." The letter, headed "Africa speaks," said [illegible] has come to Kenya."

Restrictions on carrying of guns by white residents in Kenya have been lifted to deal with the emergency.

(In London, revolvers and ammunition were loaded into planes today for the use of white settlers in Kenya.)

Army headquarters here announced that the whole of the army's strength, equivalent to six battalions totalling nearly 5,000 men, had been busy through the night rounding up suspected terrorists.

570 Casualties In Big Typhoon

MANILA (AP) —The Philippine Red Cross said today 370 persons were dead and 200 were missing in the wake of Wednesday's typhoon.

The Red Cross said several hundred were injured.

The tabulation was based on telegraphic and radio reports trickling in from the devastated provinces.

The tropical storm roared out into the South China Sea Wednesday and today threatened the battered shores of Indo-China about 80 miles to the southwest. A Saigon report said the typhoon would hit the coast tomorrow night.

Indo-China, while waiting for the storm, was trying to clean up from the tidal wave that hit Phan Thiet Monday night, possibly killing as many as 500 persons.

Broken communications lines slowed the reports of Philippines in Tabaco, a town of 33,200 in Albany Province on Southern Luzon.

Car Struck By Train

CARLETON, Que. (CP) — Five persons were killed yesterday when their automobile was struck by a Canadian National Railways passenger train at a level crossing near St. Omer, five miles west of this Baie Des Chaleurs town.

Dead are: Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Corbin, in their 60s, their son, Victorien Corbin, about 30, his daughter, about 3, all of St. Arthur. N.B., and Louis Gagnon, about 30, of St. Noel, Que.

Five Of Six Children Missing As Fire Sweeps Pennsylvania Home

Edwin T. Smith said only he, his wife, and their eight-month-old baby escaped. Firemen said it would be several hours before they could probe the ruins.

Smith, who was being treated in hospital for shock, was unable to say what caused the fire.

Neighbors report Smith jumped from a second-floor window after his wife jumped with their youngest child in her arms.

Mrs. Smith was reported in critical condition. Her baby also was listed as critical. Smith's condition was fair.

15 Shells Of Buildings Left In City Of 80,000

By HENRY HARTZENBUSCH

LEGASPI CITY, Luzon Island (AP) — The worst typhoon in 50 years swept through this southern Luzon city of 80,000 Tuesday like a monster whirling a giant bolo knife.

It left only 15 concrete shells of buildings standing.

All else is complete ruin.

In battered Tabaco town to the north, 118 persons are reported dead and 200 missing.

The toll in Legaspi City is not known. Dazed survivors groped through the ruins, looking for traces of loved ones. There are tens of thousands homeless.

Unofficial sources said at least 40 died in this city of ruin.

Electricity is off. There is no water.

Entire villages are under water or marooned.

There is not a house standing at Tabaco. Destruction of that port is 100 per cent.

Say Contamination Spread Over Wide Area

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Churchill today disclosed that Britain's atomic weapon, tested off Northern Australia early this month, was exploded in an anchored vessel to determine what its effect would be on a harbor. He said that no one on the expedition suffered any injuries, and no animals were used in the test. The bomb was exploded on the Monte Bello islands Oct. 3, when wind conditions were such that radio-active particles would not be spread over

SHIP "VAPORIZED"

It was detonated in the 1,450-ton frigate Plym which was "vaporized" by the explosion. All that remained of the vessel were some red-hot fragments which were scattered over one of the islands and started fires in the dry vegetation, Churchill said.

"When the flash first burst through the hull of the Plym the temperature was nearly 1,000,000 degrees," Churchill told an attentive House of Commons. "It was far higher at the point of explosion."

He described how thousands of tons of water and mud and rock from the sea bottom were thrown high into the air and a high tidal wave swept over the islands' shores.

The effect of the blast and radio-active contamination was spread over a wide area, Churchill said.

Soon after the explosion two naval officers flew helicopters over the heavily-contaminated lagoon so radio-activity could be measured.

He paid tribute to all who took part in the test, and said he did not doubt "this will lead to a much closer American interchange of information than has taken place in the last few years." He refused to be drawn on this aspect of the question, however, although he added later:

"A large number of important people in the U.S. have for some time been most anxious that Britain should be kept better informed and this test will greatly facilitate and support the task which these gentlemen have set themselves."

Believes Reds Have Great Many Subs

OTTAWA (CP) — Britain's naval chief said today Russia has "a colossal number" of submarines but indicated the western powers would not be outmatched at sea in any new war.

Admiral Sir Rhoderick McGrigor 58-year-old first sea lord, told a press conference "I can fairly say that we have made very great velopments, in hunting, locating and destroying submarines."

Admiral McGrigor goes to Kingston, tomorrow to address the National Defence College on British defence policy. He will leave later that day from Montreal by air for the United Kingdom.

French Army Plane Crashes, 8 Killed

Earlier the air ministry had announced that 11 persons had been killed in the crash. It was believed [illegible] The four-engined plane lost altitude after taking the air, clipped the top of a tree, and plummeted into a pasture and caught fire.

Report Reds Tortured Fliers For Confession

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Air Force Association said yesterday the Communists tortured two U.S. air force fliers into making false confessions that they took part in germ warfare.

The fliers are Lieut. John S. Quinn, 30, Altadena, Calif. and Lieut. Kenneth L. Enoch, 27, Youngstown, Ohio. They have been prisoners of the Communists since their B-26 bomber failed to return from a night mission in North Korea last Jan. 13.

An article in Air Force Magazine, published by the association—an organization of air force members and veterans—said Quinn and Enoch are "innocent victims of one of history's most infamous hoaxes."

Its author, air force Col. John J. Driscoll, said information he gathered in Hong Kong, Indo-China, India and elsewhere in the Far East pointed to the use by the Communists of the same type of "brain-washing" as was employed against Cardinal Mindszenty. American business man Robert Vogeler and many others to obtain dramatic "confessions."

"The basis of this mental torture is incredibly prolonged questioning . . . combined with lack of sleep, threats to friends or relatives, drugs and in many cases, hypnosis, to create a state of fatigue and apprehension that borders on, and often produces, a complete mental collapse," Driscoll said.

At Ottawa, a defence department spokesman said he has heard of no extortion attempts being practised on relatives of the Canadian serviceman in Communist hands.

Pinay Insists Treaty Stand

PARIS (AP)—Premier Antoine Pinay stood up to his critics yesterday and insisted the six-nation European Army Treaty must be accepted or rejected as it stands.

In effect, he told members of the National Assembly's foreign affairs committee: "It is too late to change the treaty now. If there must be modifications, then they can be added as annexes to the treaty after it is ratified."

Pinay faced the largely hostile committee soon after his cabinet had announced it would submit to Parliament next month both the treaty setting up a European army with West Germans in it and the Western Big Three's peace contract with Bonn.

This does not mean the deputies will be required to vote right away.

Queen Officially Opens New Giant Dam In Wales

As the Queen, with the Duke of Edinburgh standing near, pressed a button that sent a cascade of water tumbling over the dam lip, police kept watchful eyes on the crowd that milled over the area. All spectators entering the ceremonial area were screened by police and anti-sabotage agents.

Early Sunday, a mystery explosion blew a gaping crater in part of the front aqueduct that carries water from the dam to Birmingham across the border in England. Newspaper speculation pinned the blast on fanatical Welsh nationalists who want home rule for the principality.

The display of police toughness aimed at nipping possible demonstrations contrasted sharply with the slight police protection normally deemed necessary for the sovereign's safety. A couple of detectives and a scattering of local police are usually thought enough.

BEAUTY NOT IMPAIRED

In her speech the Queen stressed that "the natural beauty of these Welsh hills has not been impaired by this vast work of modern engineering."

Welsh nationalists grumble that projects like the 1,700,000 Claerwen dam system benefit England more than Wales. Scottish nationalists—whose home rule demands culminated in the theft of the famed coronation stone from Westminster Abbey two years ago — have long made the same charges against England.

4 Kidnappers On Mad Spree

SPARTA, Tenn. (AP) — Police searched three states today for a quartet of bandits whose leader described himself as a "three-gun maniac" and lived up to the description in a highway kidnapping spree.

The gang, including a youth of 18 who carried boxing gloves with him, abducted 10 persons and stole three cars yesterday.

The victims escaped in the same haphazard manner in which they were kidnapped—one, two or three at a time at different places along the highway. Police said some of them were fired on by the bandits as they got away, but apparently none was injured.

A newly-married couple from Houlton, Me., were first to escape. They jumped out at a spotlight at Sparta and spread the story of the spree of wholesale kidnapping and petty robbery.

The abductors still were at large early today in the third car stolen.

Royal Commission Told Details Of Near Jail Riot

TORONTO (CP)—A group of dangerous criminals in Don jail nearly rioted the day after the Boyd gang made their escape, Col. G. Hedley Basher, deputy minister of reform institutions, said yesterday. He told a Royal Commission inquiring into conditions at the jail how the worst prisoners were bent on taking control of the jail and for several days there was an extremely tense atmosphere. "It's hard to describe it unless you've experienced it. These men could be heard yelling out in the street. They were bent on taking control. I'd just been through a prison riot at Guelph and I can assure you I didn't want to see a second one."

Col. Basher gave his account after crown counsel George Walsh asked him to go into details about a complaint to a Toronto newspaper by one of the Don prisoners that he had been wrongfully punished. The deputy minister was at the jail for several days after the Boyd gang escaped Sept. 8 and took charge following the suspension of governor T.W. Brand.

THINGS NOT NORMAL

Officials heard that there was going to be a demonstration in the dining room when men from Kingston were taken there, Col. Basher said. "Things were not normal at the jail and these prisoners readily took advantage of the fact. It was decided to feed them in their corridors. To show you what trouble we took with them, I remember that white cloths were put over the tables."

"When our decision reached the prisoners, we saw immediately they weren't going to co-operate. . . we got word at locking-up time that cell keyholes would be plugged up. We told guards to keep a watchful eye out to detect anybody doing this, with the result that some men were seen stuffing paper into keyholes."

For three days there were demonstrations, with prisoners yelling, rattling cups and banging them against prison bars. Then it was decided to distribute the troublemakers in other parts of the jail. When they did that several men were not only defiant but insolent.

"Next day the men were strapped and that's the story. Not only was it justified, but it was necessary if we were to keep control of the institution."

ESCAPED BY WINDOW

Speaking of the Boyd gang's escape, Col. Basher said at first he thought the four prisoners could not have got out by way of the wall, but had unlocked doors to make their escape. Further investigation, however, convinced him that they had gone out through the window and by way of the wall.

"But their escape still required either assistance, co-operation or negligence by members of the staff," he said.

Col. Basher also gave evidence on the jail building and said: "If we start thinking of building a new jail we might as well start toying with $10,000,000."

Expect Canada Will Urge Reds To Accept Truce

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United States secretary of state, Dean Acheson, today leads off a full-fledged debate on Korea in the powerful United Nations political committee.

Primed with a detailed report on the deadlocked truce negotiations at Panmunjom, Acheson was expected to speak soon after the 60-member body gets down to business on its explosive nine-item agenda. The meeting was set for 3 p.m. EST.

American delegation sources said the secretary would wind up with a resolution urging the General Assembly to approve the armistice terms of the U.N. command and to appeal to the Communists to accept those terms without further delay.

U.S.-CANADA MOVE

Informed sources said Wednesday the truce resolution may be a two-way play carried out by the U.S. and Canada. They said the U.S. would offer a resolution asking the U.N. to endorse U.S. conduct of the Korean War in the name of the U.N., and that Canada would present an amendment urging the assembly to call on the Communists to accept a truce based on the latest U.N. proposals.

Acheson already has served notice—at the beginning of this year's assembly session—that the U.S. and its allies will fight on in Korea "until a just peace is achieved."

He indicated that the U.S. will ask other U.N. members to pour more men, money and material to carry on this fight if the Chinese Communists and North Koreans do not accept the U.N. truce terms.

SEE BITTER DEBATE

The debate promises to be the bitterest ever fought out in the halls of the U.N. Russia and her bloc already are pledged not to budge from their opposing stand, particularly regarding the repatriation of prisoners of war — main issue holding up the truce.

With both sides already committed not to compromise, the world's diplomats have predicted that the fate of the United Nations depends entirely on a settlement on the Korean question.

Observers felt certain the debate would stretch out at least until after the S.S. presidential elections Nov. 4. Britain and France, though expressing eagerness to rally behind the U.S. in the Korean discussion, were expected to hold off their big speeches until Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Foreign Minister Robert Schuman arrive.

Russia fought bitterly Wednesday to give debate priority to a Polish resolution which wrapped up the Korean question in a package along with other Communist proposals regarding world tensions.

Top place for the Korean debate then was approved 51 to 5 (Soviet bloc) with four abstentions.

Kesselring Released As Act Of Clemency

BONN, Germany (Reuters) — Former Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, Hitler's west-front commander, was released from Werl war criminals' prison today as an act of clemency by British authorities in West Germany.

Kesselring, 67, was German supreme commander in Italy for two years until March, 1945, and before that in charge of the air fleets which bombed Poland, Flanders and Britain.

He was sentenced to death for war crimes by an Allied military court in Italy in 1947 but the sentence was later commuted to life imprisonment. He is said to be suffering from cancer.

New Price Index Introduced

OTTAWA (CP)—Margarine, hamburger, soft drinks and women's girdles play a part in the new consumer price index which went into operation today. For the first time, these and some 60 other consumer goods are included in estimating living costs under the new prices barometer which replaces the old cost-of-living index. Other items range from sausage to chocolate bars and from women's fur coats to beer and liquor, all reflecting modern buying trends and the change in living habits of Canadians.

NO QUANTITY BUYING

"Consumers are just not buying these things in the quantities they used to, and that's why we've decided to discard them," Bureau of Statistics officials said. "Actually the new index will cover about 225 items compared with 160 in the old index."

The changes followed a 1948 coast-to-coast survey of consumer buying trends which resulted in elimination from the new index of such other items as women's woollen panties, cotton nightgowns, frying pans, kitchen pails, shaves and even cigars.

"Men seem to be getting less shaves in barbershops and doing more shaving at home," a prices expert said.

Working out consumer price trends for the new measuring rod, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, bureau men found that the peak on the new basis was reached last December when the index touched at 118.2.

SAME PEAK LEVEL

Under the old index, based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100, the December peak was 191.5. Thus, a big drop appeared to have taken place, but actually both reflected the same peak level in living costs.

Last July, the new consumer price index slipped one-tenth of a point to 116.0 from 116.1. The old cost-of-living index receded four-tenths of a point to 187.6 from 188.0.

To avoid confusion and to get Canadians accustomed to the new index, both the consumer price index and the cost-of-living index likely will be published simultaneously for the next few months at least. Both likely will come out on Nov. 4 when September living costs will be published.

A feature in the new index is the inclusion of the cost of home ownership under a new sub-column called shelter, replacing the rent sub-group in the old cost-of-living index.

Based on 1949 prices equalling 100, the cost of home ownership climbed to a peak of 119.7 during July. Rents also were at a peak—121.3 under the C.P.I. and 147.9 under the old measuring rod.

Many of the items in the new consumer index will be surveyed on a monthly basis; others every three months; some every six months; and a few only once a year.

MONTHLY CHECK

Under monthly check will come such things as foods, clothing, house repairs, beer and liquor.

Every six months the tabulators will take a look at the price of ice, street car fares, newspapers, taxis, hospitals, eyeglasses, theatre charges and train and bus fares.

And only once a year will they make changes in the index on such things as automobile licences, postage, property taxes, mortgage interest, prepaid health care, magazine prices and insurance.

Red Assault Thrown Back

SEOUL (AP) — U.S. Seventh Division troops on Triangle Hill tonight threw back an assault by Chinese Reds who stormed the peak shortly after dark.

Plane flares and searchlights lit up the attacking Reds for the U.N. artillery. Front-line officers said the battle raged for two hours.

The United States Eighth Army said the South Korean 9th Division captured control of the hill and a nearby knob at 1:20 p.m. The Chinese launched their counter-attack about 90 minutes later.

Fighting for the high ground, at the western end of the old iron triangle, has raged for two weeks. The Reds had held it since Saturday.

CHINESE REINFORCING

About 20 miles to the east, U.S. officers said the Chinese were bringing up fresh troops to reinforce their battered battalions threatening Sniper Ridge and Triangle Hill.

They said one complete Chinese division of 10,000 troops had been mauled in the central front fighting of the last 10 days.

Ontario Fire Loss Set At $30,000,000

TORONTO (CP) — Total fire loss in Ontario this year was estimated today at $30,000,00 by Attorney-General Porter.

Addressing the opening meeting of the two-day convention of Ontario fire chiefs here, he said the provincial and federal governments are spending $1,000,000 to standardize hose threads throughout the province. Seven counties surrounding Toronto now the standardized, he added.

Six months ago, four hose threads were used between Oakville and Oshawa, "making mutual aid impossible," he said.

lately contemplated, Mr. Cooke said, but he added that New Liberty and Consolidated would work together in close harmony

Besides Saturday Night, Consolidated Press publishes the Canadian Home Journal, Farmer's Magazine and eight trade journals with a total circulation of more than 1,000,000. Mr. Cooke's New Liberty has a monthly circulation of more than 400,000.

BOUGHT BASEBALL CLUB

Mr. Cooke, whose first job for a brokerage firm brought him $11 weekly, is said to have made his first million at 32. Last year he bought Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League and drew fans with a bewildering parade of stunts plus player and managerial shuffles. The team made the playoffs this year.

Mr. Cooke owns radio station CKEY in Toronto and various other radio and advertising interests. He entered the magazine field in 1947 with the purchase of Liberty magazine which he renamed New Liberty.

By coincidence, the Telegram, Toronto evening newspaper, was offered for sale a few hours after announcement of the Consolidated deal. In recent weeks Mr. Cooke's name was connected with speculation that he was interested in buying it.

After announcing purchase of Consolidated, he said he's still interested in buying the Telegram.

Canadian Sugar Big Problem

OTTAWA (CP) — Trade officials said today they are sympathetic with a problem developing in the sale of Canadian sugar but they do not agree that Cuba, one of the world's big producers, is "dumping" refined sugar on the Canadian market.

Officials of the sugar beet industry from four provinces — Ontario, Manitoba, Alberta and Quebec — met with Trade Minister Howe and other officials yesterday asking that imports from Cuba be restricted.

Spokesmen for the processors and growers complained that Cuba was dumping the sugar — selling it at prices lower than in the home market — and thus forcing down the Canadian price.

Trade officials said they knew of no dumping, and attributed a decline in Canadian prices to a growing world sugar surplus, forcing price declines in many countries.

The Canadian government has an agreement with Cuba, to provide a market in Canada of at least 75,000 tons of raw Cuban sugar each year for a three-year period. The agreement expires at the end of 1953.

Some officials suggested the government might ask Cuba to restrict shipments of refined sugar to Canada voluntarily in view of the guaranteed market for raw sugar, but other officials said such an approach would not be realistic.

Lord Ogilvy Weds Heiress

Ogilvy is heir to the Earl of Airlie and a 69,000-acre estate surrounding ancient Cortachy castle in Kirriemuir, Scotland. He was formerly seen in Margaret's company on many late London dates but rumors of a possible engagement were halted by his announcement last July that he would marry Miss Ryan.

FIFTH CHANGE

This is the fifth time in history that the Canadian cost-of-living index base has been changed, to keep up with changes in living standards and buying habits.

But for the first time, liquor is included in the measurements, reflecting the tendency of increasing purchases. Liquor, however, is only a minor item on the family budget, and takes up only about one per cent of the entire index.

The new index, said Mr. Marshall, is based on a survey of purchases during 1949 by 1,517 Canadian families, having these characteristics:

1. Living in 27 Canadian cities each with more than 30,000 population.

2. Ranging in size from two adults to two adults with four children, the survey year ranging from $1,650 to $4,050.

COVERS MORE ITEMS

Mr. Marshall said that with expansion in the number of items covered — enlarged to 225 from 160 in the old index — there may be no further need for a large-scale change in the prices barometer for a long time to come.

However, to keep up with possible changes in buying habits, the bureau is considering using a small group of families across the country as test cases to judge how their buying habits and living standards may change and to make changes in the index accordingly.

Legislature Gives Bills 2nd Reading

Prorogation Expected Shortly As Business Pushed

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario legislature today heads toward prorogation of the special fall session that began Monday. The only three government bills before it were given second reading yesterday. Main debate yesterday centred on a measure to compensate property-owners of the 10,000 acres of Eastern Ontario to be flooded by the St. Lawrence power development.

Hon. G. H. Challies, vice-chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, said they would be given compensation protection "that has never been given before."

The government was giving special consideration to moving and rehabilitating municipal areas to be flooded, he said. Industry was "simply waiting" to move in and make the area one of the province's major industrial centres.

CAN APPEAL OFFERS

Property owners unsatisfied with compensation offers of the Hydro Commission could appeal to the Ontario Municipal Board and from there to the Ontario Court of Appeal.

Premier Frost said the Municipal Board may be enlarged to handle compensation appeals. He asked that any problems which might arise in future would be met by additional legislation if they were not covered by the present bill.

The two other measures, together with the St. Lawrence bill, are expected to pass through committee stage today and be given third reading before a brief ceremony closing the session.

One provides for ratification of the five-year tax-rental agreement between Ontario and the federal government, transferring provincial corporation and personal income tax fields to Ottawa in return for annual payments.

The second abolishes the 32-year-old highway improvement fund and returns to legislature members the right to vote on specific highway expenditures.

URGES IMPARTIAL BODY

Farquhar Oliver, Liberal house leader, supported the St. Lawrence compensation bill but urged formation of an impartial body to deal with property compensation claims It would be preferable to the two government-appointed agencies — the Hydro Commission, which will make the compensation offers, and the Municipal Board, which will hear the first stage of any appeal.

Peter Manley (L-Stormont), whose constituency will be most affected by the power project, took issue with the main provision of the bill calling for "just compensation." He said the amounts paid should be sufficient to cover replacement cost of property flooded or damaged.

"I don't think the people in that area will be satisfied with anything else but compensation based on replacement value," he said.

Albert Wren (Lin.-Lab.-Kenora) and T.D. Thomas (CCF-Ontario) both criticized provisions of the federal-provincial tax agreement, though they supported its general principle.

Mr. Thomas said the only ones to benefit under the agreement were corporations, which will receive a two-per-cent reduction in corporation taxes in the transfer of the tax field to Ottawa. The province should also have provided for improvements in municipal finances and social welfare in the agreement.

Terrorists were reported to have scattered to the bush and caves to escape the roundup.

SEAL OFF AREA

Troops and police sealed off the Nyeri area immediately after the murders last night.

[illegible] agricultural officer in Nyeri, that 500 terrorists were holding a secret ceremony on a nearby banana plantation. He said they were taking the customary oaths of swearing to kill white settlers if called upon to do so.

The chief hurried to the cene with an African policeman while the agricultural officer informed police headquarters in Nyeri. Armed only with rifles, the chief, the policeman and two tribal retainers fired shots in the air over the ceremony. The terrorists scattered.

Police said the chief "very bravely but very foolishly" mingled with the Mau Mau members as they left the ceremony grounds. They set upon him with spears and pangas — heavy native knives — and hacked him to pieces. The African policeman fled but was caught and slaughtered on the edge of the Gura River nearby. The two tribal retainers were missing.

Clergyman Urges P.T.A. War On Love Comics

COBOURG (ENS)—War against love comics and love magazines which are readily available to young people either by purchase or by reading at newsstands, was urged upon members of St. Michael's Parent Teacher Association by Rev. Joseph O'Sullivan of Peterborough in addressing the P. T. A. monthly meeting here.

He referred to 1950 when, at a meeting of the general P.T.S., it was decided to take action against crime comics which had developed into a menace for young people. In Peterborough, children were asked to bring their comics to school and these were placed in a box and later studied by elders to learn the type of material depicted therein.

Certain legislation was obtained and divorce, crime and sex were not to be glorified.

A new danger appeared on the newsstands, the love comic and the love story magazine and these new problems are facing parents and teachers. Harm comes not only by children buying the magazines, but also from the fact that some children would browse through these objectionable forms of literature while looking at publications on the newsstand. If some parents were to see some of the so-called literature on display they would be shocked and surprised.

P. T. A. groups were trying to arouse parents to the necessity of watching this danger. Children are born imitators who imitate what they see and read. It was most important that they should not be exposed to publications containing material which would be harmful to imitate, Father O'Sullivan said.

IT WAS A CLOSE CALL for several people walking along the sidewalk, bystanders comment as they look over a car driven by Fred Pelky, 178 Morrow Street, which crashed into a tree on George St., near London St., Wednesday evening. After a collision with a station wagon at the intersection, the car veered to the left, jumped the curb and struck the tree. Had it not been for the tree, witnesses agreed, one or more people on the sidewalk would have been hit and pinned against the brick house right beside the sidewalk. Dorset School Starts Classes Early In Year Classes at the Ontario Forest Ranger School near Dorset will start January 5, Minister of Lands and Forests Welland S. Gemmell announced today. Present class concludes its work December 20.

Personnel selected to attend the school are chosen by district foresters, and usually at least one conservation officer is included among the nominees from each district. From the Trent District, C. O. Robert Trotter, of Apsley, is at Dorset.

It is also the policy of the department, said Mr. Gemmell, to have senior personnel attend from time to time to keep posted concerning the most recent instructional techniques used.

PLENTY OF FIELD WORK

Periods of training at the school consist of about three-quarters field work and one-quarter classroom work and lectures. Field studies are carried out in the university forest which contains both hardwood and evergreens, a representative population of birds, including game birds, small animals as well as game and fur-bearing animals, and waters in which fish abound.

In combination, the first and second terms provide training in all operations and activities met with in the field by department, and forest industries, personnel.

Third term courses are more specialized. Students who have been successful in the first two terms are obliged to enroll in one of the major divisions of third term work. Students who comply with all requirements of the course are granted a certificate.

Honor Galt Magistrate On His Retirement

KITCHENER (CP) — Almost 11 years ago Magistrate Hugh R. Polson of Galt was named "temporary magistrate for 10 days"—but he stayed 10½ years before retiring recently.

This information came last night at a testimonial dinner for the retired magistrate who now resides in Long Branch, a Toronto suburb.

It was often said that Mr. Polson administered justice by applying the rule of the thumb with the golden rule.

An easy chair was presented to the guest of honor while his wife received a bouquet of roses.

KILLED IN ACTION last week in Korea was Pte. Vernon Kenneth Shortreed, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Shortreed of Port Hope. Only 20, Pte. Shortreed wrote to his wife recently that he hoped to be home for Christmas as he had only a week left in the line. His widow, the former Barbara Tackaberry of Warkworth, is living in Cobourg. Surviving are his widow, his parents, and three brothers.

Month In Jail Stealing Meat

Ralph Wright, 22, 502 Wolsley St., was sentenced to one month in jail today for stealing a case of boneless meat from the loading platform at Canada Packers' plant on George St., the night of September 25.

Wright elected summary trial before Magistrate W. R. Philp on the charge of stealing the meat, valued at more than $25 and pleaded not guilty. Evidence was heard October 15. Wright was defended by W. J. Arthur Fair, and the case was adjourned until today for judgment.

Fred Innis, superintendent of plant operations at Canada Packers said in court that a case of tomatoes and a box of boneless meat weighing 96 pounds was discovered missing from the loading platform on the date Wright was charged with stealing the meat.

Mr. Innis said the meat would be worth $50.42 for 100 pounds, and he identified a case of meat produced in court as being similar to the one that he had found to be missing.

A statement Wright gave to Detective sergeants Bud Clarke and John Stevenson was admitted by Magistrate Philp, which implicated Wright in the theft of the meat.

Today, Magistrate Philp said he was finding Wright guilty on the evidence.

Four Nurses Named To District Executive

Four Peterborough nurses were elected to the executive of District 6 Registered Nurses' Association at the district's annual meeting in Port Hope Wednesday night.

The 1952-53 chairman is Miss M. Millard, of Belleville. The immediate past chairman is Miss Harriet McGeary, nurse-in-charge of the Peterborough Branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses.

The remaining members of the executive are: 1st vice-chairman, Miss Rosella Cunningham, Cobourg; 2nd vice-chairman, Miss Monica Waters, Peterborough; 3rd vice-chairman, Miss Jessie Findley; secretary-treasurer, Miss Isabel Sine; representative for private nurses, Mrs. Shirley Prentice, Belleville; representative for public health nurses, Miss Vera Clarke, Brighton; representative for institutional nurses, Miss M. Mill, Peterborough; representative for industrial nurses, Miss Mary Greer, Peterborough; convener of membership committee, Miss Verna Nelson; convener of nominating committee, Miss Veronica O'Leary, Peterborough.

No Sissy Stuff At Ohio University

COLUMBUS, O. (AP) — None of that sissy stuff like swallowing goldfish for the boys at Ohio State University. The latest fad—spitting fire—is a real he-man task.

Equipment for the feat includes a can of lighter fluid, a match and a powerful set of lungs.

A small quantity of the fluid is taken into the mouth. The match is lighted and held at arm's length. Then a mighty puff of air, spraying the fluid at the match, and a big ball of flame rolls skyward.

The game is discouraged around drapes or among people with mustaches or beards.

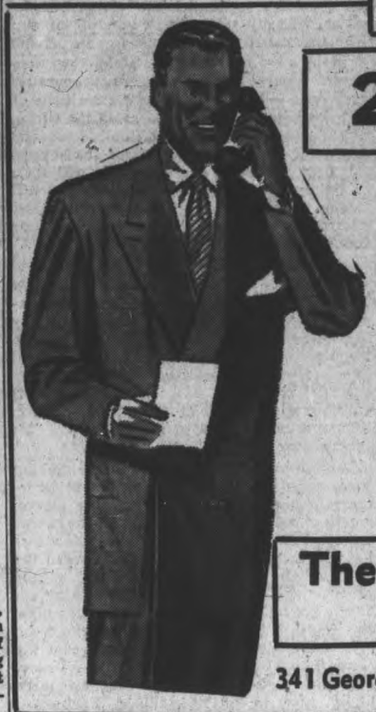
Ex-Canadian Soldier Executed



SHREWSBURY, England (CP)—Donald Neil Simon, 32-year-old machinist formerly of Fredericton, N.B., who was convicted last August on a murder charge, was executed today at Shrewsbury prison.

Simon, who served in the Canadian Army during the war, was taken into custody after the June 21 shooting of his English wife, Eunice, 28, and Victor Brades, 27, in what was described as a "crime of passion."

A Revolution We All Applaud

One of the most important and far-reaching revolutions in the life of man during the past century has been the revolution in diet; there can be few people, and few classes of people in the civilized world who do not eat better and more varied food today than their ancestors ate a century ago. Much of the credit for this change must go to Nicholas Appert, who was born on October 23, 1752, in France. He was a brewer in a small way of business, and made no mark in the world until Napoleon offered a prize of 12,000 francs to anyone who could find a means of preserving food for the use of armies in the field. Napoleon was the first commander to recognize the fact that he often lost more soldiers through scurvy and bad food than through enemy action. After fourteen years work Appert won the prize; he proved that food packed in air-tight containers and then heated would keep; he was, in fact, the father of the tin can and of modern methods of preserving food, and Louis Pasteur was glad to credit Appert with the inspiration which posterity knows as pasteurization. Appert, it may be noted, received nothing for his invention except Napoleon's prize; he made his simple method known to the world and did not profit from it personally.

* * *

We are now accustomed to eating fruit and vegetables the year round, and canning methods are giving place to remarkable techniques of freezing. It is impossible to estimate how much this has increased the average height of the race, or prolonged its life-span. But people with long memories, or an interest in social history, know that in our grandparents' time many ailments were common which are now recognized as the result of bad diet; long winters during which salt meat and a few vegetables preserved by drying were the staple fare, told heavily upon the stamina of the hardiest. Diet has undergone a revolution—only one of the revolutions which have made this century a good one to live in—and it is fitting that we should remember Appert on this second centenary of his birthday.

Investing In Canada

Investing money in Canadian bonds has not always been a profitable business, as people know who invested in Victory Bonds during the last war. Now these $100 par bonds are worth three or four dollars less than the hundred—which mightily shocks some bondholders. The worse cut—far worse—is that they are actually worth little more than $50 in terms of the 1943-45 dollars invested in them. Inflation, which put up the price of goods and services, correspondingly reduced the value of paper or bond dollars. Thus the wartime Victory bond buyer (who has held on to his bonds) has lost in real terms about fifty dollars.

It is therefore with some hesitation that we recommend the new issue of Canada Savings Bonds, since recent history has proved that there is no such thing as a gilt-edged bond. The new Canada Savings Bonds are, however, quite different from the Victory Bonds. Their edge is gilt, insofar as any investment can be guaranteed. They are always worth $100—their full face value, whenever they are cashed. They have been removed from fluctuation in the open market by the Government's guarantee always to buy them back at any time for their full face value. Thus one of the risks which Victory Bond buyers took (and suffered from) has been removed. The other remains.

There is no guarantee that today's value of the dollar will be the same two or ten years from now. If inflation should again hit the country, and the dollar be further reduced in value, the new bonds—if kept—will be reduced in real value, despite the guaranteed face value. There is another side to this kind of possible fluctuation. If the dollar increases in value, which it could do if inflation is not only controlled but some of the wind let out of the balloon, then the new bonds would be a better investment than anything else could be.

The new issue of bonds seems very attractive. The interests rates are higher than for earlier Canada Savings Bonds. They pay 3.44 per cent. if held to maturity; slightly less than three percent. in the first four years. They can be cashed at any bank at any time for their full face value. They can be bought conveniently in denominations to fit most purses—$50, $100, $500, $1,000 and $5,000, and arrangements can be made to buy them on instalments. To prevent this good issue being bought up by great investment houses and crowding out the small investor, the Government has set $5,000 as the limit any one person or firm can hold.

It was a patriotic necessity to buy Victory Bonds. This weeks' issue of Canada Savings Bonds will be bought not because of patriotic duty but as good, sensible, easy investment.

Congratulations To The Expositor

We make no apology for our tardiness in writing of the Brantford Expositor's Centennial Number, which appeared on October 11; not neglect, but fascinated interest, has deferred our comment upon it and while we do not claim to have read its full 280 pages, we may fairly claim to have read some part of each of them, and all of many. We admire the Expositor, and have ties with it which need not be fully explained here. It is sufficient to say that parts of its history have a legendary significance for us, and names once familiar on its staff-roll have been household words with us. But we will not embark here upon a tale which could only be of limited interest to most of our readers; we shall only mention that a former editor of this paper, A. R. Kennedy, and the Hon. Rupert Davies were both graduates of the Expositor's composing room.

This Centennial Edition gives us a firm reminder of the part which a good daily newspaper can play in a Canadian community. It is the abstract and brief chronicle of the community's development, and the record of progress, of regress, of change in every field. The Expositor's reproductions of some of its earlier front pages is a clever stroke of presentation; they not only recall the flavour of an earlier time, but they also give the lie to those people who are never tired of saying that newspapers are not as good as they used to be. Every good paper, like the Expositor, is as good as the hasting day permits, but all are better than they used to be.

The Expositor is happy in being able to include in this edition the novel Son of A Hundred Kings, by Thomas B. Costain, once a member of its staff and now a celebrated novelist; this novel is itself fragrant with the odour of lilacs and natural gas which is the heady air of Brantford. We thank the Expositor for a special edition which is in every respect worthy of a fine paper, and which has given us hours of pleasure.

Kitimat

A new city is being created in Canada. It is an instant creation, rising from nothing to 30,000 people, all at once. This is the town of Kitimat, to be the hub of the world's largest aluminum plant, in a valley in the wilds of northern British Columbia. Kitimat—even before its creation—is already setting the western world agog.

It takes nearly ten kilowatt-hours to make a pound of aluminum. Therefore the proximity of the reduction plant to the aluminum deposits is less important that its proximity to abundant cheap power. That is why the town of Arvida, next door to Chicoutimi in the 'kingdom of the Saguenay' was created. More hydro power is produced by the dam system at Arvida than by the famous Boulder Dam in the United States.

The Aluminum Company of Canada is still expanding. It wanted a new source of cheap power. So it sought and found a water system in the mountains of British Columbia, and began to pour five hundred million dollars into the area, building, damming, tunneling. One American writer describes Kitimat (the project which includes the town) as "one of the most awesome revisions of geography in history."

The first units of the plant are expected to be finished by 1954, providing a capacity of 85,000 tons. Further units will give Kitimat a total production capacity of 485,000 tons a year. It will be the world's largest aluminum plant and double Canada's capacity, which will be far in excess of the domestic needs. There is no doubt that Canada, always a leading producer of aluminum (the network of aluminum companies the world over has its headquarters in Canada) now under development in the United States.

The name and town of Kitimat symbolize Canada's grasp of the Twentieth Century.

Stalin's New Tactics

By EDWARD CRANKSHAW

THE PARTY CONGRESS is over and the course of the Soviet Union has been set for some time to come. It was, in fact, set well before the Congress opened. There was no debating in the Great Palace of the Kremlin, no clash of views; only a series of statements which reiterated and elaborated decisions already taken by a handful of men who had conducted their debates in private.

In the mass of verbiage, in Malenkov's marathon report and in Stalin's preparatory article, as well as in his brief farewell speech to the foreign delegates, we catch the flicker of reflected light from extremely important decisions. We can only guess at the reasons for these decisions, and only time will show how they will work out in practice. But it is wrong to think that because the main line continues unchanged there has been no change at all.

SO LONG AS STALIN and his colleagues remain Communists, the general line cannot change: it demands implacable hostility towards everything that is not Communist. But the means chosen to further the general line and ensure its ultimate triumph may change a great deal. Since they are the stuff of international policies from term to term, they are more important for us than the general line itself.

The general line, restated and brought up to date by Stalin, is that the world is irremediably divided into two hostile camps, pending the ultimate victory of the Communist camp. Lenin used to speak cheerfully of a series of bloody wars between the Communists and the "Imperialists" as the price of this ultimate victory; but war today is not quite what it was in Lenin's time, and Stalin has thought again. In effect, he says, there is always a good chance that the "Imperialists" will attack the Soviet Union, but with anything like luck they are more likely now to quarrel among themselves and come to grief by tearing each other to pieces, so that the way will be clear for Communism to step in and establish a world order on the ruins of the dead system.

THIS ATTITUDE marks a return to the waiting game that was played in the thirties under the slogan "Socialism in One Country". But it is a return with a difference: the slogan is now Socialism in one half of the world. The chief implication of the present game is an interim recognition of the status quo. The Soviet bloc, which includes the European satellites and China, is to consolidate its position and build up its strength, material and moral, until the point of invincibility is reached. At the same time no effort will be spared to aggravate the tensions and antagonisms in the opposing camp and thus weaken its unity, resolution, and material force.

These efforts will range from a continuation of the Korean war for as long as China will put up with it to the standing campaign to exacerbate anti-American feeling among the Western allies; from the encouragement of "liberation movements" in the backward areas of the world to the exploitation of the common man's longing for peace; from the attempts of foreign Communist parties to establish popular fronts to the playing off of Germany and Japan against their late conquerors.

GENERALS do not change their tactics for fun: they change them under pressure of events. Stalin has changed his tactics, passing from an offensive campaign to general harassing operations, because he has found it necessary to do so. He has found it necessary certainly because of the increasing strength and determination of the Western allies; possibly because his own people, and the people of the satellites, badly need a breathing space.

It is safe to say that at the moment Stalin does not propose to indulge in further adventures carrying any risk of war with the West, and also that he feels that the Soviet Union is more able to stand the strain of a cold peace longer than the Western allies. Although he probably does not really believe that, for example, America and Britain will ever fight each other, he certainly believes that the asperities of the struggle for economic expansion and survival will sooner or later shatter Western unity and break the grand alliance.

There are many ways in which this might happen, and there is no doubt that Stalin has thought of them all and made his plans accordingly. It would be comforting to feel that the same could be said of the statesmen in Washington, Paris, and London.

THE GIST of Stalin's newly declared foreign policy is to give the West some rope in the hope that we shall hang ourselves. But it is for us to say what we do with that rope. The gist of Russia's newly declared domestic policy is a giant spring cleaning, a setting of the house in order, and a continued expansion of the industrial base of the Soviet Union.

On the face of it, the Kremlin would seem to be sitting very pretty. Industrial expansion, if ever, overtake American production; but, on the other hand, under the Stalin dictatorship a far higher proportion of industrial production can be allocated to the sinews of war than is feasible in America. Marshal Vassilievsky has declared that by 1955 the Soviet Union will be in a position to turn out an even greater quantity of tanks and guns and aircraft than in the peak years of the war. While this industrial development is going on, the plan provides for a serious effort to raise the standard of living above the pre-war standard. Stalin himself has spoken of the need to increase real wages by as much as threefold before the life of the masses can be considered worthy of a modern Socialist State.

ANOTHER INDICATION that Stalin is concerned more with the home than with the international front is the constitution of the new Central Committee. The list of names is still incomplete, but the new men include great industrial leaders, such as Tevyosan and Pervvhukin, and great soldiers such as Koniev and Timoshenko. Politicians and party fanatics have in many cases given way to men of action. Theorists who sit brooding over the course of the world revolution have been superseded by Soviet patriots who are more interested in the greater glory of the Soviet Union than in the Communist movement in Ecuador. This, as Stalin would say, is no accident. It is part of a new trend, already observed in these columns, and, indeed, inevitable. It means that these men, who are responsible for the material welfare of the Soviet Union, and upon whom, in the last resort, the future development of the State depends, have grown powerful enough either to insist on having a direct say on matters of policy or else to have made their participation in the Government indispensable.

The lesson seems to be that if Stalin can play a waiting game, while equipping himself for every emergency, so can we. Stalin may believe that the West must collapse under its own contradictions. We do not. Time will also show that the East has its contradictions as well as the West. If Britain can quarrel with America, China can quarrel with the Soviet Union. Nothing stands still. The Communist Party of Lenin has already changed out of all recognition. It will go on changing. It has already changed its name and dropped its Bolshevik label. It may one day change its colour.

Russia's Radio Jams Boomerang

By W. MACLANACHAN

THE ALL-OUT effort of the Russians to jam foreign broadcasts is proving to be a boomerang. Their full resources of some 250 to 300 high powered jamming transmitters and about one thousand low-power local stations are having an effect quite different from that intended.

Reliable information received through British and American sources shows that in general over the whole of Russia, thirty per cent. of Western broadcasts are received without intentional interference, fifty per cent. are jammed but intelligible, only twenty per cent. are rendered competely ineffectual. The reception conditions, of course, vary throughout the country as reception depends on the wavelengths used and the state of the ionosphere.

This year the number and power of the jamming stations were increased. This gives them greater coverage, but it also creates wide areas in which the jamming signal, although not powerful enough to spoil reception, gives an indication to listeners within the Iron Curtain that there is a worthwhile transmission on that wavelength.

At the same time the range causes the jamming to reach countries in the West and affects the reception of Russia's own broadcasts. As Russian transmissions to Britain are on wavelength close to those used by the B.B.C. (British Broadcasting Corporation) and Voice of America and, in some cases are sandwiched between them, the jamming spoils reception of Soviet transmissions over the larger part of Europe.

Listener research in Britain shows that there has been a considerable decrease in the number of listeners to Russian programmes here. Some people declare that they have given up listening to Russian programmes on the short waves because of jamming on adjacent wavelengths.

Among the high-power stations forming the jamming battery are several in Cominform countries. More than fifteen have been located in Czechslovakia at various times, several have been spotted in Poland, Rumania, Bulgaria and Hungary. Some of these were transferred from their normal programme to jamming duties.

Inside Russia itself, as the main jamming stations form only a very imperfect curtain, work on low-power local jammers has been extended from which the signals are heard only on the direct ground-level waves instead of on waves reflected by the ionosphere. They cannot all be heard outside Russia or the satellite States, but the numbers that have been located indicates that there are about one thousand now operating.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Seeing you have purified your souls in obeying the truth through the Spirit unto unfeigned love of the brethren, see that ye love one another with a pure heart fervently: being born again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the word of God, which liveth and abideth for ever. (I Pet. 1:22, 23.)

Wherefore henceforth know we no man after the flesh: yea, though we have known Christ after the flesh, yet now henceforth know we him no more. Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become anew. (II Cor. 5:16, 17.)

✧ ✧ ✧

As ye have therefore received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk ye in him; rooted and built up in him, and stablished in the faith, as ye have been taught, abounding therein with thanksgiving. (Col. 2:6, 7.)

A BRITISH OPINION

POSTCARD FROM ANZUS

(Britain has not been included in the Pacific Defence talks and agreements which the United States has been conducting with New Zealand and Australia.)

Truman Denounces Nixon As Anti-Labor Candidate

WHEELING, W.Va. (AP)—President Truman today denounced Senator Richard M. Nixon as "anti-labor" and said the Republican party's leaders "hate labor unions and would like to destroy them."

Appealing for Democratic votes in West Virginia's soft-coal and steel region, Truman attacked the Republican vice-presidential candidate and said that the Taft-Hartley Act "can reck the American labor movement."

In an address prepared for delivery at Wheeling, Truman said the Republican presidential nominee, Dwight D. Eisenhower, "picked one of the most anti-labor men in Congress to be his running mate."

He said a provision in the original Hartley bill of 1947 banning industry-wide bargaining was dropped out of the final version of the Taft-Hartley act, "but it has not been forgotten."

BANS CLOSED SHOP

The present Taft-Hartley Act provides for anti-strike injunctions and bans the closed shop, as well as containing other provisions widely condemned by labor.

"The congressman who made the concluding argument on the floor of the House of Representatives in favor of the Hartley bill in 1947 was a young man who showed real promise as a leader in the battle against labor — Representative Nixon of California," Truman said.

Truman's prepared text omitted any reference to the soft-coal strike and the action of the wage stabilization board cutting 40 cents off a $1.90-a-day award for the miners which brought it about.

But he recalled the days of "labor spies and private armies and strike-breakers" and credited the Democratic party with stopping such things.

"But there are still men who hate labor unions and would like to destroy them," he said. "These men still exist, and they exist in great number. And I have no hesitation in telling you where they are politically. They are a powerful group within the Republican party."

C.C.C. Asks Ottawa Back World Calendar

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Chamber of Commerce yesterday requested the Canadian government to take the initiative in having the world calendar placed on the agenda of the United Nations Assembly as soon as possible.

The world calendar would bring about a number of changes, among them a division of the year which would give all quarter-years the same length.

WHILE RADIATOR is being drained, check carefully for leaks or cracks. The smallest leak will expand under heat and pressure of driving.

Now Is The Time To Winterize Car

Don't let a sudden cold snap catch your car with its "summer clothes" on. Now is the time to have your serviceman give it a good going over, because you'll skip the headache of congestion usually found at service stations when the first freeze comes. Arrange for complete winter service, including the installation of anti-freeze. It's never too early for anti-freeze, but frequently too late, as many a cracked cylinder block will testify. Have the cooling system thoroughly checked and the radiator drained and flushed to see if there are any leaks. These should be stopped with a good sealer. Fan belt, hoses and clamps should be checked and, if necessary, replaced. Also, such cold-weather trouble spots as brakes, tires, windshield wipers and battery should receive special attention. Important winterizing steps are illustrated in these pictures.

RADIATOR GRILL should be checked to see that there are no leaves, scraps of paper or other refuse to prevent free flow of air.

ALL HOSES and clamps should be gone over carefully, along with the fan belt and the water pump. Faulty ones should be replaced.

Eisenhower Leads In Ohio But Stevenson Is Gaining

By JACK STEELE,
New York Herald Tribune News Service.

COLUMBUS, Ohio.—Ohio Republicans say Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower would carry this state if the election were held today, but they put a lot of emphasis on the word "today." Ohio Democrats say Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson is "gaining ground" here, but are somewhat wary of forecasting that he will catch up with the General by Nov. 4.

Most political reports and such unbiased political experts as one can find in the midst of a Presidential campaign rate Gen. Eisenhower as the state's favorite but they also shun outright predictions.

The bitterness that overtook Ohio supporters of Sen. Robert A. Taft after he lost the Republican nomination has apparently been dissipated and the state's powerful party machine appears to have swung behind the Eisenhower-Nixon ticket since Sen. Taft and the General reached their accord in New York last month.

Yet the state's Republican leaders are not exuding confidence and a few even admit privately that they are puzzled and even alarmed over the prospects.

Professionals of both parties agree that the factors in the waning weeks of the campaign have cast some doubt on the probability of an Eisenhower victory in Ohio:

1. Heavy registration in cities and industrial areas (This usually means a heavy Democratic vote, but it might also mean a big "protest" vote for the Republicans in 1952.)

2. Gov. Stevenson's strong appeals for the independent vote, which have not been countered as yet by Gen. Eisenhower. (Even Ohio Republicans concede they are somewhat worried about an apparent drift of independent voters to Stevenson, although they say most of those who have switched from Ike to Adlai are "Democrats at heart.")

3. Uncertainties about the farm vote. (Republicans say they believe most Ohio farmers are back in the party fold. Democrats expect farm prosperity to win them votes this year as it apparently did in 1948. Candidates of both parties who have campaigned in rural areas say the farmers are unusually reticent this year to discuss their political preferences.)

Bail Bond Racketeering Flourishing On West Coast

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouver prosecutor Gordon Scott wants to put bail bond racketeers out of business by legislation permitting bonded security companies to take over the business.

More than $1,000,000 worth of bail bonds are written annually in Vancouver courts, Mr. Scott said, and many of them are covered by "professional" bondsmen who are technically illegal but flourishing.

A resolution asking that security companies be permitted to handle the bail bonds was passed at a recent convention of the British Columbia section, Canadian Bar Association, after investigation of the bail-bond situation in major United States cities.

Mr. Scott said bonding companies are allowed to handle bail in the United States and that the situation there is considerably more satisfactory than here.

He stressed that professional bondsmen here charge a flat 10 per cent for their services, so that if a man's bail is $5,000 he has to put up $500 cash in advance before he can get out of jail pending trial.

Bail is supposed to be put up by someone who knows the accused well enough to be reasonably sure he will turn up for trial.

Bondsmen usually have no such guarantee, but bonding companies in the United States take a dim view of an accused who skips bail and they have the machinery to find him and bring him back, Mr. Scott said.

He said there are probably not more than 10 or 15 persons in Vancouver who are handling bail bonds in a big way and they are probably getting well over 25 per cent of the yearly business.

"If a man with no friends or acquaintances in the city is charged he is at the mercy of these racketeers," Mr. Scott said.

St. Peter's Juniors Win Over Lindsay, 16-11 In Drive Toward A Title

Back at full strength, Coach Johnny Lynch's St. Peter's High Saints' juniors continued Wednesday in their drive for the school's first C.O.S.S.A. championship by trimming Lindsay Collegiate in Lindsay 16-11. This was the Saints' second victory over the fairly strong Lindsay team this season and gave the Saints a four-win and one-loss record to date. The Saints must win every game; they have yet to play Oshawa C.V.I., Oshawa Central and P.C.V.S. Garnet and Greys. One of these games against O.C.V.I. will be part of a doubleheader to be played Saturday afternoon in Morrow Park. The senior Saints will be playing an exhibition game with Oshawa Collegiates' Combines.

ALL ON DECK

The four suspended players, who sat out Saturday's important game with Oshawa Central, were back in action. During the second half John Hickey, hurt in the Cobourg exhibition game, made several appearance. Bob O'Rourke and Paul Murphy worked in the quarter slot between Hickey commands.

The junior Saints started their first big march early in the first quarter from their 11-yard line. Chambers, Kearns and O'Rourke were the major ground gainers, making three first downs; the plays were helped by a pass from O'Rourke to Jim Feeley. Finally, Chambers tore through the right side and broke into the clear, running 45 yards for the touchdown which went unconverted.

Truax, Teel and Ketchum minutes later worked Lindsay for three straight first downs before the Lindsay offence bogged down. Art Truax promptly punted; it was long and the Saints were smeared for a single point.

LINDSAY DRIVES

Pushed deep to their 22-yard line Lindsay staged a comeback drive. Truax and Teel started the parade off but the big push was a Truax-Pearson combination for 48 yards to the Saints' 40. Held twice Truax and Pearson promptly combined once more, this time for an unconverted major, putting Lindsay ahead 6-5.

A blocked kick by Ron Board set the Saints in position to again take the lead which they never relinquished. Hickey and O'Rourke alternated on running plays until a quarter sneak by Hickey placed the ball in position for O'Rourke to charge across. The convert was good for a 11-6 score.

Practically from the kickoff the Saints roared back with Hickey, Kearns and Chambers carrying the ball. This march ended in Hickey crossing on a quarter sneak for the Saints' final points.

Lindsay ended the scoring after they had forced the Saints' back; a roughing penalty, which are quite frequent on Lindsay's home grounds, pushed the Saints' further back. Finally Chambers punted and Truax brought it back. On three plays Lindsay's Truax and Gilson combined for the major.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

"We're as ready as we'll ever be" That seems to sum up the feelings of Coach Bev Goulding of P.C.V.S. gridders and Coach Tony Kotowsky of the intermediate Orfuns. They're in heavy action on foreign gridirons this weekend, and both are fairly confident of victory, though realizing they face stern tasks. But their teams are right and ready for battle. The Garnet and Greys tackle Woodstock in Toronto on Friday eve in the Red Feather "tournament of champions", a big high school annual event. Orfuns face the Ghosts Saturday in Cobourg in what is likely to be the game to settle group honors this year. But if Orfuns should lose, likely a playoff betwixt these top teams will result next weekend. A lot of interest in both of these tilts.

Peterborough Minor Hockey Association re-organizes at a "Y" meeting tonight at eight, all interested being invited. Entries will be taken in the various teen-age groups, and a slate of prospective officers will be presented by a nominating committee of Al Watkins, Alex Sinclair—the recreational director—Pat Doherty and Angus Bradley. Good officers, the working kind, are important in a setup like minor hockey as there's plenty to do behind the playing scenes. We have been fortunate in recent years in having capable officials, with the results that a flock of youngsters are getting excellent supervised hockey in Civic Arena. Our future O.H.A. stars, these lads.

Playing for the Kids

Minor hockey should get a good financial boost Friday from proceeds of the exhibition puck fray in Civic Arena. It's between the junior Oddfellows and the senior Petes, with a TV set and many other good prizes to be drawn for by those attending the game. All money raised is to promote minor hockey in Peterborough, and it's a nice gesture by the Petes and I.O.O.F. crews, and others helping, including the arena management. The Petes promise to ice a strong squad for this exhibition, despite the fact that they announced yesterday they would have to disband for the season unless all local senior "B" players were available to them. But they will honor their commitment for this contest, and ice a good team.

* * * * * *

If the Petes and Eagles can't get together for a combined club, we'd suggest that the Petes get busy and carry on, anyway. After all, puck fans here want senior as well as junior hockey during the long winter, and a good grouping is ready to go. It will take a lot of digging and perhaps a month to line up a real contending club—since Jake Wade and Arn Dugan have left to play senior "A" in Brantford and George Steele is now with Clinton—but it could be done. The Petes have enough senior players now for more than half a team, and can surely round up four or five more in the city, district or elsewhere. They were group winners last year and only lost out to the provincial champs, so it's not a hopeless task at all, we figure. Jim Ellis wants us to say that any of the Eagles wanting to play with the club could get a season's contract calling for a release in the spring, making them free agents again.

* * * * * *

Why Not T. V. L. Action ?

Walt Smillie says the rule limiting T.V.L. teams playing a possible pre-season series at Civic Arena to no 1951-52 senior players has been washed out. However, it doesn't look too much like such a series will proceed. In that event, why not get an early meeting of the T.V.L. to line up teams in this district and let 'em play "home" games at Civic until they get ice in their own rinks? The arena is available here and these village teams would have the benefit of six weeks or so on artificial ice. We believe Norwood, under sponsorship of D. A. McGillis, would go anytime; and likely Lakefield, Havelock and Hastings are anxious for an early start. But an early league meeting would have to be held to re-organize for the season.

* * * * * *

St. Peter's juniors resumed their winning ways with a 16-11 victory over Lindsay. Chambers, O'Rourke and Hickey all counted majors for Johnny Lynch's classy young crew. They were at full strength again and played smart football. However, Central of Oshawa haven't been defeated yet, so it's up to the Saints to win their next three games, beating O.C.V.I., Central and P.C.V.S., if they want to take the title. O.C.V.I. tangles with St. Peter's in a junior fixture here Saturday aft in Morrow Park, and that game will be followed by a senior high school exhibition grid fray betwixt Oshawa Combines and S.P.S. Yes, a twin bill Saturday at the Ex.

Native Dancer Now Top Money Winner

NEW YORK (AP) — Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Native Dancer, the grey ghost, assured himself of a place in racing history when he won the East View Stakes at Jamaica yesterday. It was his ninth straight victory and he became the greatest money winning two-year-old of all time with total earnings of $230,495.

The son of Polynesian-Geisha romped home by a 1½-length margin, easing up in the good time of 1:44 1-5.

Trio Stable's Laffango held on to be second. Teds Jeep was third, nine lengths back.

Puck Official Critical Of Sportscast

The following letter was received Wednesday signed by Dr. J. R. Epping, a member of the executive of the 1951-52 Eagles' O.H.A. senior "B" club executive. He wrote:

On a sports broadcast at 11:10 p.m., October 21, 1952, George Ludgate of CHEX announced that the Peterborough Hockey Club would be unable to have a team in the senior "B" group. He qualified this statement by saying the reason was the lack of co-operation of former Eagle players and also that a well known local resident was backing the Norwood entry in the TVL.

Mr. Ludgate neglected to say that three former Petes had also left the club to go to other clubs, Wade and Dugan to the Brantford Senior "A" club and George Steele to Clinton, N.Y. Instead of pointing this out no mention was made of it and the onus was placed on former Eagle players entirely.

As to the well known local resident backing the Norwood entry in the TVL the circumstances may also be pointed out in this way. Norwood officials approached D. A. McGillis Sr., and requested use of the former Eagles club equipment which was granted. The Norwood club did not mention or solicit aid from Mr. McGillis and due to the fact he has given permission for the use of the equipment Mr. Ludgate jumps to the conclusion that Mr. McGillis is sponsoring the Norwood club.

He is certainly misinformed. Due to the dissolution of the Eagles, all players having been duly reinstated by the O.H.A., these players are free agents and as such are entitled to sign with any club they desire, and they have no moral or legal obligation to sign with the Petes. As a matter of fact none of the Eagles have signed with any club.

Upon learning of Mr. McGillis' desire to associate himself with the Norwood club all Eagle players personally expressed a desire to show their loyalty to their former sponsor and all voluntarily said they would associate with the club in any way. Having decided this they informed Mr. McGillis of their intentions and they were told that if this was their wish, it was entirely up to themselves and again they unanimously decided to play for Norwood.

If Mr. Ludgate is to express opinions over the air he should be in a position to confirm what he says and certainly should not give out opinions on the air until he has heard both sides of the story and he should qualify his statement as being his own opinion or thought and not necessarily the truth, merely hearsay.

In a city of this size he should be able to give an unbiased opinion on sporting situations and regardless of his personal leanings and feelings he should merely present all the facts as they are and not what he would like to think they are. He should not try to build animosity up against team players or sponsors regardless of his own personal jealousies or dislikes.

Parkdale Lions Clip Tiger-Cats 20-14

TORONTO (CP)—Parkdale Lions last night came from behind a 14-6 deficit in the third quarter to defeat Hamilton Tiger-Cats 20-14 in the first game of a two-game total point series for the Big Four junior championship.

The Tabbies were up 5-0 in the first, 8-6 at the half and 14-6 in the third before the Lions rallied. Frank Chew led Parkdale with two majors, Mayland Moll scored the other major and Orval Scott kicked two singles and three converts.

Hamilton touchdowns went to Norm Stringer and Jigger Carson.

Scheuneman Trainer

CHICAGO (AP)—Chicago Cubs today named Al Scheuneman, trainer of St. Paul Saints of the American Association for 16 years, as club trainer to replace retiring Andy Lotshaw. Scheuneman, 38, was trainer of the St. Paul hockey club from 1939 until 1951 when the United States Hockey League disbanded.

Central Triumphs

Central defeated Confederation 2-0 yesterday at Riverside in a senior school soccer match. Early in the game Central picked up the ball from a throw-in and the wing carried it down and centred it in neatly; in clearing a Confed. player glanced the ball into his own goal. In even going in the second half, Robbins centred the ball in from the wing and it came out only to have Robbins bang it back. There was a scramble and the goalie tipped it in to make it 2-0. Teams:

Confederation: Rollins, Warner, Overholt, Doleman, Brown, Moffat, Ferguson, Freelove, G. Kimball, Trotter, Steele, J. Kimball, Thorpe.

Central: Lamers, Barclay, Aulbrook, Downer, Sorrie, Armstrong, Gray, Dinsdale, Lustic, Ross, Grills, Robbins, Tunnicliffe, Simpson, Hum, Mac, Mills.

COMER— Bill Lester did not ride his first winner until August 20, but the 20-year-old apprentice of Cass, W. Va., led the jockeys at the regular Jamaica meeting, during which he weighed in with triples on consecutive days.

Dodger Pitcher Maintains Did Right Thing

Johnny Rutherford, whose folks came from Peterborough, returned recently to his winter home in Detroit and told sportswriters that he "did the right thing" in ducking a relief assignment for Brooklyn Dodgers in the sixth game of the World Series.

"I'd warmed up five different times during the game, and I'd lost a lot of my stuff," the young right-hander said. "I didn't feel I could do the team justice."

Rutherford, a Detroit boy who is house-hunting and job-hunting right now, denied a report that Manager Charlie Dressen was so burned up he gave Rutherford a bawling-out and assigned him to pitch batting practice the next day as punishment.

"Cookie Lavagetto (the Brooklyn coach) does all the talking in cases like that," Rutherford said. "He told me it looked like Tom Gorman, who throws a lot of side-arm stuff, would pitch the seventh game for the Yankees. Since I pitch with the same style, he wanted our hitters to get a look at that kind of stuff in batting practice.

"I had shoulder trouble during the season and my arm tired easily," Rutherford said. "That's what happened when I was warming up for the sixth game. It's not an alibi, just a statement of fact."

Rutherford was answering reports that Dressen, with Brooklyn trailing by one run in the seventh inning, wanted to replace pitcher Billy Loes with a pinch-hitter, but had to let Loes bat when Rutherford said he couldn't pitch. Dressen allegedly "gave up" on Rutherford at that point.

"I felt then and I feel now I did the right thing. The important thing was to try to win the game, and do it with the best man possible. I didn't feel I could do the team justice then," Rutherford said.

TWO-HORSE RACE

BALTIMORE (AP) — Pimlico's famed $25,000 Special on Saturday has boiled down to a non-betting two-horse race. Larry MacPhail's General Staff and Greentree Stable's One Hitter were the only entries in prospect today for the winner-take-all, weight-for-age contest.

Petes To Play The Juniors In Benefit Tilt

Local hockey talent will be seen by a large crowd in Civic Arena on Friday night. It will be an exhibition game between the O.H.A. junior "B" Oddfellows and the senior "B" Petes, with all proceeds going to aid minor hockey here. A T.V. set, boots and skates, and other prizes will be drawn for, only those attending the game being eligible for these prizes.

No coach has been named yet for the junior club, Johnny Godfrey having to give up the job because of shift work. While the team hasn't been picked as yet, there are some of the prospective players who will play Friday for the I.O.O.F. crew: defencemen Bigford, Sullivan, Burns, Sabatino, Newman, Kimball and McCormick; forwards Robinson, Floyd, Frizzelle, Twist, Coyle, Ferguson, Gardner, McCracken, Allen, Snape, Doris, Stevenson, Lang and Cupoli; goalies Wingett, Delahaye and a youngster from Cobourg.

Jim Ellis will handle the senior Petes. While he hasn't a complete lineup yet, he will ice a good team, including Harding in goal, and a husky provincial policeman named Lough, Earl and Gus Leonard, Floyd, Collins, West, Jack Mortimer, Mason, Greenlaw, Jopling, Byers and several more. Two club officials, Ray Tanner and George Bennett were responsible for getting the T.V. set for the main draw during the evening.

R. Bennett Gets 875 For Leading Single

R. Bennett rolled high three of 875 and A. Caccavella led in singles with 337 this week in the Major Bowling League. Bickell's topped teams with 3970, including a single of 1390. Standing is: Burtol 46, Studebaker 45, U.E.W. 45, Bickell 40, Cherney 40, Herb's 37, Plaza 36, Odeon 29, Revenoors 28, Edwards 28, Selkirk 27, Clapper 26, Examiner 25, Irwin-Godson 25, Hollingsworth 24, Wonder 23, McLeod 19, Brewers 19, Elliott & Browne 18, Silents 17, Deeth & White 17, Sunshine 12, O.P.P. 3.

The 7-0 wins were by Burtol, Cherney, Edwards, U.E. and Bickell over McLeod, Clapper, O.P.P., Revenoors and Selkirk; the 5-2 wins went to Odeon, Crowley, Irwin-Godson, Herb's, Studebaker and Brewers over E. & B., Sunshine, Silents, Deeth & White, Hollingsworth and Wonder; Examiner edged Plaza 4-3.

Good scores included: M. Doris (329) 850, G. Walton (305) 786, J. Dormer 793, C. Downer 799, E. Young (332) 769, A. Basciano 763, K. Giulfoyle (301) 751, G. Niles 755, J. Goodson (324) 739, N. Collins 728, M. Caccavella (304) 724, D. Moscrop 731, J. Platt 749, A. Caccavella 723, C. Signorotti (322) 709, T. Collins 708, W. Irvine (321) 700, and singles of R. Bennett 330 and M. Holden 312.

Cap Of Gold Sweeps Favorite

LONDON (AP)—Cap of gold, which has been coupled with the Cesarewich winner, Flush Royal, in a lot of big doubles, was established last night as a 10-to-1 favorite to win the rich Cambridgeshire Stakes at Newmarket next Wednesday.

It was the first call-over after the list of probable starters in the nine furlong race was reduced to 54 when final forfeits were declared yesterday. The original entry list was 120.

The Cambridgeshire, on which an Irish hospital sweepstake is based, also is the second leg of Britain's traditional "autumn double," which calls for linking the winners of the 2¼-mile Cesarewich and the Cambridgeshire. Flush Royal was a 33-to-1 outsider.

Second to Cap of Gold in the call-over line was Richer at 21 to 2.

SIGN SENIOR "A"—Arn Dugan, left, and Jake Wade, of the Petes' senior "B" hockey club, have signed to play senior "A" this winter with the Brantford team. They leave today and begin play in the Big Seven on Friday. Dugan will patrol left wing for the Brants and Wade is going on defence. Both were ace players with the group-winning Petes last year, and both have taken part in other sports besides hockey.

Jake Wade and Arnold Dugan of the Petes' O.H.A. senior "B" squad the last several years have left to play senior "A" for Brantford Redmen in the O.H.A. Big Seven this season. They start play Friday against Owen Sound in the Brantford Arena, Dugan at left wing and Wade on defence. The Petes have signified their intentions of giving the players their releases in time. The dark-haired Jake is 195 pounds and nearly six-foot-two in height. At 29, he has played a lot of hockey in various places, breaking in as a junior here. He was in with Boston Bruins part of a season and played for their farm club at Hershey, besides seeing puck action as a high-scoring forward with Toronto Navy, Quebec Aces and for several winters in the senior Maritimes League. He then returned and starred for the Petes for several campaigns.

HIGH SCORER

Blond Arn Dugan is four or five years younger and is also a fine skater and high scorer, usually playing a forward position. He played a season in the States in the Detroit area after coming up from junior ranks here, and has been with the Petes for some years till now. A first-flight lacrosser, Dugan quit the game here early last summer and played right field for the Petes in the C.O.B.L.

The Petes had heard recently that the pair were shopping around, but were surprised yesterday when they returned to the city and asked for releases to play for Brantford. They have quit their jobs in Peterborough and plan to move their families to Brantford, living and working there the year around.

DETROIT (AP)—Jack Tighe yesterday was renamed manager of Buffalo Bisons of the International Baseball League. Tighe, 38, guided Buffalo to fifth place last season.

Western Gets Track Title

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Murray McNie, who has for years been trying to give Western a senior intercollegiate track title, was finally rewarded yesterday when his Mustang squad swept to their first senior intercollegiate crown in history in the 45th annual championships here.

In the intermediate intercollegiate meet, run in conjunction with the senior events, Toronto finished on top with 80 points, Ontario Agricultural College was second with 61 and Waterloo College third with 10.

McMaster, paced by Canadian Olympic sprinter Don McFarlane who won both the 100 and 220, was fourth with 26 points and Queen's last with 17.

McNair won the intermediate discus event for Waterloo College. Wright of O.A.C. was first in the intermediate 220 yards and O.A.C. was first in the intermediate mile medley relay.

Calgary Stampeders Favored To Meet Winnipeg Bombers

Spaith blazing the way, today are favored to meet Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the best-of-three Western Interprovincial Football Union finals.

The Stamps knocked the experts kicking last night as they walloped Edmonton Eskimos 31-12 in the first game of their home-and-home total-point semi-final series. And the 19-point bulge they will take into Edmonton Saturday night appears as safe a bet a Stampeder fan could make.

And it was Spaith, with glue-fingered Johnny Bright, Dave West and Bob Shaw as targets, who came up with a three-touchdown passing effort that overshadowed anything the Eskimos could offer, including playing-coach Frankie Filchock. Bright snared two Spaith touchdown passes and Shaw and West one each in the Stampeder uprising.

BRIGHT GETS ANOTHER

Bright, former star of Drake University, plunged over for another Calgary major and Shaw, the conference's leading scorer this year, converted all five. Spaith kicked the single, the last point in the humbling of the Eskimos who ended the season in second place behind BE T,ombers.

The Eskimos, slight favorites to defeat Coach Les Lear's team, started with an early converted sacre when Spaith caught fire. He fired a touchdown pass to Bright before the quarter ended, whipped another pair—to Bright and West in the second—and the Stamps were off and running.

They led 24-6 going into the final 15 minutes on Shaw's major and it was just a matter what they would do to the disorganized Eskimos before the final whistle.

Bright added his third early in the final session and Normie Kwong, who helped the Stamps to their 12-7 upset Grey Cup victory over Ottawa Rough Riders in 1948, scored Edmonton's second major. Captain Rollin Prather opened the scoring for Edmonton with a major just two minutes after the kickoff.

FRANK SAD SIGHT

"What can you say about a team like that?" Lear asked reporters in the Stamps dressing room. "They were terrific. They had Edmonton taped all the way and never gave them a thing."

Lear, who ordinarily isn't free with his praise, said that "everybody was great—there were no individual stars."

Filchock was downcast. "I don't know why you guys got tired, you didn't do any running," he told his players.

Maple Leafs Come Through Grab 5-4 Win From Wings

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs are fast becoming a third-period National Hockey League club. They are the hottest 20-minute club in the circuit. Joe Primeau's men demonstrated this point last night—for the fourth time this season—as they outfought and outplayed the league champion Detroit Red Wings and went on to win 5-4. The victory put them into a second-place tie with the idle Montreal Canadiens and Chicago Black Hawks, one point less than the Wings.

The other game, at New York's Madison Square Gardens, ended in a 3-3 tie between the Rangers and Boston Bruins. The one point gave the Bruins a season's total of five, two off the second-place pace and three up on the faltering Blueshirts.

DEFEAT TO VICTORY

The Detroit-Toronto game had the 13,058 crowd at Maple Leaf Gardens almost jumping out of their seats as the Leafs pumped three goals past goalkeeper Terry Sawchuk in the last 20 minutes to turn a 4-2 deficit into a brilliant victory.

The pattern was the same as their previous two victories and tie games.

This third-period business started at Detroit a week ago when the Leafs notched two goals in the dying minutes to salvage a 4-4 saw-off. Last Saturday night they banged in three last-period goals to edge the Rangers 4-3 at Toronto and followed Sunday with two in the last minutes to defeat the Hawks 3-2 at Chicago.

The fans were ready to count them out last night as the Wings—on goals by Ted Lindsay, Red Kelly, Gordie Howe and Marty Pavelich—steered the league leaders into a 4-2 second-period lead. Then the Max Bentley-Howie Meeker-Gord Hannigan line started to click and before anybody knew it, Leafs were ahead 5-4.

HANNIGAN GETS PAIR

Ted Kennedy scored Leafs' first goal midway through the first period and Hannigan put the Torontos ahead briefly about three minutes later. That was it until the blitz started just 54 seconds after the third-period face-off.

Hannigan connected for his second goal of the night with Meeker and Bentley in assisting roles. Then Bentley got one past goalkeeper Terry Sawchuk and the red-hot Leafs clinched it at 14:22 when Meeker took a Bentley pass at the goal-mouth and gave Sawchuk no chance on his slap shot.

Little Wally Hergesheimer handled all the Ranger scoring as the Blueshirts bounced from behind to earn their tie. He scored once in the second period and added two more in the last, his final coming with less than two minutes to play.

Bears Turn Back Hornets 3-1

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Player-coach Moe Henderson's Bears dropped their first two games, but now have won two straight to move from a tie for last place into a deadlock for second, one point behind Providence's pacesetting Reds.

The Bears turned back Pittsburgh Hornets 3-1 last night. It was Hershey's second straight over Pittsburgh and extended the Hornets' losing string to four games.

Hershey wrapped it up in the first period on goals by Arnie Kullman and Norm Corcoran. Kullman also scored the clincher in the final period while his team was shorthanded. Rookie Elliott Chorley netted Pittsburgh's only tally in the middle session.

Coach Blasts 'Drunken Kids'

TORONTO (CP) — Bob Masterson, coach of the University of Toronto senior football team, said yesterday that "drunken kids" among the college rooters are disgracing the game.

He said in an interview that police should use force if necessary to restore order during free-for-alls similar to the one featuring "drunks, dogs and pigs" which interrupted last Saturday's game with Queen's University at Varsity Stadium.

The coach directed most of his fire at Saturday's game when "stupid kids" loosed dogs and two pigs on the playing field.

Pitcher Dick Fowler Released By Athletics

ONEONTA, N.Y. (AP) — Dick Fowler, 30-year-old Toronto-born pitcher, said yesterday Philadelphia Athletics have given him an outright release.

Fowler has had nine playing years with the Athletics and two years' credit for time served in the Canadian army during the Second World War.

Fowler said he would try to connect with another major league club and, failing that, with a triple-A team.

Maple Leafs Come Through Grab 5-4 Win From Wings

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Maple Leafs are fast becoming a third-period National Hockey League club. They are the hottest 20-minute club in the circuit. Joe Primeau's men demonstrated this point last night—for the fourth time this season—as they outfought and outplayed the league champion Detroit Red Wings and went on to win 5-4. The victory put them into a second-place tie with the idle Montreal Canadiens and Chicago Black Hawks, one point less than the Wings.

The other game, at New York's Madison Square Gardens, ended in a 3-3 tie between the Rangers and Boston Bruins. The one point gave the Bruins a season's total of five, two off the second-place pace and three up on the faltering Blueshirts.

DEFEAT TO VICTORY

The Detroit-Toronto game had the 13,058 crowd at Maple Leaf Gardens almost jumping out of their seats as the Leafs pumped three goals past goalkeeper Terry Sawchuk in the last 20 minutes to turn a 4-2 deficit into a brilliant victory.

The pattern was the same as their previous two victories and tie games.

This third-period business started at Detroit a week ago when the Leafs notched two goals in the dying minutes to salvage a 4-4 saw-off. Last Saturday night they banged in three last-period goals to edge the Rangers 4-3 at Toronto and followed Sunday with two in the last minutes to defeat the Hawks 3-2 at Chicago.

The fans were ready to count them out last night as the Wings—on goals by Ted Lindsay, Red Kelly, Gordie Howe and Marty Pavelich—steered the league leaders into a 4-2 second-period lead. Then the Max Bentley-Howie Meeker-Gord Hannigan line started to click and before anybody knew it, Leafs were ahead 5-4.

HANNIGAN GETS PAIR

Ted Kennedy scored Leafs' first goal midway through the first period and Hannigan put the Torontos ahead briefly about three minutes later. That was it until the blitz started just 54 seconds after the third-period face-off.

Hannigan connected for his second goal of the night with Meeker and Bentley in assisting roles. Then Bentley got one past goalkeeper Terry Sawchuk and the red-hot Leafs clinched it at 14:22 when Meeker took a Bentley pass at the goal-mouth and gave Sawchuk no chance on his slap shot.

Little Wally Hergesheimer handled all the Ranger scoring as the Blueshirts bounced from behind to earn their tie. He scored once in the second period and added two more in the last, his final coming with less than two minutes to play.

Bears Turn Back Hornets 3-1

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Player-coach Moe Henderson's Bears dropped their first two games, but now have won two straight to move from a tie for last place into a deadlock for second, one point behind Providence's pacesetting Reds.

The Bears turned back Pittsburgh Hornets 3-1 last night. It was Hershey's second straight over Pittsburgh and extended the Hornets' losing string to four games.

Hershey wrapped it up in the first period on goals by Arnie Kullman and Norm Corcoran. Kullman also scored the clincher in the final period while his team was shorthanded. Rookie Elliott Chorley netted Pittsburgh's only tally in the middle session.

Coach Blasts 'Drunken Kids'

He said in an interview that police should use force if necessary to restore order during free-for-alls similar to the one featuring "drunks, dogs and pigs" which interrupted last Saturday's game with Queen's University at Varsity Stadium.

The coach directed most of his fire at Saturday's game when "stupid kids" loosed dogs and two pigs on the playing field.

Fowler has had nine playing years with the Athletics and two years' credit for time served in the Canadian army during the Second World War.

Fowler said he would try to connect with another major league club and, failing that, with a triple-A team.

UP TRIANGLE HILL—United Nations soldiers carry a machine gun and supplies over terrain ripped and chewed by artillery fire to a newly-won position high atop hotly contested Triangle Hill in battle-weary Korea. Crouched in cold, muddy foxholes, the fighting men are holding their position against wave after wave of screaming Communist troops storming the position under cover of fog and driving rain. Just two miles northeast of Triangle, South Korean infantrymen cling firmly to important Sniper Ridge with murderous streams of machine gun and rifle fire.

Boyd Escape Debate Fails To Come Up

TORONTO (CP)—An expected major debate in the Ontario legislature on the Boyd gang's escape from the Don Jail at Toronto Sept. 8 did not materialize yesterday.

It was given only passing reference by J.B. Salsberg (Lab.-Prog. —Toronto St. Andrews), who called for a Royal Commission to investigate basic problems in Ontario reformatories.

Truck Drivers Use Language All Their Own

NEW YORK —The truck driver is a person much like the rest of us. Publicity sometimes casts him as a sort of latter-day saint crossed, advantageously, with the spirit of Florence Nightingale, but when one talks to a truck driver it doesn't take much time to find out he's usually a family man with the same problems confronting him that confront the rest of us.

There is one thing about him, however, that sets him apart: his special language. When most people talk about such things as cowboys, horses or museum pieces, there isn't much room for confusion, but when a trucker says them, they mean something else.

To him a cowboy is a reckless driver, a horse is a tractor or power unit that pulls a trailer and a museum piece is an old truck. When a truck driver says "that cowboy came in a museum piece," he's not talking anything but truck lingo.

There are other phrases that deserve explanation:

Armstrong starter — a hand crank.

Balloon freight—a light, bulky cargo.

Bareback—A tractor without a trailer.

Bible—Rule book (traffic and driving).

Cackle crate — Truck hauling live poultry.

Dog—Truck with low power.

Duals—Double set of tires mounted together.

Kidney buster—Hard riding truck.

There are other words and phrases that round out a veteran truck driver's vocabulary. For example, when a passenger turns to the driver and says "spot the body," he's not talking about anything human; what he means is, roughly translated, "park the truck".

Now, if any one comes up to you and says, "That bull hauler uses a cement mixer that's a kidney buster", you'll know it's not a language from some remote corner of the globe. You'll know it means that "the gentleman who hauls livestock for a living carries his stock in a vehicle that makes a lot of noise, and that he is also forced to haul it on a truck the jounces him around a bit."

New York Herald Tribune News Service

NEW YORK—One of the least publicized, but most active, booms in the United States today is taking place right before the eyes of the public. This boom takes the form of a tremendous toll expressway development program, a program that promises to change living and business habits all through the United States.

Toll roads, which are surrounded by controversy, seem nevertheless to be the answer to the need for express highways capable of moving traffic from city to city. The controversy takes the form of the right to tax users for road use and whether gasoline taxes and registration fees should be used solely for highway purposes.

Regardless of the arguments, the states of Ohio, Indiana, West Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee and Florida have express toll roads in various states of preparation and completion.

Plans are grand and expensive. In Ohio the state government has authorized a massive expressway to run 241 miles across the state from the western terminus of the Pennsylvania Turnpike to the Indiana border. To finance the road, the Ohio Turnpike Commission has successfully sold $226,000,000 worth of bonds.

ACROSS INDIANA

At Indiana, the Ohio pike would meet a proposed Indiana Turnpike that would run west to the Indiana border. When all these expressways are completed it will be possible to go from the New Jersey side of the George Washington Bridge, onto the New Jersey Turnpike, off onto a new highway proposed in Pennsylvania that will link the Jersey pike with the Pennsylvania Turnpike; across Pennsylvania onto the Ohio Turnpike and right on through to Indiana and across that state, all on high-speed toll highways.

In the south, Florida has proposed a toll expressway from Miami to Jacksonville. Virginia and North Carolina are jointly considering a 34-mile toll road.

West Virginia has begun to build its cross-state pike. Georgia is considering a toll road from Calhoun, Ga., to the Tennessee line where it would link up with a proposed Tennessee pike system.

New York's Thruway, from New York City north to Albany and then to Buffalo, will one day meet with the New Jersey-Pennsylvania-Ohio toll road system.

PUBLIC PAYS THE BILLS

That's the pattern, but what does it mean to the public, who, after all, pays the bill for all roads? It means that the superhighway of interstate roads is taking shape and that the car owner will shortly be able to travel almost anywhere south and state Highway System, as visualized by the Bureau of Public Roads, may not come into being as free roads but as toll roads. Certainly that is the pattern.

"The Engineering News Record" sees this trend as an even more definite economic development. It feels that the toll expressways are to the twentieth century what the railroad expansion was to the nineteenth century. The publication believes that the high speed car and truck is, in effect, having its rails spread to all parts of the country.

The Eastern Seaboard isn't the only area to jump on the toll expressway bandwagon. Oklahoma has a 94-mile road from Oklahoma City to Tulsa.

Maine proposes to extend its present toll road, the Maine Turnpike, northward to the Canadian border. Massachusetts is considering a link between the Wilbur Cross Parkway and the New Hampshire Turnpike. The link would be ninety miles long.

Texas is proposing a toll road from Dallas to Houston, but this pike will be privately operated—as a profit-making business.

Proposed and planned turnpikes do not tell the whole story of toll expansion. Many more states have formed turnpike authorities, turnpike commissions or study committees directed by legislature to report on the feasibility of toll road construction.

If the national super-highway is to take form as a giant toll expressway, it will only be after a fight from the Federal government. House Bill H-80 would create a National Super-highway Commission of nine members directed to make plans for a system of super-highways and airports. House Bill H-3120 would set up a new Federal corporation, the Transcontinental Streamlined Highway Corp., which would be empowered to issue highway bonds up to $12,000,000,000.

It is apparent, however, that states will go ahead with their toll plans.

Two-Year Pen Terms

WINDSOR — (CP) — County Judge Albert J. Gordon yesterday sentenced two Windsor men to two-year penitentiary terms after they were convicted of complicity in a $10,000 robbery last April 30 at Firth Brothers clothing store. Lucien Champagne, 2, was found guilty of break, enter and theft in connection with the robbery and Melville Littlefair was convicted of receiving stolen goods.

Pay-As-You-See TV

TORONTO (CP)—Famous Players Corporation yesterday notified the city it will ask for a franchise for pay-as-you-see television for Toronto. In a letter to Board of Control the movie company said it plans to build a community television antenna to supply programs not heard over regular TV stations. Similar systems now are operating in London, Ont., and Montreal.

Mothers Save Sons

OWEN SOUND (CP)—Two Owen Sound mothers yesterday were credited with saving the lives of their two young children after the youngsters had fallen into the Pot-[illegible] returned to pull Billy Young, 2½, to safety. Mrs. James Young and a delivery man, Milton Brown, also waded into the water to aid in the rescue.

Charge Board Not Trying To Find Solution

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor members of the Wage Stabilization Board charged yesterday that the board "spent more time finding ways to deny than to approve" the $1.90 wage increases negotiated by John L. Lewis.

Public and industry members of the board trimmed that $1.90 by 40 cents, leading to a country-wide soft coal strike, the effects of which are already spreading to other industries. The public and industry members said the full $1.90 would violate U.S. government controls designed to curb inflation.

The labor members of the tripartite board severely criticized their associates and said the majority decision in effect precipitated the strike. They said: "It is not this board's job to create disputes."

Issuing their dissenting opinion in the controversial case, the six labor members said the record of past wage board action clearly made approval of the full amount possible. The main burden of their argument was that miners today do not get three "fringe" benefits in effect in many other industries. These are paid vacations, paid holidays and higher shift differentials.

THAT'S YOURS—Stephen Rodney, 16 months, waits for Lise Cyr, 11-month-old prizewinner of an Ottawa baby contest, to get her trophy first. They were named "Master and Miss Ottawa" from 2,000 entries in a contest staged by the Montgomery branch of the Canadian Legion.

Tax Collections Closing Large Gap In Pension Fund

OTTAWA (CP)—Tax collections are beginning to close the gap between the amount available in Canada's old age security fund and the sum needed to cover pension payments.

The fund was established Jan. 1, 1952, to provide pensions of $40 a month to all Canadians 70 and over. By Aug. 31, the fund owed the federal treasury $121,926,000.

However, the latest Treasury report disclosed that the rate of indebtedness is slowing as tax receipts begin to reach the fund.

The fund started from scratch. Three special taxes were earmarked for the fund and were calculated to make it self-supporting eventually. A two-per-cent sales tax and a two-per-cent tax on corporation profits went into effect Jan. 1. A two-per-cent tax on personal incomes went into effect July 1.

DEBT INCREASED

From Jan. 1 to March 31—the end of the last fiscal year—the fund ran up a debt of $55,000,000. The debt was increased by $66,926,000 from April 1 to Aug. 31.

Since January approximately $308,000,000 has been paid out in pensions to more than 660,000 Canadians 70 and over. The tax payments into the fund amount to a little more than $86,000,000.

Treasury reports showed how the amount the fund has had to borrow from the government has been decreasing each month.

In June, the fund had to borrow $13,329,000. In July, the amount dropped to $9,811,000 and in August to $7,956,000.

No forecast has been made on when the fund will become self-supporting. The operations of the fund are due to be reviewed when the 1953-54 budget is being prepared.

The government then will decide whether any additional taxes are needed to support the fund.

BAT-WINGED BOMBER—Britain's Avro 698 resembles a huge bat as it streaks through the air high over England. Performance details of the delta-winged heavy bomber have not been revealed. Its four Rolls Royce turbo-jet engines are said to drive the long-range craft at near-sonic speeds, and to enable it to fly at extremely high altitudes.

Primate's Wife Mrs. Barfoot Dies

EDMONTON (CP)—Mrs. Lorena Barfoot, wife of Archbishop Walter F. Barfoot, Primate of the Church of England in Canada, died in hospital yesterday following a short illness. Mrs. Barfoot was taken to hospital last Friday following a heart attack. She was 55.

Mrs. Barfoot, the former Lorena Richardson of Toronto, was a university graduate, once was a dietitian and also was a Sunday School teacher at St. John's Anglican church in West Toronto.

She was married in 1942. There were no children.

Trent River WI Names Convention Delegates

TRENT RIVER (ENS). — The Trent River branch of the Women's Institute held its October meeting in the Community Hall on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Thomas Wight was acting hostess and Mrs. Harry Mann, president, was in the chair.

Historical research and current events was the topic for the day. Mrs. Thomas J. Brown was named delegate to attend the area convention which will be held in Toronto on November 5-6-7. Other members who will attend are Mrs. Harry Mann, Mrs. Ross Pollock, Mrs. Howard McKeown, Mrs. W. G. McLaughlin, and Mrs. Eric Little.

Card parties are to commence on Friday night, October 17, with Mrs. Howard McKeown and Mrs. Bill Waters hostesses. Members decided to hold a Hallowe'en party on October 31. Mrs. Eric Little was appointed convener, with Mrs. Jack Henry, Mrs. Steve Deline, and Mrs. Harry Mann to assist.

Mrs. Ross Pollock, program convener, presented the following program: Readings, Mrs. Frank Openshaw, Mrs. Pollock. Mrs. Rhoda Campney won the bean guessing contest. A duet was sung by Mrs. John Scott and Mrs. Eric Little. Mrs. Earl Greenley was the winner of the Hallowe'en jumbled names contest.

Mrs. Wight served lunch, assisted by Mrs. Little and Mrs. Mann.

6 Montreal Men Appear In Million Dollar Bank Rob

ST. JEROME, Que. (CP)—The story of smashed safety-deposit boxes and a huge haul in bonds nearly a year ago had its first court scene yesterday with the arraignment of six Montreal men on receiving charges.

The charges accounted for only $55,000 of the haul, estimated as high as $1,000,000. But Provincial Police Director Hilaire Beauregard said in Montreal that the whole case soon may break wide open.

Those arrested, all of whom pleaded innocent, are: Raoul Rickner, 55; J. Desautels, 59; Leo Davignon, 45; Rosaire Payette, 40; Louis Desrosiers, 40, and Leo Asconi, 40.

Asconi was granted $15,000 property bail or $5,000 cash bail and Rickner $5,000 property or $1,000 cash.

Davignon, Desautels, Payette and Desrosiers, charged with receiving and conspiracy to receive, were refused bail pending decision by Judge Eugene Lafontaine Friday.

It is believed the thieves spent all day Sunday in the bank. All 86 safety-deposit boxes were smashed open. Non-negotiable bonds were left scattered about the floor. So far as known, no one heard or saw anyone entering the building.

Detective-Lieutenant Marcel Patenaude of the provincial police said those rrested in Montreal were picked up while allegedly peddling some of the bonds.

Ontario Veterans Make Good Farmers

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Percentage of veterans farming under the Veterans' Land Act in Western Ontario who have failed is among the lowest in the Dominion, Robert Pawley, district V.L.A. supervisor, said yesterday.

Reason for the low failure rate of western Ontario veterans is a board of V.L.A. officials with agricultural experience who take a back-sliding farmer in hand, plan his farm operations and budgeting for him and teach him sound practices, Mr. Pawley said.

Acquit Dresden Man Of Dangerous Driving

CHATHAM (CP)—Isaac James McCallum, 22, of Dresden was acquitted yesterday in a Supreme Court sitting on a charge of dangerous driving. An original charge of manslaughter, arising out of a fatal accident June 22, was reduced Tuesday by a grand jury.

When the jury brought in its verdict, Mr. Justice A. M. LeBel told the defendant to "be careful in the future."

ROSENEATH (ENS). — Miss Doris Robins was elected president of Roseneath Y.P.U. at the annual meeting and election of officers held at the parsonage, with the Rev. J. R. Wheeler and Mrs. Wheeler as host and hostess. The election of officers was conducted by Mr. Wheeler.

Plans were made for the next meeting to be in the form of a Hallowe'en social in the township hall on November 3. The committee in charge will be Misses Doris Robins, Donna Pringle and Phyllis O'Connell.

Mr. Wheeler was in charge of the study period, "Rural and Urban Study," assisted by Misses Donna Pringle and Doris Robins.

Belmont Women Pick Delegate To Toronto

HAVELOCK (ENS)—Mrs. W. Goadsby was appointed delegate to represent Belmont Women's Institute at the convention in Toronto early next month, at a meeting held in the township hall.

Mrs. Horace King, the program convener, gave a demonstration in making satin cushion tops and conducted a contest which was won by Mrs. W. Harris.

Mrs. Clarence King, secretary-treasurer, was appointed leader of the Girls' Club, and Mrs. Ivan Ellis the assistant leader. They attended the training school for leaders in Peterborough this week. They will reorganize the club as soon as their material arrives, the project this year being "Cottons May Be Smart." Membership in the club is open to girls between the ages of 12 and 26 years.

Missionary In Japan 37 Years Is Speaker

HAVELOCK (ENS)—The Rev. Dr. C. J. L. Bates, of Toronto, formerly principal of the South Western Christian University in Japan, will be the guest speaker at the anniversary services of Havelock United Church on Sunday, October 6. Dr. Bates went to Japan as a missionary in 1904 returning to Canada in 1941.

An anniversary dinner will be held in the Sunday school auditorium of the church on Tuesday.

Charge Woman Spy

VIENNA (AP) — United States authorities yesterday announced the arrest and impending trial of a 38-year-old Austrian woman on charges of spying on the U.S. army for Czechoslovakia. The woman, Marianne Seada, was arrested last spring, authorities said, after allegedly making periodic trips between Czechoslovakia and Austria gathering information for the Communists.

Picket S.A. House

LONDON (Reuters) — Forty Indian and British socialist students yesterday picketed South Africa House in protest against that dominion's segregation policies. The students—members of the Indian Socialist Group in Britain and the National Association of Labor Students—carried slogans such as: "South Africa threatens Commonwealth Unity," and "Victory to the Passive Resistance Campaign."

Prankster Fires Gun

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—An old Spanish-American war cannon—silent 50 years—went off Tuesday night. Terrified residents flooded police with rumors and inquiries. A policeman, noticing smoke curling from the relic in Columbia Square Park, found that a prankster had loaded the cannon with gunpowder and paper wadding, and lit a fuse.

Reagans Have Baby

Reagan's actress wife, Nancy Davis, gave birth to a seven-pound daughter, Patricia Anne, by caesarean section Tuesday night. The physician said both the baby, several weeks premature, and mother are doing nicely. Reagan and Miss Davis were married last March. He formerly was wed to actress Jane Wyman.

18 Die In Quake

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP)—Eighteen or more persons were killed and 40 injured in an earthquake which shook the Adana region in southern Turkey shortly after 2 p.m. yesterday (7 a.m. EST). First reports said extensive damage was done to buildings in the city of 150,000 and that the death toll might prove much higher.

Jet Sets Record

PANAMA CITY, Fla. (AP)—The U.S. air force reported yesterday a new F-94 C "Starfire" jet set a cross-country record on a flight from Los Angeles to Panama City Oct. 10. The plane, piloted for most of the distance by Capt. Larry King, made the trip in three hours and 50 minutes. Lieut. Louis Kramer, information officer, said the time is an unofficial record for a single-engine jet aircraft.

Canadian Soldiers Planned Beat Up Germans

HOHNE, Germany (Reuters)—Canadian soldiers described at a court martial yesterday how they had planned to beat up some German youths at Bergen, near here, because of the "trouble they had caused our fellows."

They were testifying in the trial of four men of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, part of the 27th Infantry Brigade in Germany, whose court martial opened yesterday. The four are the alleged ringleaders of an attack on the Hotel Deutsches Haus at Bergen, Sept. 30.

The first of the four to stand before the court today, Tr. Ivan Ernest Bryans, 22, of Lindsay, Ont., pleaded innocent. The other three, who will plead later, are Tr. B.A. McPhee of Kirkland Lake, Ont., who appeared yesterday as a prosecution witness, Tr. C. H. Dobson of Elk Lake, Ont., and Tr. J.J.R. Rindeau of Montreal.

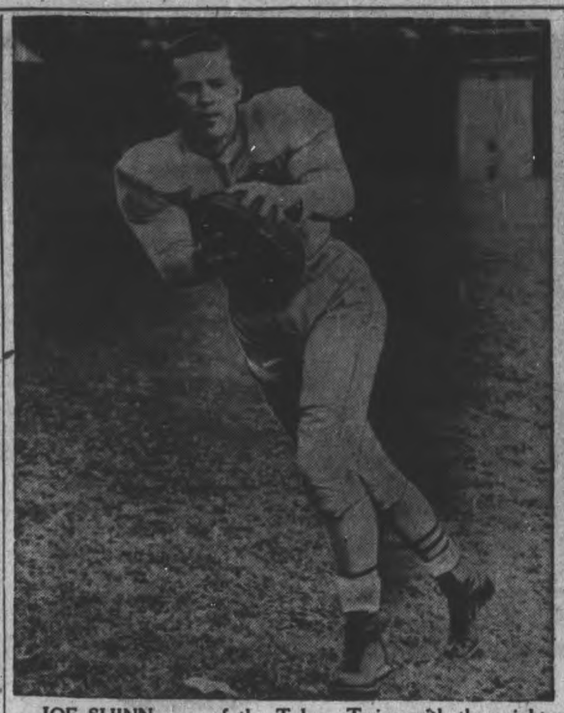
However, if Bryans is acquitted, charges will not be pressed against the others.

McPhee said Bryans had been "partially in charge" of the attack on the hotel and was one of those who planned the incident.



AIM TO SQUARE THINGS

He told how a group of five or six went to a tavern to see "if we could find enough men to square things at Bergen." He said he troopers discussed the trouble "we were having with a group of young Germans of our own age in Bergen."

McPhee said a group of Canadians then went to Bergen and began entering the hotel bar. "A glass was dropped. A few more glasses were thrown, chairs began flying around and the lights went out. Shortly afterwards I heard a whistle and everyone began leaving the place."

Another prosecution witness, Tr. J.S.C. Demorest, not one of the accused, gave similar evidence and said "it appeared" that Bryans was the ringleader.

Asked by the president of the court, Maj. A.P. Boswell of Montreal, what he meant by "young Germans causing us trouble," Demorest said they were Germans who had "beaten up or threatened our fellows."

Weakened Biltmores Clip Oshawa Generals 4-2

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

You've got to hand it to the Memorial Cup champion Guelph Biltmores. They really shine when things are bleakest.

The experts predicted an early collapse when the Bilts' parent club, New York Rangers of the National Hockey League, plucked four of the Bilts' best men to help them through their current player shortage.

The Biltmores threw it back in the experts' teeth Wednesday night as they handed the Generals a 4-2 defeat in Oshawa.

Meanwhile Toronto Marlboros woke up in Barrie, after going three games without a win, to trounce the league-leading Flyers 6-4. It was Barrie's first defeat of the season.

The Guelph win moved them into a second place tie with Galt Black Hawks. Marlboros' victory gave piece of third place with St. Michael's, St. Catharines and Kitchener-Waterloo.

BETTIO SCORES WINNER

Oshawa was up 2-1 at the end of the first period on goals by Jack Armstrong and Bill Stewart. Chuck Henderson had tallied for Guelph. Frank Bettiol and Danny Blair moved Guelph out in front 3-2 by the end of the second. Bettiol scored the clincher in the third.

Captain Wally Maxwell of the Dukes paced his team in Barrie with five assists. It was 2-2 at the end of the first as Bob White and Skip Teal gave the Flyers an early lead which was wiped out by Louis Bendo and Eric Nesterenko.

Toronto dominated the second period play as Bendo and Nesterenko each scored and John Tolton added another to make it 5-2.

Gerry James scored for Marlboros in the third and then Barrie made a bid with goals by Doug Mohns and Barry Thibeault.

Galt Black Hawks continue their Quebec tour Thursday by taking on the winless Montreal Royals. Three Rivers reds play Quebec citadelles in the other game of the night.

MANTLE MUST REPORT

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Mickey Mantle, world series hero for New York Yankees who underwent his third army draft physical here yesterday, was ordered to report at Ft. Sill today for further examination to determine if he can be called into service.

Lieut. Richard Collier, navy medical officer in charge of examinations, said after yesterday's physical he was recommending Mantle be sent to the Ft. Sill station hospital so that army specialists could study his case.

SIGN PIDSODNY

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP)—Nick Pidsodny, colorful goalie whose antics in the Maritime Major Hockey League have always been worth the price of admission, has signed with Sydney Millionaires, President Art Lipton announced last night.

Lipton told a shareholders meeting that Pidsodny left Hamilton yesterday and that he hopes to have him in action for the game with Charlottetown here Friday night.

He said General Manager Hunt of Buffalo Bisons decided to release Pidsodny for the season, subject to 24-hour recall.

CLAIM PLACED TOO LOW

LONDON (AP) — Yugoslavia came up yesterday with the claim —two months late—that it finished 10th and not 12th in the women's gymnastics in the Helsinki Olympic games.

The Belgrade Radio explained that no one was to blame for the lower placing. It seems that there was no time to check the figures thoroughly in the rush during the games.

Milica Shepa, a Yugoslav sports expert, said the mistake was in adding up his country's points in this competition.

Playing Coach Gets 400th Goal

LONDON (CP) — Bobbie Lee, veteran playing-coach of Brighton Tigers in the English National League, took pride today in a hockey achievement probably without parallel—a lifetime total of 400 goals.

The wise - cracking, 41-year-old native of Verdun, Que., popped in his 400th goal in a game last night against Harringay Racers, putting himself far in front of any rival in Canada or Britain.

The 400 goals were all scored in regular English League competition, which calls for 60 games a season. Lee now is in his 10th year in British hockey. His total does not include goals racked up in North America, where he played with Baltimore, Quebec Aces and briefly with Montreal's National League Canadiens.

Norwood Y.P.U. Meets

NORWOOD (ENS)—The Norwood Young Peoples Union met Sunday night at Cottesloe. Shirley Brown, stewardship and training convener, had charge of the worship service. Shirley Thompson read the scripture and Delwyn Stinson led in prayer. Leona McMillan gave a violin solo, accompanied by Dorothy McMillan on the piano. Shirley Brown gave the topic on deciding life work. Marion Armstrong gave a closing prayer. Tom Starke conducted a few contests.

White Elephant Sale Fund Raising Event

BANCROFT (ENS)—The white elephant sale, an annual fund-raising event by the Bancroft Lions Club, was held in the community centre Saturday afternoon and evening. The sale proved a successful venture with auctioneer R. R. Loney disposing of hundreds of items of clothing and furniture and other "white elephants" to the highest bidders. Unfavorable weather dampened the ardour of the bargain hunters slightly but a favorable report was given at the conclusion.

Says Vision Of U.S. In 100 Years Not Entrancing

By FORBES RHUDE

TORONTO (CP) — Lowell B. Mason of the United States Federal Trade Commission has brought to Canada a vision of Canada and the United States 100 years from now.

He brought the vision, or fantasy, in an address last night to the Canadian Chamber of Commerce. He said it was the result of an experience in a "time machine."

Whatever it was, it reflected the fact that he doesn't like certain things that are going on in the United States. He doesn't like them to the extent that he envisioned the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, 100 years from now, asking that the United States be accepted into Canada as an 11th province.

In the development of his "vision" he said:

"For some time I, as a public official, have been disturbed by the indifference of business men in the United States to the gradual encroachment of bureaucratic power."

ALL GAMES BANNED

"It was feared that young men might keep an appetite for competition when they left school and entered business.

"Accordingly, competitive sports in Canada boomed, because every week thousands of Americans crossed the border to get a bootleg view of young men striving and competing.

"Meantime, in the U.S., Yankee Stadium, Shibe Park, Griffith Stadium, and a few university athletic fields were kept for co-operative Indian club swinging and rhythmic dancing.

Even in 1952, he said, business men were guilty under the law if they sold at the same price as one another, or if they sold at differing prices.

"No one could charge or quote the same price as his competition because, if he did, he was guilty of 'conscious parallelism of action.' And if a defendant's prices fluctuated with the exigencies of the competitive market, he might land in jail for illegal price discrimination.

"All people in the field of distribution in 1952 were presumed guilty until they proved their innocence."

Mr. Mason carried his story to the point where the U.S. Congress had been abolished and was replaced by a legislative bureau.

His address was at a dinner which followed the most strenuous session of the Chamber's three-day annual meeting at which a long list of resolutions and policy declarations were adopted.

Most debate centred around a declaration which aimed at more exchange of energy back and forth across the Canada-U.S. boundary, "insofar as is possible."

It ran into some opposition on the ground that Canada, especially in northwest British Columbia, might allow use of power by Alaska which she might some day need herself.

In the end, the meeting decided that the resolution didn't envision Canada making any concessions without knowing what she was doing.

Lewis W. Simms, of Saint John, N.B., a veteran Canadian industrialist, was elected president for the coming year. W.J. Birrie, of Vancouver, investment dealer, was elected first national vice-president and J. Gerald Godsoe, Toronto oil executive, second national vice-president, a new office.

Today, in closing sessions, the Chamber discussed immigration, concerning questions on which the Chamber has asked for government policies which would increase Canada's population to at least 30,000,000 by 1975.

Francis G. Winspear, of Edmonton, said:

"One cannot live in the west without being satisfied that its resources can support, not only a larger population at existing living standards, but that those living standards would rise if more Canadians were here. . ."

Whole Island Population Asks Ireland For Aid

DUBLIN (CP)—The entire population of economically-harassed Blasket Island, off the southwest coast of Derry, has appealed to the Republic of Ireland government for urgent release from their "isolated fortress."

Once a thriving colony of fishermen and farmers, the island's population has been reduced a few struggling families of 28 persons, all determined to move to the mainland.

Last winter during a succession of storms, the islanders were cut off from communication with the mainland for more than a month. Their food supplies ran out and for days they lived on potatoes and salt and what milk they could get from the island's two cows.

With only enough men to man two boats and little or not fish to be caught, the frustrated islanders have drawn up a petition pleading with the government to shift their families anywhere—just as long as it is away from Blasket.

Bearing such names as Sean O'Guithin and Muiris O'Cathain, the petition says the islanders would be willing to put up with almost anything if only they were shifted to the mainland.

Says Churchill Will Visit U.S. Early In Year

(New York Herald Tribune News Service)

NEW YORK—Prime Minister Winston Churchill plans to visit Washington in March to meet the new President of the United States and to hand him a three-point plan which would enable Britain and Western Europe to pay their own way without further grants of American aid, according to Edwin H. Leather, Conservative Member of of Parliament.

Mr. Leather, who has been touring the United States during the parliamentary recess, said the Churchill plan would achieve the aim by opening the American market wider to foreign goods so that European countries could earn the dollars they need instead of depending on American gifts.

The three points of the program which Mr. Churchill is expected to ask the new President to push through the next Congress are:

1. Reduction of tariffs.
2. Adoption of the Customs Simplification Bill, which has been pigeon-holed in Congress for several years.
3. Agreement on price stabilization of the world's raw materials.

Mr. Leather, one of the prominent "young Tories" of Mr. Churchill's party and a close associate of several cabinet ministers, said the pay-as-you-go policy of the "Churchill plan," as the successor to the outright grants of the former Marshall Plan, is generally supported in Western Europe.

CONFER WITH PREMIER

Before coming to Washington, it is understood that Mr. Churchill will confer with the premiers of France, Italy and other countries on the Continent and will present his plan to the new American President on behalf of Western Europe as a whole.

According to Mr. Leather, "Prime Minister Churchill will present figures and a documented case to show how United States tariff and Buy America acts prevent us from earning dollars and he will tell the new President that the United States must remove restrictions on European trade if Europe is to be allowed to regain prosperity."

It is understood that Mr. Churchill broached the subject of lower tarrif and price stablization of raw materials during his meeting with President Truman in Washington last January.

However, Mr. Churchill was advised not to press the matter during a Presidential election year but to return to Washington after the election to discuss the subject with the new President. His forthcoming visit will therefore be the outgrowth of his last one.

Price Agreement Delay

SIMCOE (CP)—The market committee of the Ontario Flue Cured Tobacco Marketing Board yesterday failed to reach an agreement on the minimum average price for this year's crop and adjourned until today. The committee includes grower directors and representa- among its membership.

TENSE WAIT—As dead are taken out and new supplies are brought in, Pfc. Regnal Raflaes, of Milton, Fla., and Cpl. Ted Lotz, of Coffeeville, Ky. (right), watch the grim scene. Communist attacks were limited to light jabs at the U.N. lines in Korea after the Reds lost more than half a division in the bitter eight-day battle.

Toronto Telegram Offered For Sale By Trustees

TORONTO (CP)—The Telegram, Toronto evening newspaper founded in 1876, was offered for sale this morning in an advertisement, signed on behalf of the trustees of the estate of the late publisher, George McCullagh.

Mr. McCullagh, who died Aug. 5, provided in his will that the trustees, "at any time they deem it advisable," might "sell all or any of the property vested in my trustees by. . . my will."

The advertisement appeared on the financial page of the Globe and Mail, Toronto morning paper which Mr. McCullagh also published. The paper also carried a news report of the offer on its front page.

When Mr. McCullagh's will was filed for probate in September, the Globe and Mail was not mentioned by name. But one clause, dealing with the Telegram by name, authorized the trustees "to carry on the said business for such length of time (not exceeding 21 years) as they in their uncontrolled discretion may deem advisable in order to dispose of my interest in same to the best advantage."

ALL SHARES FOR SALE

The trustees' announcement said all the shares of the Telegram Publishing Company are being offered for sale. The tenders will be for the issued capital stock of the company, which publishes the Telegram, and will be received up to Nov. 18 at the offices of the Chartered Trust Company, which is acting for the owners of the shares.

The trustees, named by Mr. McCullagh in his will, are H.G. Kimber, J.M. Macintosh, Q.C., J.S.D. Tory, Q.C., and the Chartered Trust Company. Mr. Kimber now is publisher of the Globe and Mail and acting publisher of the Telegram, as well as president of the companies controlling both newspapers.

The Telegram was the third paper bought by Mr. McCullagh in his publishing career. In 1936 he purchased the old Globe for $1,850,000 and a month later bought the old Mail and Empire for $2,020,000 and amalgamated the two morning papers to form the Globe and Mail. He then had the backing of William H. Wright, mining millionaire.

In 1948 the Telegram was offered for sale under the will of its founder, John Ross Robertson, who died in 1918. Mr. Robertson's will provided that the Telegram be sold after the deaths of his two sons and his widow, and that the proceeds go to the maintenance of the Toronto Hospital for Sick Children.

McCULLAGH HIGH BIDDER

Mr. McCullagh's bid for the evening paper was the highest of four submitted in response to an advertisement similar to that published this morning. The purchase price was $3,610,000. At that time the Telegram had a circulation of 196,000. It since has passed the 200,000 mark.

Mr. McCullagh published the Telegram as a separate entity from the Globe and Mail, with its own editor and staff. "It will be politically independent," he said at the time of the purchase, but it "would not be worthy of itself or public confidence if it permitted a neutral or indifferent attitude to interfere with public duty."

Build New Plant

WALKERTON (CP) — National Carbon Limited will soon begin construction of a $1,000,000 plant here, it was announced yesterday. The factory, to be built on a 14-acre tract southwest of the town limits, will turn out dry batteries, flashlights, anti-freeze and industrial carbon and graphite products. Construction will start this fall. The plant will employ about 125 persons.

Pig Halts Traffic

OAKVILLE (CP)—This little pig didn't get to market. The nine-week-old piglet halted traffic yesterday on the busy Queen Elizabeth Highway by plumping itself down on the west lane. Cars came to a squealing halt. A motorist ended the impasse by carting off the venturesome pig to the Humane Society.

Ordain Anglican Minister After Years With Indians

CARDSTON, Alta. (CP).—For 20 years the Rev. Douglas S. Pitts kept postponing his ordination as an Anglican clergyman. There would be a postponement each time he was called upon to do Indian school work.

He climaxed 20 years' work in Indian schools recently by entering the ministry at the first Anglican ordination service ever held on the Blood reserve in southern Alberta.

Mr. Pitts, who has been principal of St. Paul's Anglican Indian residential school on the Blood reserve near here, now is expecting an appointment to a parish.

Born in Neepawa, Man., Mr. Pitts is the son of Rev. and Mrs. P. C. Pitts, now living in retirement in London, Ont.

After graduating from normal school he taught for five years at the Mohawk Institute, Brantford. Following universities studies in London and Toronto he taught for a year at the East Malartic Gold Mine in northern Quebec under the auspices of Frontier College, an organization for adult education in Canadian labor camps.

TAUGHT IN KENORA

Later Mr. Pitts became principal of Cecilia Jeffrey Presbyterian Indian School at Kenora, Ont. During this period he learned to speak Ojibway, the only Indian language he knows because the Indians in Brantford all spoke English and he did not come to St. Paul's school until 1949.

Since then the enrolment of St. Paul's has increased from 78 to 150. He hopes to see 175 students at St. Paul's by Christmas. Both boys and girls attend the school with grades ranging from beginners to grade VIII. Students who continue their schooling by attending high school in Cardston live at St. Paul's and commute daily.

Mr. Pitts says he feels that most Blood Indians have reached the stage where they can become part of the community, attend regular schools and take on the responsibilities of citizenship.

He contends that too much freedom from paying hospital and medical expenses and taxes, including those for schooling, will not help the Indians to become part of the community.

Assef Arraigned For Possessing Imported Goods

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Joseph Assef, whose activities touched off a 1950 investigation into the Windsor police force, was arraigned yesterday on a charge of unlawfully possessing goods imported from the United States on which the duty was not paid.

Assef reserved plea and Magistrate J.A. Hanrahan remanded him one week on $1,000 bail.

His arrest came after customs officials reported an automobile "ran through" at the Canadian end of the Ambassador Bridge after being ordered to stop for examination.

Windsor police constable Jack Moxon heard a police radio call while on patrol and recognized the broadcast licence number as that of a vehicle owned by Assef.

Moxon headed for a motel owned by Assef and spotted the automobile, driven by a woman employee of Assef's, leaving the property. He stopped the car and found it contained a quantity of costume jewelry and wallets, all U.S.-made.

Search of the property by police of suburban Sandwich East township yielded more jewelry and wallets. Total value of the articles was about $200.

U.N. Employee Fired By Lie

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—U.N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie yesterday fired one American U.N. employee who refused to answer questions of a U.S. Senate committee, suspended another and put 10 on special leave pending further investigation.

Lie announced he fired Stanley Graze of the technical assistance administration for refusing to tell a congressional committee hearing whether he is now "engaged in espionage activities against the United States."

Joel Gordon of the department of economic affairs was suspended pending a complete investigation for refusing to tell whether he was "now engaged in any subversive activities against the United States government."

BENEDICTINE ABBEY — The Benedictine monastery near Magog, Que., became Canada's first Benedictine Abbey when it was elevated to that status in a religious ceremony attended by church and state leaders. The elevation, by Papal decree, makes the Canadian section of the order independent of its French superiors.

Demonstration Of Civil Defence

QUEBEC (CP)—Canada's capital was subjected to a simulated atom-bomb attack yesterday in "Exercise Yourtown," a civil defence demonstration witnessed by 300 road experts, attending the annual convention of the Canadian Good Roads Association here.

The exercise was designed to show the importance of highways as a means of communication during a bombing attack by an invader, using the city of Ottawa as the target.

The demonstration, carried out on a large floor plan of Ottawa, showed how bad roads could disrupt efforts to help the population of a city following an atomic attack.

Maj.-Gen. F.F. Worthington, federal civil defence administrator, who directed "Exercise Yourtown," said the demonstration was an example of what would happen under a real attack.

Although the imaginary explosion caused heavy damage and casualties, the city's adequate civil defence system kept roads open in the damaged area.

Spend 15 Million Developing Uranium Centre

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

With the gap between the exploratory and mining stages of uranium finds in northwestern Saskatchewan rapidly narrowing, more and more interest is being focussed on the Beaverlodge area on the north shore of Lake Athabaska.

At least $15,000,000 has already been spent in the search for uranium in that 500-square-mile district.

Nerve centre for the entire operation is newly-founded Uranium City. The centre is rapidly mushrooming into a thriving self-contained village as miners, supply houses, restaurants, taxi stands and a 25-room hotel establish themselves along the main street.

POPULATION BOOM

Present estimates predict the population of the village will reach the 1,000 mark within the next year and possibly level off at about 5,000 within the next decade. If this proves true, Uranium City will rival Flin Flon, Man., as one of the west's biggest mining centres.

Also in various stages of construction are two tourist cabins, a pool hall, dance hall, two theatres,, a barber shop and two churches — Roman Catholic and United.

At least a score of houses have sprung up and as many more are under construction. The townsite's 200 surveyed lots were snapped up during the early stages and there now is a clamor for more housing and business lots.

The 1,500 to 2,000 men engaged in uranium work around Lake Athabaska had their numbers swelled considerably by this summer's first great uranium staking rush of the atomic age. More than 1,000 claims were staked.

PRODUCE IN SPRING

Some of the larger mining companies will begin producing uranium-bearing ore next spring. Others will come into production in ensuing months.

The federal crown corporation, Eldorado Mining and Refining Co., is the most advanced in development with construction of a mill well under way and shafts already completed. The plant will have an initial capacity of 500 tons.

Plane Search Ends

HALIFAX (CP)—The Air Force yesterday officially ended its search for a Yugoslavia bound Beechcraft carrying two Americans, which disappeared last Thursday in bleak Northern Quebec. R.C.A.F. search and rescue officials here said Canadian and American aircraft flew 818 hours and scoured 180,000 square miles during the six-day hunt.

U.K. Socialists Oppose Ban On Television

LONDON — (CP) — Prime Minister Churchill ran into a storm of socialist criticism in Parliament yesterday against a decision not to allow live television of the crowning of the Queen at the altar of Westminster Abbey next June.

The socialist assault followed demands in many newspapers of different political alignments for revision of the ban announced two days ago by the Coronation Commission. The commission said it decided, after receiving advice from the Churchill cabinet, to permit live television for all coronation events except the two-hour ceremony at the altar steps.

No reason for the ban was given. The commission indicated, however, that one reason was it might impose additional physical and mental strain on the young Queen.

Churchill began his reference to the coronation happily enough by announcing the day, June 2, will be a public holiday. Amid cheers, Labor member Hector McNeil asked: "Would not the holiday be much more enjoyed by all if proceedings at the Abbey were televised?"

T. F. Peart declared the ban was "stupid and causing great concern throughout the country."

"Courts Of The Lord" Roseneath Theme

ROSENEATH (ENS).—October meeting of the W.M.S. of Roseneath United Church was held on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Delbert Brisbin.

The president, Mrs. J. N. Lovelace, was in charge of the devotional period; "The Courts of the Lord" was the theme. Mrs. Delbert Brisbin gave the scripture reading.

Mrs. J. A. Nichol, treasurer, reported having received $36.95 from the Thankoffering and having paid the third quarter of the allocation for the year.

Ottawa Reviewing Improvement Loans

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Que. (CP)—The government is making a continuous review of the possibility of reviving its pre-war policy of guaranteeing home - improvement loans, Resources Minister Winters said last night.

At present elements of danger in over-expansion of credit are blocking any such move, Mr. Winters said in an address prepared for the Canadian Institute of Plumbing and Heating.

Centenary Women To Decorate Church

ROSENEATH (ENS). — Planning to decorate the church for their anniversary services to be held on Sunday, was the important item of business of the October meeting of Centenary W.A. held on Wednesday afternoon in the church. The president, Mrs. Dawson Timlin, presided, with Mrs. Arnold Elder as pianist.

Mrs. Silas Sherwin presided over the program and was assisted by Mrs. Alex Woodruff, Mrs. Arnold Elder, and Mrs. Walton Lean. A Biblical quiz by the convener concluded the program.

Lunch was served by a committee, namely Mrs. Ernest Burrison, Mrs. Dawson Timlin, Mrs. Delbert Sherwin, and Mrs. Emma Sherwin.

Bad Grass Fire

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Fanned by brisk October winds, a roaring grass fire yesterday ranged over 500 acres of field in suburban Sandwich West township. The fire was extinguished by the Windsor and La Salle fire departments and by scores of eager volunteers who beat it out with brooms.

Canadian Students May Be Barred

DETROIT (CP)—A United States immigration spokesman said yesterday that some 200 Windsor, Ont. students enrolled in part-time university and trade-school courses in Detroit may be barred from their classes by the Walter-McCarran Immigration Act which is effective Dec. 24.

But, he said in an interview, full-time university students and "some others" will be allowed commuting privileges to attend classes. The officer did not wish his name divulged.

One section of the act, he said, "could be interpreted as affecting" students attending certain types of courses in Detroit. These would include courses in certain trades and in electronics.

Mrs. William Smoke

ROSENEATH (ENS)—Funeral service for Mrs. William Smoke was held at Alderville United Church on Tuesday at 2 p.m., and was conducted by the Rev. J. N. Lovelace, pastor of the church, assisted by Herbert Lander, Coldsprings, a former pastor.

The deceased, the former Corrine Beaver, was born at Curve Lake 30 years ago, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Beaver, coming to the Alderville Reservation as a child and residing here until the death of her husband, the late William Smoke, six years ago. Since that time she has resided in Clarkson. Her death occurred on Saturday in a Toronto hospital following a lengthy illness.

She is survived by her parents, a sister Mrs. Fred Smoke (Alice), Clarkson, a brother Alvin Beaver, Toronto, two half-sisters, Mrs. Ben Sawyer (Abigail) and Arlie, Clarkson.

The pallbearers were: Preston Gray, Henry Comego, Stuart Smoke, Alderville, Ebenezer Blaker, William Miller, and Fred Smoke, Clarkson. Burial was in Alderville Cemetery.

REFERRED CLINICS

There were 91 people X-rayed at the two referred clinics held at the Civic and St. Joseph's hospitals during October. The clinics are sponsored by the Peterborough County Tuberculosis Association.

ATTEND MEETING

W. J. Hamilton and William Graff as representatives of the Peterborough Branch are attending the annual meeting of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews being held in Toronto today. The main speaker is General Carlos Romulo of the Phillipines and a former president of the United Nations' Assembly.

U.N. PROGRAM

Peterborough, L B. (Mike) Pearson and the United Nations will be the subject of a radio broadcast Friday at 7.45 p.m. on CHEX. This program is sponsored by the United Nations Association and the speakers will be Mrs. Arnold Matthews, Mrs. May Thompson and Mrs. Russell Foster.

START SAFETY PATROL

School safety patrols went into action for the first time at 1 p.m. today at four intersections near King George School. There are 22 members of the patrol, under captain Bill Moore. They are on duty at Mark and Hunter Sts., Roger and Hunter, Armour Rd. and Hunter, and Douro St. and Armour Rd. This is the seventh school in the city to start school safety patrols since Constable Don Mackay began the training program last Easter.

Holding The Skunk

The skunk population in the vicinity of the Peterborough Golf Club has multiplied by leaps and bounds this year. In fact they're so plentiful that a couple of members arranged a little bet Wednesday that Claude "Slim" Pearson couldn't catch one. You can imagine the surprise and laughter when Slim appeared back minutes later, holding a skunk by the tail. He had caught it in one of the garbage tins. As long as he held it that way, the skunk could not fire. Joe Watson, another popular golfer, paid off the bet and left Slim holding the skunk. After 10 minutes of fun, all at Slim's expense, the boys helped him get rid of the black and white kitty before it did any damage.

Committee May Invest Interest On Centre Money

The announcement board at the City Hall points to a meeting of the Memorial Community Centre committee October 28 at 4.30 p.m.

J. J. Dorris, secretary, said today the purpose of this call is to consider the investment of an accumulated credit of $26,407.75.

The last report to the council by City Treasurer A. S. Couper showed $207,926.62 invested in Canada bonds plus the bank account of $26,407.75: total $234,334.67.

Assets include the vote of Peterborough's ratepayers authorizing the borrowing of $75,000 for the Centre fund, if the money is ever needed; present presumptive total $309,334.66. J. A. Jebson is chairman of the Centre committee.

PETITION NEARLY READY

As to prospects of future action: M. E. Ketchison says he is putting the final touch to a petition which he has been circulating urging that the Centre be proceeded with according to the prospectus.

The Morrow Trust is at full membership again. Mayor Hugh Waddell said recently he was hoping to hear something agreeable to all hands, one of these days, from the Trust.

So are the members of Peterborough Exhibition Board. President Norman McConkey's hopes are quite definite: that the Trust will permit, in all propriety, the construction of the Centre at the northwest corner of Morrow Park. If there ever was any doubt among Exhibition directors about the desirability of that acquisition, not a shadow of it remains.

FINE FOR SHOW

The Centre would become available for all agricultural purposes: Exhibition, Spring Show, and several other events which Black and White Championships, are regarded as potentials.

Assuming that settlement of site, and with $243,334.67 in bonds, Exhibition directors would proceed to appeal to the federal and provincial Departments of Agriculture for substantial grants toward financing of the building which would fit smoothly into a network of purposes and ends, community, athletics, agricultural, rural, school sports and so on.

Mr. Dorris recalled today that during the mayoralty of James Hamilton, the community centre was first broached. That was in 1943, and the drive for funds was a heart-warming success in 1944. Some members of the Exhibition Board express the opinion that if the building rises out of their hopes, the delay will have diverted the project into a larger field of usefulness than was ever contemplated when other locations were being examined.

Court Awards $1,367 For Injuries

Passenger Received Permanent Limp; Award Cut In Half

For injuries received in a two-car crash nearly two years ago, Thomas R. Sheridan, 36-year-old Hamilton Ave. sales manager, on Wednesday was awarded $1,637.73 with costs of a Supreme Court jury action.

Sheridan was found to have a permanent disability in his right foot as a result of the accident. He was a passenger in a south-bound car of Earl O'Toole of Reid St. that was in collision with a car driven by Walter Snelgrove, Cavan Township farmer, near Fraserville, on Nov. 24, 1950.

JURY UNDECIDED

After considering the evidence for four and a half hours, a Peterborough County jury assessed Sheridan's total damages at $3,275.45. But as the jury were unable to reach agreement on the apportionment (that is the percentage) of damages, their verdict was automatically returned as a 50-50 case of negligence. So Sheridan only got 50 per cent. of the total.

Sheridan, who now walks with a limp, received a broken bone in the instep of his right foot. A partial dislocation remains. Formerly he enjoyed golf, skating, skiing and an occasional dance; now he has the social handicap of a limp that Dr. Robert Young said would probably stay with him.

Evidence indicated that the accident occurred shortly before 5 p.m. on a day when snow was falling. O'Toole, with Sheridan as a passenger, was going south on Highway 28 to Cobourg. Some 200 feet south of the C.N.R. railway tracks that cross the highway near Fraserville he collided with Snelgrove's 1928 car, edging its way across the highway to the west traffic lane. Snelgrove also intended to go south.

Snelgrove had just pulled out from the platform by the general store and his back seat space was filled with 11 bags of chop.

The two vehicles collided as Snelgrove was partly across the centre line of the highway, travelling south-west.

Snelgrove's car received damage to the right rear fender, running board, and the whole right side, and was jarred farther south down the west lane of the highway. O'Toole's car skidded off the travelled portion of the highway into the west ditch and ran against a telephone pole.

SHOULD HAVE SPEEDED

The jury found that Snelgrove was negligent in that he "did not drive quickly enough into his position on the west side of the highway, and he did not use the best judgment in starting onto the highway under the existing conditions."

The jury also found that O'Toole "did not use normal care and prudence in driving at a speed which he could stop if necessary on the snow-covered roads existing."

Justice Schroeder's comment to Alex Elliott, Q.C., counsel for Snelgrove, was: "You were fortunate in the finding you obtained." T. J. Carley, Q.C., was counsel for Sheridan.

Helping Malta

VALETTA, Malta (Reuters) — Prime Minister George Borg Olivier announced last night that Britain has agreed to contribute £1,000,000 to the colonial development welfare fund for social projects. He said Malta has also accepted a four-year grant of up to £200,000 a year from Britain to finances emigration from the crowded island.

300 Take Part In Giant Pageant Of United Church

The seven-day United Church Exposition, featuring a pageant with a cast of more than 250, will begin in Peterborough November 13 and last until November 19.

Highlight of the exposition will be the pageant which is intended to show the development and present strength of the United Church.

Besides the pageant, the week-long exposition offers a pictorial exhibit featuring the church's work at home and overseas; meetings for children, young people and adults; motion pictures, and books for sale that tell how the church is meeting the needs of the world today.

Total cost of the show, which will tour Canada for the next two years, is set at $25,000. The Rev. George Williams, associate secretary of the Missionary and Maintenance Department, said of it: "No church has ever attempted anything like this before; we're going to take the church to the people, wherever they are. We're going to make them aware of the modern church in the modern world."

PROFESSIONAL HELP

Experts have provided advice and material for the show the United Church is putting on the road. Edwin J. Pratt, noted Canadian poet, and Sir Ernest MacMillan, conductor of the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, have contributed poems, hymns and music written specially for the show.

An estimated 10,000 people will have taken part in the actual pageant by the time the exposition is at the end of its tour. That number does not include the people who assist backstage and help in the exhibits.

In Peterborough, the Rev. H. G. Douglas and Peter McCombe will be in charge of the pageant. Mr. Douglas is the minister of Knox United Church and Mr. McCombe is associated with the Peterborough Drama Festival.

The pageant will be staged in the P.C.V.S. auditorium November 17, 18 and 19. A choir of 85 persons drawn from city choirs will provide music. The choir will be under the direction of Charles Allen and Stanley Watt.

Called Triumphs of the Faith, the pageant is split into two sections—Triumphs of the Past and Triumphs of the Present. Each of these sections has five smaller sub-divisions — a prologue and four scenes in the first, an epilogue and four scenes in the second.

Special speakers for the exposition will include the Moderator of the United Church, the Rt. Rev. A. A. Scott, a veteran of 40 years' missionary service in India, the Rev. George Williams, Toronto, the Rev. George Telford, president of the Bay of Quinte Conference, and chairman of the participating Presbyteries of Peterborough, Lindsay, Oshawa, and Cobourg.

The books, scenic displays, electrical models and other features of church work will be on display during the week of the exposition at the new Trinity United Church hall.

The exposition opens Thursday, November 13, with a supper for official board members at St. James' Church. At 9 p.m. that evening will be the official opening of the exhibit. Mayor Hugh Waddell, the Moderator and other church dignitaries will be present.

On Friday, the exhibit is open from 2 to 5 p.m., and a supper for young people will be held in George Street Church. The exhibit will be open to the public from 7 to 10 p.m.

Saturday, November 15, is Children's Day at the exhibit. Songs, stories and movies will be provided for the children's entertainment.

Special speakers in city and district pulpits will feature Sunday's services, with a youth rally being held at St. Andrew's United Church, and an adult rally to be addressed by the Moderator at Trinity Church. Both the latter services are at 7:30 p.m.

Monday is the opening day of the pageant, and curtain time is 8 p.m. The exhibit will be open during the afternoon. Tuesday and Wednesday are the last days of the pageant.

Exhibition Board Accepts Criticism; Plan For 1953

"Letters to the Editor" of the Examiner discussing the Peterborough Exhibition of a month ago were, on the whole, "advertising we couldn't buy with dollars and cents", said President Norman McConkey at the directors' meeting Wednesday night. That opinion discounted the "knocks", and accepted at grateful value the constructive suggestions expressed by people of goodwill.

"We have a good fair and a clean record," Mrs. Gordon K. Fraser said. "Our directors all do their best, and it seems rather too bad that so little is ever said about the work that is done."

G. A. Gillespie, secretary-manager, commented that adverse criticism in the editorial correspondence was aimed at the midway, "and those writers did have some ground for complaint". Other than that, "judges, some exhibitors and others told me that it was the best show we ever had."

$16,874 PRIZE MONEY

Mr. Gillespie reported to the board that he had distributed $16,874 in prize money. He also listed the number of exhibits as follows 135 light horses, 68 heavy horses, 222 dairy cattle, 137 beef cattle 218 sheep, 87 hogs and 679 poultry.

There were also as entries: 66 grain and seed; 24 baled hay; 51 entries of potatoes and roots; 250 entries of vegetables; 363 in horticulture; 127 domestic science, 302 in homecrafts; 88 art entries; 60 homecraft and 11 entries of honey.

Frank C. Paterson, agricultural representative, said "some of the people writing to the Examiner evidently did not recognize the purposes of an agricultural show. But, the letters did a lot of good, even those of which you could say, 'every knock is a boost'."

"Our junior exhibition was exceptionally good. We had a lot of fine young people here from Central Ontario. The show was again well supported by Canada Packers. The dinner they gave cost them real money, and they did a good job in public relations."

Mr. Paterson expressed the opinion that the board appeared "to fall down a little in what might be called glamorizing the program. Lindsay has Bert McLean and Norwood has G. A. they get a chance. I'm not criticizing anybody. I am only expressing a compliment where I believe it is due."

Pedestrians Miss Injury By Car

While a car headed straight toward them, several pedestrians walking on the east sidewalk of George St. froze in their tracks Wednesday evening.

A tree saved them from death or serious injury. Had it not been for the tree, Constable Dennis Smith who witnessed the accident said today, the car would have injured one or more of the pedestrians by pinning them against a brick wall.

After a collision with a station wagon at George and London Sts., at the height of the five o'clock rush hour, the car, driven by Fred Pelky, 178 Morrow St., continued out of control and crashed into a tree on the east boulevard of George St.

Pelky had two front teeth broken when his head bumped against the steering wheel as his car rammed into the tree. He was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital by ambulance and after treatment for bush burns to both knees was released.

One of the investigating officers, Constable William G. Scott, reported that the front end of Pelky's 1936 model car was so badly damaged the car would not be worth fixing.

John Ascott, 551 Waterford St., driver of the station wagon, told police he was going east on London St., and pulled up to the George St. intersection slowly, as another car was making a "U" turn.

He said that after the car completed the turn, he followed it slowly into the intersection and did not see the southbound car driven by Pelky until he was out in the intersection.

The impact swung the station wagon partly around, and caused an estimated $500 damage to the left side of Ascott's station wagon.

Witnesses Tell Court Saw Fight In Parking Lot Man Knocked Down, Pummelled and Kicked Woman Identifies Condon As Assailant

Leonard Condon, 22, of Douro township, at noon today told a supreme court jury that Michael Frank Heffernan landed the first blow in a fight that took place last Sept. 1 in the parking lot behind the McGillis Hotel. In the scrap that followed Heffernan was given a severe beating and died within an hour. Condon was charged with manslaughter. Two Crown witnesses—Harley MacMullen of Apsley, and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Margaret MacMillen of Bethune St.—swore they saw two men fighting in the parking lot. And the man who was knocked down was pummelled with fists and kicked.

Mrs. MacMillen identified the assailant as Leonard Condon; Mr. MacMillen was not sure who it was.

"One man was down and the other man was pounding him to his head and shoulders," said Mrs. MacMillen. "The man on the ground tried to put one arm over his face but the other man took the arm away . . ."

She said that after watching some of the blows and kicks landing she covered her face with her hands. Mrs. MacMillen, her husband Ross and her brother-in-law saw the fight as they were pulling out of the parking lot in their car.

Frank Leahy of Douro township, a distant relative of Heffernan's, had seen Heffernan and Condon having "a chewing match" in the McGillis beverage room. He noticed the waiter come down and speak to the two but nothing happened and he didn't take the argument seriously.

When Leahy left after 11 p.m. he saw a crowd in the parking lot.

TWO SQUARED OFF

"Heffernan and Condon squared off and sparred for a little while but no blows landed," said Leahy. "Then they clinched and went down, Condon on top and Heffernan on the bottom.

"After they squirmed around for a while I saw Condon start swinging at Heffernan who was lying on his back . . . I saw him land one blow on the face.

Youth Arguing With His Girl; Car Hits Pole

An 18-year-old youth and his girl friend were slightly injured at 3 a.m. today when a car went out of control on Armour Rd., snapped off a railway crossing sign and ended up against a telephone pole.

The driver, Leo Joseph Tobin, 315 Murray St., told investigating officer Harold Andrew he was arguing with his girl friend, Eva Mayler, 18, 292 Lansdowne St.

Tobin said he took his eyes off the road for a second during the argument and lost control of the car. He was travelling north and the accident occurred just north of the C.N.R. crossing.

PROCLAMATION

UNITED NATIONS DAY

Seventh Anniversary of the Founding of the United Nations

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 24TH, 1952

To the Citizens of Peterborough.

In a world in which distance has ceased to have any significance, one in which events here today affect the world everywhere tomorrow, local or national problems almost immediately become international ones. The nations must then have available the means to consider such problems and to seek solutions of them. That is just what the United Nations offers—the means, the machinery to work.

The United Nations is yours. It exists only to make a decent and peaceful life possible for you and for peoples everywhere. It is at once its member states and the machinery through which they can operate. Only you, the people, can assure that this machinery is used for the purposes for which its members established it.

I hereby proclaim Friday, October 24th, 1952, as UNITED NATIONS DAY in Peterborough.

H. F. WADDELL,
MAYOR

10,000 People Killed On Roads In 10 Years

TORONTO (CP) — Highways Minister Doucett told the legislature yesterday that nearly 10,000 persons have been killed in highway accidents during the last 10 years. More than 137,000 were listed as injured.

Property damage in highway accidents amounted to $2,000,000 at the end of 1942. By the end of 1951 it had risen to $17,700,000, Mr. Doucett said.

MONUMENTAL TOMBS

Built between 3000 B.C. and 1800 B.C. the pyramids of Egypt were monumental tombs of the Pharaohs.

Hamilton Cadets Good Marksmen

LONDON (CP)—Paced by Westdale secondary school Cadet Corps marksmen won the lion's share of major awards in miniature rifle shooting tests staged last year. Awards were made public Wednesday by the National Rifle Association.

Final compilation of the empire-wide competitions, not only placed the Hamilton schoolboys at the top of the 100 best units in the British Commonwealth, but also gave them the imperial senior challenge shield for general proficiency.

Canada's youthful competitors, ranging in age from 12 to 19, also gathered in 60 silver and 40 bronze medals for outstanding performances in special events staged by the National Rifle Association.

The highest mountain in Australia is Mount Kesciusko, 7,328 feet, in New South Wales.

Students To Vote On Federation Issue

TORONTO (CP) — The Student Administrative Council of the University of Toronto decided last night to poll the student body for its opinion on whether or not the U. of T. should stay in the National Federation of Canadian University Students.

The decision followed a report by Council President Bob Sutherland on the Federation's recent conference at Quebec which decided not to sponsor a visit of Russian students to Canada.

Trade Decline May Be Problem

MONTREAL (CP)—A prolonged decline in foreign trade would constitute one of the "greatest threats" to Canadian prosperity, a Canadian government economist said last night.

But Dr. O.J. Firestone, the trade department's economic adviser, added that Canadian sales will grow as long as Canada remains one of the world's leading low-cost producers of foodstuffs and basic raw materials.

Even though Canada's own economy is growing by leaps and bounds, she still is heavily dependent on her foreign markets, Dr. Firestone said in a lecture prepared for delivery at McGill University.

If foreign sales dropped, income and employment in Canada would decline. The rate of expansion in Canada would be slowed. Surpluses would develop in industry and investment would decline.

Standardization Of Arms Remains Still No. 1 NATO Problem

By JAMES M. MINIFIE,
New York Herald Tribune News Service.

WASHINGTON. — More false hopes have been raised about standardization of arms, equipment, training and procedure among North Atlantic Treaty Organization nations than over any other topic, not excepting strength in the field.

Standardization is the goal at which every conglomerate force must aim if it is to operate with maximum efficiency. Ever since N.A.T.O. came into being, and before that with the A.B.C. powers —America, Britain and Canada— work on standardization has been going on. A great deal has been accomplished, but on component parts, rather than units. Meanwhile many diverse weapons remain on the "acceptable" list.

Reports out of Paris recently to the effect that N.A.T.O. heads have decided to standardize on the American Garand rifle or the British Ceturion tank or the French 81-mm mortar puzzled Pentagon officials.

RIFLE ISSUE

The Garand for example has not been adopted as the standard infantry rifle for N.A.T.O. forces, the Pentagon says. It is on the acceptable list. So is the British Lee-Enfield .303. Furthermore the British are still working on their .380 automatic and are developing a "family of ammunition" for it.

The Belgians are working on both a .30 and a .280 calibre rifle, and officials say that in some respects these weapons are better than both the American and British models of that calibre. But that does not mean that if the Belgian models proved superior in field tests to both British and American weapons they would be adopted as standard. To do so would mean a vast junking of machine tools which none of the N.A.T.O. nations can afford.

In this field the greatest efforts are being made to make the ammunition interchangeable between weapons of the same calibre. This is a major point on which very little advance has been made. The British still use rimfire cartridges. The Americans use centre-fire.

ENCOURAGING PROGRESS

By contrast, encouraging progress has been made on standardizing ammunition for the 105-mm field gun and 155-mm howitzer. Americans believe the U.S. Army's models are supreme in this field. The French do not, and they have a tradition in artillery which commands respect. They are turning out their own 105's and 155's. But the whole family of ammunition for these calibres, whether produced in American or French factories, will be usable by either French or American weapons. These are the lines along which standardization will be most useful, experts now think, because it will allow much freer play to inventiveness. Too great standardization might have cramped progress.

Likewise, virtually complete agreement has been reached on the method of turning out steel cartridge cases—thickness, toughness and quality of steel, and so on. Steel cartridges save copper which is in short supply everywhere.

The British will continue to turn out their Centurion tank, which is a first class fighting vehicle. But there is no question of arming American units with other than M-47 or M-48's.

Similarly, the British "Swift" jet fighter is on the acceptable list. So is the French Mystere and the American Sabre-Jet. The British Canberra medium bomber is being produced in this country, but it won't be standardized to the exclusion of other American types.

30 YEARS TO STANDARDIZE

The greatest triumph of standardization was the simple screw-thread, which is produced in billions and holds things together in battleships and wrist-watches. That took more than 30 years to achieve. The work was begun at the end of World War I.

There are a large number of small components, standardization of which is more important than that of the unit of which it is a member.

Radio tubes, for instance, have been standardized; so has the 24-volt battery for the jeep which will enable any type of radio to be installed. The lunettes and pintles which are the connecting links between tractor and trailer have been standardized. If they had not been, British or American tractors could not have moved that French gun for which the common ammunition was worked out. And that tractor can be serviced with standard procedure, and re-equipped with standardized spark-plugs.

Robert David Stanley Dies In Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Robert David Stanley, 81, at one time active in newspaper work and recently engaged in West Toronto business circles, died at his home Tuesday.

At various times he was employed by the Goderich Signal Star, the Detroit Journal and Good Housekeeping magazine, and was Canadian representative for the Cleveland News.

Shinkers Set Company Ultimatum

TORONTO (CP)—Debaters at Bart House last night rejected by 39 votes to 20 the idea that the University of Toronto should withdraw from all organized spectator sports.

Dr. H.C. Griffith, member of the university's athletic directorate, summed up the majority view when, as guest speaker, he said the only argument against football would be professionalism and he saw no prospect of professionalism at the university.

Hull Youth Killed

HULL, Que. (CP) — Roland Beaulne, 22, was killed last night when his bicycle crashed into a truck while he was trying to pass a bus. It was Hull's first traffic fatality in 199 days.

Korea Vets Returning

VANCOUVER (CP)—The United States troopship General Freeman will arrive at Seattle Saturday with 187 Canadian army veterans of the Korean campaign, army headquarters announced here yesterday. Eastern troops will then be taken by train to their homes.

COMBATIVE LADY—W.A.F. Lt. Zilpha T. Bosone prepares to board an F-94 jet to act as radar observer at Selfridge Field, Mich. The 22-year-old brunette is attached to the 61st Fighter Interceptor Squadron, and is believed to be the only woman assigned to a combat squadron in the entire Air Force. Her primary duty is to handle squadron intelligence information.

Movie Column

Difficult Book To Be Made Into Picture

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — They said it couldn't be done. But a producer has made a movie script out of "From Here to Eternity," the best-selling book laden with sex, four-letter words and slaps at the nited States Army.

Many Hollywood producers had been interested in the James Jones novel. But most despaired making it into a movie that would get the blessing of the censors and defence headquarters. Columbia bought the book and now, claims it has an acceptable script.

The man who accomplished this is Buddy Adler, a producer who is a reserve army officer himself — "So I know what the army would and would not approve."

Novelist Jones was first brought out to whip up a treatment for his book, but that didn't work out. "Jones didn't seem to understand the censorship problems we have in the movies," Adler explained.

SEX REMAINS

"Of course the four-letter words had to go," he continued. "We try to retain the same flavor by substituting words that have the same sort of feeling but are not offensive to audiences."

Much of the sex remains, he added, but in a form that will pass the Breen office, Hollywood's self-censorship group.

"But the Breen office stipulates that sin must be punished," he said. "So the characters will suffer for their transgressions."

Some changes have been made in anticipation of army disapproval he remarked. The brutality of a stockade beating of a prisoner by a sergeant has been altered, he said.

"Also, the character of the army captain is somewhat different," he said. "We show that he is a bad officer and make no effort to claim they're aren't bad officers in the army. The captain will be dismissed from the service. This was only suggested in the book."

Adler has received tentative agreement from the authorities.

So far, Montgomery Clift is the only casting. He'll play Pruitt, the peace-time soldier whose life is the book's theme.

FINISHING TOUCHES are put on Idaho test highway strips, where engineers and road builders are conducting a heavy truck marathon to decide just how much weight a highway can stand.

Special Roads To Test Effect Of Heavy Trucks

Soon now, in the vicinity of this town near the Idaho-Utah State line, giant-size trucks will go around and around two 2½-mile dumbbell-shaped ovals, getting nowhere.

But what takes place will have special significance for engineers and road builders from all over the nation. Highway builders insist roadways will stand only so much weight. Truckers argue they can stand more.

So over these two stretches of specially-built road, with five different thicknesses, perhaps an answer will come up. Trucks of varying weight will travel thousands of times over each section. Meanwhile, eagle-eyed engineers will watch for the first sign of a crack in the pavement.

• • •

CORE OF ARGUMENT

Not until late next year will the results be known officially, and when they are released they may have important bearing on future highway building. Now engineers are pretty much agreed that the maximum truck load to an axle should be 18,000 pounds, or 32,000 pounds on a pair of axles. Truckmen counter that the maximum load on two axles should be double the single axle, or 36,000 pounds.

Asphaltic concrete ("black top"), which is termed non-rigid will cover the Idaho test roads. Top sponsor is the Western Association of State Highway officials. Joining in on the $500,000 venture are the states of Washington, Oregon, California, Nevada, New Mexico, Texas, Utah, Wyoming, Colorado and Idaho.

The trucking industry, petroleum haulers, the National Academy of Science's highway research board and the Federal Bureau of Public Roads are putting up the rest of the money.

• • •

Two 12-foot lanes will cover each test oval. Roadway thickness will vary from six to 22 inches. That means the thickness of the crushed rock, plus the surfacing. For example, one oval will have two-inch surfacing, the other four-inch.

EIGHT CARRIERS

The trucking industry will furnish eight big carriers for the test. The petroleum industry is underwriting gas and oil costs. Trucks will go around and around each 2½-mile oval for two 10-hour shifts, at a sustained speed of 30 to 35 miles an hour.

Test oval No. 1 will have 18,000-pound loads on the outside lane; other ovals will have one lane carrying trucks equipped with tandem axles (one axle immediately in front of the other), loaded with 32,000 pounds. The other lane will carry tandem-axled trucks loaded with 40,000 pounds.

Parliamentary Assistant Is Half-Way To Cabinet Post

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—A House of Commons member appointed parliamentary assistant to a minister is about half-way to a Cabinet post.

Exactly half the eligible list of parliamentary assistants appointed since the office was established 10 years ago now are members of the Privy Council.

Ten are members with portfolio in the present Cabinet. Another, former Fisheries Minister Mayhew, has just been appointed ambassador to Japan.

STARTED IN 1942

Since April 29, 1942, when the first of the parliamentary assistants were named—to help war-burdened Ministers of Defence, Finance and Munitions and Supplies—30 members of the Commons have been appointed.

Of those, two died, two were appointed to the bench, two returned to private life, one went to the Senate and one to the provincial political field.

Of the remaining 22 still in the field, 11 obtained Cabinet posts and 11 are still on the job as parliamentary assistants, in line for later Cabinet jobs.

Thus it would seem that the proper target for an ambitious young Member of Parliament should be a parliamentary assistantship which, the record to date shows, gives him a 50-50 chance for a place in the Privy Council.

GET $4,000 EXTRA

The job is an interesting one for a private member, apart from the chance for advancement. It adds $4,000 to the $6,000 a private member receives in indemnity and expense allowance.

A parliamentary assistant is a member of the House of Commons chosen to help a cabinet minister handle his legislation and estimates in the Commons, reply to questions for him and otherwise aid him in the conduct of his departmental duties.

He does not attend Cabinet meetings. He is just a private member who gets extra pay for doing extra work which keeps him busier than the average private member and keeps him in Ottawa longer.

In the United Kingdom Parliament his opposite number is a "parliamentary secretary" who does exactly the same sort of job but gets no extra pay for it. The United Kingdom official takes his compensation in experience and the hope for advancement.

HOLD IMPORTANT POSTS

YOUNGER GROUP

Although parliamentary assistants are generally younger than the age class formerly selected for the Cabinet, their promotions have not altered the average cabinet age which in 1943, in a cabinet of 20, and today with a cabinet of 22 (both including the Prime Minister) remains within a fraction of 56. Average age of the 10 present Cabinet Ministers who were former parliamentary assistants is 48.6, and the rest 62.08.

Builders Pay Less

STRATFORD (CP) — Breeders are still looking for an opening in the United States market to strengthen beef cattle prices, but meanwhile they are not paying the prices handed out a year ago for breeding stock. Bidding at the Western Ontario consignment sale of shorthorns here yesterday was not as brisk as at some past sales. Highest price paid during the day was $360 by W.H. Black of Moffatt, who purchased a female consigned by T.C. Edwards of Watford.

Three New Polio Cases

SAULT STE. MARIE — (CP) —Three new cases of poliomyelitis were reported yesterday, bringing the total for the city to 16 and for the district to 18. A young schoolboy and a teen-aged girl were stricken in the city. A seven-year-old Garden River Indian reservation child is the third victim.

Mussolini Threw Secret Papers In Lake Como, Nazi Would Hunt

By EDO KOENIG

COLOGNE, Germany (Reuters) —A few hours before Mussolini and his mistress, Claretta Petacci, were captured by Italian partisans toward the end of the Second World War, he had a small box of personal "secret" documents thrown into Lake Como, in northern Italy.

Nagel said the box, measuring about 12 by 10 by 10 inches, was thrown into the lake by a German S.S. officer named Spoegler in the presence of himself and another German soldier, at about noon on April 25, 1945.

PROTECTING MUSSOLINI

Nagel gave this account of what happened on that day, one of the last in Mussolini's life:

"I was in a convoy of about 300 persons ordered to accompany and protect Mussolini on his flight to Switzerland.

"About 5 a.m. we had to stop in the village of Musso because partisans had blocked the way. It was a foggy morning, witth drizzling rain. Mussolini and his mistress, Claretta Petacci, were in an armored scout car at the head of the convoy. Behind then came a truck with 20 S.S. men and then eight or nine civilian cars with members of Mussolini's cabinet and senior Fascist Party officials with their wives. I drove in a truck at the end of the convoy.

"But I had been up front near his car for more than an hour when I overheard Mussolini speak to some of his ministers about secret documents which must not fall into the hands of the enemy. He ordered Spoegler. . .and myself to take the box of documents and throw it into the lake.

"I stood next to Spoegler when he threw it in. I am certain I can find the place again."

"MUSSOLINI IS HERE"

Nagel said that several other soldiers were ordered to throw about six other chests into he lake. One containing Italian money, was opened by them on the shore. They shared out the money and threw the empty box into the water. . .

"Mussolini and Claretta Petacci drove with us to Dongo. There our convoy was again held up by partisans. An Italian boy aged about 15 shouted 'Mussolini e qui! Mussolini e qui!' ('Mussolini is here, Mussolini is here.') The partisans, who wore red kerchiefs, seized Mussolini. The last I heard him say was 'No one will defend me.' Claretta, in a grey costume, was led away with him."

It is estimated there are more than 4,200 islands in Japan, whose area is mainly on four large islands.

Quick Bank Robbery

MONTREAL (CP)—An armed bandit robbed a bank of an unknown amount of money yesterday and then escaped in a taxi with a waiting woman companion. Employees of a Van Horne Avenue branch of Banque Provinciale du Canada said the holdup was over in less than a minute.

Restoring Of Iron And Steel Industry To Private Ownership One Of Churchill's Biggest Problems

By GASTON COBLENTZ
New York Herald Tribune News Service

LONDON — Prime Minister Winston Churchill is moving into one of the culminating battles of his career as he undertakes to restore the vast British iron and steel industry to private ownership.

In the face of unceasing howls of protest and threats of revenge from Britain's massive socialist-minded Labor Party, Mr. Churchill has announced that his government will enact his denationalization bill into law "before we are a year older". This will be the main legislative struggle in the new session of Parliament which formally opens early next month. The outcome will clearly have immesne significance for future structure of society in the British Isles.

OUTCOME LOOKS SIMPLE

On the surface the outcome looks simple: Mr. Churchill's Conservative government has a small majority over the Labor opposition in the House of Commons and will undoubtedly be able to force the denationalization bill through.

But victory in this battle does not consist merely of getting a denationalization law on the statute books. Real victory can only be claimed when the iron and steel plants are again actually in private hands.

When Mr. Churchill defeated the Laborites at the polls last fall, he was expected to move rapidly to reverse their historic take-over of 80 per cent. of industry's production, carried out under Clement Attlee in February, 1951.

Nothing of the sort occurred. Much to the disappointment of the more right-wing Conservative supporters, this year's winter, spring and summer sessions of Parliament went by without the bill being launched. Mr. Churchill blamed this on the disastrous economic condition in which he found the country on returning to power and to delays in Parliamentary business owing to the death of King George VI—at any event it was not until three months ago that he published a "white paper" outlining his plans.

SELL 92 PLANTS

Their essence is the creation of a holding company to sell 92 nationalized plants and 150 associated companies back to private owners and to supervise their operation in the meantime.

The holding company idea amounts to an admission of the difficulties of denationalization. They can be summed up simply by asking whether it is worth anyone's while to buy back steel plants under the present circumstances in Britain. The critical situation that confronts an industrialist who contemplates it is this: He is living in a country which appears to have a majority of pro-Labor voters. Even when Mr. Churchill won in the last election, the Labour party polled a larger popular vote than the Conservatives.

Furthermore, a sizeable number of Labor party and trade union leaders have gone on record with warnings that little or no compensation will be paid to private owners "next time". The labor party's position on this vital issue has not yet been finally defined, but simply the presence of this kind of talk in the air understandably takes the fine edge off enthusiasm for going back into the steel business.

DETERMINED ON EVENTS

Thus the ultimate fate of denationalization may be determined by the political events of the next few months.

On the one hand, if the Labor party remains united despite the bitter struggle between its right and left wings, it is generally thought that Mr. Churchill's proposed holding company will not get very far in selling the nationalized companies back to private owners before another election is held (either when the government's five-year term expires or before, on a vote of confidence.)

On the other hand, if the fight between left-wing Labor party leader Aneurin Bevan and the right-wing party leaders led by Mr. Attlee should cause a permanent split in the Labor party, the Conservatives would be able to look forward to a long stay in power and the chances of effective denationalization would be greatly increased.

This has truly great significance for Britain. Labor party leaders are speaking more and more in doctrinaire socialist terms. If Mr. Churchill fails in his de-nationalization attempt, any new Labor government will be encouraged to range far and wide in its nationalization attempts.

66% In Diplomatic Offices Former Nazis—Adenauer

BONN (AP).—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer admitted Wednesday in the West German parliament that 66 per cent of the higher officials in his West German Foreign Ministry are former Nazis.

He was defending himself against charges that the Foreign Office staff was 85 per cent Nazi.

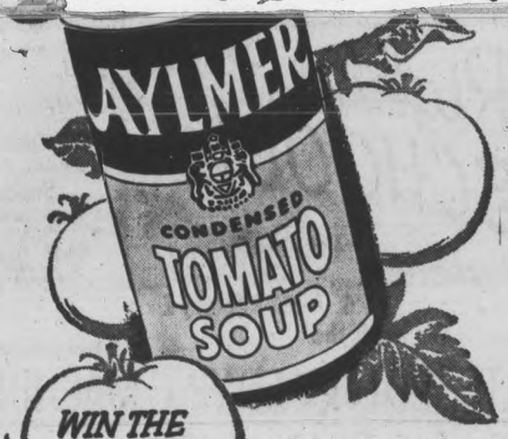
The chancellor declared that these charges were an exaggeration propagated by his political opposition and sections of the German press.

Adenauer replied to complaints by his Socialist opposition that a recent investigation of the Foreign Office higher ranks by a parliamentary committee was insufficient and that there should be a full inquiry of the political past of every employee of the ministry.

The Socialists said a cleanup was necessary so that the Foreign Office might represent "a spotless visiting card for our federal republic."

Disputing charges that the employment of old Nazis had damaged West Germany's reputation abroad, Adenauer said no country had yet refused to accept a diplomatic representative he had sent.

However, the chancellor declared that of 576 employees of the Foreign Ministry at home and abroad 158 had worked in the Nazi ministry. Of 223 persons in the German Diplomatic Service abroad, 76 also worked for Hitler, the chancellor said.



Gets Extra Year

OSHAWA (CP)—Gordon A. Reid, 18, of Toronto, serving a two-year sentence at the Ontario County jail in Whitby when he escaped earlier this month, yesterday was sentenced to a further year. He pleaded guilty to charges of jail-breaking and car theft and was given concurrent one-year entences. He gave himself up the day after the break. Nicholas Marchuk, 36, of Brantford, who broke from the jail with Reid, is still at large.

Adopt Scientific Approach To Human Relations—Rabbi

Adopting a scientific approach to human relations was suggested by Rabbi A. M. Babb Tuesday night, as a solution to the problems of daily living that plague the human race.

Speaking to a non-Jewish audience for the first time since coming to Peterborough as Rabbi of Beth Israel Synagogue, Rabbi Babb spoke to the Knox United Church Men's Club.

Rabbi Babb chose as his theme "The Rebellion of Mankind." "While it is true that throughout human history, mankind has been rebellious . . . we must admit that something is wrong with mankind these days of human progress in other fields," he told his audience.

A recent statement by a Harvard theology professor that "the reason man's relations are not as progressive as the progress made by science is because mankind has not yet adopted a scientific approach to human relations," prompted him to discuss how the problems of present day human relations might be solved, Rabbi Babb said.

START WITH RELIGION

Religion is the first field where a scientific approach should be applied, he said.

"The religion of our day ought to be a builder of human life and an organizer of human relations. Man should not be simply a passive follower of religion, but a student of all religions," he continued.

A study of the science of religion would soon eliminate, in many instances, the theological prejudices dividing human society declared Rabbi Babb. "Man would then come to know that all religions are merely different methods by which their followers wish to make life liveable and that the different religions are only different paths leading to the good life on earth."

NEED VARIETY

Secondly, Rabbi Babb said, "We should take a scientific approach to the moralities, customs and traditions we have inherited. Variety and diversity in the world give it its color, tone, charm and beauty. Train mankind with such an attitude and you have a society that would have an appreciation of all peoples and cultural groups."

Next to adopting a scientific approach in dealing with their own problems, Rabbi Babb said men are in dire need of having more faith in human progress. We must become optimists instead of drifting to an attitude of pessimism.

Outlawing of war was another suggestion proposed by Rabbi Babb and he warned that "mankind of today must change its attitude toward war." He urged a new kind of hero worship, and the lauding of the heroes of peace instead of war heroes. "The United Nations which mankind has succeeded in establishing must be guarded and protected."

WORSHIP OF WEALTH

Most of our troubles arise because of worship of wealth, Rabbi Babb went on. Once this is changed, it will help promote improvement in human relations. Rabbi Babb emphasized he was not advocating the abolishment of wealth, because "money properly and honestly earned is not to be scorned." However, he condemned the worship of money for its own sake.

"Money is merely an instrument; if mishandled it brings destruction. A man is not to be judged by the amount of material wealth he possesses but rather by his wealth of spiritual and moral values. One of the greatest calls that comes to mankind is to live for the fun of life," he concluded.

An audience of about 180 members of the Knox Men's Club and their wives heard Rabbi Babb. It was the first meeting of the club this season and Lloyd Mitchell was chairman.

Harry Swartz introduced Rabbi Babb, and he was thanked by Herb McCann. Mr. Swartz and Rabbi Babb were accompanied by their wives.

The North End ladies' groups of the Knox Women's Association looked after the dinner arrangements and served the turkey dinner. The catering was supervised by Mrs. Eric Pearse.

Austrian Gov't Resigns

VIENNA (Reuters) — The Austrian government resigned last night, brought down by differences between the coalition parties over government spending.

The Socialists wanted next year's budget to provide $19,500,000 more for public buildings, state railroads and increased old age pensions than the rightist People's Party was prepared to allow.

The parties could not iron out differences in time to present the budget by midnight last night, as the constitution requires.

"The Socialists also decried proposed cuts in interior ministry funds, saying they would force reduction of police forces and endanger public safety.

Observers said President Theodor Koerner might ask Chancellor Leopold Figl to form a new cabinet. But it is doubtful whether the Socialists would join it.

Police Quiet For Week On Theft Of 3 Rings

ORILLIA — A $3,500 jewel theft here has been under quiet investigation by town police for the past week, but so far without result.

The theft occurred last Friday when Mrs. Ilda Gordon, proprietor of Madden's Jewelry brought three rings to the store for cleaning. The rings were her own personal property and are valued at close to $3,500.

The rings were left on the repair bench at the end of the store and it was not until some three hours later that they were found to have vanished.

Carbon Firm To Build Plant In Walkerton

WALKERTON —National Carbon Ltd., will soon begin construction of a $1,000,000 plant here, it was announced Wednesday.

The factory, to be built on a 14-acre tract off Highway No. 9, south-west of the town limits, will turn out dry batteries, flashlight, anti-freeze and industrial carbon and graphite products.

Construction will start this fall. The plant will likely by ready for business by the middle of next year.

The one-storey building, made of brick and steel, will have floor space of about 50,000 square feet. It will employ about 125 persons.

Train Kills Laborer At Beaverton Crossing

BEAVERTON—George Freeland, a 73-year-old Brechin district laborer, was killed instantly Wednesday night when struck by the locomotive of a C.N.R. mainline train at a level crossing a quarter of a mile west of the village. His body was carried more than 100 yards by the train, which was brought to a stop about a quarter of a mile from the crossing.

Freeland, who had been doing carpentry work at a nearby farm, was walking into the village. Members of the train crew told Provincial Police they had seen Freeland as he walked along the road. They said he appeared to start to run in an effort to cross the track ahead of the train.

Campaign Sniping Continues As Two Parties Nearing Finish

WASHINGTON (AP) — The presidential candidates of 1948 were blasting away again today but this time to help Governor Adlai Stevenson and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who weren't even in national politics four years ago.

President Truman, whistle-stopping toward Washington through the industrial areas of West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Maryland, lashed out at what he said were Republican anti-labor policies.

Governor Thomas E. Dewey, accompanying Eisenhower across his home state of New York, was bitterly criticizing Truman, using such words as "unholy," "filthy" and "stinking." Dewey, defeated Republican candidate in 1948, was accused in that campaign of being too mild.

Stevenson doubled back to Ohio from New York, scheduling what is described as a major campaign address on "smear tactics" tonight in Cleveland.

SAYS CREATED INFLATION

Eisenhower, the Republican nominee, appeared before a wildly-cheering audience in Troy, N.Y., last night and charged that the Democrats deliberately created inflation to win the election.

"The inflation we suffer is not an accident," he said, "it is a policy designed to "give more people more money that is worth less."

Dewey, introducing the general, accused Truman of heading an "unholy, filthy stinking campaign," and asked voters if they were going to allow Stevenson to "sneak into the White House on a slimy trail of Truman mud."

Stevenson also spoke in New York last night — in Buffalo, where Eisenhower is scheduled to talk tonight.

The Democratic candidate accused Eisenhower and the Republicans of trying to block all progressive programs. He also criticized the general's foreign policy program, which he called "reckless" and "cynically irresponsible."

NIXON SAID ANTI-LABOR

President Truman, in a speech prepared for delivery at Wheeling, W. Va., today made one of his rare attacks on Nixon. He denounced him as "anti-labor" and said his party's leaders "hate labor unions and would like to destroy them."

Nixon told a crowd in Sioux City, Iowa, last night the Democrats are using "a form of political blackmail" by trying to "scare farmers into believing that a Republican administration would permit farm prices to decline." He said Eisenhower's farm program was being misrepresented.

Senator Russell B. Long of Louisiana filled Sparkman's speaking dates in New Orleans, Baton Rouge and Monroe, La. In a statement read for the Democratic vice-presidential candidate over a radic network last night, Sparkman charged Nixon with a "hypocritical" record on civil rights.

Salmon Dishes For Fridays

By MARY MOORE

The folks who do not actively observe Lent are going ot be exposed to—yes, even bombarded with—some nifty fish dishes and pictures, that I have been holding at the ready for this season.

I have come to the happy conclusion too that some of these dinners with fish and other proteins substituted for meat are going to prove economical.

To say the least they will make a wonderful change in your menup and goodness knows the monotonous months of February and March can stand a change of complexion.

The lovely Salmon Mousse that you find on the buffet tables of many particular hostesses I will give you today—for a Sunday night "buffet". But to get down to practical cooking I know you want hot dishes that will take the place of meat, so they come first Baked Salmon Supper (a one-dish meal).

Shred 1 1-lb. can salmon and reserve the juice. Put one-third of the salmon in a layer, in buttered baking dish. Over this slice thin raw mild onion and over them sliced raw potatoes; immediately sprinkle over these flour and a little cooking oil or dots of butter; repeat these layers 3 times. To the salmon juice add about 1 or 1½ cups milk—enough to cover the layers. If desired sprinkle with fine buttered crumbs and bake very slowly 1 hour.

SALMON OMELETTE

Flake ½ lb. can salmon and strain off liquor. Put 4 tablespoons butter in frying pan and when melted, add the salmon, shake of salt and pepper and sprinkle lightly with grated cheese; keep hot. Make a plain omelette by beating 4 eggs for about 10 minutes to make the most of them and add the salmon liquor; pour this into another frying pan in which you have melted butter and cook over low heat until it sets, but is still soft. Spread the salmon mixture over it, roll it up like a loose jelly roll or just fold over. Serve on very hot platter garnished with lemon wedges or lemon butter balls, and parsley.

BAKED SALMON AND NOODLE CASSEROLE

One 1-lb. can salmon, flaked; 2 tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 cup milk, 1 teaspoon salt; about 2 cups cooked noodles. Melt the butter and add all but the noodles and stir until thick. Fill a buttered casserole with alternate layers of creamed salmon and cooked noodles. Sprinkle each layer sparingly with buttered crumbs—using about 1 cup in all. Bake 30 minutes at 350 deg. Fahr.

SALMON LOAF

(My Favorite)

One one-lb. can salmon (drain off juice), 2 cups soft breadcrumbs, ½ cup milk, 1 beaten egg, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 teaspoon salt, shake of cayenne, 2 tablespoons butter. Combine flaked salmon with remaining ingredients. Turn into buttered loaf pan and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for about 40 minutes or until firm. Serve with white sauce made with milk and some of the juice poured from salmon or egg sauce. Flaked tuna is good in place of salmon.

SALMON MOUSSE

Two tablespoons granulated sugar, 1½ teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon mustard, ¼ cup vinegar or mustard, 1 egg yolk beaten, 1¼ tablespoons gelatine, ¼ cup cold water, 1 tablespoon horseradish 1 1-lb. can salmon, 1 cup heavy cream whipped, stuffed olives and canned pimiento for garnish.

Mix together the sugar, salt mustard and stir well; add the vinegar or lemon juice and egg yolk, stirring. Cook over hot water, but not boiling, in top of double boiler until of custard like consistency, stirring. Remove from heat. Stir in the gelatine which has soaked for 5 minutes in the cold water. Add horseradish. Chill until slightly thickened; add 1 cup of the flaked salmon, the celery, and fold in the whipped cream. In bottom of fish-shaped or ring mould place stuffed olives slices and strips pimiento in attractive design. Pour salmon mousse into mould. Chill. When very cold and set and ready to be served unmould on cold platter. Garnish with remaining flaked salmon and little hearts of lettuce. Pass lemon-flavoured mayonnaise.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Stream-Lining Modern Cake Methods

In the past two or three months there have been more letters in my mail than usual from puzzled cake bakers, whose cakes fall, or are soggy or never rise, or half a dozen other discouraging calamities.

These may be coincidental but I have decided to start all over again on a modern cake mixing technique that I learned about twelve years ago when I was doing the research work on one of the first chocolate cake mixes sold in Canada.

Most bakers' cake formulas call for blending soft shortening with the sifted dry ingredients and some of the liquid. Probably this sequence originated because it made the mixing process faster. But what it accomplishes is a finer emulsification of fat and flour and results in a finer and less temperamental and sensitive cake.

I have been concentrating on this type of cake mixing recently and have deliberately tried to abuse the batter by letting it stand too long before baking, or overheating, or by baking in different temperatures and it seems to be foolproof.

One thing I cannot guarantee success with though is an oven whose thermometer is not registering accurately. You see if I give you a cake recipe and it fails you say that Mary Moore is a fraud. It is so easy to blame me and not your oven thermometer. So if yours is not dead on get it attended to and I'll look after my part—the recipe and method. Have we struck a bargain? If so, here's for successful cakes every time.

STREAM-LINED YELLOW CAKE

Use best quality fine cake flour, and advertised brands of "hydrogenated" shortenings—for these contain ingredients which give the cake greater volume.

Two and ¼ cups sifted cake flour, 1½ cups sugar, 1 tablespoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, two - thirds cup hydrogenated shortening which is slightly softer than room temperature, 1 cup milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 3 medium-sized eggs. Sift the sifted flour, sugar, baking powder and salt together. Add the shortening, breaking it up with a spoon as you add it, then add the vanilla to the milk and add two-thirds cup of this mixture. If electric beater is used beat at medium speed for 2 minutes. If beaten by hand beat for 3 minutes, taking a few seconds rest at the end of each minute. The batter should now be perfectly smooth and blended, for if you are using the beater constantly wipe down batter from sides of bowl. Now add the eggs and remaining milk and beat 2 minutes. Mix together in a cup 1 teaspoon each flour and butter and grease the pans or pan with this. If only one pan is used it should be equivalent to 9 x 13 inches. Pour batter into pans and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. having top surface of cake batter at exact centre of oven. Bake layers 30 to 35 minutes or 1 large cake 40 to 45 minutes. Test by lightly touching centre of cake—if no finger imprint remains, cake is done. Remove from oven and let stand in pans for 10 minutes. Loosen sides with spatula, and tip to allow air under cake just before inverting on cake rack. Cool before filling or frosting.

Try it folks—and let me know how you like it. Then we can go on with your beloved chocolate cakes.

I told E. M. I would give her lunch menus for a soft diet last week following up the breakfasts I had given her the previous week but they were crowded out of the column, so I'll try again today.

LUNCHES FOR PATIENT ON SOFT DIET

(You may remember that this reader asked for food of soft nature but with a variety of seasonings, for her patient had very little sense of taste.)

(1) Hot consomme: Sliced white chicken meat and spiced peach or pear; toasted rolled Cheese Sandwich; Pineapple Marshmallow Whip; Tea.

(2) Oyster or Lobster Bisque; Toasted chopped Egg Sandwich; Ripe Banana Sliced in Milk or Cream; Hot Chocolate.

WRONG: She asks "Why don't we dance?"

RIGHT: She carries on a conversation with him, waiting for him to suggest dancing. If he doesn't she does not look wistfully at the dancers, but concentrates on conversation.

A WEEKLY INFORMATION SERVICE

MONTREAL, October 23rd — Lovely Marianne Delacorte, daughter of the publisher of famous romance and beauty magazines, was a story-book bride herself! Her gown of ecru silk taffeta brought out the beauty of her radiant complexion, kept smooth and soft by years of care with WOODBURY FACIAL SOAP. You see, to every cake of Woodbury, skin scientists have added a precious beauty-cream ingredient. It's a softening oil, intended to help replace natural oils you wash away. While some soaps tend to dry sensitive skin, Woodbury Facial Soap smooths and softens it. Try it! And for silken skin from head to toe, use Woodbury's big Beauty-Bath Size, too.

Running Out Of Ideas for economical meals that make the family happy? Now's the time to come to the aid of their appetites—and your budget—with delicious KRAFT DINNER. It's a macaroni-and-cheese combination that's the best ever! Easy to prepare—it cooks to tasty lightness in only 7 minutes. And truly economical—every package of "Kraft Dinner" contains a wholesome main dish for 4 that costs less than 5 cents a serving. So next time you're shopping, look for "Kraft Dinner" in its brand new red-and-yellow package that's a real eye-catcher.

There's Something about a real home-made cake that can't be equalled. I know our family go into raptures over the fluffy, tender cakes I make. They can't seem to get enough of them. Of course, my secret is SWANS DOWN CAKE FLOUR. No other flour, no cake mix, can make cakes the way Swans Down does. You see, Swans Down is especially made for better cake making. Milled by experts from the finest of soft winter wheat, Swans Down makes prize cakes, every time. You too can enjoy the satisfaction of better cakes, with Swans Down—it is sifted again and again until 27 times as fine as ordinary flour. Grand recipes on the package!

B-rrr! Hate To Wake Up to a chilly morning? Then here's a breakfast suggestion that will warm you up in no time . . . a piping hot bowl of "CREAM OF WHEAT". Takes just a jiffy to prepare . . . five minutes of boiling and 5 Minute "Cream of Wheat" is ready to enjoy. M-mmm! So good — and so good for you! For in addition to other benefits, 5 Minute "Cream of Wheat" provides Iron, Calcium and Phosphorus for diets deficient in these elements. The "Cream-of Wheat"-for-breakfast habit is a good family habit to get into—a favourite of your menfolks, too. So change "get up" gloom to breakfast smiles — with taste-tempting bowls of "Cream of Wheat".

New Accessories Can Give Old Suits New Smartness

By ALICIA HART

You may not be getting a new suit this year but you can make your old one take on freshness with new accessories, especially if the suit is in your most becoming basic color and is not an extreme style.

With a gray suit, for example, you might try a grey hat, yellow scarf, white gloves and black shoes and bag. The fabric or leather you decide on is determined by whether the suit is definitely sporty or can be called right for after five as well as all day. If the latter, your scarf might be in one of the new duller satins and your jewellery in fake rubies or emeralds, so popular just now, or classic gold, silver or pearls.

The black shoes and bag can go with anything, including brown, navy or green. If they are suede they are good for all day and into evening. If they're calf, they are fine for all day but begin to look a little too tailored by evening unless they are very soft calf cut in a dressy way. The shoes and bag should match in material as well as color.

Patterns in scarves or gloves, unless they are very formal, modern, sophisticated ones, look best with sporty-type daytime suits. Touches of gold paint or thread add sophistication.

If your suit is beige, accessories in chocolate with a gold jewel will look smart. Green, a very fashionable color now, takes to red accessories beautifully — a light red for dark green or a dark red for light green. These are just suggestions.

However, let there be no more than one color, in addition to black and white, in your accessories scheme. Black or white do not count as colors (unless you are striving for a black and white effect).

Wear the suit when you go to buy the accessories and be sure to look at yourself in a full-length mirror in daylight before deciding. There are no set rules about what colors will flatter you. This depends on whether you are aiming at a contrast, as in a yellow scarf with black hair, or sameness, as in a yellow scarf pointing up blond hair. In choosing your effect, consider how the color looks against your complexion.

PLAID WOOL JERSEY GLOVES and matching ascot enliven this girl's suit from last year.

FALSE TEETH

With Little Worry

Eat, talk, laugh or sneeze without fear of insecure false teeth dropping slipping or wabbling. FASTEETH holds plates firmer and more comfortably. This pleasant powder has no gummy, gooey, pasty taste or feeling. Doesn't cause nausea. It alkaline (non-acid). Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug store.

A remnant of ice-blue antique satin found in an upholstery department was the basis for this skirt (above). Green and metallic silver threads form leaves and buttons are the flower-petals. Red chintz skirt (center) is decorated with black and red velvet ribbon "checkerboard" pocket with black and white rhinestone buttons for "men."

All these styles are easy to make at home. Felt stole (center) was appliqued with colored felt triangles and two-inch hem was cut with scissors to make fringe. Black and white skirt (above right) was dramatized with three graduated pockets in black velvet down each side. White buttons graduated in size ornament the pockets.

Using Discarded Button For Stoles And Skirts

You may have a drawerful of buttons that you have been saving and adding to each time you snip the button off a discarded garment. These buttons can have a far more glamorous use than merely serving as a pile, from which to choose replacements for junior's corduroys.

You can make chic at-home skirts and stoles with the buttons as your inspiration. First, sort them out so you will know exactly how many good ones you have and how many of each type. With a new or left-over piece of material for your skirt or stole and some imagination to work out a decorative plan for your buttons, you can get to work at once and have a new outfit in no time.

Get a piece of bright red chintz and a couple of yards each of black and red velvet ribbon. Look through your pile of buttons to see if there are a dozen or so rhinestone-centered buttons, some with black and some with white centers.

Make yourself a full skirt from the chintz. Interlace the black and red velvet to form a square and sew it sidewise on your skirt as a checkerboard patch pocket. Then you can sew the buttons on different squares and you will have a gay checker game in progress on your skirt.

A fascinating stole can be made from a length of light-colored felt on which you can stitch felt triangles in various colors to form a stained-glass effect. Use some of your triangles to form great big diamonds open at one side for pockets.

Make a two-inch hem all around and use your scissors to cut into it at intervals of about an inch and you'll have a charming rolled-edge fringe. Rhinestone buttons will give sparkle to the stole. Sew them at the centers of the triangles and around the pocket edges.

You can make a very smart skirt by sewing three black pockets down the sides of a black-and-white minutely checked skirt. Use small white buttons in rows across you first two pockets. Sew the same kind of buttons in a larger size on your center pockets and sew still larger white buttons on your pockets near the hem.

A gala evening skirt can be made from a richly textured piece of material that you can pick up relatively cheaply at an upholstery remnants countr.

Ice-blue antique satin is one suggestion. You could stitch leaves on the skirt with green thread and outline the leaves with silver thread. Strew some flower petal buttons among the leaves. With it wear a cummerbund fastened with rhinestone buttons. The "silver grass" quilting will keep the skirt from sagging as well as look exotic.

Here is an idea for a two-in-one blouse. Make yourself a sleeveless wool-jersey evening blouse with buttons as trim all around the arm-holes. Then make sleeves with button-holes so that you can fasten the sleeves to the blouse for day-time wear.

Cosmetics Specially Made For Sensitive Skins

By ALICIA HART

If your skin is super-sensitive to regular cosmetics, you should seek make-up beauty from preparations that have been created especially to meet your needs.

Just such a line of outstanding beauty preparations is in existence and it contains shampoo, lipstick, powder, rouge, cleansing creams, night creams, nail polish and eye make-up, etc.

Nothing is omitted that will help you to greater beauty. And each and every preparation is so formulated that it contains no ingredient that could possibly irritate your skin.

Many women use the preparations, moreover, even if they are not faced with sensitive skin conditions. The point of the matter is that such beauty aids are designed to care for all complexions, but will do an extra job, if need be, for the super-sensitive skin.

When you apply your make-up, always start with a base. It will act as a veil to keep dirt from becoming embedded in your pores. Also, the base will act as a skin treatment and will allow your other make-up items to go on more smoothly and last twice as long.

Next should come rouge and then powder. After your powder, apply lipstick, and, if you like, an eye make-up. When you have completed the application, you will have the satisfaction of knowing that in addition to a smooth, flattering make-up, the preparations will care for your skin as long as they are on.

These special hypo-allergenic products also include grooming aids. Wave set lotions and soap substitutes are available, if you need them. A liquid deodorant acts efficiently and safely. You might enjoy a healthful pine bath.

A greaseless hand cream will keep your hands soft and free from chap all winter long.

The importance of hypo-allergenic beauty and skin preparations for teen-agers can't be overemphasized. This is the time of life when skin blemishes and eruptions are most prominent and cause much unhappiness and feelings of insecurity.

There are several items in the line for use in combating acne. One particular preparation protects against dirt and infection during the day, and it acts as a quick-drying, pleasant therapeutic at night.

One of the added pluses about these preparations is that literature is available at your cosmetic counter with complete and simple directions as to their use. A chart has also been prepared that lists skin conditions into seven main groups—normal, dry, dry with blemishes, oily centre (forehead, nose and chin), with normal outside areas, or oily centre with dry outside areas, entirely oily skins, and lastly, oily skins with severe blemishes. Furthermore, this chart gives a complete breakdown of the proper care necessary for each type.

There's no such thing as over-pampering your skin. You must give it every care possible. Naturally, if your problem seems to be a particularly serious one, you should see your doctor first, and discuss with him the possibility of using these hypo-allergenic preparations.

NEED SLEEP, PLAY

MONTREAL (CP) — Sleep and play are indispensable factors in maintaining the good health of school children, says Dr. Adelard Groulx, civic health director. He suggested 11 hours of sleep for children between seven and nine years; 10 hours between 10 and 13, and nine hours for older boys and girls.

Use Of Hands Can Add Grace To Your Posture

When you sit and listen to a classroom lecture or sit at your own desk doing homework, do you choose a position that trains you to be graceful?

Your spine and the back of your neck should line up perfectly straight; your hips against the back of your chair, your knees together, and the toes of one foot meeting the arch of the other. Your legs should not be perpendicular to the knees but forward on the floor to form a slight angle with them.

When you particularly want to make a good appearance, cross your legs only if your thighs are slender enough to allow your legs to form two almost parallel lines. To do the crossing gracefully, keep one hand on the knee you are raising to cross. This small measure will prevent your skirt from sliding back.

When you are not using your hands while seated, do you give others the fidgets because you fidget so much yourself? You can keep them quiet if you learn what to do with them. If legs are crossed, join your hands together gracefully at the side of your lap.

Otherwise, keep hands in lap, palms upward, and join fingers in a relaxed manner as close to one knee as you can comfortably reach. Or hold one hand in the other with thumb of lower hand resting in the palm that is uppermost. Or encircle the second and third finger of the upper hand between the thumb and forefinger of the lower hand. In all these hand positions, elbows are close to the body, fingers point toward knees and hands are held out on the lap.

Remember that control of the hands is a simple matter of will power. When you are not using them, do not give them meaningless occupations. The above positions will give you a working repertory for nervous moments.

Cottons Get Tweed Look In Heavy Weights

By GAILE DUGAS

NEW YORK (NEA). — Cotton has, for many years now, carried a hot-weather connotation. That it's showing up in heavy weights for winter wear is a sort of fashion paradox.

Cotton carries on, this year, from morning through evening in clothes that are casual, tailored, dressy, dramatic. There's much talk of textured weaves in cotton: Tweedy, striped or plain patterns and lots of black overtones.

The rightness in the year-around use of cotton fabrics is demonstrated by the range of fashions possible in the many weights and weaves. Cotton tweed is everywhere now. In some dresses for daytime wear, it turns up with sophisticated mink touches.

Cotton's good for coats and suits, too. Some of these are dressy and others are in very heavy weights, with a tailored look. Cotton has been used for raincoats for some seasons now, but the new cotton coats are for all-purpose wear. Some are reversible, as in the case of corduroy and faille, while others, in dazzling white faille, are right for the theatre, for dining out or for parties.

Adapting to a new idea takes a little time. 'Best advice, then, to women who are a bit sceptical about the new uses of cotton for winter is that they shop around and then add just one winter cotton to their wardrobes.

For wear on days when the weather is mild, or in an overheated apartment, or just for the fun and comfort of it, women will find cotton a useful addition to a closetful of good, prized winter woollens.

Coronation Fever In France

PARIS (NEA). — The Coronation in England next summer is exerting a definite influence over Paris designers in everything from hats to jewellery and accessories.

Already, leading Parisian jewellers are showing modern adaptations of the diamond tiaras to be worn by the peeresses going to Westminster Abbey for the Coronation. Diamond clips, a brooch, bracelet and earrings have been designed which can be worn as separate pieces or mounted on a frame to form ceremonial tiers.

From one millinery designer come headpieces that he calls his "Coronation hats," because they are really settings for jewels. They are meant, of course, for late-day and evening wear.

Velvet is the natural medium for these tiny hats, in black and deep reds. Shown is a royal herald's toque in Tudor rose wi thaigrette and diamond clip motif that is both becoming and topical.

News from London has it that the old style lacy gold or silver tiara setting is definitely old hat, and that fashion-minded young British peeresses are investing in more practical and modern designs.

Many of the dowager peeresses are having their "White Queen'" tiaras revamped wherever possible. Evidently, it's still possible to buy an old-style tiara on the second-hand diamond market in England, so it's likely that there will be a mingling of the old and the new in Westminster Abbey.

CORONATION INFLUENCE shapes these hats by Paris designer. Deep red velvet bandeau (left) has a central clip of nine large round diamonds mounted on baguette diamond spokes with two smaller clips to match. Tudor rose velvet toque (right) has an aigrette "plume" attached by a clip formed of twin diamond leaves, with about 24 marquise diamonds.

The Golden Mile Club had a most enjoyable meeting Tuesday afternoon at 381 George St. After routine business a delicious tea was enjoyed, tables being richly decorated in the Hallowe'en theme. Four members received birthday cards and wishes from both the Golden Mile Club and their sponsors of the Soroptimist Club. One particular card, presented to Mrs. Sanders, a charter member, was in the form of a cheque for $100 and at first glance appeared real, but the treasurer disappointed by refusing to cash it. Singing "Happy Birthday" brought the happy afternoon to a close.

Leaving For Vancouver

A surprise farewell party for Mr. and Mrs. Carmen Panter and daughter Daisy of 491 Patterson St., was given Wednesday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Panter are leaving the city for Vancouver, BC, to join their sons Wallace, Thomas and Robert. The party was at the home of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Harding, 260 Euchlid Ave., with 50 guests present. A horse-shoe symbol for good luck in their new home, with money gifts pinned all around it, was presented. The evening was spent pleasantly with music and refreshments were served.

Receive Gifts On Departure

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Wright and family, McKellar St., will be leaving the city this Saturday to make their home in Los Angeles, California. Mrs. Wright was honored Wednesday afternoon when a group of women friends called on her and presented a lovely china figurine. In the evening the South End Ladies' Bowl-League members presented her with a matching figurine. Her own team, the Pepper Pots, made presentation of a pair of earrings and gave Mr. Wright a pair of cuff links. Mr. and Mrs. Wright have lived in Peterborough a little over three years. They were among the first attendants at the Grace United Church and have taken active part in its organizations and progress since.

W.A. Serves 300 At Dinner

Slightly more than 300 persons [illegible] turkey [illegible] ment Tuesday evening. All of these people arrived at an early hour but limited accommodation necessitated three sittings of 100 each so some appetites were stretched. Getting tables cleared and re-set made the workers very busy but the meal served was a credit to everyone who contributed. Eighteen 15-lb. turkeys were consumed along with a variety of other foods including home baked rolls and tea biscuits. Mrs. Earl Blewett comments "We did our best to live up to the reputation previously set in Bridgenorth." The tables were colorfully decorated with bittersweet and bright red apples were holders for lighted orange candles that cast a friendly glow on the scene.

Mothers' Meeting

Mothers of St. James Baby Band held their regular meeting Wednesday evening. Mrs. H. Bothwell's group was in charge, and Mrs. A. Fife read the scripture lesson. Mrs. Bothwell read a story on the life of Japanese Canadians and each group member then read a "do you know?" comment on Japanese in Canada. President Mrs. C. Jones presided and introduced Mrs. O. Lunn and Mrs. G. McPhail as new members of the group. Some plans for the mothers' and children's Christmas party were laid. Mrs. E. Roberts, Mrs. Jack Simmons and Mrs. V. Post were appointed a nominating committee to bring in a new slate of officers in November. Mrs. G. Towns was voted the new Baby Band superintendent. Mrs. Bothwell conducted a contest before lunch was served by the group in charge.

Africa Sends Missionary To Visit Canada

EDMONTON (CP)—Africa has sent a missionary to Canada. She is Maria Chela who came from the village of Chiassamba in Angola Province of Portuguese West Africa to make a coast-to-coast tour.

Miss Chela, a young and vivacious Negro, came on the invitation of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada to tell audiences about the work their mission service is accomplishing in her country.

She holds a teaching certificate in Portuguese and is matron of the girls' boarding school in Chissamba where she teaches sewing and basketry, plans recreation and leads worship services.

In Canada she is travelling with Margaret Dawson who is on her third furlough to Canada after 17 years in Angola with the United Church mission. Miss Dawson taught school in Lundy's Lane near Niagara Falls, Ont., before going to Africa.

Miss Chela speaks English but prefers to address public gatherings in Umbundu, the native dialect. Miss Dawson acts as interpreter.

Select 11 Women For Tailor Models

LONDON (CP)—Radical changes may soon be made in the "tailor's dummy" that has been used for outsize measurements for many years.

Because of complaints that fitting of garments for the larger figures sometimes leaves much to be desired, one manufacturer has chosen eleven women to act as models for a new set of dummies with ample curves. Plaster casts will be made of the women, who measure from the larger-than-average 42-inch-hip to 60-inch hips.

More than 1,000 women were measured before the choice was made.

CGIT Doings

Mark St. United Church C.G.I.T. meeting Tuesday was opened by the playing of games led by Mrs. L. Pepper. In a short business session discussion was mainly about the Hallowe'en party on the next meeting date. Then the girls went to their groups for a worship service and crafts.

WELL FRAMED—There's nothing antique about lovely Elaine Aiken, who added a glamorous touch to the recent New York Antiques Fair. More than $25,000,000 worth of ancient treasures were on display from all parts of the United States, and many countries in Europe. Elaine is wearing an old Bohemian garnet festoon necklace, and an ancient ring and bracelets from the collection of the late Mrs. Henry Ford.

New Group Holds First Tea

An autumn garden scene, reproduced in the Sunday school room of Murray St. Baptist Church, was a colorful setting for afternoon tea Wednesday. In this surrounding the Baby Band Mothers were hostesses to more than 150 ladies, many of them representing sister groups of other churches.

President Mrs. Harold Shaw was extremely pleased with the success of the tea, since it was the first such venture of the group which organized only two years ago. There are now about 30 active members.

Conveners were Mrs. Frank Ephgrave and Mrs. George Stewart. They received some expert help in decorating the room from the husband of one member, Mr. P. Cameron. This was in creating the illusion of trees at each corner of the tea area, the green trunks partially covered with autumn leaves among which were cheeky looking cardboard squirrels.

The main tea table was a pretty picture with a pale green lace cover and centre bouquet of yellow button 'mums and shaggy bronze 'mums highlighted by yellow tapers. The tea pourers were presidents of other Baby Band Mothers' groups, Mrs. Ray Parnell of George St. Church, Mrs. Horace Guppy of Mark St., Mrs. C. Jones of St. James and Mrs. W. B. Gordon of Trinity.

Small serving tables were centred with tiny Jack O'Lantern candles which delighted the children who were welcomed as tea guests on this occasion. Mrs. Arthur Rightmyer was in charge of serving assisted by Mrs. P. Lavictoire, Mrs. Jack Quinn, Mrs. J. Thackeray, Mrs. J. Rollins and Mrs. J. Robson.

Mrs. Russ Baer was in charge of preparing the plates and making tea, with Mrs. W. Loomis, Mrs. Ron Bishop and Mrs. P. Cameron assisting.

Mrs. Don McKenzie played piano selections softly during the tea hours.

The "talent table" which featured dressed dolls, aprons, cushions, etc., was in charge of Mrs. C. Gillespie. Mrs. Mel Curtis attended a table of home baking where small jars of jelly and jam were also for sale.

Candy sellers were two little girls, Marilyn Ephgrave and Jacquelyn Quinn, who carried their trays to each table.

Mrs. Ivan Morgan was receiving with Mrs. Shaw and Mrs. J. A. Miller was taking the tickets.

Westwood Women Plan Activities

WESTWOOD (ENS). — The Women's Institute met on Tuesday in the Community Hall, with several visitors, two of whom became members. The president, Mrs. T. J. Cardwell, presided. The roll call was unique, each member adding her bit to a humorous continued story.

It was decided to apply for the government grant for educational purposes. Mrs. H. Pacey thanked the members for a basket of fruit sent.

Arangements were made to hold a bingo on Wednesday evening, October 29, in the Community Hall. A committee was appointed to be responsible for a series of fortnightly card parties: Mrs. William Renwick, Mrs. H. S. Neilson, Mrs. H. Pacey, and Mrs. Fred Neilson, the first card party to be held on Wednesday evening, November 12.

Mrs. Robert Wilson won a prize for the grandmother who had come the longest distance to the meeting. Mrs. Fred Faux was awarded three prizes—for having the greatest number of grandchildren, for having the youngest grandchild, and for having the nearest birthday to October 21.

A contest, "Guess Whose Picture," was won by Mrs. Wilbert Graham. Mrs. Hilliard Neilson told a number of interesting current events and Mrs. Ed. Sargent gave the motto, "He who sows courtesy reaps friendship.'"

An entertaning skit, "The Culture Club," was presented by Mrs. Wilbert Graham, Mrs. Eric Pulfer, Miss Marjorie Huffman, and Mrs.

Judge Fabrics By Burning Edge Of Goods

LONDON (CP)—Tips on how to judge fabrics are contained in a book just published here. It seems all you need is a box of matches.

Burn the raw edge of a pure woollen fabric and both warp and weft threads should smoulder slowly into a brown "blob" with a strong smell, says Lynn Hillson in her book, "Practical Home Dressmaking Illustrated."

Apply the same treatment to silk and it should turn filmy and transparent. If it doesn't, it's not pure silk.

Rayon fabrics feel cold and heavy and often have a metallic surface, owing to acetate content. This material will flare up when burnt.

Leaders Of District Girls Learn to Teach Dressmaking

Cottons May be Smart, is the theme of a school for leaders being held this week at the Peterborough Department of Agriculture.

This school is a part of a junior homemaking club program, which is sponsored in Peterborough county as well as in all other parts of the province by the Women's Institute and Home Economics Branch of the Department of Agriculture.

Two schools for the leaders and their assistants of these junior homemaking clubs are held a year. The fall school trains the leaders in the project planned for the clubs for the fall and winter season and the second school is in the spring, when leaders are given training in the direction of garden clubs.

JEAN NOBLE

The schools are conducted by Miss Jean Noble, home economist for the counties of Peterborough, Victoria, Durham and Northumberland.

Junior homemaking clubs in Peterborough county have been organized since 1936. Club members range in age from 12 to 26, and are given leadership by volunteers in their communities.

This fall's project, Cottens May Be Smart, is one of 17 projects which are planned and outlined at the head office of the department in Toronto.

The projects all come under the general subjects of clothing, goods, house furnishings, gardens and hospitality.

This week 20 women representing nine clubs in Peterborough county and one in Durham county are learning the details of the use of such materials as gingham, chambray and broadcloth in dressmaking. During the next few months each club member will be expected to make a dress under the instruction of these leaders.

BECOME LEADERS

Many of these leaders were club members before volunteering as leaders. Mrs. Clarence King and Mrs. Ivan Ellis of Belmont and Mrs. Elias White of Millbrook all completed 10 or more projects before becoming club leaders.

Mrs. H. G. Digwood of Warsaw has led in 15 club projects.

The leaders and assistants attending the school are: Mrs. F. C. Bennett, Mrs. W. Woodbeck, Havelock; Mrs. C. King and Mrs. Ivan Ellis, Belmont; Mrs. E. Anderson, Miss Edith Wood, Keene; Mrs. Clarence Mann, Mrs. Albert Bulmer, South Smith; Mrs. Albert Harrison, Miss Margaret Neville, Hall's Glen; Mrs. M. Payton, Mrs. C. Foster, Mrs. Roy Farrow, Lakefield; Mrs. Bert H. Gardiner, Mrs. Elias White, Millbrook; Mrs. H. G. Digweed, Mrs. Milton Drain, Warsaw; Mrs. J. Stewart, Mrs. R. M. Perrin, Bailieboro; Mrs. O. Churchill, Buckhorn.

Of Interest to Women

DOROTHY DIX

Man Thinks Wives Unfair To Their Mothers-In-Law

DEAR MISS DIX: Mothers have had a hard battle to fight these last few years. Mothers-in-law have had no chance at all. Young women are fighting older women bitterly. The hate they express when speaking of their mothers-in-law is difficult to put into words. Many men in their thirties and forties have ulcers solely because of the conflict in their lives between women. They ask in despair, "Is it a crime to love one's mother?" We are called every low name in the docket because, having made money, we wish to make our mother's last years a little easier!

I know two large families. The several sons of each family have been successful in a big way. They were brought up by a good mother. And the wife of every son bitterly hates her husband's mother! The sons all love their mothers, but the wife, with her youth and beauty, has the upper hand! A. N.

ANSWER: At least you are one man who admits that there are conflicts between wife and mother-in-law. Most men insist the situation is purely imaginary. I do think, however, that either you are going through a present crisis in this regard, and so have slightly lost your perspective, or have been exposed to an unusually vitriolic batch of daughters-in-law. It's difficult to believe that all wives you know have developed a clannish dislike for their husbands' mothers.

HE CAN LOVE BOTH

Surely there is no reason why the youth and beauty of a wife should cancel the love and devotion due to a mother. Besides, today many mothers give younger women stiff competition in the youthful-looking and beauty department. The day when Mom settled into stagnation the minute her sons married is fast drawing to a close. More likely she raises her family, sees them happily married, then goes off to a good job of her own. In fact, much of the daughter-in-law trouble today is caused by young women who find themselves tied down to baby food and diapers while they see smartly dressed Mom embark on a career. The young-marrieds had pictured things differently. They had Mom cast in a role of perpetual baby-sitter and, when she foils their plans, they decide she's not co-operative.

The husband who is faced with conflict between his mother and his wife should have no trouble in ascertaining the source of the trouble. He'll hear complaints from both sides, naturally, and it's up to him to weed out the pettiness and dig into the roots. The fault can lie on either side, or on both sides. If mother is attempting to run her son's household, spoil the children, make too many demands on him or his family, retrenchment is required. If the wife refuses to let her husband visit his family, if she withholds help, financial or otherwise that is needed and that she is able to give, if she is disagreeable to the older woman, then she must be taught consideration and manners.

This most delicate of all problems becomes a difficult situation, usually because someone along the line blunders. A little tact and finesse, a bit of diplomacy at the very beginning, can mean the whole difference between a mother and daughter-in-law feud, or a happy, lasting friendship.

If men, themselves, would be more aware of the potentialities involved, and less sure that everything is bound to be all right, trouble could be averted before it begins.

DEAR MISS DIX: My sister-in-law is becoming very annoying with personal questions that I consider no busines of hers. I am expecting a baby in a few months and, since she has two children, she feels capable of giving me advice I do not want or need. The sort of discussions she tries to get me into may be enjoyed by some people, but I believe they are too personal for outsiders. Perhaps I sound immature—sometimes I even feel that way.

ANN

ANSWER: Your attitude marks you as very mature, rather than the contrary. Women whose horizons are rather limited are bound to find conversation equally restricted, hence they concentrate on the few subjects about which they feel authoritative. In your sister-in-law's case, the fact that she has two children makes her a savant on all details relating to birth. You will, unfortunately, find her equally omniscient when it comes to raising your children. When she brings up a subject that is distasteful to you, switch the topic, tactfully if possible, bluntly if necessary. It shouldn't take her long to catch on and avoid matters which you prefer to keep to yourself.

"With the assistance of Carl Maloney I grabbed Condon and pulled him off. Maloney helped Heffernan to his feet. I told Condon to cut out the fighting and go on home. He said 'O.K'."

Leahy said he took two or three more steps toward King St. where the car in which he was riding was parked and then glanced over his shoulder.

"I saw Condon hit Heffernan and as the blow landed Heffernan went down.

WENT BACK

Leahy went back to the pair, pushed Condon to one side and noticed that Heffernan was not getting up.

"I said: 'You may have hurt him that time and you'd better look after him.' Leonard Condon and the others agreed to look after him. I didn't see them put Heffernan in the car."

Maloney said that when they came across the pair struggling on on the parking lot ground they pulled Condon off and told Heffernan to go home. He said that Leahy gave Condon a shove that causcd the accused man to fall.

Leahy and Maloney knew both men and were drinking at a nearby table that night. However they didn't join the other group and didn't know what was the original disagreement between Condon and Heffernan.

Condon entered the witness box in his own defence shortly before 1 a.m.

POURED TEA

He said that he and a group of his drinking companions had been attending a social that day at the Douro parish church. Ironically enough he had been pouring tea at the social from 4 p.m. till 6:30.

Before entering the McGillis Hotel at about 9:40 p.m. he had consumed three draughts and two pints of beer—this was since noon.

Heffernan walked into the hotel just before Condon and his Douro group and they sat down at the same table.

"I pulled up a chair and Heffernan asked me about "foolish Joe" (a reference to one of Condon's cousins with whom Heffernan had been arguing a few nights before).

"He wanted to know why I stood up for Joe," said Condon. "I told Heffernan that it was Joe's argument, not mine. And he told me I was scared to say anything."

According to Condon, Heffernan several times invited him outside for a fight but he wouldn't go. Condon admitted he was somewhat "scared" of Heffernan.

He said he gave Charles a cigarette and while leaning over he was struck on the left ear by a blow from Heffernan.

"I said, 'What do you mean by that?' Then, we got into a clinch and fell to the ground."

Charles Condon also testified that Heffernan struck the first blow, outside the hotel, while he and his cousin were lighting cigarettes.

Condon will continue in the witness box, later today.

Dr. C. B. Waite, district pathologist, said Heffernan died from concussion of the brain. The direct cause of a hemorrhage on the brain.

THREE BLOWS

"Can you give the jury any idea of the number of blows or the type of blows that would be necessary to cause such an injury"? asked Crown Attorney Bradshaw.

"A single blow might have caused it," said Dr. Waite. "I think three blows were struck."

One blow was on the left side of the mouth (Heffernan's upper and lower lips were swollen and bruised and there was a small cut on each lip).

A second blow was on the nose (the bridge of the nose was badly swollen and bruised and the nasal bones were broken into several pieces).

"I think the scalp bruises were caused when Heffernan fell," said Dr. Waite.

"What, on both sides"? asked Justice Schroeder.

"I think so, though I don't know where he fell," said Dr. Waite.

Answering Crown Attorney Bradshaw, the doctor said the hemorrhages below the scalp could have been caused by blows instead of falling.

Under cross examination by Mr. Farquharson Dr. Waite re-iterated that "the injuries to either side of the brain could have been caused by a fall."

NO HELP

Even if a doctor had been available immediately it is unlikely that he would have been able to save Heffernan's life, Dr. Waite told the court.

Constable Dennis Traynor said he was despatched to a car, parked outside the Churchill Restaurant on George St., about 12:30 a.m. He looked inside the car and saw Heffernan lying unconscious on the back seat.

Heffernan had been bleeding from the nose and there was blood on his clothing.

Constable Traynor said he could find no pulse and there was no reaction from Heffernan when a flashlight was shone in his eyes. At Civic Hospital Heffernan was examined by Miss Ella Reid, night superintendent, and Dr. Hugh Johnson and was pronounced dead.

At hospital Constable Traynor talked with Charles Condon and Frank Moher and both men denied knowing who Heffernan was.

Love-Lorn Swain Annoys Rita With Actions

SEVILLE (Reuters) — Rita Hayworth complained to the U.S. consul here today about the antics of a night club singer who is following her around claiming he is in love with her.

Rita, it seems, will not be wooed, despite everything from a shower of roses from a hired plane to a personal siege of her hotel room.

Love-lorn singer Bob Savage, who claims he chucked a Hollywood contract to come and court Rita here, followed a waiter into what he thought was Rita's room.

ORDERED TO LEAVE

The count scattered a following platoon of photographers and ordered Savage, bunch of carnations and all, to leave — quickly.

"It is a publicity stunt — quite intolerable," he snorted.

The count is an old friend of Rita's and has been squiring her around Seville (her father's birthplace) since she arrived here last week on a vacation.

Savage returned to the lobby where he was confronted by the irate hotel manager who "requested" that he look for another hotel.

Prices Up Slightly In Early Trading

TORONTO (CP) — Prices improved slightly in early afternoon stock market trading today and trading turned more active.

Volume for the first three hours totalled 1,028,000 shares.

Senior golds gained strength as Giant and Lakeshore added pennies and junior producers also held firm. New Dickenson gained 15 cents in the first three hours. Prospects lost strength although Gunnar added pennies in active trading.

In the base metals list, United Asbestos and Ankeno traded actively for small losses while Bellekeno gained pennies. Higher-priced base metals gained strength after a weak morning but most other issues slipped. Labrador, United Keno and Normetal slipped.

Constructions provided a firm spot in a weak industrials list as papers, steels and miscellaneous issues led the decline.

Western oils showed a majority of gains as Canadian Atlantic, Federated, General and New Superior gained. Britalta slipped.

Want Stiffer Penalty For Cattle Thieves

ST. THOMAS (CP) — Members of the Elgin Cattle Protective Association at their executive meeting last night expressed the view that penalties imposed on convicted cattle thieves should be stiffened.

A recent case of rustling in Elgin was cited. Cattle worth about $1,000 stolen from a Byham farm were recovered through good detective work on the part of the Provincial Police at a Kitchener sales outlet. The convicted rustler was given a year.

Stewart Brown of Shedden, association president, is getting information for the association about the maximum penalties that can be imposed in cattle rustling cases.

Board Will Give Freight Rate Ruling

OTTAWA (CP) — The board of transport commissioners will hand down decision at 10.30 a.m. EST Friday on two railway applications for higher freight rates, it was announced today.

The applications are for an eight-per-cent general increase and for boosts of varying amounts on grain and grain products moving within the west to Canadian markets.

The two proposals would call for adding about $43,000,000 a year to the national freight bill.

U.S. Dollar At Discount

MONTREAL (CP) — The American dollar was at a discount of 3 17-32 per cent in terms of Canadian funds, the Bank of Canada reported at noon today. Wednesday's noon rate was 96 7-32 cents. The pound sterling was $2.70⅛, against $2.69⅜ Wednesday.

Hugh Stewart To Live In City

Prior to leaving by plane Wednesday for the west, Hugh Stewart told The Examiner he had no intention of staying there and looking around for a place to live.

"If an impression has got about that I was selling Hilltop Farm and moving to the west, I hope The Examiner will correct it, because it isn't in my mind," Mr. Stewart said.

"I have had a very attractive offer for the property, but I regard Peterborough as my home, and my family feel the same way as I do. I feel that I have made friends here, and that would be something I'd greatly miss out of my life. We all know the west is a great section of Canada, but so is Ontario."

Mr. Stewart has a few brood mares at Hilltop, the remnant of his standardbreds from the dispersal sale of last week.

There are some young colts which he decided to keep, and he is retaining for their grazing the home place and the property on the south side of No. 7 Highway opposite Club Aragon. He said there was no doubt the growth of the city would continue west of the city. Without any effort he has already sold several residential lots, and encroachment of the city would probably take others, eventually the whole farm. However, Mr. Stewart said, that was in the future.

Receives Murder Warning By Mail

By RONALD BATCHELOR

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters) — A circular letter in my morning mail informed me today that I will be killed in retaliation for the British campaign against the anti-white Mau Mau terrorist organization.

The letter, enclosed in a plain white envelope, was addressed to "The murdering whites," among whom I am apparently listed by the senders. Other white residents of this British colony received the same circular.

Headed "Africa speaks," the letter was posted in Nairobi yesterday. It said in part:

"The brutality and suppression, the show of force and the rule of gun, will not stop us from our goal.

"We . . . will continue to fight you and achieve our freedom.

"We are 6,000,000 and power is in our numbers. We shall retaliate in the method you have employed. We shall not forget the bad treatment we are suffering.

"When our time comes we shall not show mercy because you don't know what mercy is.

"We will kill and like you are murdering us today."

The only comment from Reuters' head office in London was: "Like all Reuters correspondents he (Batchelor) will carry on."

Paul O'Brien Wins Oratorical Contest

The annual oratorical contest, sponsored by the Women's Institute was held in the public school on Tuesday evening with four contestants taking part. They were Anne Junkin, who spoke on "Fairies"; Dianne Hudson, "Why I think every child should have a pet"; Paul O'Brien, "Lakefield's Chamber of Commerce" and Carole Whitney, "Santa Claus."

In giving the decision of the judges, J. E. Stephens, principal of the Lakefield District High School, congratulated all the contestants and awarded the prize to Paul O'Brien. Mr. Stephens was assisted in judging by Miss Helen Spanis, a member of the high school staff.

Mrs. Howard Bullock, president of the Lakefield Women's Institute, was chairman and while the judges were making their decision, community singing was led by Mrs. S. C. Chatten, with Mrs. T. Payton at the piano.

Mrs. Chatten, on behalf of the Institute presented Paul O'Brien with a pen and pencil set and also presented gifts to the other contestants.

Folevet Roundhouse Destroyed By Fire

FOLEYET (CP) — Fire yesterday destroyed the Canadian National Railways' six-stall frame roundhouse here in less than 45 minutes.

Officials at this terminal point about 140 miles northwest of Sudbury said no one was injured. Equipment destroyed included a generating unit, stationary boiler and air compressors.

Mrs. William Barry

The funeral for Mrs. William Barry, the former Esther Gosling, 644 Chamberlain St., who died Monday was held Wednesday from the Comstock funeral home.

The Rev. M. P. Poole and Archdeacon C. W. Balfour of All Saints' Anglican Church conducted the service.

Pallbearers were Richard Williams, Edmund Border, Walter Gosling, Frank Leether, Gordon Sabin, Frank Hully. Burial was in Little Lake cemetery.

REUNION IN A CEMETERY—A Washington-type party marked dedication of National Memorial Park Cemetery, where founder Robert Marlowe (right foreground) greeted soprano Helga Gorlin and sculptor Carl Milles, who executed the figleaf-less "fountain of faith" in the background. Later there were cocktails.

Cocktail Party Launches Jazzy New U.S. Cemetery

By DOUGLAS LARSEN

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — A final resting place which claims some of the most unusual features of any burial place in the country has just been dedicated here.

Not one single detail was overlooked in making the cemetery's dedication a 100 per cent. Washington-type promotion. "Focal point and piece de resistance," as owner Robert Marlowe puts it, is a huge new fountain surrounded by 38 bronze nude statues.

For weeks here interest in the dedication was whipped to fever pitch over the question of whether fig leaves should appended to the nudes. But in a burst of artistic freedom, the noted Swedish-American sculptor Carl Milles, their creator, laid down the law that his statues shall stay nude all the way.

MANY PATRONS

No less impressive than the fig leaf debate was the list of honorary patrons and patronesses Marlowe mustered for the large engraved invitations. On it were ambassadors, senators, governors, socialites, millionaires, Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt, Gen. and Mrs. Bradley, Frank Lloyd Wright, Pearl S. Buck and Mrs. Adelyn Breeskin, wife of the bandleader at the Shoreham Hotel.

Marlowe explains that the genius of Milles is what really attracted so much interest in his project by so many distinguished personages. Everyone agrees it was a unique party, even for Washington.

There were speeches, of course. And the famed National Symphony Orchestra did its part. Then, in best Washington tradition, there was a huge cocktail party at the cemetery to top it all off.

The affair raises an interesting point of etiquette. Must you wear black to a cocktail party dedicating a cemetery?

There were dissenting opinions, but a young matron stated her opinion firmly, ahead of time:

"If they are not going to put fig leaves on the nudes, I see no reason why I should wear black. I'll compromise with my grey suit and mink cape."

Marlowe explains that his cemetery has been doing business at its present 175-acre site ever since 1934. But the new fountain, which he says cost $125,000, marks the completion.

The absence of tombstones, he says, makes it seem less like a cemetery for visitors. He says that many people just come out and bring their lunch to enjoy the beauty of the park.

That's what sculptor Milles seemed to have in mind with his statues, too. He says they represent the joy of reunion after death.

Canon Named To Lead Diocesan Mission

Canon Bryan Green, 51-year-old rector of Birmingham Cathedral, was commissioned Tuesday night to lead the Anglican Church's 10-day Toronto diocesan mission.

One of his first services of witness will be held here tonight at the Brock Street Arena at 8 p.m. under the auspices of the Archdeaconry of Peterborough.

Among his other appearances are meetings scheduled in Barrie, Toronto, Orillia, Lindsay, and Port Hope. In addition, he will give radio broadcasts and preach each evening from October 26 to November 4 in Toronto.

Dies From Shock Fleeing House Fire

KINGSTON (CP) — Mrs. Frederic Staley, about 82, died early today when her farm home on nearby Wolfe Island caught fire. She is believed to have died from shock while trying to flee.

Five other persons related to her were uninjured.

Within an hour the fire destroyed the frame house, a drive shed, a pig pen and a large barn and granary. No animals were lost.

Cause of the fire was unknown.

KEGS WORTH $800,000

A total of 1,680,874 nail kegs worth $801,000 were manufactured by Canada's cooperage industry in 1950.

Site For A-Bomb Explosion Is Coral-Necklaced Lagoon

WASHINGTON— Long centuries separate atomic thunder at Eniwetok from the quiet coming of the first people across the western unknown, however, they are much alike, the National Geographic Society observes. Atomic scientists, travelling to a far-of atoll this fall to unleash "an explosive greater than has ever been set off before," challenge nature no more than did the scantily clad seafarers who first took frail canoes on incredible voyages through the same lonely ocean.

The Pacific proving ground of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission at Eniwetok lies at the northwest corner of the Marshall Islands, part of the wide-scattered chain of coral islet known collectively as Micronesia.

Strung like a huge necklace of ccral around a blue-green lagoon, Eniwetok consists of some 30 narrow strips rising no more than 16 feet above the long Pacific swells. Like most of the other islets of Micronesia, their soil is too sandy and too often washed by salt spray for cultivation.

In a time farther back than the myths and legends of the Polynesian people extend, the first men and women to reach the mid-Pacific peopled such islands in one of the most heroic migrations in history.

Voyages of thousands of miles were made by navigators following only the stars and the rising sun. In craft carved from tree trunks, they left overcrowded lands behind them to venture where no one had ever gone before.

The Polynesian civilization spread over a tremendous triangle of ocean between Hawaii at the north, New Zealand at the south[illegible] been firmly established by such voyages hundreds, perhaps thousands of years before Columbus set sail westward across the Atlantic.

When the earliest voyagers first reached the coral Marshalls from the volcanic Caroline Islands just to the west, they had to make a tremendous adjustment. They no longer found basaltic stone for their tools. The soil would not support the food plants they brought — the breadfruit, banana and plantain. Only the cocoanut survived.

They became fisherfolk, and subsisted on cocoanut and the native pandanus fruit for their vegetable food. Over long generations, they continued to push eastward.

Behind them, other peoples came into Micronecia, sailing by charts made of leaf strips arranged on rectangular rames. Eventually, European explorers broke into the Pacific, and traders and missionaries followed.

Yet the impact of western man left little more change than the howling Pacifiv typhoons that regularly sweep the islands. Pacific warfare battered Eniwetok in 1944, and the first atomic tests were carried out there in the spring of 1948. When the proving ground was established, 138 island natives, who still lived by fishing, raising pigs and chickens, and picking cocoanuts, had to be moved to a new island home 150 miles away.

YM Membership Tops 1,000

About 85 per cent of the adult department members of the Y.M.C.A. renewed their membership during the recent drive while others were contacted as new members to bring the enrolment to slightly more than 1,000, Charles Forsyth, general secretary, said today.

Mr. Forsyth added that as in previous years, the remaining 15 per cent will likely renew their membership during the next month when the weather becomes more wintry. The 1,000 membership is better than last year's enrolment at this time. Later the department membership climbed to 1,180 in January.

In the team and individual competition, held annually during the membership drive, Bill Edger's team completed their calls first while Dave Fanning's team won the new members prize with a total of 31 and Jack Prest the high individual with 22.

The boys' department enrolment so far this year is about the 300-mark, only down about 30 on last year's attendance. Again the weather is the deciding factor—as soon as winter comes, the boys are expected to join faster.

The adult department Friday night has planned its first fun night for this season. Starting at 8:30 p.m. with bowling the members with wives and girl friends will play most of the activities offered such as darts, cards, chess, billiards, ping-pong, a gym period followed by a splash party and dancing, both round and square. The evening will close with refreshments.

Army Issues Casualty List

OTTAWA (CP) — The army today issued the 146th casualty list of the Korean war, reporting two men killed in action, two missing in action, believed killed, and six wounded in action. The last previous list was issued yesterday.

The list was the fifth issued by the army within the last week, reflecting the heavier fighting which has been going on in the Korean War. The five lists issued since Oct. 16 have reported eight dead, 43 wounded, and six missing.

One of the men listed in today's report as missing in action, believed killed, was previously wounded.

This brought to 1,128 the total number of casualties so far suffered by Canadian troops in Korean action, including 205 dead, 833 wounded, 75 injured, 14 missing and one prisoner of war.

The navy has reported three dead and three injured in action.

Killed in action:

Missing in action (believed killed):

Hastings, Donald Perkins, Cpl.; North Vancouver; P.P.C.L.I.

Johnstone, William Edward, L.Cpl., (second casualty), Westville, N.S.; P.P.C.L.I.

Wounded in action included:

Exhibition Board

LIVESTOCK EXHIBITS

Mr. Paterson said the livestock show provided evidence of the Exhibition's merit, "and the poultry men deserve a lot of credit for their department. They had even labelled the pens of fancy poultry so that the public easily identified the birds in their cages."

Manson Cathcart said, regarding the midway, "We signed the same contract with them as last year. We took it for granted that we would get the same rides. Their manager who was here on the Saturday of the show said we had taken too long in deciding on our dates. Any way, they split the show, and took the larger part to Welland, a smaller fair than ours."

The directors promptly settled [illegible] cart, that carried unanimously.

The question of 'programming' is apparently going to get a lot of attention from here on. Clarence Bacon said "I'm going to stick my neck right out. I think we should have the horses races in the afternoons and none at night, and put on a good grandstand show at night, winding it up not later than 10 o'clock.

RACE MEET

Don Milburn suggested a two-day race meet earlier in the summer for the horsemen, afternoon or night, with the Exhibition races in the afternoon, and vaudeville at night.

That business will get later consideration. Mr. Gillespie reported that a complete financial statement would not be available until the accounts were audited.

Feature Peterborough In Police News

A special supplement on Peterborough is being planned by the Police News for its next issue.

The magazine is published by the Ontario Police Association quarterly. Editor-manager Jack Walker, of Toronto, was in the city Tuesday gathering material and pictures on the police department for the issue which will be appearing early in December.

There will also be a feature on the work of Constable Don Mackay in organizing school safety patrols.

The school judged to be the most efficient will be awarded the Miller Safety Trophy, donated recently by Alderman T. D. Miller, but Constable Mackay said the merit award certificates will be presented to other schools which have a good record. A seal will be added to the merit award each year the school qualifies.

Shooting Victim Buried Saturday

Mrs. Helen Colmer, 42, 554 Bolivar St., who died Wednesday a few hours after she had received a bullet wound in the head, will be buried Saturday in Little Lake cemetery.

She was found by her husband, Clifford Colmer in the basement of their home. City police said there was no evidence of foul play.

Mrs. Colmer was born in North Monaghan township, Helen M. Lillico, the daughter of Cora Gilgour and the late R. Torrence Lillico. She lived all her life in Peterborough and was a member of Trinity United Church.

Besides her husband and mother surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Mary Petrie, Mrs. Kathleen Gibson, Mrs. Leonard Mahood, all of Peterborough; Miss Jessie Lillico of Walkerton, and brothers, Richard and Norman of Peterborough.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Comstock funeral home Saturday at 1:30 p.m. by the Rev. B. S. Morwood, Mark St. United Church. Burial will be in Little Lake cemetery.

VON Nurses Take On 54 New Patients

The Peterborough Branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses admitted 54 new patients and made 397 visits during September.

Miss Harriet McGeary, nurse-in-charge, reported at the meeting of the board of directors Wednesday that the September 1951 tctals were 59 new patients and 478 visits.

The total number of visits for the first nine months this year is 953 less than in 1951 and the number of patients admitted is 105 less than in the same period last year.

Miss McGeary explained that in the first nine months of 1951 there was a daily average of 3.27 nurses on duty, while to date in 1952 the daily average has been 2.75.

Hunter Missing Feared Drowned

His companion, Harold Hill, 37, of Blenheim is in hospital suffering extreme shock and exposure after being found unconscious early today on the beach near this village about 10 miles southeast of Chatham.

Hill told police that rough weather swamped the boat in which he and Bowden were coming back to shore last night. When the boat sank he grabbed a plank and hung to it while Bowden swam for shore.

CAMP COMMUNITY—Camp Borden, 72 miles north of Toronto, is the centre of the Canadian Army's training setup. It also is a self-contained community, costing $1,000,000 a year to run. It has eight schools, its own telephone system as well as ranges for training, an airfield and six schools for training officers, non-commissioned officers and tradesmen. Tank and other training is carried out on the sandy Salisbury Plain. ➠

Camp Borden Site Of Army Training

Camp Borden is the centre of the Canadian army's training set-up but it is more than that. It is a self-contained community which costs $1,000,000 a year to run. This story, one of a series, describes the expansion going on there as Canada bolsters her defences.

By DOUGLAS HOW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

If there is a heart of Canada's army, Camp Borden is it.

Some call it the army's university because six separate schools train officers, non-commissioned officers and tradesmen for as many corps or arms of the service. A seventh will soon be moving in.

But Borden goes beyond the army itself. It is typical of the expanding post-war armed forces in that it is more than a camp for soldiers.

THE EIGHTH SCHOOL

Borden's eighth school may be the most important of the lot. It is a handsome new brick school just finished and already overloaded by a battalion of 750 children.

They are the children of Borden's permanent staff, the colonels, majors and sergeants who run the army camp itself. In school, they are just children without rank.

They go home to nearby houses built by the government and with rents graded by service and rank.

Borden is 50 miles north and a bit west of Toronto, and 20 miles from Collingwood which is on Georgian Bay. The camp is self-contained. It has grocery stores, a post office, school, hospital, swimming pools, theatre, playing fields —even a makeshift zoo one officer brought along as a hobby. The camp operates its own telephone system.

It is a common sight to see a mother and her son walking down a paved street with a tank on one side and a squad of parading soldiers on the other.

A BIG JOB

Col. Robert Clark, D.S.O., the camp commandant, estimates with a grin that he spends less than one-tenth of his time on soldiering or military duties. The rest goes into running this combination of camp and community. It's a big job just running the camp. It costs $1,000,000 a year to maintain Borden and there is $4,000,000 worth of new construction going on.

The colonel bosses the web of schools which turn out leaders for various arms — infantry, armor, Service Corps, Medical Corps, Provost and, the new one, Intelligence. In addition there is a school for officer candidates — a relatively new supplement to the full-time services colleges such as R.M.C. and the officer training at civilian universities.

Borden has been one of the army's key bases since 1916. In the Second World War it became the biggest, with a maximum of 33,000 men in training at one time.

Today its 7,000 soldiers and civilians work and live in a Borden considerably different from the old Borden of endless, drifting, flying sand. In the last eight years, civilian Debnes Somerville has worked big changes. One million trees have been planted in its 25,000 acres. Fields of mixed grass and grain have sprung up through the sand.

Sand no longer rules Borden. It has reached the point where the soldiers are telling Mr. Somerville to keep his hands off the sand in one section of camp, the so-called Salisbury Plain. They want sand for tank and other training.

UNIQUE CONCENTRATION

No other Canadian army camp matches Borden's concentration of service schools.

In a year, thousands of men pass through the camp—young men up for commissions, senior officers brushing up on things they used to know, officers seeking promotion, soldiers picked as N.C.O. material and soldiers learning to be cooks, drivers or taking other trades.

The infantry school alone trains roughly 4,000 leaders a year, runs up to 14 different courses including a school to teach officers and N.C.O.s of all arms how to teach others. It trains men in British and American-type weapons because the army uses both. It teaches tactics, weapons, physical training and the other things which make a rounded infantryman.

The officer candidate school is one of the most unusual and toughest of all army schools, a 44-week assessment of a man from [illegible] school graduates, men recommended by Reserve units, some university students—fail to pass the rigorous emotional, physical and mental tests.

ARMY'S UNIVERSITY—Camp Borden has been called the army's university because six separate schools train officers, non-commissioned officers and tradesmen. But the big camp, 72 miles north of Toronto, also is a self-contained community which costs $1,000,000 a year to run. Founded in 1916, Camp Borden in the Second World War became the biggest army camp in Canada, training up to 33,000 soldiers at a time.

Debaters Reject Idea Of Sport Withdrawal

HAWKESBURY (CP) — Seventy-five striking employees of the St. Lawrence Textiles Company here have been told they will no longer be considered employees unless they return to work today, it was learned last night.

Notices to that effect were sent yesterday to the strikers, mostly women and girls.

Union officials said last night at a meeting of strikers that picketing of the plant will continue.

Scotland Yard Guards St. Catharines Woman

LONDON (CP)—Scotland Yard said yesterday Mrs. Sheila Manley, 29, formerly of St. Catharines, Ont., is under police guard at her home here after receiving a murder threat in a letter.

The letter, Scotland Yard said, apparently came from Montreal.

CAMP COMMANDER — Col. R. C. Clark is commanding officer of the big army training base at Camp Borden. A native of South Africa he was born in 1903 and educated at Royal Military College, Kingston. Officer commanding the Irish Regiment overseas in the Second World War from 1942 to 1945, he was appointed Camp Borden C.O. in 1950.

CONDON GETS 5 YEARS IN PENITENTIARY

Board Dismisses Rail Application For Freight Boost

OTTAWA (CP)—The Board of Transport Commissioners today dismissed a railway application for a general increase of eight per cent in freight rates. At the same time, it granted partially an application for increasing some rates on grain in Western Canada, scaling down the railways' proposed increases sharply. The two sets of increases would have grossed the railways about $43,000,000 a year, but today's decision cut that down to perhaps no more than $2,000,00.

Decision on the eight-per-cent case marked the first time the board has thrown out completely a railway application for a general rate increase since the start of the post-war series of rate cases six years ago.

UNANIMOUS JUDGMENT

In handing down the unanimous judgment of the five-man board, Chief Commissioner J.D. Kearney said that conditions have not changed enough since the last rate increase in January to require another general increase at this time.

He said the board came to the conclusion that "the prevailing level of freight rates is neither unjust nor unreasonable."

The grain increases apply to the movement of that product within western Canada on the way to Canadian markets. They do not touch the heavy traffic in export grain, covered by low statutory rates.

The railways had asked for increases ranging from two to 55 cents in individual rates. The board ruled the increases should range from one to 13 per cent.

The railway proposals, aimed at bringing the western rates up to Ontario-Quebec levels on the domestic grain movement, would have lifted the western scale an average 57 per cent, grossing them about $3,000,000 a year in new revenue. There was no official estimate on the effect of the board-ordered rates.

One feature of the grain decision was the board's refusal to eliminate now, as asked by the railways, a "hold-down" tying many of the domestic grain rates to the low export rates.

The board said it would review that aspect later in its general rate-equalization study.

Municipalities Won't Get Large Grants

Frost Tells Legislature Such Plan Would Raise Taxes

TORONTO (CP)— Ontario municipalities can expect no large grants from the provincial government in the near future. Premier Frost told the Ontario legislature yesterday that any "substantial" grants would involve increasing taxes, "and I have no intention of so doing."

In the budget-speech debate preceding prorogation of a four-day special session, the premier replied to opposition demands for more aid to municipalities.

The decision against further large grants, he said, "does not mean that we do not contemplate a continuation of our policy of assisting the municipalities at every turn, but it will be done as and when we can do it." The government did not have enough money for "big handouts."

Farquhar Oliver, Liberal house leader, criticized the decision.

"You have slammed the door and thrown away the key," he said. "You've turned your back on the needs of municipalities."

SESSION PROROGUED

The legislature, called into special session to deal with three government measures, gave final reading to the bills shortly before Lieutenant-Governor Louis Breithaupt prorogued the session. It also voted a $20,000,000 supplementary estimate for highway construction announced earlier this year.

One measure ratified the five-year tax agreement between Ontario and the federal government, in which the province will turn over its personal income and corporation tax fields in return for annual payments which in the 1952-53 fiscal year will amount to $117,000,000.

The other bills set out compensation procedure for owners of property to be flooded by the St. Lawrence power development, and returned to legislature members the right to deal with specific highway expenditures.

Hon. G.H. Challies, vice-chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, said a planning board will probably be set up to supervise rehabilitation of the whole St. Lawrence area to be directly affected by the power project.

UNITED NATIONS DAY warrants the display of the official flag adopted by their General Assembly five years ago this month. The design is a map of the globe surrounded by laurel leaves, in white, on a bright blue background and the U.N. Constitution says that "it shall not be subordinated to any other flag." The flag is shown being raised early today on the flagstaff of the City Hall. —(Examiner Staff Photo)

Pronounced Guilty After Jurymen Deliberate 1 Hour

Leonard Condon, a rangy, 22-year-old boatbuilder's helper from Doure township, was today sentenced to five years in the penitentiary for beating Michael Frank Heffernan to death last Sept. 1. A Peterborough county jury Thursday night took only an hour to decide he was guilty on a charge of manslaughter. He was sentenced at 10.20 a.m. today by Justice Walter F. Schroeder who agreed with the jury's verdict. "I feel you have arrived at the only possible verdict that could have been reached in this case," said Justice Schroeder.

Heffernan died from concussion of the brain after being beaten up by Condon in a parking lot behind the McGillis Hotel. Both men had been drinking, though none of the witnesses thought they were drunk.

Heffernan was a 190-pound laborer who worked in the structural steel department of the C.G.E. He was 37 years old and leaves a widow and two daughters of school age.

Condon, a rangy youth weighing 160 pounds, stood rigidly at attention as Justice Schroeder castigated him for his part in the brawl. He appeared in court with a closely-clipped crew cut, and he wore a dark suit coat, white shirt, a mustard colored tie and light pants.

APPEARED TENSE

He was tense but gave no other sign of emotion. When asked if he had anything to say, he answered "no sir" in a firm voice.

"You have been convicted of a serious offence—the maximum is life imprisonment," said Justice Schroeder. He described Condon's actions in kicking at Heffernan as the latter lay helpless on the ground as a "savage and brutal attack."

Justice Schroeder said he realized that both men were under the influence of alcohol and there may have been some provocation on the part of Heffernan but these factors did not excuse Condon.

"Too many people think that if they allow their brains to be fired by alcohol they can go out and commit any offence they choose, and then plead drunkenness as an excuse. This must not be countenanced.

DEBATED SENTENCE

"But for your previous record, your youth, the small opportunity you have had in life and the degree of provocation . . . I would have been inclined to impose a very much more severe sentence. . . . I cannot forget that because

U.N. Told Work Not Words Can Bring Peace

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Assembly President L.B. Pearson told the United Nations today that to bring peace it must use good work, not words.

Canada's external affairs minister was speaking at a special assembly meeting commemorating the seventh anniversary of the coming into force of the U.N. charter and honoring those who have died fighting for the U.N. in Korea and elsewhere.

Russia and the Soviet Ukraine boycotted the entire meeting while Czechoslovakia, Poland and Byelrussia entered the assembly hall after delegations had stood for a minute of silence in honor of the U.N. dead.

PEACE PARAMOUNT THOUGHT

Pearson said the major thought in the minds of peoples of the world on U.N. Day is world peace and what the U.N. can do to bring peace.

The heavy responsibility of delegates at this seventh assembly session is realized when delegates think of the problems facing them, he added.

He said there is no easy way out of the difficulties but that delegates have the duty to use the U.N. Assembly wisely to help solve the perplexing problems facing the world.

Cite Negligence In Don Jail Breaks

TORONTO (CP) — Guards at the Don jail went on strike about five years ago because it was recommended that armchairs used on jail duty be removed, T.M. Gourlay, chief inspector of prisons, said yesterday.

Giving evidence before the Royal Commission inquiring into jail conditions, Mr. Gourlay said that after an inspection in April, 1950, it was found that the chairs were being used by the guards again. Two or three months ago, however, the armchairs were replaced by high stools.

Asked by crown counsel George Walsh if he thought the armchairs facilitated sleep, Mr. Gourlay replied: "Yes, definitely. All our inspectors criticized use of the armchairs. On several occasions they were the reason for trouble in that jail. . .One time a prisoner tore the frame work off a door and nobody heard it. Yet the guard was supposed to be watching from the chair at the end of the corridor."

DIDN'T WANT TO STAND

He added that the chairs were still in use at the time of the first escape of the Boyd gang in November, 1951. When he ordered the chairs removed five years ago, a whole shift of guards refused to go on duty because they didn't want to stand.

"I recommend that a high stool be used instead of an armchair. If a man sat on the high stool and fell asleep, he would fall off. After the strike the armchairs were put back."

There were supposed to be hourly inspections of the more dangerous prisoners, he said, but these were not carried out. Cell doors which were supposed to be kept closed during the day were left open. This allowed the prisoners to rude in their cells and make the ropes of sheets which got them into the exercise yard and then into the street in the first escape. He called the first escape of the Boyd gang "extremely clever."

Endorse Plan To Sell Steel Industry Back

LONDON (Reuters) — The House of Commons yesterday endorsed government plans to sell the steel industry back to private enterprise, urged on by Supply Minister Duncan Sandys' plea that it disregard Socialist threats to re-nationalize.

The vote was 303-269. It merely voiced approval of the government plan which, in due course, is to be presented in a formal bill.

Labor has said that if it is returned to power, it will renationalize the industry. A similar tug-of-war is looming in the transport industry, which Prime Minister Churchill proposes to denationalize.

Sick Constable Helps Catch Two Thieves

VANCOUVER (CP) — Helpless and fuming, Constable Johnny Nash watched from the window by his hospital bed yesterday while two men broke into a car parked outside and looted it.

As the pair completed their job and made a leisurely getaway had her fetch a telephone.

Memorial Fund Now £455,000

LONDON (Reuters — Donations received by the lord mayor of London for the late King's national memorial fund today reached a total of £455,000.

Among donations received was one from a "new Canadian," Branislav Sposojevick of Tilbury, Ont., who sent $10.88.

Apologizing "for the smallness of my donation," Sposojevick said: "I am a new Canadian, but believe me my love is very sincere

Cole of Woodstock, Ont., who wrote: "Among many others, I saw the King when he visited this city in 1939, and I have never forgotten him."

Drive US Troops From Peak Toehold

SEOUL (AP)—Chinese Communist troops today drove U.S. troops from their foothold on Pike's Peak and launched a determined assault on nearby Sniper Ridge in central Korea. U.S. troops stormed to within 35 yards of the crest of Pike's Peak, the only height the Reds still hold on Triangle Hill, before they were turned back by furious mortar, artillery and small arms fire. Then, early today, from 300 to 350 Chinese Reds struck behind heavy artillery and mortar fire at South Koreans atop Pinpoint Hill, the highest position on Sniper Ridge.

BUILD UP ATTACK

AP correspondent John Randolph reported from the front that the Reds had steadily built up their attack on Pinpoint but so far were unable to penetrate the Korean lines.

The South Koreans yesterday had given up trying to clear Chinese from a maze of underground passageways on the northern tip of Sniper Ridge.

Twenty miles to the west, South Koreans and Chinese hugged opposite slopes of Iron Horse Mountain, while thunderous artillery is following despatches by Bill Boss, Canadian Press correspondent, telling of a new attack by the Chinese on the sector long held by the Commonwealth Division of which the 25th Brigade forms part.

Then the Chinese swarmed over the top and pushed the South Koreans farther down the southern slope.

TUNNEL WARFARE

On Sniper, South Korean 2nd Division infantrymen went after the holed-up Reds with grenades, bayonets and small bundles of explosives. The Chinese fought back from a network of caves and tunnels in a desperate gamble to retain their last hold on Sniper's northern tip.

Thinks Reds Anxious To Tie Troops Down

OTTAWA (CP) — Brig. John M. Rockingham came up today with the opinion that the Red Chinese are making sure they keep a maximum number of United Nations troops tied up on the Korean front.

The man who trained and commanded Canada's original 25th Brigade in Korea said in an interview he doesn't think the repeated fairly heavy thrusts by the Communists —apparently including a new one in the Canadian sector—signify the start of a full-scale offensive.

Now director-general of military training at army headquarters, he interpreted the rash of Chinese attacks as a series of probes in regimental strength — roughly 1,000 men — designed "to keep us on our toes. . .to make sure we aren't

Has No Papers Stuck On Boat

MONTREAL (CP) —Miguel Herrera Alonzo, 21-year-old Spanish stowaway, must set out again tomorrow for his seventh month at sea with nowhere to go.

Alonzo, who arrived earlier this week on the German freighter Adolf Leonhardt, has no papers to prove his nationality. His latest voyage started last July when he swam out to the Leonhardt in Spanish Moroccan waters.

Alonzo learned today that his appeal for entry into Canada has been rejected by immigration authorities, despite representations by Montreal citizens on his behalf. He has been in immigration detention headquarters and will be taken aboard the Leonhardt tomorrow under guard.

"We feel sorry for the fellow," said one of the ship's officers. "He must always remain in custody, never able to go ashore without an escort or in custody. He's a good man and an able worker but nobody seems to want him."

As far as he knows, Alonzo will still be aboard the Leonhardt when the freighter returns to Montreal late in November.

Labor Party Retains Seat In By-Election

LONDON (Reuters) — The Labor party today retained its parliamentary seat in a by-election at Cleveland, Yorkshire, with a decreased majority.

Result of yesterday's voting, announced today, was:

Arthur Montague Frank Palmer (Labor) 25,985.

The Labor majority was 3,921, compared with their lead of 5,481 in the 1951 general election.

Question 80 In Chief's Death

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters) — Police and troops, combing 670 square miles of territory, today had rounded up 80 Africans for questioning in the Mau Mau murder of tribal Chief Nderi Wednesday night.

About 50 suspected of having some part in hacking the 70-year-old chief to death were brought in during a 16-hour sweep by troops of the King's African Rifles.

A government spokesman said the situation in Kikuyu tribal reserves "remains tense." Whole African families continue to disappear and most young men seem to have gone underground, he said. Those remaining are "unapproachable and unco-operative."

Police spotter planes now are keeping constant daylight patrols over all reserves of the 1,000,000-strong Kikuyu tribe, from which the secret sect gets its main support.

3 Kidnappers Get 19th Victim

SPARTA, Tenn. (AP) — A trio of wild highway kidnappers left their 19th victim locked in the trunk of a stolen car in a remote gulch last night and took a 20th with them in a stolen car.

Police said Lee Johnson was rescued by passing hunters after spending about five hours in the trunk of the car.

Two Canadians were victims of ways from Florida to Tennessee.

Miss Ethel Clark and her 84-year-old mother, both of Toronto, were kidnapped and robbed along with two other tourists in Valdosta, Ga., Tuesday night. The four were driven to an unused road, bound and left. A passing farmer freed them within a short time.

An intensive ground-air search was under way.

Actress Susan Peters Dies From Injuries

VISALIA, Calif. (AP) — Actress Susan Peters, lost her battle against paralysis last night.

Two years later she came back to star in a movie once again—this time as the crippled girl in "Sign of the Ram."

Her death was attributed to complications arising from the 1945 accident.

Think Britain Has Overtaken United States In Atom Race

LONDON (AP) — London newspapers speculated today that Britain has overtaken the United States in the race to produce a "perfect" atomic weapon.

Scientific writers crowed over the assumption that Britain has found the secret of compressing the power of an ordinary sized A-bomb — generally regarded as unwieldy — into a charge small enough to be fired from an 11-inch gun or carried easily aboard a plane. To back their speculation was air ministry confirmation of a statement, made in Australia yesterday by a high R.A.F. officer, that all future British bombers would be made so they could carry the bomb.

Prime Minister Churchill, giving an elated account yesterday of the first British atomic explosion off Australia earlier this month, was careful not to reveal any details of the weapon.

MOST LETHAL WEAPON

The Daily Mail today describes the British weapon as the "smallest and most lethal weapon ever produced" and said that although it probably was much smaller than any tested by the U.S., it was as destructive as either of the two exploded over Japan during the war.

"Indications are," says the Daily Mail, "that the British weapon is so small it can be used as a bomb, guided missile, shell or even an underseas weapon."

The paper suggests that Britain can build an atomic weapon to weigh no more than a 500-pound bomb. What is more, the Daily Mail adds, it could be carried by almost every British aircraft and could be adapted for delivery by the latest jets now being produced.

The Daily Herald says that British A-bombs went on the production lines as soon as satisfactory reports were received from the Monte Bello test.

Typhoon Toll Climbs Past 600

MANILA (AP) — The storm-lashed Philippines counted at least 443 dead today and listed 209 more as missing in Tuesday's and Wednesday's typhoon.

The casualty toll may soar higher yet when communications are restored and isolated villages report their losses.

The greatest destruction was in southern Luzon. Albay province, a once-thriving port of 80,000, was a virtual ruin. Tabaco, a city of 3,000 20 miles to the north, reported 118 dead.

Meanwhile, the Philippines weather bureau reported a new storm 1,300 miles to the east. The typhoon with winds of more than 80 miles an hour, was not expected to hit these islands if it stayed on its present course.

Widow Files Suit For $50,000 Damages

KINGSTON (CP) — Mrs. Lena Deyo of Kingston, widow of Kenneth Deyo killed in a stock car racing accident at the Kingston Speedway Limited race tracy early this month, today filed suit for $50,000 damages.

The suit, filed against the company directors, named nine persons including the directors, the owners of the land, the drivers and the owners of the car as defendants. Deyo was struck by a guard rail plank after two cars collided and crashed into the rail.

Commonwealth Division Knocks Chinese Off Hill

By BILL BOSS

WEST SECTOR, Korea (CP)—Determined United Nations troops early Friday kicked the Chinese Communists off the spur of Little Gibraltar Hill which the Reds occupied Thursday evening.

(Little Gibraltar, a big hill with steep sides and adjoining rock ridges, is about 15 miles east of the truce site, Panmunjom. For many months it has been identified with the area defended by the 1st Commonwealth Division, of which the 25th Canadian Brigade is part.

(A Reuters dispatch from Tokyo early Friday confirmed that the Little Gibraltar troops in Thursday night's action were from the Commonwealth Division.)

While supporting artillery and mortars kept the area isolated, preventing the enemy from reinforcing his earlier success, U.N. infantry, who knew the position thoroughly, prepared their counter-attack.

It was launched at 1:15 a.m. Success was reported at 3 a.m.

HILL LOST SEVEN HOURS

The Chinese actually occupied the position only for about seven hours. The contested ground had been reduced by artillery to a pulverized mass of shale, and a digging party moved in to improvise positions capable of defending it.

The troops who recaptured the spur only left it 24 hours before, after having endured 20 days of unremitting shelling. They just had time to have a good sleep and a hot dinner when their old position was over-run and they were ordered to retake it—which they did.

The battle was a textbook counter-attack which, press d with determination against an obstinate enemy, went nonetheless as planned.

Enemy strength was estimated at one battalion. There was no estimate of the casualties inflicted on the Reds but they are believed heavy. U.N. casualties were relatively light in view of the scope of the action.

For almost two years Boss has been Canadian Press staff writer assigned to cover the military activities of the Canadian armed forces in the Orient. Apparently censorship made it impossible for him to identify the defending troops by nationality. It may be a week before this ban is lifted.

Strikes Cuban Key

HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — A violent hurricane struck the Cuban coastal key of Cayo del Este off Las Villas province today. The midland coastal region braced for the main blow expected this afternoon.

The Cuban national observatory said the hurricane with winds of between 115 and 125 miles an hour would hit between Cienfuegos and Tunas de Zaza, on the midland's south coast, shortly after noon.

The observatory said Havana, capital city of Cuba with population of almost 1,000,000, no longer was in danger of getting the full brunt of the hurricane. Citizens of Havana had made frantic preparations during the night to meet the blow.

Gets 6 Months Extra For Making Escape

GUELPH (CP) — William Albert See, 23, of Kingston, today was sentenced to six months additional in the Ontario reformatory for escaping from the institution Thanksgiving Day. See was recaptured two hours after his getaway.

A trusty at the reformatory dairy barns, he would have been eligible for parole Nov. 6.

Federal Workers Seeking Five-Day Week

OTTAWA (CP)—A drive for early action on the five-day work week for federal employees is to be launched by the Permanent Committee on Government Employees of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, it was announced today.

The committee, made up of representatives of about 30,000 of the 130,000 federal employees, has been holding meetings here this week.

A T.L.C. announcement said the committee plans to press particularly for action on the five-day week among employees of the Post Office Department, the Unemployment Insurance Commission, the Naval Dockyard at Halifax and the Government Printing Bureau here.

It added that since more than three-quarters of all employees in private industry now enjoy the five-day week in Canada, the committee feels that "any further delay in its implementation in the particular divisions mentioned could no longer be justified by the government."

DISSATISFIED GROUP

The committee expressed dissatisfaction with the government's "prevailing rate" regulations in such brances as the Halifax Dockyard and the Printing Bureau. Under the "prevailing rate" system, tradesmen and others not in the civil service get the going rates and hours in the area where they work.

The committee said this works well in areas where local private employment greatly exceeds government employment. But where the reverse was true the policy broke down and created hardship.

Remand Granted Claude Cowan

LINDSAY (ENS) — Claude Cowan, a Peterborough hog producer, charged under five sections of the Highway Traffic Act and the Liquor Control Act, received another week's adjournment today in police court, when his case came up for trial. Cowan is said to be involved in a hit-and-run accident in Haliburton earlier this year, and is charged under several sections of the Traffic Act, including dangerous and drunken driving and leaving the scene of an accident. He was also charged with having illegal possession of liquor.

Cowan was found, three days after the accident on Highway 35, in the cellar of a store in West Guilford. He has not entered a plea in the charges. He is being represented in the case by Gordon Farquharson, Peterborough, who requested the adjournment because he was busy in Supreme Court. Crown Counsel Lorne Jordan expressed his reluctance in asking Magistrate Gee for the remand.

Man Fined $200 For Dangerous Driving

KITCHENER (CP) — Arthur Wollis, of Mount Forest, today was fined $200 for dangerous driving after an accident July 21 in which Harold Watson of Elmira was killed. He also had his driving licence suspended for a year.

Evidence disclosed Watson was a passenger on a motorcycle driven by Wollis which crashed into the rear of a truck. A charge of manslaughter previously was laid against Wollis but this was reduced to one of dangerous driving.

Need More Ships To Fight Subs

OTTAWA (CP) — Britain's First Sea Lord said yesterday the western powers have devices capable of coping with the latest submarines but a shortage of fighting ships to use them.

Talking freely about the sort of sea war that could be anticipated in any armed conflict with Russia, Admiral Sir Rhoderick McGrigor told a press conference that—if it came—it would undoubtedly be ushered in by intensive submarine and mine-laying operations by the Soviet.

It happens, he added, that the worst naval shortages among the Atlantic Pact powers are in anti-submarine escort vessels and mine sweepers, the types that would be most needed.

Canada has ordered 14 new-type anti-sub escort vessels and as many new minesweepers but production has been delayed. None of them yet is in service.

A reporter asked Sir Rhoderick, here for talks with Canadian defence leaders after a visit to the Far East, whether the west has kept pace with the spectacular schnorkel submarines initiated by the Germans and now in Russian use.

The answer was: "I can fairly say we have made very great progress in anti-submarine developments—in hunting, locating and destroying them."

MUNICIPAL AID DEBATE

The debate on municipal aid was touched off by Albert Wren (Lib.-Lab.-Kenora) and J.B. Salsberg (Lab.-Prog.-Toronto St. Andrew).

Mr. Wren, a Liberal supporter, urged a permanent solution now for allocation of revenues and expenditures between the province and municipalities. He suggested opening up new municipal tax fields.

Mr. Salsberg, the assembly's only Communist member, said the government should give municipal grants based on $5 per capita of municipal population, as requested by Ontario mayors and reeves, and increase education grants "to at least 50 per cent as the government promised."

Mr. Frost said provincial grants had held the increase in municipal budgets to an average of 65 per cent since 1943, while the provincial budget had increased threefold.

In the same period, the municipalities' share in the provincial budget increased from 16 to 41 cents in every dollar.

Municipal councils should "use ernment had done.

Name Campbell As War Claims Commissioner

OTTAWA (CP) — Chief Justice Thane A. Campbell of Prince Edward Island has been appointed chief war claims commissioner to inquire into and report on Second World War claims of Canadians.

In making the announcement today, Prime Minister St. Laurent said Chief Justice Campbell will make recommendations in respect of claims on the war claims fund. The fund was formed from the proceeds of German reparations made available to Canada under the treaty of peace with Japan.

The government already has announced that $1 a day will be paid to survivors of Japanese imprisonment during the last war and to some Canadians who were prisoners of notorious German organizations such as the S.S. and Gestapo. The bulk of the 9,100 Canadians who were prisoners of war in Germany, however, will not receive the award.

The $1 a day "maltreatment award" was recommended by Rt. Hon. J.L. Ilsley, chief justice of Nova Scotia, who served as advisory commissioner on war claims.

Mr. St. Laurent said Chief Justice Campbell will make recommendations on payments out of the war claims fund in accordance with the regulations based on Mr. Ilsley's report.

Chief Justice Campbell will also act in the capacity of advisory commissioner on claims under the treaty of peace with Italy.

Coal Industry May Appeal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The soft-coal industry today was reported framing an appeal to President Truman and Economic Stabilizer Roger Putnam to approve the $1.90 daily wage rise won by John L. Lewis.

The country-wide soft-coal strike now in its fifth day, followed a Wage Stabilization Board ruling last Saturday that only $1.50 of the negotiated increase could be paid on grounds that any more would "demage" the stabilization program.

The report that an appeal is under study came from an official who asked not to be identified.

A substantial portion of industry was described as being just as eager as Lewis to settle on the full wage increase and get production going again.

An air of uneasiness prevailed in some mine areas. Violence flared in Ohio, Virginia, and West Virginia yesterday.

At Zanesville, O., a non-union mine owner was forced from his car at gunpoint and slugged. His mine superintendent was fired on twice, and his equipment set afire after he fled.

Condon Gets

Gordon H. T. Farquharson, defence counsel, asked that the sentence be minimized because of the fact Condon was only 22 years of age, was generally of a quiet disposition and was thought highly of by his foreman at the Peterborough Canoe Co. Moreover the convicted man had no previous criminal record.

"He is not the criminal type," said Mr. Farquharson.

Some 60 spectators were in the courtroom to hear the five-year sentence imposed on Condon.

The fight occurred about 11:15 p.m. on Sept. 1 after the McGillis Hotel beverage room had closed. The two men, seated at the same table drinking beer, had been arguing during the evening after Heffernan had made a slighting reference about one of Condon's cousins.

Heffernan had referred to the cousin as "foolish Joe" and demanded to know why Condon had stuck up for him in an argument a few days before.

men once stood up and faced each other belligerently across the beverage room table but they didn't come to blows. On another occasion a waiter came down and spoke to them—presumably telling them to quieten down.

The fighting did not begin until after the beverage room was closed and the two men got outside.

Two Crown witnesses—Harlen MacMullen of Apsley, and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Margaret MacMillan of Bethune St.—said they saw a man pummelling and kicking a second man who was lying in the parking lot. Mrs. MacMillan was sure of the assailant's identity. She said it was Condon who was doing the punching and kicking.

CLASHED TWICE

According to both Crown and defence witnesses the two men clashed twice.

The first time they grappled with each other and fell to the ground with Heffernan on his back and Condon on top. Condon was seen to punch Heffernan in the face.

Leahy told the younger man to stop fighting and go on home. Condon seemed agreeable and said "O.K." Maloney gave the same advice to Heffernan.

The two peacemakers had only advanced a few steps toward their car parked on King St. when they turned around and saw Condon strike Heffernan on the face. They told the court that Heffernan went down and stayed down.

(Here witnesses' testimony conflicted. Mrs. MacMillen and Mr. MacMullen said that Condon kicked and punched Heffernan about the face and shoulders and the injured man was unable to protect himself. Leahy and Maloney said that Condon's one punch, knocking his adversary down, was the end of the fight.)

Leahy went back to Condon and gave him a shove that knocked Condon over.

"You may have hurt him (i.e. Heffernan) that time and you'd better look after him," Leahy said.

CALLED ON DOCTORS

Leonard Condon and his drinking companions agreed and drove around the city calling on several doctors but without success. They said they were afraid to take the injured man home to his wife.

George St. and called police.

Heffernan was dead on admittance to Civic Hospital—about an hour after the fight ended.

At first Condon and his companions told police that they didn't know who Heffernan was.

Questioned at the police station as a material witness, by Det. Sgt. W. A. (Bud) Clarke, Condon said they found Heffernan lying on the ground in the parking lot and they took him in the car to try and find a doctor.

SAYS HEFFERNAN STARTED IT

Condon said that it was Heffernan who started the fight. He claimed that he was dared to come outside several times as they sat at a beverage room table. But he didn't go.

After the beverage room closed he said he went outside with Charles Condon, 22, a distant cousin, and as he was lighting a cigarette Heffernan hit him on the left ear.

"He had been wanting to fight me all night," said Condon.

He agreed with witnesses' evidence that they were separated by Leahy and Maloney. But he said that Heffernan then attacked him for the second time "with his fists going."

Condon said Heffernan struck him once on the head. After warding off a couple more blows he threw two punches and Heffernan went down.

"I didn't kick Heffernan," Condon said. And he also claimed that he didn't remember pummelling Heffernan as the older man lay on the ground trying to protect his face.

Jurors on the manslaughter trial were: Foreman Harley Weir, 773 Water St.; Roland Scott, Smith township; W. Garnet Dainard, 492 Bolivar St.; Melville McKee, North Monaghan township; D. Rae Weatherstone, 106 Lock St.; Donald Church, North Monaghan; Benjamin Collis, 448 Hillcrest Ave.; Robert Shearer, Harvey township; Beecher Blake, Lakefield; Kenneth F. Whatley, 650 Stormont St.; Donald Fife, Otonabee township; Earl George Welbourne, 792 Armour Rd.

Hint D. K. MacTavish Be Liberal President

OTTAWA (CP)—The Ottawa Journal said yesterday that Duncan K. MacTavish, Ottawa lawyer and head of the Federal District Commission, will be the new president of the National Liberal Federation.

The Journal said it is "understood" Mr. MacTavish "will be offered and will accept" the presidency at the meeting here next week of the advisory council of the federation.

He would succeed the late Senator J. Gordon Fogo.

Cost-Of-Living Drop In United States

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government today reported a drop in the United States cost of living for the first time in six months.

The Bureau of Labor statistics announced that its index declined two tenths of one per cent between Aug. 15 and Sept. 15.

There had been a steady climb for the previous six months.

The B.L.S. attributed the drop to lower prices for food, down one per cent in the month.

The decline in food prices was offset in part by increases for all other major groups of living cost items.

B.L.S. pegged the new index at 190.8 per cent of the 1935-1939 base period, down from the August record high of 191.1.

The latest report showed that living costs have advanced 12.1 per cent since Korea and five per cent since wage and price controls were imposed January, 1951.

Report Progress At Power Plant

WASHINGTON (AP)—A spokesman for the International Joint Commission reported today "good progress" is being made toward a decision on a Canadian-American application for authority to build a big St. Lawrence power plant.

The six-member commission, after three days of executive sessions here, adjourned last night until Tuesday when it will resume discussions in Montreal.

The spokesman told a reporter "many technical details necessary to perfect and clarify the order" are delaying the decision. He em-103 phasized, however, that good progress is being made.

The commission regulates use of international boundary waters.

Its permission to go ahead with the project is a preliminary to the actual construction grant which, in this country, may be given either by congress or the federal power commission.

The 2,200,000-horsepower project, which engineers estimate would produce more than 13,000,000,000 kilowatt hours a year, would be built on the river between Massena, N.Y., and Cornwall, Ont.

Failed To Appear Woman To Be Arrested

LINDSAY (ENS) — A Lindsay woman, Miss Betty Rennie, will be arrested on a warant, after failing to answer a summons to appear in magistrate's court this morning on a charge of obtaining lodgings under false pretenses. Miss Rennie is being charged on the complaint of Robert Burroughs of Rosedale, owner of a guest lodge.

Mr. Burroughs has appeared in court for two successive weeks to hear the case, but the defendant has not shown up. Crown counsel Lorne Jordan, in asking Magistrate Gee for the warrant, pointed out that Miss Rennie herself had asked for the adjournment last week and named the date for the trial.

Door Handles Missing From Parked Truck

LINDSAY (ENS) — Truckers being what they are, Lindsay police had a ticklish question to settle today. Gerry Gauvereau, owner of a truck in town, reported to police that the door handles on his truck, which was parked on a lane off Peel Street, had been broken, and asked the police to investigate. Constable Mark reported to Chief Webster that knuckle marks appeared on the doors under the handle, and stated it looked as if someone had tried to enter the car.

The catch in the constable's story came with his reporting that several passers-by had noted another large truck having difficulty passing the Gauvereau truck in the lane, one of the drivers having to guide the other through.

The passers-by, however, would not say anything about the other truckers' relations with the Gauvreau truck. Constable Mark was instructed to tell Gauvreau to park his truck, in future, so that other trucks would be able to pass. the other drivers will be questioned but no results are expected.

Heavy Imports Give Canada Trade Deficit

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's total foreign trade swelled during September, but for the second month this year, imports outpaced exports resulting in a $7,900,000 deficit, the Bureau of Statistics reported yesterday.

One of the factors in the deficit was a decline in shipments to the United Kingdom, which had been buying heavily in Canada all through the earlier months despite a persistent dollar shortage.

Total exports for the month increased to $341,200,000 from $323,500,000 a year ago, while imports climbed sharply to $349,100,000 from $311,500,000.

September's deficit compared with a small $700,000 unfavorable balance during May and with surpluses in all other months, which had brought the total eight-month surplus to $243,100,000. This now is trimmed to $235,200,000, still a vast improvement over the $323,800,000 unfavorable balance in the first nine months of 1951.

The bureau's estimates for September were contained in a preliminary statement which is subject to revision in more detailed statements to be issued within the next few weeks.

It showed shipments to Britain dropped during the month to $43,000,000 from $52,800,000 a year ago.

Found Wearing Stolen Clothes

LINDSAY (ENS) — Myles Emerson, 34, of Donald, was sentenced to three months in jail today when he appeared before Magistrate Gee in police court for sentence on a charge of breaking into a cottage on Four Mile Lake and stealing a quantity of clothing.

Emerson was arrested by Provincial Constable John Williams, of the Fenelon detachment, a week ago, when Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Johns, of Toronto, complained that their cabin had been entered and some hunting clothing taken. The Johns drove into Fenelon Falls to inform Constable Williams of the theft and on the way picked up Emmerson and Eddie Rivers, 18, of Haliburton, who were wearing the stolen clothing. Constable Williams then found Emmerson on the road, but missed Rivers who is still at large.

Crown counsel Lorne Jordan said in court that Emmerson had not been "too co-operative" in regard to information about his missing companion.

Magistrate Gee told Emmerson, 'this type of breaking and entering and theft from cottages all along these lakes must stop. They cannot be protected by fences, but the police will do all they can to catch those who do not respect other people's property."

Prices Turn Mixed In Slow Trading

The first day of the Toronto stock exchange's second century in business was marked by some of the dullest trading in weeks. Volume for the first three hours totalled 820,000 shares.

Western oils showed a large majority of gains ranging to 50 cents as Anglo-Canadian, Britalta, Central Leduc and Pacific rose. Canadian Williston and Sweet Grass slipped.

In the base metals list East Rim added pennies on a turnover of 20,000 shares and United Asbestos moved slightly less for a larger gain. Most issues slipped.

Strength in juniors buoyed the golds listed as MacLeod and San Antonio gained. Prospects also advanced slightly as Gunnar and Kelore added pennies in active trading. Seniors and holding companies were mixed.

Foods and miscellaneous issues showed strength in industrials as most issues were mixed. Utilities and refining oils weakened.

Robertson Davies Re-Opens Renovated Cobourg Theatre

COBOURG (ENS).—Entertainment bill at the gala re-opening of the redecorated and restored Victoria Opera House Thursday night was varied enough to suit any taste. There was a delightful blend of ballet, light opera, a one-act comedy and a kaleidoscopic review of melodies, written and sung down through the years from the time Victoria Opera House opened its doors in 1860 to the present era of music.

Robertson Davies, whose one-act comedy, "The Voice of the People," was presented on last night's opener, formally re-opened the Opera House. He commented on the beauty of its redecoration and complimented all those who had a hand in it. He expressed the hope that it would furnish good entertainment in the years to come.

Not long ago a group of women in town decided that something should be done about the dilapidated old Opera House. They formed the Cobourg Drama and Opera Guild with Mrs. Lillian Richards as president. They got financial assistance from the town and also started a drive for funds. The result has been a completely redecorated opera house done in the Victorian manner.

Last night's packed audience was delighted with the result and they were also highly pleased with the program. If one liked a little opera, but not too much of it, there was a nice presentation of excerpts from Martha. For those who enjoy a good laugh there was Robertson Davies' one-act comedy. Much enjoyed was the ballet, "Le Coq d'Or," and the songs of through the years was ideal for those who like their music a little on the light side. There was no lag and staging was excellent.

GOVERNMENT MILL—The Big River Utilization Mill, owned by the Saskatchewan government, produces up to 8,000,000 board feet of lumber a year. Opened in June, 1951, the mill, 90 miles northwest of Prince Albert, is in the heart of the province's $6,000,000 lumbering industry. Shown above is a portion of the water front and jackladder which carries lumber into the mill. The Saskatchewan Timber Board markets the mill's output.

Marmora Couple Wed 50 Years

MARMORA (ENS) — Mr. and Mrs. Bert Crawford of Marmora township celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Wednesday. They were married October 21, 1902, by the late Rev. F. McGuire at St. Alphonsus Church, Wooler.

Mrs. Crawford is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Tate of Wooler and her youth was spent in that district until she came to Marmora township to teach school in what is known as Crawford's school.

Mr. Crawford is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Crawford, pioneer residents of Marmora township. He still resides in the homestead where he was born 76 years ago. Mrs. Crawford is 75 years of age and both are enjoying good health.

Their children are John, Marmora; Anna, Mrs. Ray McDonnell, Trenton; Katherine, Mrs. Ray Fitzgerald, Otonabee township; Teresa, Mrs. P. J. Flynn, Marmora township, and James at home. They also have 11 grandchildren.

A high mass of thanksgiving was celebrated Wednesday in Sacred Heart Church, Marmora, by the Rev. J. A. O'Neill. The Rev. G. Scanlon was present in the sanctuary. Members of the family and other relatives and friends attended.

Mr. and Mrs. Crawford were at home to their many friends during the afternoon and evening, when a large number of neighbors and friends visited them to congratulate them and extend their best wishes for many more years of wedded happiness.

Stevenson Blasts Ike Over Hess Case

The Democratic presidential nominee in a Cleveland speech replied to Republican charges that he had shown bad judgment in making a character testimony in the Hiss case by saying that Eisenhower and his top foreign affairs adviser had shown far worse.

Eisenhower, the Republican candidate, in turn loosed his fiercest attack to date against Stevenson, saying in Buffalo, N.Y., that the governor had been taken over "body, boots and britches" by the Truman administration.

And, the general said, the Truman administration is rife with "bossism" and bigotry.

ATTACKS IKE, NIXON

President Truman said in McKeesport, Pa. that Eisenhower "doesn't know any more about politics than a pig knows about Sunday." He criticized Senator Richard Nixon, the Republican vice-presidential candidate, for "personal slander."

Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio turned his guns again on Truman, saying the President is trying to create a "sort of divine right of Kings" in American politics, with ment by the board of trustees headed by Dulles, and of which Eisenhower was a member when Hiss was selected president — "months after I had seen Hiss for the last time."

Eisenhower in Buffalo said Stev- Stevenson as his "true disciple."

All candidates had a packed schedule today except Senator John J. Sparkman, Democratic vice-presidential candidate who has been side-lined by laryngitis. Stevenson campaigns through New York making 14 speeches in 14 hours, Eisenhower in Michigan, Nixon in Wisconsin, Taft in New York City.

Stevenson accused Eisenhower of making a "sly and ugly campaign" against him, and ripped into the general on other points. But the emphasis in his Cleveland speech was on the Hiss case attacks. The governor said Eisenhower must take full responsibility.

HISS CASE ISSUE

Stevenson said he gave a deposition, when requested to do so by Hiss' lawyers, saying that when he knew the former state department official he believed his reputation was good. Hiss later was convicted of perjury for swearing he did not give secrets to a Russian spy. Republicans — particularly Nixon and Senator Joseph McCarthy of Wisconsin — have accused Stevenson of showing bad judgment, among other things, for making the deposition.

But "the facts are", Stevenson said, that Eisenhower and John Foster Dulles "both demonstrated a continued personal faith in Alger Hiss" even after a Detroit lawyer "offered to provide Mr. Dulles with evidence that Hiss had a provable Communist record."

Stevenson said Hiss was named president of the Carnegie endowenson "goes down the line for the administration record. . .by personal choice."

EVEN MONEY BET

An Associated Press survey indicated that Eisenhower is an even-money bet to break into the Democratic south. Editors and political correspondents in 14 southern and border states were polled.

When this line-up is combined with survey results from five middle Atlantic and 11 western and Rocky Mountain states, the estimates are that Eisenhower is leading in or likely to take 13 states with 167 electoral votes while Stevenson has an edge in or is likely to capture 14 states with 127 votes. It takes 266 electoral to win the election.

Chevrier Sees Seaway Project Helping Economics Development

TORONTO (CP)—Transport Minister Chevrier today said construction of the St. Lawrence Seaway and Power Project "promises to be a major force in directing our economic development."

In an address prepared for the annual conference of the Canadian Purchasing Agents' Association, Mr. Chevrier said completion of the project "will bring benefits from coast to coast in Canada."

The most obvious benefit was that it "will open a much larger market for ore from Labrador than could otherwise be reached." Potential sales would increase to at least 20,000,000 a year, double the present goal.

VITAL INTEREST

He said Canada is vitally interested in the problem of ore supplies facing steel mills within reach of the Great Lakes.

A large part of Canada's steel and finished iron and steel products came from the United States. A large part of Canada's steel-making capacity is located in the Great Lakes area "hence we share directly in the concern for ore supplies there."

"The four Maritime Provinces will have a new low-cost connection with the resources and markets of the interior, bringing new industrial opportunities to be explored.

"Even British Columbia may be brought closer economically to the centre of the continent."

There would be large savings in movement of western wheat and flour. Industries in more settled parts of Quebec and Ontario "will get not only an ample reserve of power, but cheap transportation at their door.

"They will get their coal deliveries at less cost whether from the United States, Nova Scotia or even possibly overseas while markets for many of their products will be more readily reached."

DIRECT BENEFITS

These direct benefits of the completed Seaway will "induce benefits that likewise will spread throughout the economy."

The indirect benefits were harder to assess, but prosperity in central Canada favorably affected the Maritimes and extra money in the western farmer's pocket benefitted British Columbia fruit growers and various industries in Quebec and Ontario.

Mr. Chevrier said prosperity in Canada depends on industrial production which is impossible without power. Two-thirds of the production of electricity in Canada was used by manufacturing industries. Half that consumption was by industries responsible for about one-third of the gross value of manufactured goods.

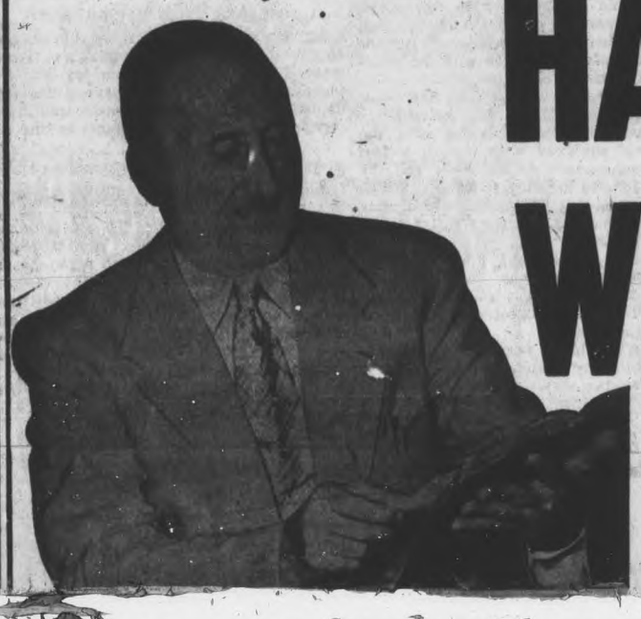
Golden Anniversary Douro Couple Mark



NORWOOD (ENS). — The 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Crowe of Douro was celebrated Wednesday. Owing to Mrs. Crowe's poor health they had decided to let the occasion pass without recognition, but during the evening a number of relatives surprised them by dropping in to extend their congratulations.

Mr. and Mrs. Crowe (she was the former Bella McLean) were married at the home of the brdie's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John McLean, on the 8th Concession of Dummer. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Atkinson, minister of the Warsaw and Cottesloe Presbyterian Church. Their attendants were Mrs. Lyda Brae, now of Toronto, and the late Hugh McDonald of Norwood.

Mr. and Mrs. Crowe have lived all of their married life on the farm where they now reside. They have one son Gerald at home. They are memebrs of Warsaw Presbyterian Church, and have always been active in church and Sunday school work.

During the evening they were presented with a gift from the group, by two great-nieces Madeline and Joyce Crowe.

The Indiscretion Of Mr. Abbott

On Monday the Minister of Finance, Mr. Douglas Abbott, made a speech in Vancouver which appeared to say that reductions in some taxes might be expected in the next Budget. What Mr. Abbott really said was that there could only be tax reductions if national production increased, and that he expected national production to increase; this was interpreted, understandably enough, as a promise of tax reduction by the reporters who heard him. But Mr. Abbott was not pleased; he called a press conference, in the course of which he said that no tax reductions could be expected next March, and that Canada would be lucky to break even in the current fiscal year; costs of defence were high and could not be reduced, and the predicted increase in production would not come soon enough to make a tax reduction possible for a year or so.

* * *

This all seems innocent and logical on the surface, but when we recall how strangely Mr. Abbott has misjudged Canada's finances for some years past, and when we recall that a Federal election is a year or two ahead of us, it changes its meaning. Frankly, we do not think that either Mr. Abbott or the gentlemen who are his chief advisors (and the real makers of Canada's taxation policies) have any idea what the situation will be next March. But we are pretty sure that they will not make any tax reductions at that time, however possible it might be to do so. Tax reductions will be saved for election bait. When the contest is drawing near Mr. Abbott, smiling bravely and wiping the sweat from his brow, will announce that by dint of superhuman exertion he has been able to do something to ease matters for the taxpayer; and the taxpayer will be expected to wipe a grateful tear from his eye, murmur "Good old Doug," and run out to vote Mr. Abbott's party back into power. Without pretending to prophecy, we should not be surprised to see the Canadian taxpayer reject the role assigned to him, and to give Mr. Abbott and his party a good scare; he might even throw Mr. Abbott and his party right across the House of Commons, into the Opposition benches.

* * *

The reason why we expect that the Canadian taxpayer may behave in this fashion is that we sense a widespread dissatisfaction with the financial management of the present government. Expenses for defences are high, and presumably must stay high. But there are other ways of saving money, and there is plenty of evidence that the Government has never made any genuine move to cut down the heavy expenses in other Government departments than defence. There is a strong feeling also that the wartime Government attitude toward the taxpayer has not changed; that attitude was, briefly, that the taxpayer should be squeezed for his own good, for if he were allowed to keep too much of his own money, he might spend it foolishly, sending up the cost of living and decreasing the value of the dollar; the Government, of course, knew how to keep the cost of living down and the dollar up, and has demonstrated this ability for all to see. The Government still seems to look upon the taxpayer as a fellow who cannot be trusted with his own money, and who must therefore be put upon an allowance.

* * *

Mr. Abbott has been indiscreet in Vancouver; he has disturbed the time-honoured government trick of giving the public a break when an election is coming. We do not blame Mr. Abbott too severely; like every modern Finance Minister he is not a maker of policy, but merely the front-man for a group of advisors in the senior ranks of the Civil Service who make the tax policies and decide how much pillaging the taxpayer can bear in order to test their pet theories of economics. As we have said before in these columns, it is not so much the Minister of Finance who needs changing as his advisors; but only a change of government would suffice to clear those gentlemen out of the offices they hold.

Who Cares Who Reporters Like?

We are not happy to read an article published in the New York Herald-Tribune, and distributed through its syndicate service, headed "The Reporters Don't Like Ike". The gist of the article is that the reporters who travel on General Eisenhower's private train have become disillusioned with the promises which he makes in his speeches—particularly those relating to U.S. troops in Korea—and "are almost solid for Governor Adlai E. Stevenson." What a reporter thinks about politics is his own business as a private citizen, but as a reporter it is no part of his work to express liking or dislike for any public figure.

The press in the U.S.A., however, has a passion for meddling in matters which it would be wiser to leave alone. It has been shown many times that strong press campaigns against presidential candidates do not injure the cause of that candidate; they may even make the public so angry that they are of positive advantage to the object of newspaper scorn. To tell the public that reporters don't like Ike will only provoke the public to the very proper retort—"So what?" For reporters are not heroes to the public, and there is no reason why they should be.

The power of a newspaper in political matters can be very great, but it is only as great as the paper's powers of persuasion; readers will not take dictation from a newspaper in matters of politics, but they will read and weigh its arguments. Not long ago Mr. Walter Thompson suffered from the too-affectionate attention of a Toronto paper during a provincial campaign, and we all saw what happened to him; other Toronto papers have embarrassed politicians with their amorous advances at election time. And after the black eyes the U.S. press received in its last campaign against Truman, we would think that they would have enough sense to conceal the personal opinions of their reporters, editors, office cat, and all others connected with the Fourth Estate.

U.N., N.Y.: Hot and Cold

Today by mayoral proclamation, United Nations Day is being observed in Peterborough. Similar observations are taking place across Canada and the United States. We have frequently written in these columns about U.N. activities, problems and successes; we need not rehearse them again now, except to remind our readers that, in the opinion of well qualified observers of the international scene, the world is better off with U.N. than without it, and that the successes of the Assembly, the various Councils and U.N. agencies have far outweighed, in actual worth if not in large headlines, the failures to achieve all the aims of the Charter so optimistically accepted in San Francisco in April 1945.

U.N. has now moved into its new, permanent multi-million-dollar New York headquarters. The great buildings on the Rockefeller site imposingly represent the aspirations and solid faith in this modern world which led to the creation of U.N. In some of their aspects the buildings are too aptly representative of the workings and inner councils of U.N.

U.N., the organization, is a new, bold, brave structure, and cracks have developed in it. It is perhaps too much in advance of its time and the nations still nationalistic. U.N., the thin rectangles of steel and glass which rise beside New York harbour, are likewise bold and modern in design, perhaps too much in advance of architectural experience. There is so much glass in the buildings that the sun (and lack of it) plays havoc with the heating and ventilating systems. The buildings are air conditioned; but apparently engineers who condition air by human ingenuity are still not a match for the sun which conditions despite the machinery. As a result of the acres of glass on the building, it blows hot and cold with the sun. So we have the spectacle of U.N. officials and civil servants perspiring one day one week, and having cold, clammy chills another day. The seasonal variation is reported to be even more intense. Well, is this sort of variability not characteristic of U.N. the organization—blowing hot and cold with Russian words and new alarms and old excursions?

It used to be said that one trouble with the old League of Nations was that its headquarters were in Geneva—hot and humid in summer, cold and clammy in winter. Had the headquarters been put on the hills behind Lausanne, they said, the League in this brisker, drier air might not have wilted. Engineers and architects have done their [illegible] at an even temperature and out of squalls, but still the weather dominates—as perhaps it did in Geneva. So it is with U.N. itself; the organization cannot legislate against nature—physical or human.

NOTES AND COMMENT

The candy makers complain that people are eating less candy. But they don't blame that on the pitifully shrunken size of the chocolate bar.

President Truman has accused Eisenhower of favouring an anti-Jewish and anti-Catholic immigration program for the U.S.A. As election day draws nearer, the dirt becomes dirtier and dirtier.

A man driving a stolen car in the U.S. recently picked up a hitch-hiker who proved to be the owner of the stolen car and also the sheriff. Moral: never pick up hitch-hikers; they may take something from you.

Notes And Queries

By ALPHA

Questions are solicited for this column particularly those relating to local lore and tradition.

SIR: How many Peterborough churches have bells in their belfries?

ANSWER: All the Anglican and all the Roman Catholic churches. The others do not seem to hold with the Catholic custom of ringing people into church and tolling them out, although they do indulge in chimes attached to their pipe organs.

I would hesitate to recommend more bells in Peterborough churches, unless better bells are put in than those usually heard on Sunday mornings. The smaller ones sound as if they had been cast as cow bells, the larger as if they had been lent by the C.N.R. (I believe that St. George's is using an old locomotive bell). Even the bell of St. Peter's is disenchanting, despite its history.

A fire in 1838 destroyed the original Roman Catholic church, a one-storey frame building which stood where the Examiner building now is, and had been converted to church use when the site was deeded (1836) to the Bishop of Kingston, the Right Rev. Alexander McDonnell. After the fire the bishop sold the Hunter and Water street site to Robert Chamberlain for £600, and used the money to begin building the present stone church, on a lot granted by the Government four years earlier.

The church was built at a cost of $12,000. The first organ was installed (for $1,600) in 1853, and somewhat earlier St. Peter's got its bell. It was one of three old bells which Bishop McDonnell had bought for his diocese, and the three were cast in Spain nearly three hundred years ago. As far as I know this bell still hangs in St. Peter's belfry. It was the first church bell in Peterborough.

The People's Chimes in St. John's are the best bells in the city. They were dedicated on June 22nd, 1911 (the day of the Coronation of King George V) and to mark the seventy-fifth anniversary of the opening of St. John's church. The chimes are sorely in need of re-tuning.

ALPHA OLD BOY: I didn't hear one squeak of protest from you when the stop lights were put up at the corner of McDonnel and Reid streets. Tut! tut! I thought you at least would hold the fort against the fun-spoilers in Peterborough. Before the lights were put in, the intersection gave right of way to drivers coming in from Chemong. I used to coast from the top of the highest hill on the Chemong Road (you know the one, about two miles out, where you get a wonderful view over the valley of Peterborough); well, I would coast from there right down Reid street to Charlotte. Now, only once in a while if the green light is with me, can I have the chance. No fun any more—and more expense.

RESPONSE: I congratulate you on having a vehicle as free-wheeling as to get around the Reid-Stewart Highway turn and up the mound before McDonnel. I rarely could coast any farther than that rise, so the traffic lights do not interfere with my fun or my gas expenditure. You must have great patience and some special momentum to have urged your car up the final grade behind St. Andrew's church. I never did succeed in surmounting that last hill without going into gear again and stepping on the accelerator.

Another good run used to be from the top of Sherbrooke street down to Park. I believe some hardy fellows even tried the run from Green Hill. The best existing free run in the city now is down Hunter street from Armour Hill—but beware of obstacles, including the police who look with cold disfavour on coasters the likes of you and me. And I must admit, with some reason.

The most fantastic coast on wheels I ever had was from France, through Switzerland into Italy. No, it wasn't with a bayonet prodding me—but in the lower Alps, where the three countries come together. It was really a short run. You can do the same thing on skis.

ONE CENT, 1858: Information has come from several sources about this coin of which a reader asked last week. Miss Jameson is back in town with her knowledge; a Beaverton constant reader of this column and an expert on coins, has written quite fully, and I have discovered, through the kindness of its secretary-treasurer, Mr. George Benton, the existence of the Peterborough-Lindsay Coin Club.

The Beaverton lady says: "I have made an extensive study of Canadian coins and find it a most fascinating hobby. The 1858 Copper is neither particularly rare nor valuable; its value depends greatly on its condition. Coins are usually listed by dealers in seven categories, namely:

V.G.	Very Good
F.	Fine
V.F.	Very Fine
X.F.	Extra Fine
UNC.	Uncirculated
B.U.	Brilliant Uncirculated

The 1858 coin is listed as follows: V.G. 75c; F. $1.25; V.F. $2.00; Unc. $3.00 and B.U. $5.00. That is retail value; not what a dealer would pay but what he would charge.

HERE IS A brief history of Canadian coins, as given by my correspondent.

"After the British occupation, the Colonies of Upper and Lower Canada, now Ontario and Quebec were politically separate, but in 1841 the two colonies united as the "Province of Canada", and as such made the first issue of coins in the usual 5c. pieces, a ten cent piece and a twenty cent piece. No more coins were struck until 1870 when the Dominion of Canada issued a five cent piece (2,800,000), a ten cent piece (1,250,000) and a twenty-five cent piece 900,000 (also the first 50 cent piece). The first Dominion of Canada copper was in 1876. It is worth only 20c and up.

"People get very queer ideas regarding the value of old coins. A bank token of 1832 is listed at 20 cents while the same coin with the same view dated 1858 is $40.00. Age does not count as much as rareness. A 1921 50 cent piece is worth up to $200 while a five cent piece of the same year will bring up to $90 depending, of course, on its condition."

PETERBOROUG-LINDSAY COIN CLUB: Secretary-Treasurer W. George P. Benton wrote that at its monthly meeting last week, the Alpha item was discussed. He says that his records show that the first coins of Canadian decimal coinage were struck at the Royal Mint, London, England, dated 1858, and that about ten million copies were minted prior to 1908 when the Royal Mint at Ottawa began operations. He, too, notes that all coins are classified by collectors according to condition, but sets a lower top value for the 1858 copper than my Beaverton correspondent. He gives a range of five to sixty cents.

I am glad to pass on this information: "The Club plans a public meeting to be held in the Library in the latter part of November. Details will be advertised in the Examiner. Speakers will talk on coin collecting, displays of coins may be seen, and anyone may bring in coins for appraisal and information".

FOR THE RECORD: Was talking to a lady this morning who had just come back from Quebec city. She said that the town and its countryside had had six inches of snow. Her motoring party intended to drive to Chicoutimi, to see the Saguenay country. The route lies straight north of Quebec. The first dozen miles out of Quebec the road is old and winding, through characteristic Laurentian village country. Then it erupts into a handsome, new, straight, wide, paved highway, through the Laurentian Park. For a hundred miles it goes straight north through the bush and magnificent hill country unpopulated except by animals, birds and trees, and a few chalets for keepers of the park and tourists with permits to stay.

At the end of the road lies Chicoutimi, a rather new city (1900 onward but with the face and architecture of an older Quebec town, except that Chicoutimi people are very bustling and proud of living in the capital of the Kingdom of Saguenay, and have put an some bold and modern fronts.

Next door to Chicoutimi is the town of Arvida, established, built and managed by the aluminum industry which gives Arvida its reason for being. A neat, prosperous, conservative and stalwart-appearing place, bourgeois, more English-Canadian than French-Canadian in manner—and, on the whole, a dull place compared with the abandon of haphazard Chicoutimi.

To get back to the touring lady. She never got to Chicoutimi. About ten miles along the old road snow conditions worsened; the car was not equipped with chains; a foot of snow was reported in the Park, and the party was advised to return to Quebec. Which they did, discussing Chicoutimi which none of them had ever seen, in the comfort of the Chateau Frontenac.

(Incidentally, Chicoutimi, lying in a district whose isolation was unbroken until 1697, is so far north that it is 300 miles north of Peterborough and almost as far north as Paris, France.)

I mention the lady's near miss of Chicoutimi to remind my readers, without joy, that winter is on the way.

Letters To The Editor

WESTCLOX SINCE 1919

Sir: Speaking as an executive who has been chiefly responsible for the promotion of Canadian talent to executive positions in Westclox, I am happy in that the Examiner recognizes the value of such a policy, indicated in your editorial of October 20th.

Your editorial however is away off the track in one respect. You state that Westclox "was established in Canada and Peterborough only in the 'thirties, following the imposition of Imperial Preference."

This is untrue. Westclox operated a Sales Office in Toronto in 1912. The present company began operations in Peterborough in 1919. The hilltop buildings were started in 1922.

Imperial Preference gained us large export business for years, but has been practically nullified by embargoes, exchange restrictions, etc., for many years past.

It was a protective tariff, enacted during the regime of the Hon. R. B. Bennett which resulted in the major growth of the plant since the 'thirties. Even this tariff has been whittled down by giving a picayune duty on foreign clocks and the lowest tariff in the world today of any producing nation.

Canadian clocks pay 25 per cent duty into England but Canada charges only 15 per cent. Australia prohibits entry by refusing permits. Italy has a prohibitive tariff, as has Germany, France, Switzerland and the U.S.A.

Imperial preference deserves little credit for Westclox success, and has nothing to do with establishment of the factory in Peterborough. In fact it did not become operative for more than a decade afterwards.

The minimum rate paid to experienced workers at Westclox is $47.60 per week. Foreign workers can earn less than half that for the same thing in most instances.

Employment in Peterborough suffers as a result and Westclox has been forced to establish factories in both Britain and Australia.

Imperial Preference seems to be a one-way street into the Canadian market, with scarcely enough revenue resulting to pay the cost of administering it, so far as our products are concerned.

SUPPOSE IT HAD BEEN A CHILD?

Sir: Many times I have read and enjoyed your columns, but I do not enjoy the letter I would like printed. This letter is intended for a certain motorist, who was travelling Monaghan Rd. at Fagan Ave. on Wednesday morning at 11:25. He hit and left a small dog dead on the road without even stopping. That driver must have been speeding to kill anything so fast. I feel sure the same thing would have happened if it had been a child. If that driver had at least stopped, I would have had a chance to remove the dog before my six-year-old son saw his pet in such a heartbreaking condition.

Mr. Motorist, to you it was only a dog, to us and our three children he was a lovely pet. You could not even say "I'm sorry" for a dog. What would you do if it had been a child?

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, I am,
MRS. HOLLY E. MOWRY,
586 Fagan Ave.

DISLIKES FILM ADVERTISING

Sir: Reclining on one of the cheaper seats of a local theatre for an evening's entertainment, I was awakened from my world of imagination by a series of cheap, gaudy films depicting the supposedly superior qualities of certain items sold by merchants in this city.

I detest this abominable product-pushing on any occasion, but my frustration is insufferable when I am unable to retaliate against this repulsive type of "advertising". I can burn its impudence out of the papers or turn its derogatory insinuations from the radio. My only form of retribution is to abstain from those theatres violating the integrity of its would-be patrons and to discredit those individuals, their products and their manners utilizing this medium of entertainment to all or any with whom I have personal contact.

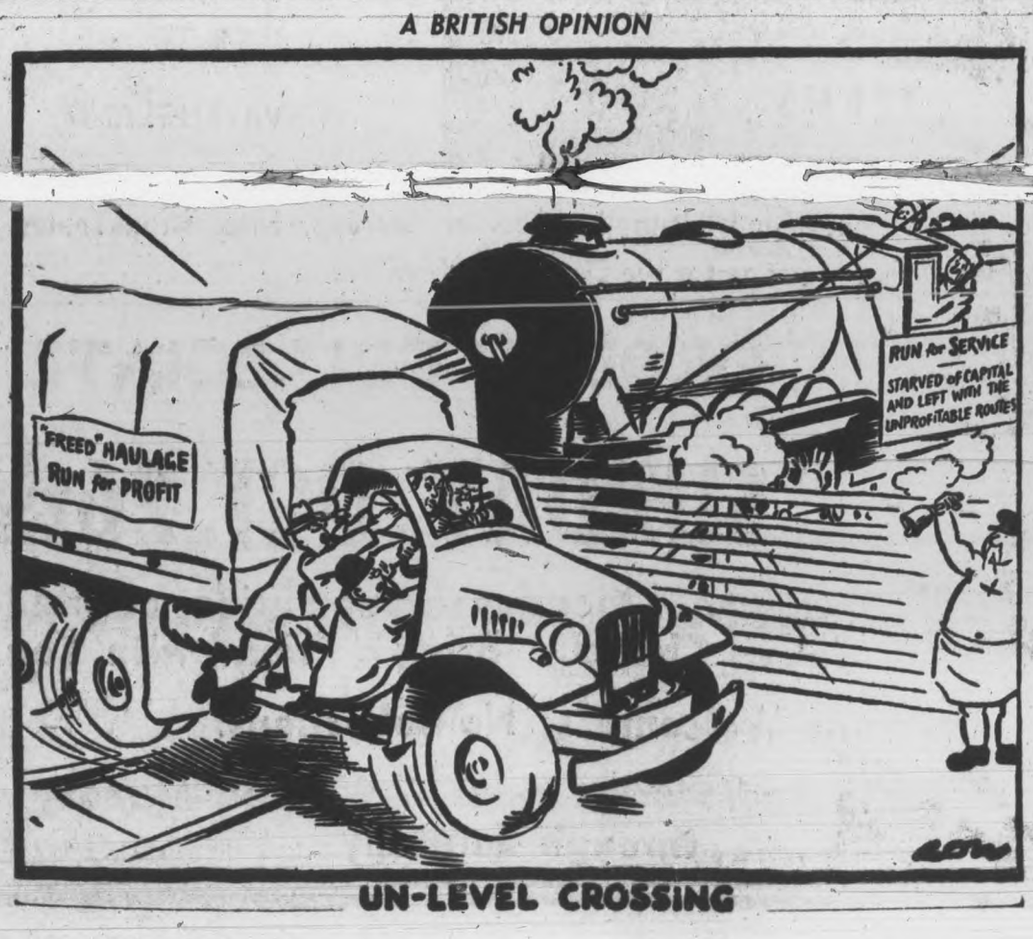
Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)



Beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves. Ye shall know them by their fruits. Do men gather grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles? Even so every good tree bringeth forth good fruit; but a corrupt tree bringeth forth evil fruit. A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit, neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit. Every tree that bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down, and cast into the fire. Wherefore by their fruits ye shall know them. . . .

And it came to pass, when Jesus had ended these sayings, the people were astonished at his doctrine: for he taught them as one having authority, and not as the scribes. (Matt. 7:15-20, 28, 29.)

✧ ✧ ✧

When he was come down from the mountain, great multitudes followed him. . . . When the even was come, they brought unto him many that were possessed with devils: and he cast out the spirits with his word, and healed all that were sick. (Matt. 8:1, 16.)

A BRITISH OPINION

UN-LEVEL CROSSING

Two Canadian Soldiers Convicted In Hotel Riot

BERGEN, Germany (Reuters)—A court martial yesterday convicted two Canadian soldiers of leading an attack on a German hotel which resulted in 6,000 marks ($1,500) worth of damage.

The two soldiers were Trs. Evan Ernest Bryans, 22, of Lindsay, and Clarence Henry Jobson, 29, of Elk Lake, Ont. They will be sentenced Saturday. Bryans pleaded innocent and Jobson guilty.

According to court testimony, the two men were the ringleaders of a gang of about 27 Canadian soldiers who went to the Deutsches Haus Hotel in Bergen Sept. 30 to rough up a group of young Germans.

The Germans had allegedly beaten up or threatened Canadian troops in the area.

Two other soldiers involved in the incident will soon go on trial. They are Trs. J.R. Riendeau of Montreal and B.A. McPhee of Kirkland Lake, Ont.

The hotel owner, Willi Hogrefe, said the Canadians "threw chairs and tables around, smashed windows and turned everything upside down."

End Rubber Walkout

STRATFORD (CP) — About 60 members of local 168, United Rubber Workers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.), returned to work at Griffith and Sons Limited yesterday after staging a walkout Wednesday.

Union president A. Tuckwood said that the men remained out due to "conditions at the plant."

C. E. Morrison, general manager of the company, said the walkout was a "wildcat" affair.

Prime Minister Praises U.N.

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent said yesterday that United Nations achievement so far is evidence that international co-operation is not an unattainable dream "but a goal that, with God's help, will be reached some day."

In a 300-word statement issued on the eve of the seventh anniversary of the signing of the U.N. charter, Mr. St. Laurent said the work of the U.N. "should be the concern and active interest of us all."

The United Nations can be proud of its achievements, he said.

"The intervention of the United Nations in Korea, we are justified in believing, has had a salutary effect on would-be aggressors. In other parts of the world during these seven years the United Nations has been effective in bringing armed hostilities to an end."

Christens Well

SERIA, North Borneo (Reuters)—The Duchess of Kent smashed a bottle of champagne over a new 1,000-barrel-a-day oil well here yesterday and named it "Marina Well"—her own Christian name. She was touring the huge British oil fields on her tour of Southeast Asia.

CHIEF ABBOT KOSHO OHTANI of Kyoto, Japan, head of the Buddhist Shin religion, and Lady Ohtani, who arrived in Montreal October 23 for a three-day visit to the city's community of some 500 Buddhists. It will be the first time the head of the Buddhist church has visited Montreal. After completing his Montreal visit, he will leave for Toronto.

Father Of 3 Children Convicted Of Murdering Wife To Wed Again

By JACK DAVIS

BALTIMORE (AP)—George Edward Grammer, 35-year-old father of three children, was convicted yesterday of deliberately killing his wife—and trying to make her death look like an accident—so he could marry a pretty New York secretary.

The first-degree murder verdict carries either a death penalty—hanging in Maryland—or a life prison term. Sentence was not pronounced immediately.

"This court has no difficulty in determining that Mrs. Grammer's death was criminal homicide," Judge Herman Moser said. "It has no difficulty in determining that the defendant was responsible for and did commit that unlawful act. . .

"His were the actions of one who cleverly planned the crime so he could spend the rest of his days with the woman he loved."

The woman the judge referred to was Mathilda Mizibrocky, 28, a Canadian from Hamilton, who worked at United Nations headquarters in New York.

PLANNED TO MARRY

She testified that she and Grammer had fallen in love after their first meeting last November and were planning to marry. She said she learned he had a wife only after Dorothy May Grammer's death.

"He was in love with another woman," said the judge, who heard the case without a jury at Grammer's request. "Even if his wife were willing for a divorce, this wouldn't have solved his difficulties."

Miss Mizibrocky, he explained, "was not ready to accept a divorced man as a husband." She is a Roman Catholic.

Moser said Grammer struck his wife on the head with a piece of pipe in such a way that if their car were demolished in a collision, the injuries would appear to have resulted from the impact.

Grammer put a pebble under the accelerator of his car, Moser said, to hold down the gas pedal, then sent the automobile carrying the body of his wife racing down the sloping road toward a street intersection and a concrete wall beyond.

Tobacco Crop Price Talks Adjourned

SIMCOE (CP)—Negotiations to set a minimum average price for this year's Ontario tobacco crop yesterday were adjourned until next Monday.

The market appraisal committee of the Ontario Flue-Cured Marketing Association—composed of buyers and growers—said they were unable to reach agreement after three days of negotiating.

One grower refused to negotiate for less than 44½ cents a pound, last year's price, but others said they would settle for less.

Atomic Blast Director Awarded Knighthood

LONDON (Reuters)—The man who directed Britain's first atomic blast, William G. Penney, has been awarded a knighthood.

The announcement said Penney, 43, has been made a K.C.B.E.—Knight Commander of the British Empire, civil division.

Obituary

MRS. THOMAS ALBERT COOPER

A resident of Peterborough all her life, Mrs. Thomas Albert Cooper of 596 Chamberlain St., died on Thursday in hospital following a short illness.

Besides her husband, she leaves two daughters, Mrs. Michael Conway (Iris) of Oshawa and Mrs. Anthony Basciano (Frena) of Peterborough, and four sons William and Norman, both of Toronto, Ivan of Saskatoon and Donald of this city. There are two sisters, Mrs. James Hunter and Mrs. Michael Coughlin. Mrs. Cooper was a member of St. James' United Church.

Funeral service will be held on Saturday from the Nisbett funeral home at 2 p.m. The Rev. H. McCormack will officiate and burial will be at Ray's cemetery, Lakefield.

Dismiss Arson Charge

PENETANGUISHENE (CP) — Charges of arson against William Hadad and Robert Millstone, both of Toronto, were dismissed by Magistrate K.A. Cameron yesterday.

The charges were laid after the burning of an unused grain elevator at Phelpston, near Elmvale, Aug. 25.

Crown witnesses claimed two men left Hadad's car just before the fire broke out and went in the direction of the elevator. Defence counsel said no evidence had been submitted revealing how the fire started or to connect Hadad with it.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Footballs will be punted off the local scene within a month as winter approaches. P.C.V.S. seniors have a big test tonight in Toronto as they meet Woodstock in the Red Feather opener. Our O.R.F.U. Orfuns have a toughie, too, on the morrow in Cobourg when they tackle the Ghosts with first place in the group race at stake. A win for the Kotowski crew would pretty well wrap up league honors, but a loss will sew the race up tighter than ever, forcing a playoff. A grid twin bill here tomorrow aft in Morrow Park, O.C.V.I. and St. Peter's mix it in an important junior group game, followed by an exhibition between Oshawa Combines and the senior St. Peter's squad.

* * * * * *

A preview of the 1952-53 junior Oddfellows and the senior Petes takes place at TV night in Civic Arena this e'en. It's an exhibition in aid of minor hockey in Peterborough, with a lot of good prizes to be drawn for. Only those attending may win the TV set or other prizes, and that ought to make for a big crowd of puck fans. A lot of husky young prospects have been drilling away with the junior club for weeks now and the chopping process will start shortly to whittle the team down to its O.H.A. playing strength. The senior Petes promise to ice a good team for the tilt this eve, too. Jim Ellis will handle his charges, but we haven't heard yet who will coach the Triple Links.

* * * * * *

Let's Ice a Senior Team

As stated here yesterday, we think the Petes should dig in and go ahead with their senior "B" schedule, even if it takes a few more weeks to line up a real contending club. They still have the best goalie in the group in Ray Harding, with Jack Byers a capable stand-in for him. At their workout the other night there were a big cop named Lough, the two Leonards, Mason, Mortimer, West, Floyd, Collins, Greenlaw and a few more. Garvey may be out later. They could get Drake Jopling out again. Some officials tell us they can get several more of the Eagles, too, and then there are other prospects around. What about big Bert Howden, of the O.P.P. at Apsley? Fans here want senior hockey for the winter, and we think the club should stay in there and build. Our ball Petes did it last summer and won th C.O.B.L. crown.

* * * * * *

A phone call from Mike Rodden discloses the fact that Kingston expects a real contending club this winter. Better prospects are: Udall, Watts, Nicholson, Bellringer, Deans, Myke, Partis, Gerow, McGaughey, Joyce, Londry, Pogue, Snider, MacGregor, Murray, White, Aitken, Bender and Stewart. Several of 'em came back from the Maritimes or Scotland, and one is from Montreal. They hope the Petes stay in as these clubs are drawing cards in games here and there. Some of those dropped by the K's are: Dougall, Anderson, Ohike, Wagar, Latimer, Goodfellow and Larmer. The team has lots of material as the suspended players are all available again.

Executive For P.M.H.A.

A new executive for the Peterborough Minor Hockey Association was named last night, including: Ray Tanner, Bill Dawson, Sam Micelli, Phonse Brioux, Jack Miller and Moon Wootton. This board will elect its own officers, appoint a publicity director, etc. The full quota of 12 teams has been entered with four bantams, four midgets and four juveniles, and these will be announced shortly. For instance, either Trojans or Oddfellows will form the fourth juvenile entry along with Marines, Martin-Hewitt and Shamrocks. Practices start next Thursday night, and play should open in about two weeks, going each Thursday night throughout the winter at Civic Arena. It looks like the well-organized P.M.H.A. will go for the new O.M.H.A. insurance idea. More on that again.

Peterborough Ski Club offers a learn-to-ski course to run throughout the winter, conducted by instructors Mollie Craig and Tom Ashby. Two classes will be formed, one for beginners and one for intermediates, going every weekend and possibly Thursday nights as well. Lessons are free to members, and details may be had by phoning 3271 or 7993. The St. John's Ambulance first-aid course begins Oct. 29 at 7:30 p.m. in the city hall. It's in the basement and may be reached by the north door. This session runs once a week for eight weeks, followed by the examination. Ski Night here is Dec. 4 and will include a film on the winter sport. Some work is being done already at Bethany, we hear.

Puck Official Of Petes Makes Reply

Treasurer Fred Scates of the Peterborough Hockey Club (he handles their publicity) has submitted the following letter to The Examiner sports editor:

Replying to Dr. Epping's letter, which appeared in Thursday's Examiner, I would like to say that the announcement made by George Ludgate on his sportcast Tuesday night was given to him by the Peterborough Hockey Club and reported without any changes by Mr. Ludgate. The information was also given to the newspapers.

Dr. Epping suggests that opinions expressed should be confirmed and not rumors. Yet in his letter he says that Mr. Ludgate failed to mention that George Steele had gone to Clinton and Jake Wade and Arn Dugan to Brantford. Unless Dr. Epping had information that was not available to the Peterborough Hockey Club the Wade and Dugan news was a rumor.

The first information that the P.H.C. had was when Jake Wade called this writer in regards to his release, at 7:00 o'clock Wednesday night. Nobody on our club knew for sure where Dugan and Wade were. They had not left their jobs. Five different places were mentioned, including Brantford, as possible hockey berths.

I checked the Brantford paper for four days and the announcement that they had signed with the Redmen was made Wednesday. The Peterborough club was not informed by either Wade or Dugan of their intentions of leaving. Up until Wednesday these players were considered members of the P.H.C.

The departure of Steele was given to Cec Perdue by myself and appeared in his column. When he inquired about Wade and Dugan I could give him no information and the item appeared in Sports Show Window: "We hear that Wade and Dugan have the hockey wanderlust."

I agree with Dr. Epping that the Eagles' players are free agents and can play where they wish. But it cannot be denied that Peterborough could ice a strong contending senior B club with the help of these players.

This letter is written mainly to clear Mr. Ludgate. The reason for dealing in detail with Wade and Dugan is to point out to Dr. Epping that when he suggests this should have been announced it was still only a rumor that they had gone to Brantford and confirmation was lacking. Since it was not mentioned in the Brantford paper till Wednesday, this can be regarded as proof.

WE'LL DIVIDE THE HONORS — Kenner Collegiate's first athletic honors, the inter-form soccer championship, will be divided this year between boys of 9 F (1) and 10 B. The teams, playing the championship game Thursday, went to a scoreless draw; both were form champions. Captain Ben Floyd and John Chesney with fans Lois Corner and Mary Tudhope laugh over several amusing incidents which happened during the game. Other inter-form activities planned for this year are basketball and softball, perhaps volleyball and touch rugby.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

600 Top Horses Appear At Show

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—With the opening of the Pennsylvania National Horse Show tomorrow this state capital city becomes the equine centre of the United States for three weeks.

The seven-day show brings together more than 600 of the top exposition animals of America and four other countries, including Canada, competing for trophies and more than $35,000 in cash prizes.

Highlighting the show, which runs through Nov. 1, is the international competition between jumping teams from the United States, Canada, France, Ireland and Mexico.

All five international jumping teams took their workouts yesterday in the farm show arena 'team captains pronounced all their mounts in top condition.

The north-of-the-border entry has an army officer and two young civilians. Lt.-Col. Charles Baker, W.R. Ballard and James Elder are all veteran Canadian riders.

Athletic Honors Divided At Kenner Collegiate In Scoreless Soccer Tie

Kenner Collegiate's first athletic honors will be divided. Throughout the season under the new sports-for-all program the boys have been playing soccer in the recreation period and the final game between 9F (1) and 10B Thursday ended in a scoreless draw. During the inter-form games the Grade 9 boys rolled to three victories and tied in three others to earn the right to play the Grade 10 winners. The 10B lads in a smaller schedule recorded two wins and one tie.

Throughout the season the girls in each form wrote special form yells and gave these cheers during the games. For Thursday's game the Grade 9 form cheers were formed in one group for the 9F (1) and the Grade 10 yells for 10A.

TEACH REFEREES

Some boys during the season chose to referee games. For these lads a referees' school was held with teachers as instructors before games commenced. All the schedule games were refereed by students except the final game. All the boys studied the soccer rules as part of their health classes.

The whole school helped with the soccer project. The art department made players' numbers and helped make programs; the industrial arts department finished the posters; the home economics department the school colored flags and other projects.

Although Saturday is an off-day the boys came back early one Saturday to dig holes for the goal posts. During the dinner hours the students painted the posts.

OTHER SPORTS, TOO

Other sports will be treated in the same way; basketball and softball will be inter-form projects and perhaps volleyball, and touch football if there is time.

Ben Floyd, captain of the 9F (1) team, went best for the Grade niners along with Bill Chamberlain and George Burrett. Grade 10 B's John Chesney also starred along with teammates Don Finley, Al Foote and Bob Druery.

Football Coaches Turning On Pressure

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Every year about this time football coaches across the country pat their well-padded charges on the seat of their uniforms and assure them that the game coming up is the "big" one. This season is no exception.

Coach Frank Filchock of the sagging Edmonton Eskimos in the Western Conference is giving out with the old familiar theme after the club's surprising 31-12 loss in the first game of the home-and-home total-point semi-final series to Calgary Stampeders. "We'll get 'em Saturday," Filchock says. "We can still do it."

Maybe the Eskimos can "still do it" but they've got a big job on their hands and there aren't many fans around who will wager that they can wipe out that deficit in 60 minutes.

WHAT ABOUT ALS?

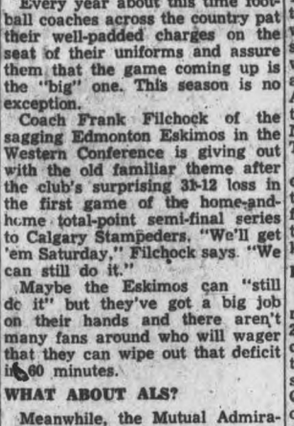
Meanwhile, the Mutual Admiration Society is in full session in the east. Here we are in the middle of a red-hot Big Four race and reports out of Toronto and Hamilton tape it this way:

The league-leading Hamilton Tiger-Cats, says Coach Carl Voyles are more afraid of Ottawa Rough Riders than Toronto Argonauts, and, says Argo Coach Frank Clair, his club is more afraid of Riders than of Tiger-Cats. But where do the winless Montreal Alouettes come in?

The Als, who haven't won a game in nine this season, meet Tiger-Cats at Montreal Sunday. A victory for the Black and Yellow club would send it into the playoffs.

Coach Doug (Peahead) Walker of the Als figures that this is the time for his charges to hit the win column. And Walker gets into the love-'em act with this observation: "There is no d... forget. We've played them all. But Carl's (Voyles) club has the best balance and most speed. I think they're going to take it this year."

The second-place Argonauts take on third-place Rough Riders at Toronto Saturday and a loss for the Dominion Champion Riders would just about send them to the sidelines for the season. Argonauts wind up the schedule with a home-and-home series against the fading Alouettes and Rough Riders have two games on tap—at Hamilton Nov. 1 and at Ottawa against the Tiger-Cats Nov. 8.



Tiger-Cats, with their stated preference to meet Argonauts rather than Rough Riders in the Big Four finals, apparently will go all out to knock Clem Crowe's champs kicking.

INTO SECOND HALF

The Senior Intercollegiate Union rounds into the second half of its 24-game schedule with the league champion Toronto Varsity Blues travelling to Kingston for their second meeting of the year with Queen's Golden Gaels. University of Western Ontario Mustangs are at home to McGill Redmen in the other college contest.

Meanwhile, the Senior Ontario Rugby Football Union is having its troubles. Windsor Royals, who haven't won a game since 1950, are out of the league for the season. Their scheduled game at Toronto Sunday against Balmy Beach has been cancelled.

The Beaches will fill the spot with an exhibition game against Oshawa of the Intermediate O.R.F.U. The other week-end game pits the league-leading Sarnia Imperials against Brantford Redskins at Sarnia.

King Edward Wins

Three goals were scored downwind, two for King Edward in the first half and one for Queen Mary in the second as the former won 2-1 in senior school soccer. Walling booted one early and R. Rowe later kicked in a rebound. In the second period, Dafoe, assisted by Henry, drove one by the goalie in a spirited contest. Walling and W. Rowe made some neat plays for the winners, as Crombie and Henry played hard for the other side. Teams:

Queen Mary — Haig, Henry, Jobbitt, Bignal, Dafoe, K. Clarke, B. Clarke, Mann, McArthur, Drury, Perritt, Milne, Wilson, Staves, Reynolds, Crombie.

Referees—H. Curry and G. Hagerman.

Eskimos Have Grim Practice

EDMONTON (CP)—Frank Filchock's Edmonton Eskimos, new underdogs in the Western Football Conference semi-finals, last night drove through a grim practice and hoped they could trip the resurgent Calgary Stampeders.

Wednesday night Les Lear's Stampeders, looking better than they have since winning the Grey Cup in 1948, whipped Eskimos 31-12 in the first game of a two-game total-points series for the right to meet Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the western finals.

The Stampeders, 2-3 underdogs before the game, now are overwhelming favorites to win the series on the basis of the 19-point margin they will carry into the second game at Edmonton Saturday.

Coach Filchock after the game said:

"We were bad, all of us. Let's forget this one. We'll get 'em Saturday. We can still do it."

Coach Lear last night ran the Stamps through a light workout. The players are confident of winning the series, but Lear was cautious.

"Remember there's another game to go yet," he said.

PIRIE FRACTURES WRIST

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Sydney Millionaires announced last night that Lorne Pirie, speedy winger from South Porcupine, Ont., has a fractured wrist and will be inactive for a month. He was injured Wednesday during a game with Charlottetown Islanders.

Despirito Nearing 300-Win Mark

SALEM, N.H. (AP)—Tony Despirito, 17-year-old jockey from Lawrence, Mass., today was only two victories shy of the 300-mark, a year's total gained by only seven other riders on the United States turf.

Fain, Gordon Best Night Game Batters

NEW YORK (AP)—Ferris Fain, American League batting king, and Sid Gordon, who hit only .289 in National League competition, were the most productive night game batters in the major leagues during the 1952 campaign.

Associated Press statistics disclosed today that Fain, 30-year old Philadelphia Athletics first baseman, pounded out 65 base hits in 176 trips in arc-light play to lead the American League with a .369 mark. His season's day and night average was .327.

Mickey Mantle, with 54 hits in 153 tries, was right behind Fain in the American League at .353. The brilliant young outfielder, a .311 over-all hitter, played in 40 night games.

Hear Houston Makes Offer To Get Cards

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—A report that a group of wealthy Houston people had made an offer to transfer St. Louis Cardinals to Houston drew a "no comment now" from Fred Saigh, president of the National League Club.

Saigh has been in Houston studying the situation of the Cardinal farm club in the Texas league. Recently Allen Russell resigned as president of the Houston club to become owner of the Beaumont franchise.

The report, which had no official source, was that the deal involved moving the Cardinals to Houston but not sale of the National League franchise.

J. Kelcey Leads

Joan Kelcey rolled high three of 702 this week in the Y.M.C.A. girls' bowling loop, as L. Martin had top single of 252. She was followed by P. Menard with 250, J. Kelcey 248, B. Castle and M. Wood with 237 each, and M. Flaherty 234. Second best triple was 606 by Irene Penrose.

Bombers and Aces took six points from Hurricanes and Corvettes respectively on the night's play, while Commandos and Glens took four points each in that order from the Tigers and Lucky Strikes.

Richard Hitting His Stride As Habs, Hawks Tie 2-2

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Was somebody asking what had happened to Maurice (The Rocket) Richard? The beetle-browed Montreal Canadiens sharpshooter who undoubtedly will become the National Hockey League's greatest scorer this season, hit his peak last night as Canadiens were held to a 2-2 tie by the Black Hawks at Chicago. Richard scored both Montreal goals, his first of the season.

The much-maligned right-winger had only three assists in six games and fans, accustomed to seeing his name up with the scoring leaders, were wondering what had come over the usually-reliable Rocket. He supplied an effective answer last night in the only game on the schedule.

NEARS STEWART'S MARK

His pair of goals gave him a lifetime total of 321, just three short of the all-time N.H.L. record of 324 set by Nels Stewart and it is conceivable now that Richard will surpass that mark long before Christmas.

The tie put Canadiens in a three-way deadlock with Detroit Red Wings and the Hawks for first place.

Richard scored his pair in the first period in slightly more than five minutes. Just 27 seconds after opening face-off he whistled in alone to beat Hawk goalkeeper Al Rollins and at 5:31 he sent the Canadiens into a 2-0 lead with an assist going to Butch Bouchard.

The Hawks matched Richard's performance in the final period with Doc Couture the marksman. He counted at 5:45 on assists from Gus Bodnar and George Gee and again at 10:30 with Gee and Bill Gadsby helping.

Coombs To Coach Lindsay Entry

LINDSAY.—Plans are finally taking shape for this season's Lindsay entry in the O. H. A. Junior "B" circuit. An executive meeting held Wednesday organized the staff of this year's club.

The club, as yet unnamed, got some unexpected assistance this week from Reg. Truax, starry 15-year-old goalie, returned from the camp of the Barrie Flyers, where he was trying out. Truax, who worked with the Syracuse Warriors of the A.H.L. and the Springfield Indians of the Eastern Amateur League, during their practice sessions here, will play for the locals once again.

"Sixty" Coombs, former local great, will coach the aggregation, after being elected to the post at Wednesday night's meeting. He will make the selections for the team from a large list of candidates, all local talent. A policy of working without imports this year has been instituted to cut costs.

As presently constituted, the list of players contains only about six of B age with the rest still eligible for juvenile competition. Releases for the latter will be necessary for the minor hockey association, but the abundance of players of that age should not make the job too difficult.

Practices will commence next week and the group schedule, not as yet released, will commence about the second week in November. The group includes Kingston, Belleville, Cobourg, Peterborough, and Lindsay.

The Lindsay Kinsmen Club has dropped sponsorship of the league after running into heavy expense over the past two seasons. Much of the backing for this year's team, in the way of equipment and finances, has come from Eddie Shore, who has brought his professional teams here to train for the past three seasons.

They'll Do It Every Time — By Jimmy Hatlo

Actor 'Murdered' Eight Times a Week

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Vancouver's Warren Sutton is "murdered" eight times a week, and he's getting a little tired of it.

Six nights a week and twice on Thursdays and Saturdays, the 23-year-old Canadian actor is, to all dramatic intents, beaten to death in the London production of "The Troublemakers," now playing at the Strand Theatre.

"Some day I'd like to play some other part than that of the good guy who gets it rough," said Sutton with a laugh. Recently he was tortured and beaten in "The Silent Man," a television film produced for North American audiences. He has also played the boxing hero in "The Golden Boy."

ROLE OF STUDENT

Sutton, who appears in Britain under the stage name of Warren Stanhope, "lives" only about 10 minutes in his present part. He plays a young liberal-minded student in an American university, and he is killed off in the first act by some alcoholic fellow students who don't like his politics.

The play gets its dramatic force from the mental struggles of the murdered student's room-mate, who stands idly by while the killing occurs and is later smitten by remorse. American actor Gene Lyons was an overnight success as the sensitive scholar who works himself up to confession pitch—only to find a confession isn't wanted.

IN RADIO AND TV

Sutton, who made his stage debut with the University of British Columbia Players Club, came to Britain three years ago after spare-time theatre parts in Toronto. Most of his work here has been with the BBC in radio and television, but he has also had a film role in "Tale of Five Cities," starring Barbara Kelly of Vancouver.

In addition to his stage commitments he now is "dubbing" the English version for the male lead in a Swedish film starring hollywood's Signe Hasso.

TIRES OF MURDER—Vancouver's Warren Sutton is getting tired of "murder" — his own murder that is. Six nights a week and twice on matinee days the 23-year-old Canadian actor is beaten to death in a west-end London theatre production of "The Troublemakers." Active also in BBC television and radio, he came to London three years ago. His stage name is Warren Standhope.

Nimble Frenchmen Capture 11 Games By Shutout Route

ST. PIERRE (CP) — When a youngster gets old enough for athletics in the French colony of St. Pierre-Miquelon he doesn't try to emulate the feats of Babe Ruth or Maurice Richard in baseball and hockey.

Instead, he sets his heart on making the association sportive Saint-Pierraise football team, the pride and joy of the enthusiastic, fun-loving residents of this rocky island about 11 miles south of Newfoundland in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Football—or soccer—is taken seriously in this fishing town of 3,500. And intense pride for their team stems from its performance on the island and in Newfoundland, where all club opposition has been defeated by the nimble Frenchmen.

WELL SUPPORTED

Until a few years ago, outsiders generally associated this colony with wistful dreams of a Shangri-La where a full-course meal, a jug of good champagne and a bottle of imported perfume could all be bought for a five-dollar bill.

Their economy — bolstered by generous subsidies from France—still exists although residents have since, perhaps, become prouder of their football team than anything else.

The reason is obvious. The team has won every regular game this year. They played sea-bronzed French, Portuguese, Spanish and Newfoundland trawler crews, and teams from several Newfoundland centres, including St. John's

Eleven of their 12 victories were shutouts.

Last month four St. John's clubs formed an all-star team to take the measure of the undefeated islanders. But it was by only a two-goal margin.

Next day the rugged Frenchmen played Holy Cross, city champions and holders of the St. John's cup, and whipped them 5-1.

Match Race Assured For Pimlico Special

BALTIMORE (AP) — A match race, fifth in the history of the famous Pimlico Special, was assured yesterday when only General Staff and One Hitter were entered officially for Saturday's winner-take-all classic.

The snooty special is by invitation only, and the 1 3-16 mile event is being raced for the 16th time at Pimlico.

The most famous two horse Special was 1937, the notable meeting in which Seabiscuit defeated War Admiral, winner of the Inaugural Special in 1937.

Rangers Return Two Players

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Rangers of the National Hockey League disposed of forwards Jack McLeod and Ron Murphy yesterday and added centre Andy Bathgate and defenceman Harry Howell to their roster.

McLeod was sent to Saskatoon Quakers and Murphy was returned to Guelph Biltmores.

Murphy, Bathgate, Howell and Dean Prentice all starred for Guelph's Memorial Cup champions last year. The quartet was brought up for three games because of injuries to key Ranger players.

Bathgate and Howell will be signed to pro contracts while Prentice has two games remaining before a decision must be made. Prentice is described as the best of the rookies.

Murphy also is highly regarded [illegible] it was decided that it would be best for Murphy to return to Guelph.

Capacity Audience Hears British Anglican Minister

"Professional churchmen" who have not accepted Christianity as the motivating power and integrating force of human existence are the worst sinners of all, an Anglican evangelist from England told a capacity audience at the Brock Arena Thursday night.

Canon Bryan Green branded cas 'al Christians who go to church and even serve as church officials but who l.ve "not faith or assurance of faith" as being worse than Communists who "have another Gospel."

"It is no use being churchmen if you are not a Christian," declared the rector from Birmingham who has established a reputation throughout the English speaking world as a missioner.

TO LEAD MISSION

Canon Green is in Canada to lead the Diocesan Mission being held in the Coliseum at Toronto from Oct. 26 to Nov. 4, sponsored by the Toronto diocese of the Church of England.

The service in the Brock Arena Thursday night was under the auspices of the Archdeanery of Peterborough and a crowd of well over 2,000 from Anglican parishes throughout the district and city heard Canon Green's address.

"With atheism around us and secularism growing, nothing less than an integrated Christianity can stand up to the stresses and strains of today," he warned.

Taking as his text: "I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ, it is the power of God unto salvation and integration to everyone who believes in it." Canon Green said "Religion integrates personalities. The Communists believe they have found an integrating power in the party line. The Communists agree with Christians that the world is not right yet."

As examples of the lack of integration in society today, Canon Green cited war, and the threat of war, class struggles and racial discrimination of the kind in South Africa and the southern United States.

PREVENT UNITY

There are three groups of people in the world today said Canon Green who are preventing the unifying force of Christianity from integrating human relationships.

They are: the communists who have their own gospel; people who are indifferent as to whether society is integrated or not and have no interests outside the sphere of their own daily living; and the ones "most truly damned, professing churchmen who glibly repeat the words of the Christian faith," which mean nothing to them.

In a philosophical analysis of the basis of Christianity, Canon Green explained why Christianity appeals to anyone searching for a meaning to the purpose of life.

"There is something in us that makes us see atheism does not make sense," he explained. "Many atheists don't live by their own ideas, because it doesn't make sense of life."

To illustrate his point Canon Green quoted a statement by Bertrand Russell that "life is merely an uncontrollable accumulation of atoms." Is not a kiss between a husband and wife or a girl and her boy friend more than the meeting of an accumulation of atoms? he asked. Canon Green added that the psychological interpretation of Freud's that all actions are motivated by instincts is equally unsatisfactory.

While there are various ways individuals may make this pilgrimage, he suggested the most frequent and common way is as follows:

(1) Acquiescent acceptance in the manner children take for granted the story of religion told them by their parents and teachers.

(2) The adolescent stage when young people become ashamed of Christianity and doubt the truth of the Gospel of Christ. This doubt can come at the emotional, intellectual, or moral level Canon Green said.

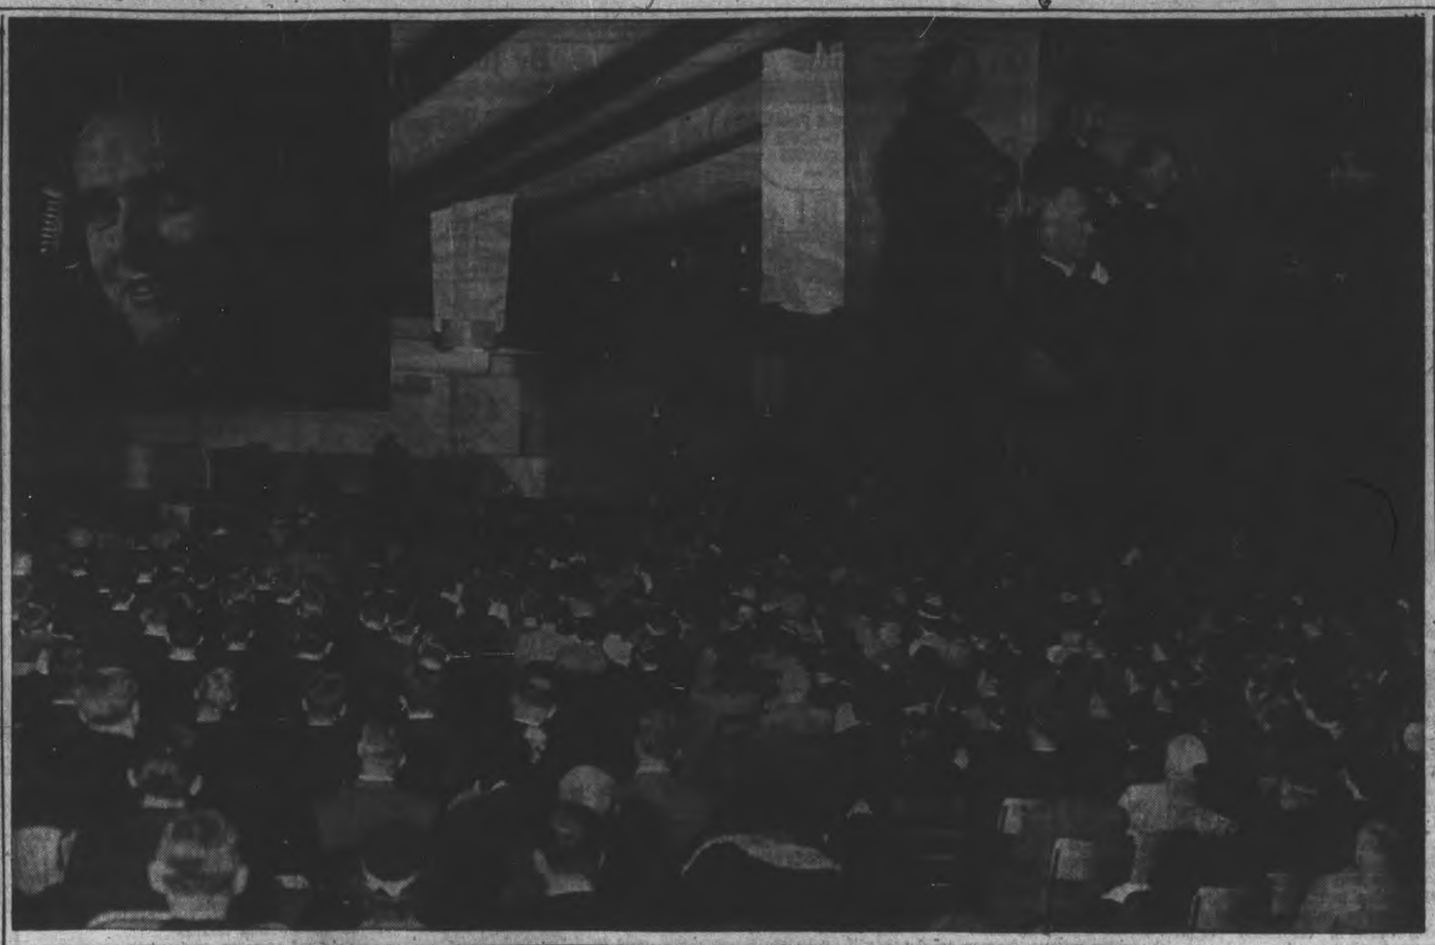
At this point, Canon Green said that if he could project the thoughts of many of the middle aged people in the audience on a screen his analysis of the reasons why so many people become "lukewarm toward the church," would be a reflection of their thoughts.

"Stalin was once a theological student and probably rejected the gospel along the lines I have mentioned. Many still come to church but in their hearts they are ashamed. Others are more honest, utterly disregarding the gospel."

ASHAMED OF DOUBTS

After the stage of doubting the thruths of Christianity, Canon Green said comes the stage of being ashamed of having doubts. This stage may also come at the emotional, intellectual or moral level he said.

Then comes the point when a person "really wants a faith to integrate his life. Don't look to other Christians, or the church which is only a human organization as you see it. The place to look to complete the pilgrimage is the life of Jesus Christ as told in the New Testament."



Finally he said comes "assurance of faith" when you know for yourself Christianity has made your life complete.

A massed choir from Anglican churches in the city and representatives of surrounding parishes lead in the hymn singing prior to Canon Green's address.

The Archdeaconry of Peterborough extends from Haliburton to Bowmanville, east to Brighton and north to Campbellford. Many representatives of congregations and clergy from throughout the archdeaconry were present.

Charge Reduced

CHATHAM (CP)—Allan Hurst was found guilty on the reduced charge of wounding with intent to disable by a Supreme Court jury here yesterday. He had originally been charged with attempted murder in the stabbing of Mrs. Laura Gregory. Mr. Justice A.M. LeBel said he would sentence Hurst at the end of the assizes. Hurst admitted having stabbed Mrs. Gregory, saying he was jealous.

Young's Pt. Boy Wins In Oratory

SELWYN (ENS) —The first oratorical contest sponsored by the Selwyn Women's Institute was held in the church hall Friday evening.

There were eight contestants in all, four coming from S.S. No. 8 Smith at Young's Point and the other four from S.S. No. 9 Smith. John Godfrey of Young's Point speaking on the life of Winston Churchill, was chosen as winner, with a close second taken by Betty Raddon of S.S. No. 9. Her subject being, "The Seeing Eye". Judges were Mrs. Reg McConkey of Bridgenorth, Mrs. Cameron Freeburn of Young's Point, and Miss Bertina Beavis of Lakefield.

The first and second prize winners each received a fountain pen, while the other six received consolation prizes of mony.

The other contestants were: Lois Lloyd of Young's Point, (Queen Elizabeth); Mary Ellen Young of Young's Point, (Brebeuf, a Jesuit); Beverley Freeburn of Young's Point, (The Royal Family); Joan Ziroff of Selwyn, (Peterborough County); Margaret Tully of Selwyn, (Coffee); Barry Fitzpatrick of Selwyn, (Indians of North America).

The winners were announced by Miss Beavis and the prizes were awarded by Mrs. George McIlmoyl. The president, Mrs. Kenneth Sweeting, introduced the judges and they were thanked by Mrs. McIlmoyl.

A short program was enjoyed and those taking part were: Doreen and Mary Raddon, piano duet; Beryl, Karen and Ethel Rosborough, a vocal trio; Marybeth Wilson, a guitar solo; and Mrs. Fitzgerald and daughter, Pauline, a piano duet.

Sent To Reformatory

Chronic alcoholic, Leo Emery, 50, appeared before Magistrate W. R. Philp Thursday. He pleaded guilty to two drunk charges, both alleging two prior convictions for drunkeness within the last year.

He was sentenced to two terms of four months definite and one month indefinite in reformatory, with a recommendation he be sent to Mimico for alcoholic treatment.

Speaks On Missions In Africa To Auxiliary

HASTINGS (ENS)—The W.M.S. of Trinity United Church held its October meeting at the parsonage with Mrs. N. Cole as the hostess.

The president, Mrs. A. E. Metcalfe, opened the meeting and the worship period was in charge of Mrs. R. Collins Mrs. M. Rymenson, Mrs. C. Oliver and Miss K German.

Proceeds from the dinner served the day of the rally by the Afternoon and Exening Auxiliaries of the W.M.S. were turned over to the Afternoon Auxiliary.

It was voted to sponsor a Hallowe'en party for the children of the Mission Band, prizes for the best costume to be judged by Mrs. W. S. Way and Mrs. R. Collins.

The guest speaker was Mrs. Newman, of Havelock. Her birthplace was Japan, and wide experience in mission fields enabled her to speak with authority and interest on Africa.

British Industrialist Has Plan For Balancing Trade Deficit

By FORBES RHUDE

TORONTO (CP) — If Canada would switch to Britain six per cent of what she buys from all countries of the world, then trade between the two countries would be balanced, Sir Archibald Forbes, president of the Federation of British Industries, said yesterday.

He was addressing the closing session of the three-day annual meeting of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

He said that of all the goods which Canada buys outside her own borders, she buys eight per cent from Britain, compared with 18 per cent before the war.

BRITAIN BIG BUYER

Britain, he continued, has always bought more from Canada than she sold here, and in 1951, even with dollar difficulties, she bought products worth $675,000,000, while Canada bought from her products worth $421,000,000. This gap has widened in 1952.

income, or reduce our dollar expenditure.

"If we could extend our sales in Canada by about six per cent of your total imports, the Anglo-Canadian trade position would be brought into balance and the hopes of Canadian exporters for opportunities in the British market, free of artificial restrictions, would be nearer fulfilment. . .

"Not only is there some justification for claiming that our purchases of Canadian products entitle us to a larger share of Canadian imports, but it would be in the long-term interest of Canada.

"Every dollar spent by Canada in the United Kingdom would be virtually returned in the purchase of Canadian products. . ."

U.S. TRADE VULNERABLE

He asked if the high proportion of Canada's trade with the United States "does not make for some vulnerability in the Canadian economy.

"Canadian exports to the United degree of stability. I suggest that the long-term advantages of a relatively stable trade may offset apparently greater advantages in the short-term from trade of a possibly more fluctuating character."

Cut Drinker's Fine

SASKATOON (CP) — A $100 fine assessed William Doreon three weeks ago for drinking beer while standing in a Saskatoon tavern has been reduced to $25. The $100 minimum fine was imposed by Acting Magistrate J.M. Goldenberg under the Saskatchewan Liquor Act which specifies patrons must be seated while drinking.

Knife Through Heart

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Walter E. Thalen, 39, was found dead yesterday with a 12-inch butcher knife through his heart in an apartment in which police reported there were lewd pictures of men. He apparently had been struck over the head with a potted palm before the knife was driven through his body.

200 CUCKOOS

There are about 200 species of the cuckoo, nearly all of them noted for their parasitic habits. They do not build nests.

Bethany W.A. Serves Successful Dinner

BETHANY (ENS)—The turkey supper served by the Women's Association of the United Church on Wednesday evening was a success, with an exceptionally large crowd in attendance. Following the supper a concert was held in the town hall which included violin and guitar selections by Morley and Levi McGill; guitar and piano numbers by Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Bristow; vocal duets by Mrs. Ernest Lam and Mrs. Hope Rayson, "Harbor Lights."

Readings were given by Miss Elsie Richardson; solos by Ralph Preston; solos by Allan Beer in Scotch costume; a dance number by Jone Wright and Leone Jordan. Vocal duets with guitar accompaniment were sung by Creighton Carr and Miss Marie Carr; vocal duets by Ralph Preston and Miss Evelyn Preston.

The Rev. James Hampson was chairman, congratulating the ladies on their successful supper, announcing the proceeds as approximately $365 and thanking all the local talent who had provided the program.

Mrs. Thomas Butler

MARMORA (ENS) — The

afternoon in Toronto, being followed by burial in Pine Hill cemetery, Toronto. Her death occurred suddenly at Peterborough Civic Hospital on Tuesday.

She was born in Marmora, daughter of Mrs. Wiena Pinner and the late George Pinner. Her early life was spent in Marmora until her marriage to Thomas Butler, also a former resident here. Since moving to Toronto, they were frequent visitors to Marmora.

Surviving are her husband and her aged mother, living in Belleville; three sons, Percy, James and Jack, of Toronto; four daughters, Mrs. R. Beck (Leona), Toronto, Mrs. P. M. Young (Urena), Peterborough, Mrs. D. C. Wyllie (Aileen), London, Ont., and Mrs. L. Gilman (Dolly), Windsor. She is also survived by one sister, Mrs. George Hartley (Nina), of Marmora.

In Critical Condition

HAMLIN, W.VA. (AP) — Likie R. Smith, 17, accidentally shot himself yesterday, then hiked a half-mile over a mountain trail carrying his protruding internal organs in his hands. Smith was reported in critical condition today with a shotgun wound in the stomach.

Why Council Accepted Lower Offer

LINDSAY — Alderman Lloyd Burrows Thursday explained the reason for this town's council accepting what appeared to be a lower bid for a piece of land on Highway 35.

Council accepted a bid of $1,200 from Ray Weldon, of Lindsay, at the same time refusing a bid from a Cannington construction firm of $1,500.

Ald. Burrows, who is finance committee chairman of Lindsay council, pointed this out: the $1,500 offer was conditional on the dump (opposite the land sold) being closed next year.

This would have entailed some expense by council, in that another dump site would have to be found, and it would have bound the 1953 council to close the dump or refund the money. Ald. Burrows mentioned a possible expenditure of $3,000 to close the dump.

Canadian-Jap Firms Begin Joint Project

SINGAPORE (Reuters)—A Canadian aluminum firm, in co-operation with Japanese industrialists, will shortly begin a project to mine bauxite in Johore state, Canadian Trade Commissioner D.S. Armstrong said today.

The ore will be exported rather than manufactured into aluminum here, owing to the absence of cheap electricity.

The Canadian interest involved is Aluminum Laboratories Limited, an associate of the Aluminum Corporation of Canada.

Stealing is no way to collect a debt, declared Magistrate W. R. Philp today in refusing a request by crown counsel Alexander Fleming for suspended sentence for two Otonabee township youths.

After James McMillan, 19 and Gordon Whelan, 18 pleaded guilty to stealing a radio and aerial from a car owned by Arnold Woods Tuesday night, Mr. Fleming asked that the pair be given suspended sentence.

Mr. Fleming said the crown was "prepared to consent to suspended sentence because the theft was in the nature of a practical joke and it was their first offence."

Magistrate Philp said he wanted to hear some evidence.

After the investigating officer, O.P.P. Constable John Gray took the stand and explained the circumstances of the theft, Magistrate Philp told Mr. Fleming, "I can't agree with you on suspended sentence."

FINED $32.50 EACH

He fined McMillan and Whelan each $32.50 and $2.50 costs and warned them "it is only seldom a man has a chance of answering a conviction of theft by a fine."

Neither McMillan, nor Whelan were represented by legal counsel, and although Mr. Fleming and Constable Gray tried their best to get the pair off on suspended sentence, neither youth offered any explanation in their own defence.

Constable Gray testified that he found the radio which had been reported stolen by Woods, in a car owned by McMillan.

TRACED TO WHELAN

He said the licence number of a car seen near the Woods' car was traced to Whelan, and after talking to Whelan he went to McMillan's residence. He said McMillan stated he had stolen the radio and aerial which would be worth approximately $65.

"Whelan admitted being in on the theft," Constable Gray said.

Magistrate Philp then cross-examined Constable Gray on Mr. Fleming's reference to the radio being stolen as a practical joke.

The radio and aerial which were produced in court were taken from Woods' car which had been in the garage on the Woods' property, Constable Gray told the Magistrate.

"It looks like a plain case of theft," said Magistrate Philp. Then, Constable Gray said he had learned by hearsay that McMillan had been working for Woods and there had been a dispute between them over some money McMillan claimed Woods owed him.

At this point, Mr. Fleming repeated that he felt "the circumstances justify suspended sentence."

"Why?" asked Magistrate Philp when these men go into another man's garage and take a radio out of his car.

Magistrate Philp then asked McMillan if he wanted to question the officer regarding the alleged dispute.

"He owed me enough money to pay for the radio and I wanted to get square with him," replied McMillan. "He refused to pay me."

Whelan said he had nothing to say.

Turning to Mr. Fleming, the Magistrate said: "Even if they didn't realize fully the significance of the method of collecting they had gone far beyond it. Otherwise we are going to have a number of cases of people trying to settle debts by stealing."

Giving the youths suspended sentence would result in "an erroneous idea being set forth among certain sections of the community," said the Magistrate. They will get the idea they can settle debts in that manner without having to fear any serious results.

Gold Used To Quell Fire In Mine Building

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (Reuters) — Gold was used last night to put out a fire which destroyed one of the main buildings of a mine near here.

Hydrants did not provide enough water, so firemen pumped water from a cyanide-mixing sump pump which mine officials said contained "quite a lot of gold."

Call For Implementation Of Hope Education Report

WINDSOR — (CP) — The president of the Ontario Public School Trustees' Association yesterday called for implementation of the Hope report on education in Ontario which would eliminate separate school education after the sixth grade.

"The Hope report cannot and must not be sidetracked for any reason, be it religious or political. The interests of the public school stand above and beyond the fortunes of politics or party."

Premier Frost, said Mr. Shantz, is "hardly enthusiastic" about the Hope report. The report, however, was "larger than any single person at Queen's Park."

The P.T.S.A. had made no previous representations in the matter, believing that the government should have an opportunity of studying the document before reaching a decision.

However, he said, the 22-month delay in implementation since submission of the report had occurred because of "the government's fear of incurring the displeasure of a small but vocal minority."

The report, that of a Royal Commission of inquiry conducted by Mr. Justice J.A. Hope, was submitted in December, 1950. It contains a number of recommendations other than those relating to separate school education.

Ask India To Help

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United States has asked India to help arrange a truce in Korea through top-level diplomatic contact with the Asian Communists, sources here disclosed yesterday. Such requests, the sources said, were made "on a very high diplomatic level in Washington" recently and have been repeated more recently.

Truck Driver Wins Acquittal

MONTREAL (CP)—A coroner's jury yesterday freed a Brockville truck driver of criminal responsibility in the death of a child but criticized him for driving close to other vehicles.

Coroner Dr. August Clement added a criticism that trucking companies should make sure their drivers have had sufficient sleep between long hauls.

The inquest was into the death of 11-year-old Claude Verville, run over Saturday by a truck driven by Clifford Place, 40, Brockville. Another child, Jean-Claude Martin, suffered a fractured leg and lacerations in the same accident.

Place testified he swerved to a St. Antoine street sidewalk in trying to avoid a small car ahead which he claimed stopped without warning.

University Editorial Board Has Resigned

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—The University of Western Ontario Gazette is without an editor. Editor Jane Tiel and her editorial board resigned in a body last night.

The resignation, according to a statement tendered over Miss Tiel's signature, followed refusal of the University Students' Council to vote confidence in the editorial board of the Gazette and the Central Advertising Bureau, which handles all advertising in the student publication. The University Students' Council is the governing body among Western students under which the Gazette operates.

The council cited "underlying hostilities" between the Gazette and the Central Advertising Bureau as leading to the present impasse.

BURNING KISS

MODENA, Italy (AP)—Two newlyweds kissed themselves into the hospital yesterday. The husband was repairing a short circuit when the wife gave him a screwdriver and a kiss. His hand touched the live wire.

Oldest Practising Doctor Father Of Bank Manager

At 94, Dr. Roderick J. Macdonald of St. Peter's Bay, Prince Edward Island, is probably the oldest practicing physician in Canada, if not the entire world.

As a country doctor in the island province, Dr. Macdonald has been treating the sick and injured of the St. Peter's Bay district, near Charlottetown, for 64 years.

Dr. Macdonald is the father of R. E. Macdonald, manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia branch here and he visited his son in Peterborough in 1945.

In addition to his long record as an active medical practitioner, Dr. Macdonald can also lay claim to being one of the oldest licenced car drivers in the world.

HONORED BY POPE

Recently, he was honored by Pope Pius XII for his long service to humanity in the medical profession and the exemplary life he has led. At an investiture in the little parish church of St. Peter's Bay, he will receive the papel honor of being made a Papal Knight of St. Gregory the Great.

Retirement is a word that is not in Dr. Macdonald's vocabulary. Three generations of some families in the district have been brought into the world by Dr. Macdonald and he is still going strong.

He has office hours daily and answers calls day or night to ease the suffering of victims of accidents and illness. During the summer months, he drives his own car to make his calls around the district of St. Peter's Bay where "Doc Macdonald" has become a tradition.

Commenting editorially on the recent honor of Papal Knighthood conferred on him by the Pope, the Charlottetown Guardian termed his long service in his profession "a unique record in this or any other country."

STAR IN FILM

Recently the National Film Board sent a field party to St. Peter's to film a feature short on the life of a country doctor, with Dr. Macdonald as the star player. Yousef Karsh, the top portrait photographer of world celebrities and statesmen took a series of portraits of the patriarch Maritime physician a few months ago.

Life moves at a leisurely pace in Prince Edward Island—a feature of the island province often commented on by vacationers who visit there. This is possibly one explanation of Dr. Macdonald's longevity, but living to a grand old age runs in the family, as several of the Macdonald clan have lived well past the 90 mark.

Dr. Macdonald regards his presentation to the then Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh when they visited Charlottetown last fall, as the highlight of his long life.

Questioned by the Princess as to what he owed his long life, the kindly old doctor's reply brought a smile to the faces of both the Princess and the Duke. "I've always wondered why I lived so long," he answered. "Now I know . . . ." meaning so he could be presented to a Princess.

Born in St. Andrews, P.E.I., in 1858, he was educated at St. Dunstan's and Prince of Wales Colleges. After teaching school for six years, he entered the faculty of medicine at Trinity College, April 1888.

Bullet Far From Fatal

PLYMOUTH, England (Reuters)—Thirty-eight years after a German bullet lodged close by his heart, Frank Hallett, 59, died yesterday after a fall from his bicycle. Hallett was fighting with British troops in France in the First World War when the bullet struck him. Doctors said it was too near his heart to be removed.

Wind Speeds Plane

LONDON (Reuters)—Strong tail winds yesterday blew a 60-seat British Overseas Airways' air liner nearly 3½ hours ahead of its schedule on a flight from Bermuda to London. It travelled at an average speed of 400 miles an hour, "one of the fastest flights ever," a spokesman said.

10 Die In Crash

SAIGON, Indo-China (Reuters)—Ten persons were killed and one severely injured when a French air force Junkers transport crashed into a mountain near here during a storm Monday, it was disclosed yesterday. The plane was caught in the tornado which preceded the big typhoon in Indo-China this week.

Chases Plane To Destruction

WINNIPEG (CP)—Flt. Lt. Ernest Glover, Canada's top Korean War pilot, yesterday told how he chased an enemy plane to its destruction last month without firing a shot.

En route home to Leaside, Ont., on leave, the 30-year-old R.C.A.F. pilot described the battle in an interview here. He also is credited with destroying two other planes and damaging three while flying 50 missions with the 4th fighter wing of the U.S. air force in Korea.

"On Sept. 8 I was flying No. 3 in an element of four aircraft along the Yalu when two of us got separated," he said. "We ran into 16 MiGs at about 35,000 feet.

"Two were running southwest and we behind and below them so they wouldn't see us."

One MiG started violent evasive action and was forced down to 3,000 feet.

"The Communist pilot overcontrolled, snapped into a spin and hit the deck," he said.

Coat Saves Child

OTTAWA (CP)—A heavy winter coat was credited with saving the life of two-year-old Catherine McNally when she fell into the Rideau River. It kept her afloat while a six-year-old brother ran home and brought his mother to the scene. Mrs. James McNally waded into the river and rescued her daughter.

Honor Ray Lawson

TORONTO (CP)—Hon. Ray Lawson, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario from 1946-52, was honored yesterday at an informal gathering of the cabinet, the Liberal house leader and the Speaker of the legislature. He was presented with a silver box, bearing the provincial coat of arms, for his services to the province.

Great-Grandmother Guilty Of Manslaughter

TORONTO (CP)—Anna Maydan, 64-year-old great-grandmother, was acquitted yesterday of a murder charge but found guilty of manslaughter by an Assize Court jury. The jury made a strong recommendation of leniency.

Mrs. Maydan was accused of the murder of her second husband, Michael Maydan, 62. The crown charged that she smashed her husband's head with a two-foot wrecking bar last Aug. 16.

Mrs. Maydan was remanded for sentence until Oct. 31.

Have Your Children Take Interest In United Nations

By NANCY CLEAVER

"If you see the picture of the U.N. flag, in the newspaper mother, keep it for me. I want it for my Current Events Scrapbook. The teacher says that everybody should know this flag and what the U.N. is doing in other parts of the world beside Korea."

"That would be keen. Then I could paste it on the cover!"

The name "United Nations" began to be used during World War II. The common dangers and hardships of a war tend to bind allies together. The "U.N." title signified the hope that the people fighting together for freedom would be united in building a peaceful world. In April of 1945, when victory seemed sure, fourteen hundred delegates from 46 countries met in San Francisco for a conference on international organization. On June 26, 1945, this gathering adopted the charter of the United Nations.

AIM TO KEEP PEACE

On U.N. Day, Oct. 24 we would remind ourselves and our boys and girls that the first and foremost aim of the United Nations is to Keep the Peace! But another important goal is to develop international co-operation in economic, cultural, social and humanitarian problems. By its charter it also tries to forward regard for human rights and the fundamental freedom of all. The task of the U.N. is to "develop friendly relations among nations based on respect for the principles of equal rights and self-determination of peoples."

The U.N. differs from the League of Nations in that the great powers have membership in it and the majority of small nations too. The United States never joined the League of Nations and Russia was a member for only a short time. The formation of the U.N. has not abolished the threat of global war. But it does provide the meeting ground for the discussion of problems and quietly and steadily U.N. workers are striving to reduce the hunger and want and ignorance which contribute to suffering and warfare on a "large scale."

FIVE AGENCIES

At school our children may learn about the work of the U.N. carried on by the five agencies—the General Assembly; the Security Council made up of six members from the General Assembly and the permanent "Big Five," China, France, Great Britain, the Soviet Union, and the UUnited States; and the Economic and Social Council; the Trusteeship Council and the Secretariat. One of the best investments a family can make is a membership in the United Nations Association in Canada, 340 McLeod Street, Ottawa. Then literature on the U. N. will come regularly into the home.

There are three new books for boys and girls handled by McGraw-Hill Publishing Company of Canada which deserve warm commendation. Do ask to see them at the Public Library and if at all possible plan to buy one of these books for your family bookshelf. If there are young children in your home they will be delighted with the lovely pictures and large clear print in "A Garden We Planted Together" ($2.50) prepared by the United Nations Department of Information. The youngster ten years old and up will appreciate "A Fair World for All" ($2.5) by that outstanding American writer, Dorothy Canfield Fisher. It explains the principles behind the Universal Declaration of Human Rights in terms boys and girls understand.

MADE REAL TO CHILDREN

Everyone loves a good story, and there are many fascinating tales in Legends of the United Nations ($4.25) by Frances Frost. Folk stories help to make other countries and other peoples real to our children. It is important in their reading and observation for parents to point out to their children as they look at people of other races, in books and in their community, not "How different we are" but "In how many ways we are alike."

Books and newspapers accounts of people and events in other parts of the world and special U.N. radio broadcasts can form the basis for a good family discussion on the United Nations. Be prepared to explain to your children that the United Nations in its present form is not without faults and weaknesses—but these are inevitable in the kind of competitive world in which we live. Try to point out some of the difficulties in finding a pattern for peace in the Far East. Show them that the North Atlantic Pact is not an enemy to the U.N., but a necessary form of protection for freedom-loving, democratic nations.

"Rome was not built in a day" and it may take many decades before the United Nations becomes a more perfect instrument for maintaining world peace. In the meantime be sure your children know something of the thrilling stories of the U.N. fighting the underlying causes of war and misery—hunger, disease and ignorance. The United Nations needs your support and you need the United Nations in a world in which you hope to raise your children to maturity.

$321 Awarded For Car Damage

A judgment of $321 and costs was awarded James Stewart Munro, 681 Wellar St., in a judgment on a damage suit delivered by Judge John de N. Kennedy Thursday.

The suit was in connection with an accident on Highway 28, near Young's Point, on July 12, 1951, involving two cars. The one was driven by the plaintiff Munro, and the other by the defendant in the action, Paul Joseph Ayotte, of Young's Point.

The claim by Munro was for damage which resulted to his car. A counter suit for damages by Ayotte was dismissed.

J. C. N. Currelly appeared for Munro and Ayotte was represented by Trevor E. Clarke.

Executive Council Announced For CCC

TORONTO (CP)—Make-up of the executive council of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce for the coming year was announced yesterday.

Edward C. Wood, Montreal, is chairman and J.G. Crean, Toronto, and R.M. Fowler, Montreal, are vice-chairmen.

Thief Chose Wrong Time

WASHINGTON (AP)—It certainly was the wrong time and place!

Police were investigating a robbery of the apartment of Victoria Olczak early yesterday.

While four officers were looking for clues one of them noticed a door knob turning slowly and quietly.

Outside officers said, was a man holding a pair of pliers. They took him to headquarters and charged him with attempted housebreaking.

Then they returned to the job of looking for the man who had burglarized the apartment earlier.

Top Air Ace Embarrassed By Publicity

By JIM PEACOCK

EDMONTON (CP) — A dark-haired, 30-year-old pilot from Leaside, Ont., is Canada's top Korean air fighter, but he'd rather be back in action than facing newspaper photographers and reporters.

The lanky pilot, Flt. Lt. Ernest Glover, stopped briefly in Edmonton today en route from Korea to Montreal after completing 50 missions over Korea, during which he shot down three MiGs and damaged three more. In Montreal he will be given another assignment.

Canada's top MiG-killer joined the air force in 1940. He saw action in Europe in the Second World War and in May, 1943, was shot down and taken prisoner. In 1945 he left the air force, and returned again in 1948. Last June he went to the United States Air Force on the exchange plan and was with the U.S. 4th Fighter Wing in Korea.

He piloted F-86 Sabre jets on fighter-bomber protection flights, completing his 50 missions before the required six-month duty tour was up.

HAS COMPANY

Flt. Lt. Glover said four other Canadians were with him in Korea. They were Wing Cmdr. R. T. P. Davidson, Vancouver; Sqdn. Ldr. Eric Smith, Nathan, Ont.; Sqdn. Ldr. Doug Lindsay, Arnprior, Ont.; and Flt. Lt. Bob Lowery, North Bay, Ont.

He said the five pilots shot down seven MiGs and probably one more and damaged five, including the three destroyed and three damaged by himself.

Glover, who is married, said he flew a Canadian-built F-86 most of the time. He said his craft was never touched by MiG bullets and he "wasn't at all disappointed about that."

Says Rabies Outbreak Now Stamped Out

REGINA (CP)—Dr. George Rankin of the Regina office of the federal health of animals division said yesterday the rabies outbreak in northern Alberta, Canada's first among livestock, has been stamped out.

Dr. Rankin has just returned from the Fort Vermillion area, 600 miles north of Edmonton, where he was in charge of the rabies control program since early September.

The outbreak killed four head of cattle, 10 hogs, three horses and 50 dogs.

BC Power Dam Construction Proceeding On Schedule

TRAIL, B.C. (CP)—Reporting on construction progress of its $30,000,000 power dam, Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company says: On schedule.

The power plant site is 13 miles south of here on the Pend d'Oreille River, just above its junction with the mighty Columbia. Nearly 1,100 men are working on the job.

Construction started on the project in June, 1951, after a camp to house 600 men had been built. It should be producing power early in 1954.

DAM OFF RIVER

Last winter, the north one-third of the river channel was damned off and construction of the base of the dam and training wall for the power house started.

Recently, the south two-thirds of the river channel was blocked and water diverted through the north third. Pouring of concrete on the south bank—from six-cubic-yard buckets suspended from an 1,800-foot overhead aerial cableway—is scheduled to start within the next few weeks.

LOT OF CEMENT

To date, 44,500 of the 365,000 cubic yards needed for the project have been poured. Some 2,000,000 bags of cement will be used.

Initial output of the generating units will be 210,000 horsepower but this can be doubled later if needed. The dam will be 250 feet high and 900 feet long across the top.

About half the men employed at the project live at the camp built near the power site. The others commute from the Trail district. The monthly payroll now is more than $330,000.

Paper Doesn't Print Letter Judge Going To Sue

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—A county judge filed a $10,000 suit in district court yesterday against the Tulsa World because the morning newspaper did not print a letter he wrote to its "Voice of a Free People" column.

Judge Baker Wall said in his suit failure of the paper to publish his letter "has humiliated and embarrassed" him and held him up to the "ridicule of his friends and neighbors." He described his letter as a defence of the Truman administration.

Bill Henthorne of the World editorial staff, who is in charge of letters to the column, said he has several hundred letters dealing with the political campaign but "can't print all of them."

"This is a new one on me," Henthorne declared. "We've been threatened with all kinds of suits for what we printed but this is the first time we've ever been sued for what we haven't printed."

Air Defence Plan At Top Of Joint Defence Scheme

A significant factor in the defence of Canada is co-operation with the United States. This story, last of a series, describes the plan for joint defence of North America in event of enemy attack.

By DOUGLAS HOW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Any enemy attack on North America would pull the trigger on the first complete plan for joint defence of a continent.

The plan is not spelled out in a single document and the alterations and elaborations are unending, but a master plan for unified defence has been cemented by Canada and the United States since the Second World War.

It is dominated by preparations to meet attack from the air.

"Any actual air defence of North America would not simply be co-ordinated—it would be one," says Defence Minister Claxton.

STARTED IN 1940

This single-defence concept originated in the Ogdensburg agreement of wartime 1940 and was formally projected into peacetime with a pronouncement in 1947.

It pioneered the era of post-war western military alliances and finally was brought into the wider coalition of the North Atlantic Treaty for joint defence of the western world.

But the original continental concept remains and its shape can be discerned.

Many of the new radar stations in Canada are being built and manned by Americans because they can provide protection for U.S. cities. The U.S. has military bases in Newfoundland and Labrador and a detachment at the winter experimental base in Churchill, Man. It helps man and supply joint weather stations in the Arctic.

Canadian and American officers cross the border on exchange duties steadily. Mr. Claxton, on a recent U.S. visit, found a Canadian wing commander acting as a guide at a big U.S. base. Half-a-dozen Canadians are on duty with U.S. fighter squadrons in Korea.

CO-OPERATIVE EFFORT

The Canadian forces have swung toward U.S.-type equipment and Canadian factories are turning out U.S. planes, guns, ammunition and materiel, some of it for the American forces. The defence money spent by Canada in the U.S. and vice versa runs into hundreds of millions of dollars yearly.

It is a matter of seconds by direct phone between the widely separated headquarters of the fighter defence systems of the two countries. From the top down, the two air defence networks are integrated.

If U.S. planes could best fend off a potential attack on New York by meeting the enemy over northern Quebec, they would swoop into Canada as though the border didn't exist. The Canadian air defence network would absorb them at once into its fighting apparatus.

This sort of integration goes for the armies and navies, too, and various manoeuvres have tested it out. Canada will have her own forces to meet any anticipated threat to her soil. But the U.S. will be behind her, aware that they attack against or across Canada could only be part of a design to defeat America.

This alliance has been built up so gradually and secretly that the public is little aware of it. If there have been strains and frictions, the public knows little of these either.

MAGAZINE REPORT

An American magazine recently reported that Washington officials are fed up with Canada's "reluctance" to pull her weight in joint western rearmament. At almost the same time, Mr. Claxton returned from Washington and told the Cabinet that in his talks with the top men in U.S. defence he heard not a single complaint about Canada's effort.

Canada's degree of rearmament does not equal that of the U.S. Her leaders have told Washington they feel the defence load Canada is carrying is about maximum for a sparsely-settled, expanding country in which development of natural resources is a major defence contribution.

Informed quarters say this explanation has been largely accepted among top men in Washington. But the U.S. magazine's critical report is not an isolated instance and there is evidence that not all high authorities in Washington are convinced Canada is doing enough.

STEADY GROWTH

Meanwhile the joint defence design continues steadily to build. The original medium was the Joint Defence Board which has passed through its first decade and, officials say, probably been busier than ever in the last two years.

In addition, a Military Co-operation Committee, with a considerable number of satellite committees, has sprung up since the war. It reports directly to the Chiefs of Staff of the two countries.

M.C.C. and its subordinate bodies do the spadework in a wide range of fields where the countries have mutual interests. The joint board has assumed a sort of elder-statesman, advisory role but little of moment finds its way into the pattern of the alliance without the board's approval.

Gen. A.G.L. McNaughton is Canadian chairman of the board.

It is typical of the quiet, secretive work of M.C.C. that the names of its chairmen have never been made public.

SUBMARINE VISIT — The United States submarine Grampus pulls into Halifax harbor on a visit to Canada. The bow of the Canadian aircraft carrier Magnificent is at right. U.S. submarines and destroyers often visit Halifax after exercises in the North Atlantic.

NEIGHBORS, ALLIES—Canada's Col. W. S. Murdoch (right) explains the army's command system to visiting United States officers as part of the broad pattern of co-operation between the forces of both countries. Hundreds of Canadian and U.S. officers are involved in the system whereby servicemen of each country spend a year or two on exchange duty with the forces of the other country.

What you can believe about "sales"

When you buy something at a "sale", are you really getting extra value? Can you save by shopping in "Bargain Basements"? Is it safe to look for "irregulars"? Are "Preseason Sales" on the level?

In November Reader's Digest, read the fascinating, behind-the-scene story of department store merchandising that tells how department stores (large and small) can manage to run "sales" day after day — and still offer real bargains to their customers.

Baptists Begin Amalgamation

SARNIA (CP) — Delegates to the 24th annual convention of the Union of Regular Baptist Churches of Ontario and Quebec yesterday made the first formal move towards amalgamation with the Fellowship of Independent Baptist Churches of Canada.

[illegible] a resolution recognizing the desirability of "coming together" of the Union and the Fellowship, "provided that the fundamental and basic Baptist principles embodied in the constitution of the Union be preserved."

The second step toward amalgamation of the two groups of "evangelical Baptists" will come next week when a parallel resolution will be voted on, during the annual convention of the Fellowship of Independent Baptist Churches of Canada, in Toronto.

If the resolution is approved by the fellowship, a special convocation of delegates from both groups will be called to consider details of the proposed merger.

Re-elect Macbain Baptist President

SARNIA (CP)—Rev. W.H. Macbain, pastor of Temple Baptist Church here, was re-elected president of the Union of Regular Baptist Churches of Ontario and Quebec at the organization's convention which ended here yesterday.

Vice-presidents elected were Rev. J.H. Watt, Windsor, and Rev. G.W. Searle, Lindsay. Rev. J.R. Armstrong, Montreal, was named secretary-treasurer.

VOL. CV. No. 96 — FRIDAY, OCTOBER 24, 1952 — PRICE FIVE CENTS

MAIN STREET TOPICS

MEET MONDAY

A meeting of the Board of Works has been called for Monday night.

FLOODED OIL BURNERS

Firemen had to cope with two flooded oil burners Thursday night. One was at the home of Harold Bucknell of 259 Woodbine Ave., and the other at the home of T. Woods of 177 Westcott St. No firefighting equipment was used at either address.

AS IN PETERBOROUGH

Oshawa city council has to decide whether to sell their old city hall at whatever the market offers, or tear down the buildings for parking space. Best price so far is $36,000, but council says it must have $100,000 to meet cost of building the new headquarters.

HAZY AFTERNOONS

Indian summer haze Thursday afternoon foreshortened the long vista of Rice Lake from Marshview Farm of James Bishop in Otonabee township east of Keene and the mouth of the Indian River. Outlines of islands and farther horizons were only dimly visible in the dissolving illusion of smoky mist. Cottages along the Northumberland short were faint daubs of white and red, and the hills of Alnwick were rustly gold in the afternoon sun. The narrow river meandered through the faded brown beds of weeds and rushes. Beyond Sugar Island the lake was flecked with white caps tossing with the strong breeze from the west. Such beauty of landscape and water abound in the Kawarthas October glory, but none can be more entrancing than the sweep of lake beyond the Marshview Farm.

No Winner Today

With news of sweepstake tickets in the air, Jack Lewis became pretty excited when a telegraph boy asked for him in a coffee shop this morning. The telegram was addressed to J. G. Lewis and Jack Lewis opened it with trembling fingers while his excited friends crowded around to look over his shoulder. The telegram read: "Sorry, you have no winner," and was signed "The Committee in Charge of Sweepstake Winners."

Showed Coolness Under Fire Says Citation

The citation giving details of how a former Peterborough man, Cpl. Karl Edmund Fowler, 24, now of Kingston, was awarded the Military Medal was issued today.

Cpl. Fowler was part of six-man dawn patrol sent out to bring back a Commuuist prisoner from the Red lines.

BORN IN PETERBOROUGH

Cpl. Fowler was born in the city and worked here before moving to Kingston where he was employed for a time before joining a paratroop regiment attached to the Canadian 25th Brigade. He is a brother of Mrs. James C. Leggitt 563 Brioux Ave., and arrived in the Korean theatre last February.

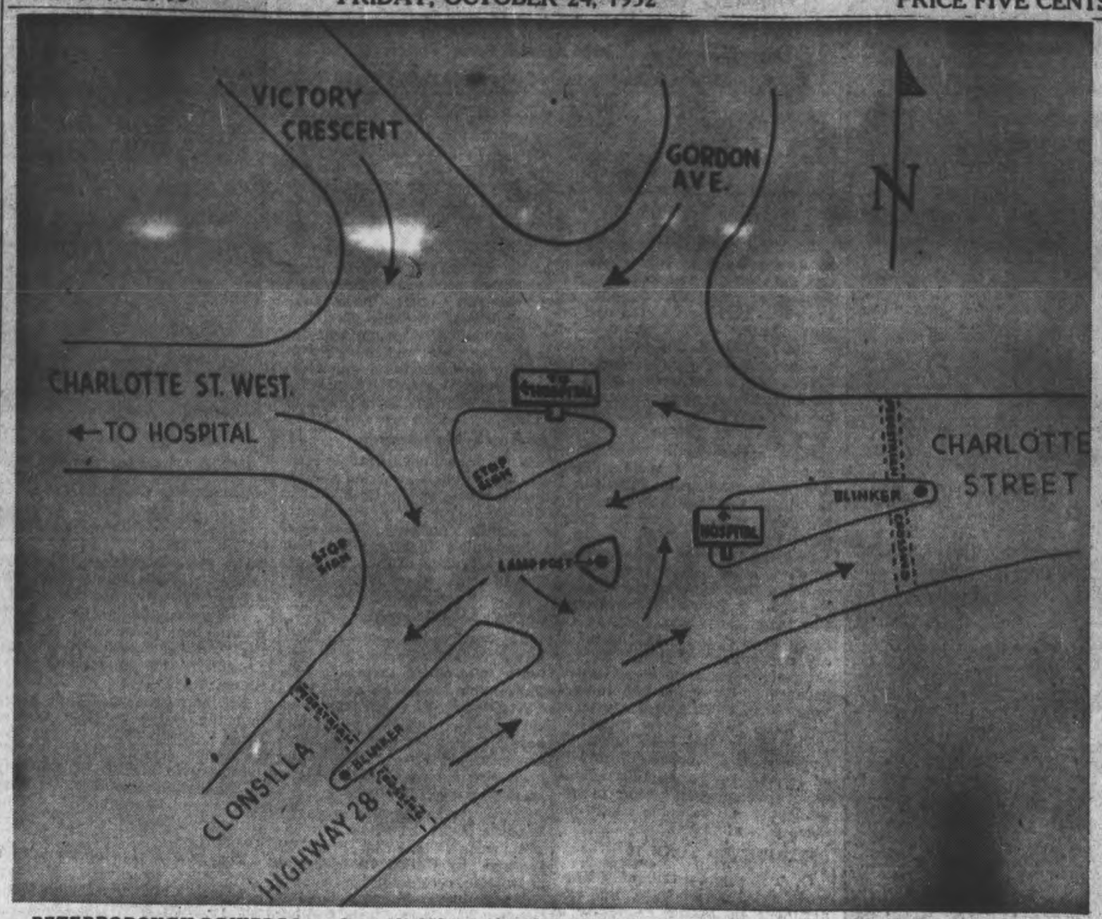
The official citation covering the award and action which accompanied the presentation of the medal Wednesday reads as follows:

"At 0330 hours on the night of 23-24 September 1952, a patrol of Lieutenant Gardner, two corporals, and three privates left a forward position of The Royal Canadian Regiment to go to a previously reconnoitred enemy area and to seize a prisoner.

"The patrol having moved past enemy positions unobserved, a firm base of a corporal and two privates was established at 0500 hours near the objective, an enemy bunker. Cpl. Fowler, with the patrol commander and a private soldier, advanced to the bunker, and, covered by the other two, searched it only to find it unoccupied.



"The little party was determined to get their prisoner, and, after a rapid appreciation by the patrol commander, he and Cpl. Fowler calmly walked forward, covered by the private soldier at the bunker, and concealed themselves in the main enemy communication trench. It was getting light, and they had moved across open ground dominated by enemy occupied hills.

"They were now within seventy-five yards of a group of enemy around a field kitchen. No sooner were they in position than an enemy soldier passed, but he was out of reach and was not molested. A signal wire in the trench was noticed and was immediately broken. Within five minutes an enemy soldier came runing towards the kitchen quickly checking the line.

"He missed the break, and after greeting his comrades at the kitchen he returned, carefully following the line to the break at the hiding place of Lt. Gardiner and Cpl. Fowler. As the officer struck the Chinese soldier, this non-commissioned officer (Fowler) fell upon him and pinned him to the ground. The Chinese was a powerful man, and, a fierce struggle under the very eyes of his comrades took place, during which he continued to cry out loudly.

"At last he was subdued; but the enemy now thoroughly alarmed, were within thirty yards as Cpl. Fowler began to manhandle the Chinese towards our lines, as his officer covered him by fire.

"Fire was now coming from enemy machine guns on the surrounding hills as well as from the Chinese in hot pursuit, but Cpl. Fowler continued to shepherd his prisoner to our lines with complete disregard for his own safety. Cpl. Fowler's [illegible] coolness, coolness under fire and determination to carry out his task were a fine example to the members of his regiment and were in accordance with the best traditions of the service.

PETERBOROUGH DRIVERS have been slightly confused at times as they came face to face with this system of traffic islands near the west corner of Charlotte St. where Clonsilla Ave. (and Highway 28) joins. This is something new for city drivers, but by obeying the signs and arrows they will be directed through the proper channels. At the same time traffic speed around the curve will be reduced.

Crashes Last Car Of Train Escapes Injury

No one was injured but more than $1,500 in property damage resulted to the vehicles involved in three traffic accidents in the city on Thursday.

An estimated $400 damage resulted to the front end of a car driven by John E. Lazure, 25, R.R. 5, Peterborough, which crashed into the last car of a passing train at the C.N.R. crossing on Park Hill Rd., near the entrance to Jackson Park.

The accident occurred shortly before 8 p.m. Lazure was travelling east on Park Hill Rd.

A two-car accident at the intersection of Morrow and Sherburne Sts., twenty minutes later, resulted in $700 damage.

A car driven by Roy McCoy, 17, of R.R. 3, Norwood, was going east on Morrow St., and the other car, driven by Wilbert Cunningham, 22, 169 Montgomery St., was going north on Sherburn St.

The two cars collided in the intersection, causing $400 damage to the Cunningham car and $350 damage to the car McCoy was driving.

$400 DAMAGE

In the afternoon, a collision between a car driven by Ray Butler, 16, 282 Prince St., and another driven by Robert Everson, 56, R.R. 1, Lakefield, at Water and McDonnel Sts., resulted in $400 damage to the two cars.

Everson's car received approximately $250 damage and the Butler car $150 damage to its front end. Butler was driving east on McDonnel St., and told police he had stopped before entering the Water St. intersection. Everson was going north on Water St.

Rhythmic Arithmetic Has Only Limited Use

Rhythmic arithmetic, an alternative text used to some degree in public schools, has been found to be unsuccessful as a complete text for elementary arithmetic.

[illegible] were certain elements of good in the book, it also had its limitations. One use to which it was well put was in teaching slow-learning children.

Theory of the book was based on the rhythm of numbers, and it was never an authorized text. The feeling among teachers in lower grades, said Mr. Wightman, was that the book and the system of teaching it advocated didn't accomplish all it should.

"It was not a complete method of teaching elementary arithmetic," Mr. Wightman said.

Oil Can Explodes Man Burned To Death

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — Waino Paavola, 49-year-old farmer, was burned to death yesterday before the eyes of his wife and nine-year-old son when a fuel oil can exploded in his hands.

His son Ronald ran to the house to get his mother. Mrs. Paavola ran some 500 yards with a bucket of water and then half a mile to her brother - in - law's home. He drove three miles to the nearest telephone.

New Islands Slow, Sort Traffic

To slow down traffic entering the city, a group of traffic islands has been built on Charlotte St. at the intersection of it with Clonsilla Ave., Victory Cres. and Gordon Ave.

The four islands, which look a little like a jack-o'-lantern face when viewed from above, split westbound traffic into two lanes, one going to the hospital or to Victory or Gordon, the other to Highway 28.

Inbound traffic that wishes to go to the hospital turns left around the centre island, completing about a 120-degree turn to drive west on Charlotte St. to the hospital.

Two crosswalks are provided that didn't exist before, one cutting across each of the larger islands, and their routes across the asphalt road being marked with dotted white lines. A small centre island that is the nose of the jack-'o-lantern is the island that separates traffic entering the east-bound lane from that leaving the lane.

Blinkers on the outside ends of the islands extending into Clonsilla and Charlotte St. warn approaching traffic of the island's location. Signs along either approach also provide a warning, with the additional admonition not to cross the double white lines that extend for 200 feet from the outside limits of the intersection.

A few motorists have complained that it is complicated to drive through the islands and there have been some near collisions. However, signs clearly point to which road a motorist should take for the hospital, and arrows painted on the pavement indicate the direction of flow of traffic.

Not all the painting of crosswalks on the pavement and white arrows designating turning directions has been completed, but the city engineer's department expects this work to be done shortly. When this is finished, the islands will be easier to drive through.

Doing Best Now To Cut Costs City's Response To Frost

Premier Frost's advice to municipalities to "get tough and slash costs" met with coolness in Peterborough today. Ald. T. D. Miller, chairman of the finance committee and W. B. Gordon, chairman of the Board of Education, said they felt the city was doing all it could to keep expenditures to a minimum.

"As it concerns the board," said Mr. Gordon, "my opinion is this: the province, through the department of education, sets standards which boards of education must adhere to. If this costs money, the province must bear its share of the financial responsibility.

NO WAY OUT

"We're running as low as possible," said Ald. Miller. "The only way Peterborough could cut costs would be to reduce the services we are bound to give the citizens. I don't think we could do that."

Premier Frost's advice was coupled with a pronouncement that the municipalities could expect no large grants in the near future at least.

Any substantial grants would involve increasing taxes, something that the premier said he had no intention of doing. His speech to the legislature Thursday was in reply to opposition demands for more aid to municipalities.

Ontario did not have enough money for "big handouts" he said, although his statement did not affect the expenditures at Civic Hospital, Ald. Miller wasn't prepared to say. He expected only that there would be "some increase."

Mr. Gordon said that while city council was legally compelled to meet the requisitions sent to it by the board of education, the board was sensitive to the present high costs and high taxes and tried to pare expenditures as far as possible.

MINIMUM STANDARDS

He pointed out that the province sets certain minimum requirements for a school—a kindergarten room must contains so much floor space, classrooms must be of a minimum size.

"The province, if it takes the responsibility of maintaining the standard of education or bettering it, must accept the coincident responsibility of cost," he said.

To cut costs, the board tried to make its new schools less ornate. By the trimming of frills, it can succeed in reducing some of the requisitions it passes on to council.

As an example, Mr. Gordon said that the proposed Cameron St. school, originally scheduled to cost $100,000, would probably cost in [illegible] board was not a free agent. It could only cut costs so far.

Strike Illegal Chairman Rules

PEMBROKE (CP) — The chairman of a conciliation board and officials of the Steel Equipment Company of Canada today termed as illegal a strike of employees from the company's plant here.

Company officials said the strike began yesterday while a conciliation board was sitting. J.H. Stitt, conciliation board chairman, terming the strike illegal, said no further conciliation meetings could take place unless "the men obey the law and go back to work."

The 200-odd employees of the plant, members of the United Steel Workers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) walked off their jobs yesterday. Clarence Irving, president of the Pembroke local of the union said the final proposals of the union for a new agreement had been placed before management last Tuesday.

The union is seeking a 10-cent-an-hour across-the-board wage increase retroactive to July 1, a 45-hour work week with 48-hour take-home pay effective next January and other concessions.

Mr. Irving said the men would remain on strike until a settlement is reached with the company.

Pushbutton Signals Starts New Century

TORONTO (CP) — A pushbutton pressed in England today set off a siren signalling the start of the second century of trading at the Toronto stock exchange.

The button was in the council room of the London stock exchange.

Completing Harvest Across The Country

"Harvest completed" is a recurrent phrase in the weekly crop report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. If prices had held up as firmly as potatoes, it would have been a year of broad satisfaction for the farmers of this province. And as for the potato people, the Wentworth report says: "Potato growers are building more storage space to keep their potatoes for marketing during the winter."

Glengarry: "A large number of very plain kind of cattle continue to be marketed through the livestock commission sales. Interest in hog breeding continues to decline."

In York, fall wheat has not yet attained the desired amount of growth. Some Norfolk farmers are taking off third cuttings of alfalfa.

Thanksgiving Crash Toll Mounts To Five As Mrs. W. Saxton Dies

Elderly St. Catharines Woman Clung To Life 11 Days In Hospital After Head-On Collision Near Norwood

Death toll of the Thanksgiving Day accident two miles east of Norwood rose today to five with the death of 65-year-old Mrs. Walter Saxton of St. Catharines. Mrs. Saxton died about 12:25 p.m., after lingering in critical condition for 11 days. Her daughter, Mrs. Margaret Enns, 28, died on the way to hospital after the crash.

The two-car crash occurred late in the afternoon of Thanksgiving Day on Highway 7.

Also death victims were the driver and two passengers in the other car: Wilmot E. Harrington, 77, his cousin, Stephen Harrington, 75, and his wife, Mrs. W. E. Harrington, 65.

Stephen Harrington was killed outright in the crash, and his cousin died in hospital the same night.

DIED AFTER TWO DAYS

Mrs. Harrington died October 15. Both she and Mrs. Saxton suffered severe head injuries and were given little chance of recovery by hospital authorities. Mrs. Saxton also suffered a broken leg.

Mrs. Saxton died shortly after noon today, and her body will be sent to St. Catharines for burial Monday.

The crash occurred as Peter Enns, 31, husband of one of the dead women, was driving home with his wife and members of her family from a holiday weekend at Crowe Lake.

A 1930 car bearing the Harrington family pulled out of the eastbound line of traffic on Highway 7 to pass and smashed head-on into the Enns' 1947 auto. The front bumper of the older car buried itself in the radiator of the Enns auto.

Provincial police, who investigated, said Enns had no chance to avoid the crash. Coroner Dr. Robert N. Young said after Mrs. Harrington's death their would be no inquest.

MINOR INJURIES

Enns suffered minor injuries, as did his sister-in-law, Miss Joyce Saxton, 23. Walter Saxton, husband of the woman who died today, was driving ahead of the Enns auto with other members of his family. He heard the crash and turned back to investigate.

The Norwood accident is said to be one of the worst in the history of the Peterborough district. One other multiple fatality occurred this year, at Springville, where two women were killed in a head-on crash on Highway 28.

Stage Pantomime

HASTINGS (ENS)—The pantomime "African Panorama," depicting six pictures of African life was enacted by members of the Evening Auxiliary, Mrs. E. Hess, Mrs. C. Scriver, Mrs. A. Thompson and Mrs. F. Crate with their leader Mrs. R. Burnham as commentator. Mrs. J. M. Baker played the accompanying music and Mrs. J. G. Thompson sang.

Mrs. A. Poole conducted a contest of which Mrs. E. Hess was the winner.

$500 Boosts Kenner Fund For Scholarships

The Kenner Memorial and Scholarship Fund took a sudden rise this week and the autumn final appeal to former pupils of Dr. H. R. H. Kenner was given a good fillip. Chairman of the fund, W. Howard Macdonald, announced today that he had received a cash donation of $500 from a former P.C.V.S. student now living in Toronto.

The donor, Louis Chesler, told Mr. Macdonald that he wanted to make this substantial contribution in recollection of his pleasant years at the Collegiate in Dr. Kenner's time, and because the idea of both the memorial portrait and the scholarships at the new Kenner Collegiate appealed to him very much.

Mr. Chesler, who was born and raised in Peterborough, attended the Collegiate twenty years ago and was prominent in student activities. He has been in financial and real estate business in Toronto for the last 15 years, enjoying very considerable success in his large business operations.

Mr. Chesler's parents ran the Chesler Ladies' Wear shop on George St. for many years, retiring to Toronto a decade ago.

Mr. Macdonald says that while small contributions are as welcome as large, that "any fund needs the odd big boost."

OVER $2,700

Donations have been coming in from near and far, treasurer Arthur Pitchford says, and since it was decided to renew the appeal this fall, people who have delayed or forgotten to make their contributions are doing so.

The number of individual contributors has not been large — little more than 200—but the fund now has surpassed $2,700.

The committee hope that this fall the fund will be boosted over $4,000 so as to make it possible to establish sound and substantial scholarships, through investing the capital remaining after the portrait is paid for.

As already announced the noted Canadian painter Kenneth Forbes, R.C.A., has accepted the commission to paint the portrait.

The Farmer's Friend

County Farm Notes

By HARRY THEOBALD

G. A. Brethen Reviews Norwood Fair Swine Club Project . . . . Emphasizes Continuing Benefits . . . . Junior Farmers Wind Up Their 4-H Club Season and Elect Directors . . . . 140 Attend Farm Forum Rally . . . . Girls Show Ability in Judging at O.A.C.

The 30 English Yorkshire gilts bought by the directors of the East Peterborough Agricultural Society for the young members of the swine club they sponsored, averaged 240 pounds at 5½ months.

The first prize pair was shown by Leslie Wood of Keene. Average gain of his two pigs during September was 67 pounds, as shown in his report at the end of that month.

The results of this project for the immediate advantage of the fifteen young men of the club and the longer view for the improvement of east Peterborough swine, were partly as follows:

First prize: Leslie Wood, $10; second prize, $9, Francis Lynch, Asphodel; third prize, $8, Doug Lochhead, Norwood R.R. 2; fourth, $7, Rex Warr; fifth, $6, Dick Cavanagh.

Each of the other boys received $5 as prize money to compensate him for bringing the pigs to Norwood Fair on Thanksgiving Day. The judge was Prof. R. G. Knox, head of the animal husbandry department of O.A.C. He accepted the directors' invitation because of the value and importance of these 30 pigs whose sires and dams had recently been imported from the best herds in England. Prof. Knox was interested in part by reason of the Ontario government's action in establishing a valuable herd of these pigs at O.A.C.

DISTRIBUTED JUNE 18

G. A. Brethen, president of Norwood Fair, has reviewed this experiment in better swine as a constructive activity of the East Peterborough Agricultural Society.

On June 18 each of the 15 boys who comprised the swine club received two weanling female pigs of approximately ten weeks. One of them became his own property. It was registered, tatooed, transferred and insured.

Four months later the entire 30 pigs were returned to the Fair. There were no losses, no culls.

Many experienced breeders congratulated the boys on the uniform excellent quality of their pigs, and also the Fair for initiating such a valuable project.

RESULTS RECKONED

Mr. Brethen answers the question; how does the record stand? The Fair used $1,500 of their bank balance that is being accumulated as a building fund, but drawing no interest, to buy the 30 ten-weeks old English Yorkshire gilts. The board also obtained from the Ontario livestock commissioner three boars of outstanding type and imported breeding at a nominal rental for breeding purposes for the benefit of the club members, and also for the advantage of owners in the district of good Canadian sows.

FINANCIAL DETAILS

What's on the other side of the ledger? With hog prices at their lowest, due to the continuance of the U.S. embargo, and the recent $3 drop in the government floor price, fifteen of the sows around six months old and unbred, brought $1,060 at the auction on Fair Day. The eight feed companies in the district contributed $300 worth of hog grower. The Ontario government gave the Fair the maximum grant of $200, because this project is classified by them as a commercial feature.

It was not designed by the directors as a money-making activity. Their attitude was that, if it was an asset to the swine industry in this area, they were not averse even from dropping some money in the enterprise which was conceived in part as a means of encouraging junior farmers.

In the final analysis, $1,500 was invested, plus $90 in prize money for the club boys.

"In return," Mr. Brethen said, "we have $1,060 from the sale of 15 sows; the $200 government cheque; $25 gift from a well-wisher, and $300 from district feed dealers, amounting to $1,585."

"Beyond that, and by far the most important consideration, fifteen representative young men in this district have sole possession of 15 of the choicest sows in the foundation consignment, with a Fair Day auction valuation of $1,060.

YOUNG MEN PRAISED

The personal boys' sows, the good work may be extended more widely to the townships of Peterborough county."

Probably the finest tribute to the Norwood Fair project is published in the August number of Good Farming Quarterly. On page 62, under "Livestock Improvement, a Great Scheme," the editor writes: "It is to be hoped that other societies will follow in the footsteps of the East Peterborough men, for the good they are undoubtedly doing will last long after them, and have an influence on community spirit and community welfare as long as there are men who farm the land."

Recent Sale Averages

Top price at the Lambton Hereford breeders' sale was $415 for a heifer, and on the male side $400. Thirty-one head averaged $306

At Ottawa, 85 Guernseys averaged $222 of the Harry J. Clark herd. Best price was $530 for a five-year-old cow. The senior herd sire brought $365. Gross receipts were $19,000.

Week's Tour $100

A week's tour in the U.S. arranged by United Co-operative of Ontario, conducted by Leonard Harmon, leaves Toronto Sunday, October 26. Cost of train and bus fare, hotel meals and general expense of the trip will be under $100. Points of call include the United Nations' new headquarters and the Washington office of the International Federation of Agricultural Producers (I.F.A.P.).

✦ ✦ ✦

Federation At Picton

Charles Osborne, of Durham, was elected president of Zone 4 of the Federation of Agriculture at Picton Thursday. Harold Lewis, of Smith township, is the new secretary.

Peterborough was represented by Henry Sharpe, Wellington Sutton, Mr. Lewis, Burritt Jopling, Clarence Hancock, George Shoniker, and Ross Legge, the largest of the county delegation.

The Zone comprises: Frontenac, Lennox - Addington, Hastings, Prince Edward, Northumberland, Durham, Peterborough, Victoria. Discussion dwelt on this year's downward trend of prices of farm products and its immediate effects on agricultural economy.

Increased activities in Zone 4 are planned for 1953, but it is unlikely that another meeting will be held until after the provincial convention in January.

Crowd At Barnard Sale

From corresponding prices of a year ago, cattle prices were down about $100 at the auction of stock and implements at the Fred Barnard sale in South Monaghan on Wednesday. Hereford cows averaged $200, two-year-olds $175, and top for calves was reported $90. Baled hay brough $19 a ton, and geese $3.85 each.

Gordon Hancock, auctioneer, found buyers for everything among the big crowd. Cars were parked along the roadside and in fields. The weather was sunny and rather mild.

As the Barnard family is moving to Peterborough, some of the surplus furniture of the home was also sold.

The farm is just a stone's throw from Pengelly's Landing on Rice Lake. The house is on a knoll commanding a wide view of the lake. Ownership of the property is said to have been continuous in the Barnard name since pioneer days.

Farm Radio Subjects

The 1952-1953 Farm Radio Forum season opens November 3 with the topic Farming as a Career, and ends March 16 with a discussion of what the Unesco survey says about Farm Forum. Its subject is "The United Nations Looks at Farm Forum."

This series devotes most of its Monday night programs to practical questions more or less affecting every farm home in this province and elsewhere in Canada. They pertain to average farm life, and reach out in expanding circles through the community to some of the affairs of the nation.

The other November topics are: 10th—"Farm Women in Public Life"; and 17th—"Are We Over-Mechanized?" considering investment in machinery in a proportion of the size of the farm and its potential income.

The series continues on December Monday nights at 8:30 o'clock: "Why Price Supports"; "The Hub of the Farm Community"; "Building for Peace."

In January, beginning on Monday the 5th: "The Cost of Marketing"; "Where Are the New Farm Leaders?" "Embarrassing Surpluses."

February series: "The Farm and the Public"; "How to Use Farm Credit"; "What Will the St. Lawrence Seaway Mean to Us?"

The new season opens with a Pre-Forum broadcast, Monday, October 27; and the fourth Monday of each month is listed for a feature subject.

Ottawa Cattle Show

Entries of dairy cattle for the Ottawa Winter Fair, October 28 to November 1, will be more than 1,000, according to prospects reported by Manager H. H. McElroy.

He expects around 280 or 290 Holsteins, 154 Ayrshires, 169 Jerseys and 62 Guernseys for this 50th anniversary of the founding of the show. Indications promise 300 boys and 100 girls exhibiting calves or swine.

The Holstein cattle section is the Eastern Ontario Black and White championships, one of four regional finals in the province. They will be judged October 30, with the Guernseys, a comparatively new breed in the area, parading a separate ring that day.

Jerseys and Ayrshires have been allotted Thursday, October 30. Entries of Ayrshires are 58 more than last year, and Jerseys show a big increase. Sheep entries are up 179 last year to 233, and swine from 110 to 126.

Shorthorn Herd Sold

At the dispersal sale of the famous A. J. Marshall herd of Shorthorns at Perch, Scotland, E. J. Cammaert of Rockyford, Alta., gathered up seven for a total of $10,920.

The sale disposed of 240 head for a gross of $402,531, or an average of $1,680. Several Canadians bought animals, in spite of the Canadian government ban against importation of British cattle. The present exclusion is a result of foot-and-mouth disease in Britain. It was reported that the females bought by Canadians will be bred and will be retained on the home farms until the ban is lifted.

There are between 400 and 600 head of purebred cattle in the Old Country waiting shipment to Canada.

140 At Forum Rally

Ten of Peterborough's Farm Forums were represented at the pre-season rally Monday night at Normal School. The attendance of 140 men and women was considered a favorable evidence of the county Forum spirit for the 1952-1953 series of programs.

Wellington Sutton was chairman for this first general meeting since the conclusion of last season and his election in the meantime as Ontario Forums' president. Assisting were Cliff Waite of Toronto, the new provincial secretary, Warden R. R. Stewart and Henry Sharpe, president of Peterborough Federation of Agriculture.

The topics chosen for the winter series of broadcasts were discussed briefly by Mr. Waite with suggestions for the most effective methods of conducting Forum meetings. It is hoped that the number of groups in Peterborough will be increased early in the new season.

The evening program included piano duets by Shirley and Beverley Tully of Smith, vocal numbers by the Kawartha Four, folk games, dancing and refreshments. Music for dancing was played by the Sargent brothers.

Girls Excel In Judging Calves

Three teams of girls won the judging honors in the classes of dairy and beef calves and poultry at the provincial 4-H Club competitions at Guelph Friday. They shut the boys out of the top honors in these three major sections of the 22nd annual contests. A new record of 217 teams entered.

The young farmers of tomorrow had to be satisfied with the remaining sections: grain, swine, potatoes, tractor maintenance and forestry.

First place in the beef calf club judging went to Ruth Ireland and Margaret Gilmore, of Everett, in South Simcoe.

The best team in the dairy calf judging was from Wentworth—Grace Hugill of Dundas and Marion Hall of Glanford.

In the judging of potatoes, the top place was taken by a Durham entry: Joe McGill and Grant Werry, both of Enniskillen.

The other section winners were: Swine, Ridgetown-Blenheim 4-H Swine Club, Stuart Smith and Donald Thatcher, both of Northwood.

Grain: Renfrew Senior Grain Club: Delbert O'Brien and Murray McBride, both of Westmeath.

Forestry: Listowel Forestry Club, William Morrison and Jim Love, both of Atwood.

The fact that boys were set back from the premier position in the calf judging, plus poultry, indicates things are not what they used to be on the farms of Ontario.

Junior Farmers Conclude 4-H Club Season; Cheques Are Distributed

Directors of the Junior Farmers for their new season were chosen this week as follows: Mary Wood, Keith McIntyre, Francis Walsh, Doris Jopling, Elaine Savigny.

John Edmison, Glenn Stark, Gaye Hancock, Don Chambers, John Stewart, Archie Davidson.

Mrs. John Edmison, Neil Whitfield, Orland Brown, Blanche Quinn, Jack Matchett, Dorothy Chambers, John Waterman.

Directors meet Tuesday, October 28, for the election of officers. The main accomplishment of the Juniors this year was their promotion of 4-H Clubs in this fundamental rural activity. Achievement Day of the clubs was a fine success, and it has been quite evident that parents greatly appreciate the sponsorship and leadership which the Junior Farmers give to the minor clubs. And in carrying out that season's work, the Juniors have expended nearly their last dollar.

Chairman of the meeting Keith McIntyre recruited a group of the Junior men for work Wednesday in clearing brush at Marshall Memorial Park up in the Cedar Lakes area of Burleigh township.

The main event of the evening was the distribution of cheques representing the prizes, winners of which were announced on Achievement Day. In most of these classes Juniors provide one-third of the total, and the Ontario Department two-thirds.

CLUB WINNERS

It is understood, of course, that the 4-H Club work is a project of the provincial Department of Agriculture, and as such is supervised by F. C. Paterson and his assistant, Ken Best.

First in the West Dairy Calf Club of 18 members was Barbara Mann, of Smith, whose prize was $10.

Murray Pimmett, of Indian River, winning the beef calf club honors, received $10. It was composed of 18 members.

The grain club, first, Archie Davidson, $8. There were seven members receiving prizes. Five members completed the forestry project. Donald Jackson, of Harvey, first, received $7.

Tractor club, 15 members, first prize went to Carman Bulmer, of Smith, $9. Other winners in that club were: Walter Clark, Asphodel, $8; Bruce Hill, $7; Paul Jopling, $6; Robert Hutchinson, $5; John De Nure, of North Monaghan, and Delwyn Stinson, of Norwood, R.R. 1, $4 each; Gerald Bolton, $3.50; and seven other boys received $3 each.

Archie Davidson extended his winnings to the senior judging competition for an additional $5; John Waterman, $4; Dorothy Chambers, $3; Gaye Hancock, $2; [illegible] Clare Stewart, each. There were two other prizes of 50 cents each. Thirty-six boys and girls competed.

Herb Sullivan, of Otonabee, was first in the junior group of 54 competitors. He received $5; Ray Allen, of Douro, $4; Eddie Heffernan, $3; Bruce Hill, $1.50; Donald Jackson, $1.50 (tied), Alan Storey, Omemee; Mac Danford, Dummer; John Weiss, Grant Elmhirst and Ruth Bolton, one dollar each.

That was actually the finale of the 4-H Club season. Its success rests in the future, and even then beyond estimate, but at least discernible in the number of boys and girls who eventually graduate to the ranks of the Junior Farmers.

Maple Membership Fee Reduced From $25 To $5

The membership fee of the Maple Cattle Breeders' Association has been reduced from $25 to $5, according to a report of action of the directors last week.

The original fee was $40. When that charge was cut to $25 two years ago, the members of record were presented with a refund of $15, the difference then between the new and previous fee for joining.

It is understood that the present difference of $20, resulting from this charge, will be paid to the existing membership in two $10 instalments, one next year and the other in 1954.

The fee of $5 to new members is said to be the lowest of all other co-operative breeding units in North America.

Wilfred Keffer, general manager of the Maple unit, a visitor at the Black and White championship show here last week, said an application was recently received from the unit's 5,000th member, a farmer in Victoria county. It is expected that detailed statement on both these topics will be forthcoming from Maple headquarters soon.

Hollywood Has Chance To See RCMP Up Close

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Hollywood, which has made many movies about the R.C.M.P., now has a chance to see the Mounties up close.

An expert riding team from the famous law-enforcement body is currently playing the Los Angeles Horse Show. Between performances, the Mounties have had a chance to tour the studio and see how movies are made.

The leader of the group, Inspector A.S. McNeil of Regina, said there is considerable difference between the Mounties of the movies and those in real life.

"There have been some fine pictures about the service," he said. "But most of them have certain things that any Mountie would know were false. There is one thing that always rankles me. The Mountie in movies is generally shown with long sideburns and hair that looks like a beaver hat. The fact is that we require regular haircuts, even in the north country. Most mounties have a crew cut."

LESS GUNFIRE LEASE

McNeil also mentioned that Mounties snicker at films about them that show "gun play all over the place and bodies falling out of every closet."

"The fact is that a Mountie seldom uses his gun.

"We also have the lash to punish offences such as armed robbery. A criminal fears the lash while he may not worry about a prison sentence."

The inspector brought out a disillusioning fact: few Mounties ride horses any more. "You'll find them on horseback in the national parks," he explained. "Also some patrol near the parliament building and other points of interest so the tourist won't be disappointed."

MODERN METHODS

"But otherwise we use the most modern equipment. We have cars, boats and airplanes with two- and three-way radio. We also have the most advanced crime laboratories, since we are the equivalent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in the United States. Even in the north country Mounties don't use horses. They have dogsleds.

The typical movie about the Mounties shows the intrepid hero tracking the criminal hundreds of miles into the wilds. McNeil commented that there have been such instances in the 75-year history of the force.

"But nowadays we never send one man on a mission," he added. "The men generally go out in pairs Sometimes three men are sent. But it has been found that does not work as well. Two of the men usually team up against the other on long trips."

Not all the Mounties' work is tracking down criminals. They do everything from undercover anti-Communist work in big factories to delivering babies in frontier villages.

Oh, yes, that's sheer nonsense about the Mounties' motto being "We always get our man." The real one is "Maintain le droit," French for "Maintain the right.'

FOR SALE—The Telegram, Toronto evening newspaper, is being offered for sale. All shares of the Toronto Telegram Publishing Company are being offered by the executors of the late publisher, George McCullagh, who died August 5. Mr. McCullagh also published the Toronto Globe and Mail. He bought the Telegram November 25, 1948, from the estate of the late John Ross Robertson who died in 1918. Purchase price of the paper, at that time in its 73rd year, was $3,610,000. Originally published at 67 Yonge Street, the paper moved to its present site at the corner of Bay and Melinda Streets February 28, 1899.

Suggest Doctors Prescribe Fewer Trademarked Drugs

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

CLEVELAND (AP) — Medical bills could be cut if doctors prescribed fewer trademarked or proprietary drugs, says a study reported today to the American Public Health Association.

Cheaper, identical drugs which are not trademarked often are available, it says.

This study of doctors' prescriptions was made by a team of doctors from the Baltimore city medical care program. The program gives medical care to indigent persons assigned to clinics for diagnosis. The clinic report usually goes to neighborhood doctors — chosen by the patient — who direct the treatments. Prescriptions are written on a specially-designed form, honored by all local pharmacies and paid for by the care program.

Drug prescriptions for one year in 1950-51 cost $150,000, or 30 per cent of the entire expenses of the program.

COULD SAVE ON FUNDS

The study of prescriptions said $9,000 in tax funds would have been saved if doctors had prescribed officially-accepted drugs which are not trademarked, but which have identical properties.

More than 55 per cent of prescriptions were for proprietary drugs, and 37 per cent were for drugs not accepted by any official medical or health agencies.

"It is noteworthy that 24 per cent of simple aspirin compounds were written with a trademarked name or for a preparation not accepted by any official authority."

The cost of drugs, either in welfare programs or for patients paying their own way, "is a major problem of modern medicine," the study says.

J. Morton Wins Bethany Speaking Contest

BETHANY (ENS).—Joan Morton was first prize winner in the Bethany school public speaking contest held in the town hall on Tuesday evening. Her subject, "The Toronto Subway," was well given and Joan, a pupil in Grade VII, will now compete in Manvers township finals. Second prize went to Murray Smith, Grade VI pupil who spoke on "Facts About the United Nations." Third prize was awarded to Muriel Sheckleton, a pupil in Grade VIII. Her subject was "The Town of Lindsay."

Pupils of Grades III, and IV all recited poems. In this group Leone Jordan, reciting "Somebody's Mother," was awarded first prize. Tommy Rayson, reciting "The Goblin," was placed second.

Grade 11 pupils also were given prizes for poetry. Allan Smith, first prize, reciting "The Elf"; Jane Fallis, second prize with the same poem. Grade one students all recited short verses.

The kindergarten group recited nursery rhymes.

Mrs. Earl Argue, Mrs. Robert Sisson and Mrs. K. Sargison were the judges. Emory Smith of the trustee board gave out the prize money for the senior group; books for Grades III and IV; with every child in kindergarten and Grade one receiving a picture coloring book.

Jane Fallis and Sharon Bigelow sang a duet and Phyllis Bristow and Muriel Sheckleton sang a duet as well. The entire school, trained and accompanied by Mr. James Gay at the piano, sang several numbers. Mr. Gay is the new music teacher this year.

Hope Rayson was chairman and in his remarks complimented the pupils on their good efforts, noting improvement from some who had competed a year ago; also thanking the teachers Mrs. Orlo Wright and Miss Velma Thexton for their efforts with the pupils and for the opportunity of parents and friends to hear their progress.

Killed In Collision

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Mrs. Doreen Sumner of Toronto was killed yesterday when thrown from a car involved in a collision with a tractor trailer on the Queen Elizabeth highway near here. Mrs. Marion Wright of Toronto, driver of the car, is in St. Catharines Hospital with serious injuries.

Baby's Cry Lifesaver

OTTAWA (CP)—The cry of a hungry baby was credited today with saving the lives of Mr. and Mrs. J.L. Boulay and their four children as fire levelled their farm home 14 miles east of Ottawa. Mrs. Boulay, awakened by the baby's cry, found the house filled with smoke. The family barely had time to escape and lost all their possessions.

Bike Rider Killed

TILLSONBURG (CP) — Horst Holler, 10, son of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Holler of Tillsonburg, was fatally injured last night when hit by a car while riding on the back of a bicycle. His 12-year-old brother, Eric, who was pedalling the bicycle, escaped with bruises. Horst died in hospital. Police sought the driver of the car, which did not stop.

11 Years For Manslaughter

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Richard Monette, 29, convicted last Friday of manslaughter in the fatal beating last November of 83-year-old Harper Harris, yesterday was sentenced to 11 years in penitentiary.

Monette was originally convicted of murder last January in the death of the elderly Grantham township farmer but, on appeal, his claim the court erred in its explanation to the jury of the term "reasonable doubt" won him a retrial.

Joseph Sedgwick, counsel for Monette, contended at the Appeal Court hearing the trial judge should have asked the jury to determine whether a crime was committed when Harris' body was found at the foot of his cellar steps or whether his death was caused by an accidental fall.

At the retrial, Dr. Lorne Whittaker, pathologist at St. Catharines General Hospital, testified the injuries on Harris' body could not all have been caused by a fall.

Egypt Aware Of Good Position

CAIRO (AP)—Egypt's strongman premier promised wildly cheering crowds yesterday Egypt will become a great power in the world and pledged himself to "complete independence of the Nile Valley."

The address by Maj.-Gen. Mohammed Naguib, who toppled former King Farouk from the throne, appeared to be a clear announcement of Egypt's determination to drive Britain not only out of the Suez Canal zone but out of the Sudan as well. The Sudan on the upper Nile, has been ruled jointly by Britain and Egypt for more than half a century.

At the same time the address underscored the growing awareness of Egyptians of their strategic position, which would make the country the dominant force of the Moslem world and thus a potent power in world affairs.

Largest Part Of Dollar

OTTAWA (CP)—The largest portion of Canada's consumer dollar still goes for food. In fact, more money is being spent on food now than 10 years ago.

The index, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, replaces the old cost-of-living index. The old measuring rod, in operation for the last dozen years, is based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100 and now is considered outmoded.

Both, however, will be published monthly for the next half year before the old index disappears.

To show how accurate it can be, the new prices barometer did a complete turn-around on its predecessor and estimated higher living costs during August in contrast to an estimate of lower costs by the old index.

The C.P.I. climbed one-tenth of a point to 116.1 from 116.0. The old cost-of-living index dropped 1.1 points to 186.5 from 187.6. The new index reported higher food costs; the old one, lower costs.

The new index, two years in the making, places greater emphasis on food, again, in line with change in buying habits and living standards estimated in a national survey four years ago.

The C.P.I. estimates that 32 cents of the consumer dollars goes for food; 15 cents on shelter; 11 cents on clothes; 17 cents for household operations; and 25 cents for other family items, including such things as recreation, health care and purchase of liquor, tobacco and other sundries.

CONTRAST TO OLD ONE

In contrast, the old index estimated 31 cents of the consumer dollar went for food, 19 cents for shelter, 12 cents for clothes, 15 cents for household operations, and 23 cents for other commodities.

Officials pointed out that the new index covers only the urban dweller. Rural residents are covered in a separate farm index.

Bombers Land Seven Men On All-Stars

By AL VICKERY

WINNIPEG — (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers, top dogs in the regular schedule, landed six players and their coach on the 1952 Western Interprovincial Football Union all-star team, chosen for The Canadian Press by coaches and sports writers in league cities.

Two Bombers — flying wing Bud Korchak and guard Jimmy McPherson — were the only Canadians named to the squad. Last year, three Canadians made the mythical team.

NO RIDERS

The second-place Edmonton Eskimos and the third-place Calgary Stampeders each had three men on the team. The tail-end Saskatchewan Roughriders, their proud banner dragging in the dust after winning the title in 1951, failed to place a man on the first team.

The teams:

Closest races were for tackle and coach spots. Huffman nosed out Ruby by a scant one point, while Trafton edged Filchock by the same margin.

A FATAL HONOR

It is possible that Trafton, a former Chicago Bear, will not gain much satisfaction out of being named to the coaching position. His two predecessors — Harry Smith of Riders in 1951 and Frank Larson of Bombers in 1950 — both were fired at the end of those seasons after leading their respective clubs into the Grey Cup finals.

Offensively and defensively, the team is a power house. Most of its members are of the sturdy breed of old-fashioned players who are ready, willing and able to go 60 minutes a game.

Qaurterback Indian Jack Jacobs, all-star in 1950, set a Canadian record by throwing 34 touchdown passes this season. Casey set a western record by scoring 14 touchdowns, and Shaw tallied 110 points, also a record.

The line averages 234 pounds and there was an abundance of good quarterbacks. There was no denying the selection of Jacobs, however, who nailed down a possible 65 points in the poll. The former Green Bay Packer statistically was head and shoulders above his opposition.

Scatbacks Casey and Miles, also standouts on pass defence, had a wide edge over Kwong and Thodos.

Bright received only nine points more than McAllister in voting for fullback, but the hard-plunging Stampeder also received votes as a flying wing and halfback.

St. Louis Trips Syracuse 2-1

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rookie Clayton Lavell of St. Louis Flyers had his first taste of American League Hockey under his belt today and found it a rather delectable dish.

The 21-year-old youngster, making his debut last night, drove home the winning tally as the Flyers edged Syracuse Warriors 2-1. The victory boosted St. Louis into a triple tie for second place with Cleveland and Hershey behind league-leading Providence.

Syracuse, who remained in sixth place in the seven club circuit, took a one goal lead early in the second period on Leo Curick's score. Motto McLean deadlocked the count at the nine-minute mark of the same stanza and Lavell blazed home the decidings marker" five minutes later.

Softball Dinner Held

PLAINVILLE (ENS)—A committee of five ladies provided a chicken banquet for the 23 girls of the Plainville softball team Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. William Herriott. The attractive long table was set through the living and dining room and after supper the young people attended the theatre in Cobourg. Ladies catering were Mrs. Herriott, Mrs. John Linton, Mrs. Louis Buttars, Mrs. Fred Bowman and Mrs. Cliff Manley. Work is to be commenced next week on new kitchen cabinets in the church basement.

Albert College Wins 16-10 At Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS)—Albert College brought out all their reserves Wednesday to win one of their hardest-fought games of the season against the Campbellford High School gridders, coached by Don Gentleman. Score was 16-10.

Within the first few minutes of the game, Albert pushed their way from their own 25-yard line up the field and over for a major, which they promptly converted.

Campbellford, monopolizing on Albert's weakness in passing, swung into action and Quarterback McFarland began flinging his accurate passes, which brought the C.H.S. team up ot Albert's 10-yard line. On a hand-off, Jeffs ran around right for a touchdown which went unconverted.

Campbellford again rolled down the field to Albert's five-yard line, but unable to buck the line, they lost their first down. They took their second down over again as a result of roughing on the part of the Albert team. Barnum caught McFarland's forward pass which netted him a touchdown and at the end of the first half, Campbellford led 10 to 6.

Albert began scoring in the second half and continually made first downs by plunging and end running Although they suffered heavy penalties for roughing, they crashed the defence of the local lads and scored two touchdowns. Campbellford, having lost their fullback, Jim Baker, because of a foot injury, tried desperately to stop the aggressive Albert team, but to no avail. Some of the best tackling was done by Henry Joss of Campbellford, who continually cracked the Albert defence.

WON'T PLAY FOR LEAFS

TORONTO (CP)—Bill Ezinicki will return to the Toronto Maple Leaf organization but will never play for the Leafs, Managing Director Conn Smythe said yesterday.

Ezinicki will play for Pittsburgh Hornets, Leaf farm club in the American Hockey League, but "he'll never play for the Maple Leafs again," said Smythe.

Wild Bill angered Smythe last fall when he refused a contract and returned home to Boston where he is a golf professional. He objected to the salary and a minor league clause.

BEACHES PLAY OSHAWA

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Balmy Beach of the senior Ontario Rugby Football Union will play an exhibition game with Oshawa Red Raiders of the intermediate O.R.F.U. here Sunday.

The Beaches were originally scheduled to play Windsor Royals in the senior series but the management of the Windsor club received permission to drop from the league for the rest of the season.

WIN JUVENILE TITLE

ORILLIA (CP)—Orillia juveniles have added another lacrosse title to the already impressive list that has come to the town this year.

Owen Sound by-passed the final series so the Ontario Lacrosse Association awarded the crown to Orillia by default. Orillia now holds the Ontario intermediate A crown, the Eastern Canada senior B championship and the midget and juvenile B and C championships.

LAMIRANDE SIGNS

CHICOUTIMI, Que. (CP)—Jean-Paul Lamirande, star defenceman last year with Chicoutimi Saguenneens of the Quebec Senior Hockey League, yesterday signed his 1952-3 contract with the team. Lamirande will play his first game of the season Sunday when he is scheduled to line up against the Royals at Montreal. Settlement terms were not announced.

GOOD TIME'S WINDUP

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — Good Time, world-leading money winning harness horse, bowed out of competition last night with a track record-equalling victory in the $15,000 Farewell Pace at Yonkers Raceway.

The "mighty mite" from Bill Cane's Good Time stable stepped the mile in 2:01, matching the track mark he set himself. Frank Ervin brought the six-year old son of Hal Dale to the finish line three-quarters of a length in front of Prince Adios with Thomas B. Scott third. ✦ ✦ ✦

VOTES TO SUSPEND

NEW YORK (AP)—The 24-year-old American Professional Basketball League last night voted to suspend operations after two cities withdrew when they failed to receive approval to sign up former college stars involved in point-fixing scandals.

John J. O'Brien, who resigned as president, said Jersey City, N.J. withdrew its application for league membership and Elmira, N.Y. followed before a vote actually was taken on the status of the former college players.

Jersey City had announced it intended to use two former Kentucky stars, Alex Groza and Ralph Buead and Sherman White, former Long Island University ace. Elmira had signed Bill Spivey, another former Kentucky star under indictment in connection with the scandals. ✦ ✦ ✦

FLYERS GET BONIN

ST. LOUIS (AP)—St. Louis Flyers of the American Hockey League announced last night they have obtained Marcel Bonin, 21-year-old rookie left winger, from Detroit Red Wings on loan.

Bonin, who has been playing with Quebec Aces, was bought by Detroit from Providence. He is to report here today.

Galt Black Hawks Walop Royals 8-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Both sides of the Ontario-Quebec Junior A Hockey League are picking on Montreal Royals.

The unhappy Royals have started six games this season and only managed to win one. Now they are in the cellar of the Quebec section, six points behind the leaders.

Their latest trouncing was at Montreal last night when Galt Black Hawks of the Ontario section walloped them 8-3.

Also Thursday night Three Rivers Reds had their troubles with Quebec Citadelles at Three Rivers. The visitors were down 3-1 at the end of the second period but found the range in the third to tie the game and go on to a 4-3 overtime win.

The Galt win gave them sole possession of second place in the Ontario section, two points behind Barrie Flyers who have 11, and two points ahead of Guelph Biltmores, last year's Memorial Cup champions.

MOVE INTO TIE

Three Rivers moved into a first-place tie with Montreal Canadiens as a result of their win. Canadiens were idle Thursday.

John Sleaver and Rich Collins each scored two goals for Galt. Tony Poeta, Ed Switzer, Frank Bonnello and Jim McBurney got the other goals.

Roland Leclerc was the hero of the night in Three Rivers. His overtime goal, number two of the night for him, gave his team the win. Camille Henri also scored two, one of them sending the game into overtime.

Friday night action will see the two Toronto teams, St. Michael's and Marlboros, doing battle while Oshawa Generals return Guelph's visit of earlier in the week. St. Catharines will invade Barrie while Windsor Spitfires seek their first win against Kitchener - Waterloo Greenshirts.

The next action on the Quebec side will be Saturday when Galt plays Three Rivers.

Won't Allow Royals Play Again

TORONTO (CP)—R.H. Bailey, secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Rugby Football Union, said last night the Windsor Royals will not be allowed to play any more league games this season.

He was commenting on a Windsor report which quoted Jack Alexander, Royals coach, as denying that Windsor had asked to be allowed to withdraw from O.R.F.U. play this season. Alexander added in an interview that the Royals were prepared to finish their schedule by playing Balmy Beach here Sunday and Brantford in Windsor Nov. 1.

Bailey said he had written the Windsor club saying they won't be allowed to play any more league games but they may be back in league play next season.

The Royals, who haven't won a game since 1950 and who haven't fared much better at the box office, were reported to have withdrawn from the league Tuesday.

At that time Bailey said the league agreed to the move "for the good of the game."

The league-leading Sarnia Imperials and Toronto Balmy Beach already have won the two playoff spots in the four-team circuit.

DOROTHY DIX

Fear Different Faiths Cause Difficulties After Marriage

DEAR MISS DIX: My young man and I have been going together for four years, and he is everything I ever hope to find. Our only problem is religion. We are of different faiths and realize that there will be problems arising especially if we have children. We have discussed the matter with our parents, who love us and want us to be happy. They feel we should do what we think best. Could you help us?

PATRICIA A.

ANSWER: Since the situation, up to now, has been amicably met and handled, it should proceed along the same lines. The best thing for you both to do is see your respective clergymen, together, and after a heart-to-heart talk with each, you will be in a better position to make your decisions.

DEAR MISS DIX: I have a very nice boy friend who phones me regularly, and comes to the house quite often, but he never spends a cent on me. If we go anywhere I pay my own way. It isn't that he doesn't have the money because he has a good job. R.P.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Are you sure he doesn't give all his money home? That's rather a far-fetched conclusion, but it is possible. If he really does have spending money, no matter how little, and consistently refuses to pay your way into movies, etc., it's time you gave him up. A tightwad, whether teen-ager or oldster, is no social asset.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am very fond of a boy in the neighborhood. I see him almost every day and he greets me with a smile and a wave. I have heard that he frequently calls girls on the phone, makes a date, then never keeps it. He has made one date with me, then called me up to break it. I would like very much to make him interested in me. How can I do it?

J. T.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Why bother? A girl who is seriously interested in attracting a boy for a companionable escort seeks dependability, consideration and loyalty from him. The boy you describe apparently isn't equipped with any of this material. He is most undependable, apparently very conceitly callous to other people's feelings. Surely your neighborhood can produce something better than that.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Many girls might think I'm lucky, but I have a problem. A senior in my school has asked me to go steady. My parents approve of him, as he is a fine boy. I have had other chances to go steady but as soon as I see a boy likes me I lose all liking for him. Am I just spoiled? J. S. M.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Could be, but more likely you just have a heavy streak of feminine contrariness. Better try to get over it before boys think you're too stuck-up.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: When the boys and girls in my crowd go out, we always go in a group. We have lots of fun together and I'm always home at the stipulated time. My parents, however, think we hang around corners, but we take turns at each other's homes. When the kids are at my home, their parents think they are on the streets. L. A.

ANSWER: This is a simple problem, calling for just a little co-operation on the part of the parents. I'm surprised that the parents don't know each other well enough to compare notes on their youngsters' activities. Why not ask your mother to invite some of the other mothers in for the afternoon, or perhaps to share in the fun some evening? Surely they are interested in your welfare enough to want to know what sort of families your friends come from.

LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT—Little Georgina Brown, one of a set of British quadruplets born without sight two years ago, reflects her mother's love and happiness after being able to see for the first time in her young life. One of the quads died shortly after the premature birth and the other two, a boy and a girl, still are in a home for the blind. Neighbors in Bromley, Kent, joined the Brown family in a daily prayer session for the sight of the surviving quads.

Omemee W.A. Stage Play

OMEMEE (ENS).—Thanksgiving was the theme chosen by Mrs. W. D. Weir's group, in charge of the program for the October meeting of Trinity United Church W. A. The theme was in all the hymns, in poems read by Mrs. Victor Gray and Mrs. Weir, and in the unison prayers. A duet was sung by Mrs. W. D. Weir and Mrs. A. N. Weir. Mrs. Harry Deyell presented a paper on the same theme emphasizing the fact that we owed it to God and to our fellowmen to have hearts full of thanksgiving and praise. "Praise and thanksgiving," she said, "are the greatest healers in the world—the real Christian is the praise-giving one."

Another feature of the program was Mrs. Vernon Lang's report on the recent W. A. group rally at Powles Corners, some of the highlights of which were Mrs. Webber's discourse on love, Miss Neil's on prayer, and the Rev. Morgan Rowland's address on rest.

Business items included reports and arrangements for sponsoring the play "Mama's Baby Boy," in Omemee Coronation Hall November 7 by the Little Britain Y.P.U. Mrs. McConnell, Mrs. Deyell and Mrs. A. N. Weir were appointed a play committee. It was decided to make candy to sell between acts, Mrs. Lang's group to be responsible for selling it.

Church Collects $118 At Sale

SELWYN (ENS).—The W[illegible] were entertained at the home of Mrs. Clayton Fitzgerald for their business meeting Tuesday evening, with 14 members present.

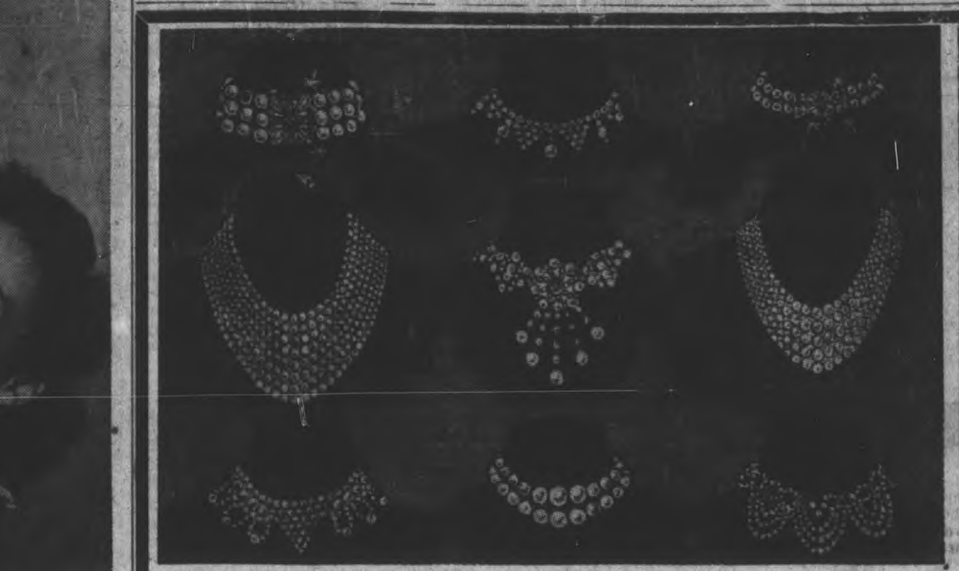
Mrs. Darling, the newly-elected president was in the chair.

Mrs. Townsend gave a report on the rummage sale, bake sale, and afternoon tea held in the parish hall at Young's Point on Saturday last. The toal receipts amounted to $118.75.

Mrs. Pelton was nominated as vice-president for the coming year.

The ladies decided to allot a sum of money to Mrs. A. MacNaughton, the Dorcas secretary, to buy material to begin sewing a layette. It was decided to appoint a member for the W. A. to be in charge of the cleaning of the church, for one month at a time, for the next twelve months. This duty consists of the cleaning and vacuuming, polishing the altar brass, and changing the altar linen and hangings.

Mrs. Monks, the newly elected educational secretary, read a portion of the new study book entitled "Thine is the Kingdom."



Mrs. A. Mackey invited the ladies to her home for the November business meeting and a sewing meeting will be held in the parish hall on Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 28th. The ladies plan to invite the Lakefield W.A. for afternoon tea on Nov. 4th.

The meeting was closed with a few remarks by Mr. Monks and Pauline Fitzgerald played two piano solos while lunch was prepared, Miss

Lakefield W.A. Meets

Mrs. Clare Chittick was in charge of the worship service, when the Women's Association of Lakefield United Church met Tuesday afternoon at the church. Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Elwood Dunford and lesson thoughts on "Christian Brotherhood" given by Mrs. P. H. Darling. Mrs. John Murphy led in prayer. A memorial service, honoring two members of the association, the late Mrs. Bruce Dunford and the late Mrs. Alfred Higgins, was conducted by Mrs. Sherman Northey. Mrs. W. James Charlton reported for the visiting committee that seven calls had been made during the month. Correspondence was read by Mrs. Frank Darling. Members were informed that Mrs. Higgins has left $25 to the Women's Association in her will. The use to which this money will be put was left over for consideration. Final plans for the turkey dinner, to be held Monday, October 27, were made during the business period, presided over by president, Mrs. Sherman Northey. It was requested that all envelopes should be brought in at the November meeting. Hostesses for tea were Mrs. Earl Edwards, Mrs. Stanley Burger and Mrs. W. H. Tonge.

Prince of Wales H. & S. Holds Tea

Mr. W. E. Beggs, president of the Prince of Wales Home and School Association, received at a tea Thursday afternoon given for the room mothers and teachers of the school. The duties of the room mothers were explained by Mrs. Baggs and she also announced there will be a panel discussion at the regular meeting in November on the topic, "Problems of the Primary Division".

Mrs. F. C. Gray poured tea at a table laid with pastel green cloth and the centrepiece a modernistic arrangement of yellow chrysanthemums and pastel green candles.

Mrs. W. Pakenham and Mrs. J. Turner were joint conveners for the tea and were assisted by the executive and the social committee.

Soroptimists Tour Western Clock Co.

Soroptimist Club members enjoyed a departure from their usual after-dinner program Thursday evening when they took a complete tour of the Western Clock Company building. Hostess for the tour and for a social hour following was club member Miss Florence Scott.

The dinner meeting took place in the Empress Hotel with president Miss Gene Clark presiding. Table decorations for the occasion were in Hallowe'en coloring and were most cleverly designed by Mrs. Alma Belleghem.

Program convener Mrs. Eva Brackenridge led in lively group singing.

Garvey-Kirby

Our Lady of Lourdes Church, Toronto, was the scene of the marriage of Harriet Marion, daughter of Mrs. Marion Kirby and the late Dr. Thomas S. Kirby, and Michael Joseph Garvey of Peterborough, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Garvey. Rev. William D. Muckle officiated. Wedding music was played by Harold Armstrong and the boys' choir sang.

Given in marriage by her uncle Charles Lynett, of Arthur, the bride wore her mother's wedding dress of ivory Duchess satin with a bodice and long sleeves of Chantilly lace. Her finger-tip veil of tulle illusion was caught to a Juliet cap with orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of pink Butterfly roses and stephanotis. Her only attendant, Miss Theresa Garvey, wore a gown of mauve net and lace over taffeta and carried a bouquet of gold baby 'mums. Patrick Kirby of Cartier, was groomsman.

Toronto Woman Wins Fishing Prize

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Mrs. Edith Gordon, 76, of Toronto, today was chosen winner of the outstanding-catch prize in the annual $10,000 Daytona Beach fishing tournament.

Mrs. Gordon's catch was a 17-pound, 11½-ounce tarpon which she boated on a No. 2 hook and 15-pound test line. She was fishing for small whiting when the tarpon struck, and despite the fact that she is almost completely blind, brought the silver king aboard with her unusually light tackle.

City Assessor Outlines Work To Study Group

Speaker at the regular meeting of the Study Group on Civic Affairs, Thursday evening at city hall, was Mr. J. E. Davis, assessor for the city of Peterborough. He was introduced by the president, Miss Margaret McCulloch.

Mr. Davis gave the group an excellent over-all picture of the work of his office. He stated the primary requisite of the Assessment Act is that property be assessed at its actual value. He then explained how that "actual value" is estimated from year to year.

"Assessment is influenced by (a) present use of the property, (b) location, (c) cost of replacement, (d) normal (1940) rental value, (e) normal (1940) sales value." Mr. Davis continued with informative detail regarding each of these divisions.

In answer to questions from the audience, the speaker went into the subject of property exemptions, dealing at length on the situation regarding cold storage plants.

Summing up, Mr. Davis declared an assessor should be a diplomat, lawyer, surveyor, real estate valuator and dog-tamer to make the minimum one call a year on every property in the city.

In thanking the speaker, Mrs. T. J. Carley bespoke a cheerful and co-operative reception for the official on subsequent calls to members' homes.

A nominating committee reported a slate of officers will be ready in November. Reports were received for the City Council and Board of Education meetings of October.

Mrs. Carley, chairman of the candidates' meeting, scheduled this year for November 25th in the city hall, reported her committee as Miss Margaret Lees, Miss Sarah Eastwood and Mrs. Graham Lethangue. The session closed with further plans for this meeting.

Mrs. Throop Reads History of W.C.T.U.

More than average attendance marked the celebration of the 67th anniversary of the Women's Christian Temperance Union in Peterborough at an evening meeting Thursday in the Y.W.C.A. Green Room. Some visitors and members unable to attend afternoon meetings were present.

Mrs. A. J. Throop had prepared a history of the Union since it was established in 1885 which she read. Mrs. Throop herself joined in 1916 and has been continuously associated since.

Vice-president Mrs. E. M. Davis opened the meeting with prayer. Mrs. Col. Ritchie of the Salvation Army led group singing of choruses. Mrs. George Hewitt then led a devotional service.

Speaker was the Rev. D. P. Morris of Bridgenorth, honorary member of the County Association. His subject was "Jesus never spoke of deafeat, always of victory," and he suggested the W.C.T.U. would do well to take that as a motto.

Mrs. Gordon Adams, a past president, gave a recitation titled, "My Little Bow of White".

FANNY BRICE

At 10 she sang on street corners and bar tops. By 17 she was a burlesque hit and on her way to Ziegfeld stardom. But though she won fame and fortune in the theater and as "Baby Snooks," she lived the heartbreak of her throbbing song, "My Man." For Fanny never found happiness . . . nor a man of her own. Readers' Friday Column Conducted By Mary Moore

QUESTION: I have just moved here and find your cooking recipes very interesting . . . my daughter and I have made pickles and cut out a recipe for chili sauce with pears and apples but lost it . . . also please give us some recipes for choice cookies. Could you tell me where I can purchase the right kind of flour for bread-making? Have you a good recipe for relish . . . sometimes we get tired of the recipes we have used so much.—Mrs. (Dr.) I. S. L.

ANSWER: I have mailed you cookie recipes and the chili sauce you wanted. Use the brand of flour you mentioned in your letter but insist on bread flour—do not settle for the all-purpose. If your grocer does not stock it write directly to the company—they are more than ready to co-operate.

LAST-OF-THE-GARDEN RELISH

One quart each (5 well-packed cups) chopped well-drained green tomatoes and chopped cabbage, 5 chopped small onions, 2 sweet red peppers chopped, 3 tablespoons salt, 2 cups brown sugar, 1 quart vinegar, 1 tablespoon mustard seed, 2 teaspoons tumeric. Mix together the chopped vegetables and add the sugar, salt, spices and vinegar. Cook slowly, boiling for 30 minutes. Pour into sterile jars and seal.

QUESTION: I enjoy your different recipes . . . I have tried pickle recipes and also cookies and find them delicious . . . I am looking for a recipe for grape wine . . . Mrs. D. J. S.

GRAPE WINE

ANSWER: Wash 10 lbs. ripe grapes, remove from stems. Put in large sterile crock and add 3 quarts boiling water. When cool gently mash to push pulp from skins but do not break seeds. Cover and let stand 4 days. Strain. To the juice add 5 lbs. sugar. Let stand in washed crock for 1 week, then skim carefully and strain again. Do not squeeze bag. Pour into sterile bottles, cork loosely and allow to ferment. When fermentation ceases, strain again, pour into clean bottles and seal.

QUESTION: Would it be possible for you to send me recipe for grape wine—also beet wine? Mrs. J. S.

BEET WINE

Wash and cut up 6 lbs. young or medium beets. Boil in 1 gallon water 1 hour or until water is quite red—you may need to add more water as it boils away for you should have 1 gallon liquid when beets are drained out. Strain into clean crock, add juice of 3 lemons, 3 lbs. white sugar, 2 lbs. raisins—large ones are best—and ¼ teaspoon salt. Let cool. Then spread 1 cake yeast on a slice of toast and lay on top of juice. Let stand in warm place for 10 days, stirring every day but the first. Siphon off and strain into another container and let stand 6 days—then bottle. Fine double cheesecloth should be used for straining, for all yeast must be removed.

QUESTION: I noticed a reader is worried about pears which turned into wine. Well perhaps you can help me to accomplish just this with my elderberries! So far I have extracted the juice, add loaf sugar, cloves, ginger and raisins, let boil for 1 hour, cooled and let ferment with 1 yeast cake for 2 weeks, then strained off. This potion tastes as bitter as gall and not like "mother used to make" my husband says. What is my next move to sweeten it up a bit. Would adding more sugar at this stage of the game do? (Mrs.) B. M.

ANSWER: I'll have to ask the wine makers in our audience for help. I am not an expert. I can give you formula for—

ELDERBERRY WINE

Strip older berries from stems after washing well and to 7 lbs. add 3 gallons water which is boiling hot. Let stand 24 hours, bruise and crush berries and strain through double cheesecloth. Measure. To each gallon of juice add 3 lbs. suger, 1 lb. raisins, ½ oz. ground ginger, 6 cloves, ¼ pint brandy. Boil gently 1 hour, skimming as scum rises. Let stand until body temperature. Add ½ teaspoon brewers' yeast. Cover and allow to ferment. When fermentation ceases, strain through fine double cheese cloth and bottle.

What's Right?

When a man and woman are seated in a restaurant, a woman, unknown to the man, but acquainted with the woman, stops by their table for a moment.

WRONG: Since he doesn't know her, the man does not rise—but continues eating while the two women talk.

RIGHT: The man rises and remains standing until the woman either sits down with them or leaves their table.

THE EXPERTS SAY:

Cookies "Shell Out" Favors Taste Almost Like Candy

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

"Trick or treat," the little guy across the street will soon be stuttering from behind his big false face. And probably his mother will be forever grateful if you limit the sweets put into his Hallowe'en basket.

Apples make good "shell-out" material. Cookies, too, find favor among the small fry. Here's a recipe for unbaked cookies that taste almost like candy:

Put a tablespoon of butter into heavy frying-pan, add eggs, dates, sugar, vanilla, and salt. Cook slowly, stirring continually, until done (about 10 to 15 minutes). Remove and cool. Add three cups rice flakes, shape in balls and roll in fine cocoanut.

SWEET STUFF

If the Hallowe'en handout must be candy then home-made fudge is excellent.

From the Jubilee Guilds of Newfoundland and Labrador comes this recipe for chocolate fudge: Two tablespoons butter; two cups sugar; three-quarters cup top milk or thin cream; two squares chocolate or five tablespoons cocoa; one tablespoon butter; two tablespoons light corn syrup; one teaspoon vanilla or one-quarter teaspoon cinnamon.

Cook sugar, milk, chocolate and corn syrup slowly until chocolate melts, stirring gently. Boil without stirring until mixture forms a soft ball when tried in cold water.

Remove from fire, add butter and let stand until cool. Add flavoring and nuts or 12 marshmallows. Beat until creamy.

Boil two pounds light brown sugar, two-thirds cup milk, one tablespoon butter or margarine until the mixture forms a soft ball when dropped in cold water. Remove from fire and beat until

SAVING WAYS

Tea biscuit mix can be made in quantity, say home economists of the consumer section, Canadian Department of Agriculture. Furthermore, this mix is most expensive when skim milk is used.

Ingredients: Eight cups sifted all-purpose flour or nine cups sifted pastry flour; four tablespoons baking-powder; 1½ tablespoons salt; two-thirds to one cup skim milk powder; one cup shortening.

Mix and sift flour, baking-powder salt and skim milk powder. Cut in shortening until mixture resembles fine bread crumbs. Store in covered container in refrigerator or in other cool place.-

the World famous beauty treatment
SILHOUETTE SHAMPOO

In Regular or Blonde

Now YOU can buy one of the world's leading beauty treatments, now available in your own neighborhood! It's the scientifically perfect shampoo—in Regular to keep dark hair soft, silky, lustrous; in Blonde, specially designed to bring out lovely highlights in fair hair. And it's the ONLY shampoo with the famous H.B. FACTOR*. Takes just a few drops—leaves hair cleaner, silkier, glowing with health.

* H.B. FACTOR stands for scientifically correct hair balance—the balance between acid and alkali content in each strand of hair so necessary for hair health. After years of research in Silhouette laboratories, this essential factor has been incorporated in all Silhouette Shampoos.

6—In Memoriam

No one knows how much we miss you,
No one knows the bitter pain
We have suffered, since we lost you
Life has never been the same.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweetly tender, fond and true,
There is not a day dear mother
That we do not think of you.
—Sadly missed by Margaret, Ronald and Norman.

COLBY—In loving memory of Roy Colby, who passed away Oct. 24, 1951.
When evening shades are falling,
And we sit quietly alone,
To our hearts there comes a longing,
If he only could come home.
Friends may think we have forgotten
When at times they see us smile,
But they little know the heartache
Our smile hides all the while.
Gone, dear father, gone forever,
How we miss your smiling face,
But you left us to remember
None on earth can take your place.
A happy home we once enjoyed—
How sweet the memory still,
But death has left a loneliness,
The world can never fill.
—Sadly missed by wife, Alma, daughter, Yvonne and sons, Orval, Vernon, Trevor, daughter-in-law Mary.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

6—In Memoriam

COLBY—In loving memory of Roy Colby, who died October 24, 1951.
Happy and smiling, always content,
Loved and respected wherever he went,
Always thoughtful, willing and kind,
What a beautiful memory he left behind.
—Remembered by his mother-in-law, Mrs. J. Ferguson.

JOHNSON—In memory of Mrs. Mary Lavina Johnson-Pimmott, who passed away October 24, 1951.
God knew that she was suffering,
And that the hills were hard to climb,
So he closed her weary eyelids
And whispered "Peace be thine."
—Sisters and Brothers.

TRUDE—In loving memory of Mrs. W. F. Trude, who passed away October 24, 1947.
Five years have passed since that sad day,
The one we loved was called away,
God took her home, it was His will,
But in our hearts she liveth still.
—Ever remembered by husband and family.

WATSON—In loving memory of my dear wife, Mrs. J. Watson, who passed away one year ago.
Her loving face I hope to see again,
Though the days have passed away
Sleep on, dear wife, and take your rest,
They miss you most who loved you best.
—Ever remembered by husband and family.

R.A. Crapp Drove Stage To Warsaw

One of the old-time stage drivers on the postal route from Warsaw to Peterborough, Robert Alphonsus Crapp, 74, was buried Thursday in Lakefield cemetery. He died Tuesday of a heart attack.

He was ninth in the chronological list of drivers of the Warsaw stage; the exact dates of his service are not known. The stage run was established in 1842 and is still being used, although its route has changed with the change in roads.

Born in Smith township, he was a son of the late Robert Cornelius Crapp and Melissa Parker. He obtained his early education in Smith and Harvey townships, and married the former Lilly Nicholls, who died in 1937.

Lately, Mr. Crapp had been living in Lakefield, where his son, Norman, lives. A brother and a sister survive him: John of Montreal and Mrs. Edward Garbe of Toronto.

Funeral service was conducted Thursday by Clark McClelland of Grace Gospel Hall, Lakefield, and burial was in Lakefield cemetery.

Cruiser Ontario Pays Buenos Aires Visit

OTTAWA (CP) — The cruiser Ontario, on a cruise around the South American continent, is currently paying a six-day courtesy visit to Buenos Aires, the first Canadian warship to visit the Argentine capital.

She sailed from Esquimalt Sept. 8 on her training and goodwill cruise.

12-Year Jail Term Upheld On Appeal

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—The court of appeals today unanimously upheld a 12-year jail sentence given boss bookie Harry Gross, accused of master-minding a multi-million dollar New York gambling ring.

Gross, 36, now in jail, has been testifying in the current departmental trials of 30 New York policemen, who are accused of protecting Gross' $20,000,000-a-year bookmaking empire.

In September, 1951, he was sentenced to one year for conspiracy and 11 years for bookmaking.

Theatre Destroyed

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Damage was estimated at $50,000 today after an early-morning fire destroyed a theatre, restaurant and a vacant dwelling and general store at Havelock.

Need Action, Not Fine Treaties To Speed Information U.N. Told

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United States told the United Nations today it could better promote freedom of information by concrete action rather than fine sounding treaties.

U.S. delegate Charles A. Sprague told the humanitarian and cultural committee he thought the U.N.'s fruitless efforts during the last six years to achieve international agreement on a freedom of information convention, should prove that the writing of such documents serves small purpose at this time.

"Something far more basic than the writing of legal language must take place before we can go forward profitably with the drafting of treaties," he said.

As an alternative, Sprague offered three suggestions for furthering the freedom cause:

1. Give the people of the free world a clearer picture of what is going on in their neighbor countries so they may better understand the differences between peoples and acquire more tolerance.

2. Prepare recommendations on how to speed the spread of news of all lands including those hampered by censorship or lack of education facilities.

3. Organize seminars to bring editors and publishers of various lands together for round table discussions of problems surrounding the free flow of news.

"The foreign policy of the United States toward each nation and towards the United Nations depends in the final analysis upon the information that the people of the United States have about other countries, whether they understand their problems and our common problems," Sprague said.

"Those of you who are familiar with newspaper and radio operations know how a strong domestic press can contribute to that understanding."

Will Rebuild Historic Fort

LAKE GEORGE, N.Y. (AP) — Fort William Henry, scene of a massacre during the French and Indian war, will be rebuilt by a private group as a museum at an estimated cost of $750,000 to $1,000,000.

Harold G. Veeder of Albany, who heads a group that filed incorporation papers for the project yesterday, said he and his associates will develop the site this winter and next spring.

The fort's English garrison was starved out by besieging French and Indians in 1757. The French general, Montcalm, promised safe conduct to the English, but his soldiers were unable to restrain the Indians. Many of the English were killed.

Dispute Signatures

NEW YORK (AP) — A pro-Stevenson group at Columbia University says only 259 of the 714 signers of a pro-Eisenhower newspaper advertisement were members of the faculty and staff as represented in the ad.

The full-page ad appeared yesterday in support of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Republican presidential nominee on leave as president of Columbia.

Get Knuckles Rapped For Smoking In Session

"This is a custom that ought to be dispensed with," he said.

Last week, the speaker took bored members to task for throwing spitballs at dozing colleagues.

9 POW's Injured

TOKYO (AP) — Nine Communist prisoners of war were injured Thursday at Camp No. 2-B in Pusan, Korea, after refusing to obey orders to form work details, Gen. Mark Clark's headquarters announced today. Headquarters said none of the prisoners was injured seriously.

Can't Find Clue

TOKYO (Reuters) — Edogawa Ranpo, the Conan Doyle of Japan, reported to police today that his house had been rifled by a burglar who didn't leave a clue. Police told the detective story writer that the case would make a good mystery story.

Decide Crash Death At Oakville Accidental

OAKVILLE (CP) — An inquest jury decided last night the death of Gerald Boyd, 24, of Kitchener, in a car-truck crash near here Aug. 31 was accidental.

Evidence was that Boyd's car collided at 3 a.m. with a heavy truck driven by Beverley Cundick of Watford. The jury attached no blame to the transport driver.

4 Planes Bring Relief Supplies

SAIGON, Indo-China (AP)—Four planes of the United States economic aid mission in Indo-China joined French air forces today in an airlift of relief supplies to the coastal town of Phan Thiet, where 350 persons are missing and 5,000 homeless after a typhoon and tidal wave.

The American planes are flying four tons of food, clothing and medicines to the battered town of 20,000 persons 100 miles east of Saigon.

Meanwhile, the weather bureau announced that another typhoon, which took hundreds of lives in the Philippines Wednesday, was 240 miles off the Indo-Chinese coast today and advancing at a speed of 24 miles an hour. Winds in the centre of the storm were reported as high as 132 miles an hour.

Urges Local Centres To Deal With Palsy

MONTREAL (CP) — Establishment of local centres for detection and treatment of cerebral palsy was urged last night by Dr. T. H. Coffey of London, Ont., in an address before the Cerebral Palsy Association of Quebec.

Dr. Coffey said the Woodeden cerebral palsy treatment centre at London, of which he is superintendent, is a great stride forward, but still not ideal because it must handle children from all over Ontario. Local units would be better than large centralized treatment centres.

Dr. Coffey said there is some ground for suspicion that cerebral palsycasstendtoo more ccur palsy cases tend to occur more frequently among premature babies.

269 War Casualties

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States defence department today identified 269 Korean War casualties in a new list that reported 71 killed; 181 wounded; nine missing in action and eight injured.

14 Bulls Sold For $350 Each

Former Resident Dies In Michigan

A resident of Peterborough for most of his life, 85-year-old Edward J. Phelan was buried Thursday in Ferndale, Mich.

Born in Ennismore, he worked in Peterborough for many years with Fitzgerald Fuels. About 20 years ago he retired and moved to Ferndale, where two of his daughters live.

His wife, the former Johanna O'Donnell, died last year. Surviving are five children: William J. Phelan, Joseph D., and Mrs. Emerson Saul (Frances), all of Detroit, Mrs. Peter Simler (Mary), and Mrs. Raymond Ferman (Loretta), both of Ferndale.

Requiem mass was said at St. James' Roman Catholic Church, Ferndale, and burial was in Holy Sepulchre Cemetery.

David James More

The funeral for David James More of Lakefield and formerly of Peterborough, Toronto and Daventry, England, who died Monday was held Thursday from the Comstock funeral home.

A successful businessman both in Canada and England, Mr. More was mayor of Daventry, England, 1949-50, and was also the founder president of its Rotary Club.

The Old Comrade Association of the 21st Battalion, C.E.F., attended the funeral in a body to pay their respects to the former company commander of the battalion.

The Rev. W. H. Tonge of Lakefield United Church conducted the service.

Pallbearers were Albert Allen, Uzal Waterman, David Stephenson, Fred Sheppard, William Sheppard, Arthur Seal. Burial was in Little Lake cemetery.

Poulty Tattooed

CORTON, England (CP)—Suffolk farmers are all set to prevent repetition of large-scale poultry thefts at Christmas. Birds are being tattooed with a secret code number.

OBITUARIES

MRS. WILLIAM MORRIS

WESTWOOD (ENS)—Resident of Westwood and vicinity 50 years Mrs. William Morris died this morning in hospital at Peterborough after a lengthy illness.

She was born in England 67 years ago, Elizabeth, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Oliver.

Mrs. Morris was prominent for years in the affairs of this community. She was a member of St. Andrew's United Church here, and of its choir and Women's Missionary Society. She was a past president of the Women's Institute.

The funeral will be Monday at 2.30 p.m. from St. Andrew's Church to Westwood cemetery. The service will be conducted by the minister, the Rev. N. Cole, who will be assisted by the Rev. H. E. Peasgood, of Norwood Anglican Church.

WALTER FLOWERS

Walter Flowers, 59, 527 King St., died today in Civic Hospital, following a short illness.

Mr. Flowers was born in London, England, son of the late Walter Flowers and Margaret Ann Gillespie, and came to Peterborough in 1902. He has lived here ever since except for a period of nine years when he lived in Moncton, N.B.

At the time of his death, Mr. Flowers was an employee of the Ernest Ridout Real Estate Co. Formerly he was a salesman with the Peterborough Cereal Co., when he was stationed in Moncton.

At one time an outstanding athlete, Mr. Flowers was Canadian Army track champion during the First World War. This championship was won when he was serving with the 5th Canadian Mounted Rifles. He was goalie of the Peterborough Bell Telephone hockey team when they won the Ontario championship.

Mr. Flowers was also a veteran of the Second World War. He served with the Imperial Foresters and R.A.S.C.

A member of St. John's Anglican Church, he was also a member of the Corinthian Lodge A.F. and A.M. In Moncton he was a member of the Masonic Lodge and of the Y's Men's Club.

He leaves his wife, the former Nellie Owen; one son, James Walter, Bewdley; two daughters, Mrs. George L-Homme (Gwyneth) and Miss Kathrine Barbara Flowers, both of Montreal; one sister, Miss Margaret Flowers, Peterborough, and two brothers, Arthur, Copper Cliff, Ont., and Cyril, Niagara Falls, N.Y.

The funeral will be held Monday at 2 p.m. from the Comstock funeral home to St. John's Anglican Church. Archdeacon W. P. Robertson, of St. John's Anglican Church, and the Rev. M. P. Poole, of All Saints' Anglican Church, will conduct the service. Burial will be in Little Lake cemetery.

Zatopek Joins Czech Red Party

VIENNA (AP) — Emil Zatopek, the world's fastest long-tdisance runner, has joined the Czechoslovak Community party and pledged himself to break two world records tomorrow "in honor" of the occasion.

Radio Prague said today Zatopek Czech army major and Olympic winner, previously had no political affiliation.

"Today, his wish to become a member of the Communist party was realized," the broadcast said. "He received from the political commander of a high military unit a candidate's card.

"In honor of the occasion, he has pledged himself to establish two new world records on Oct. 25 in the 25- and 30 - kilometre runs."

The durable Czech won the 5,000 and 10,000-metre runs and the marathon in the Olympics at Helsinki this summer.

Parliament Observers One-Minute Silence

ROME (Reuters) — Parliament today observed a one-minute silence in honor of hostages killed by the Nazis during the war, signifying disapproval of the clemency release of former marshal Albert Kesselring.

The one-minute meditation was in memory of 335 Italian civilians massacred in Rome's Ardeatine caves shortly before Kesselring's forces retreated from the city in 1944.

Kesselring was released by British authorities yesterday from the German prison where he was serving a 21-year war-crimes sentence.

Five Fires Burning Throughout Province

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario lands and forests department reports that five fires are burning in the province this morning, but all are under control. Four are in the Port Arthur district and one in the Quinte district.

The department reports that five fires have been extinguished during the last 24 hours, all in the Kenora district. The forest fire hazard rating ranges from medium to high.

Turpin Surrenders Middleweight Title

Manager George Middleton said Turpin was giving up the European crown because being ordered to defend it at any time might clash with a possible world championship fight.

Turpin is still a triple champion, British middle and light heavyweight, and British Empire middleweight. He won the latter title last Tuesday by outpointing South African George Angelo in a 15-round bout.

Caused Ruckus In Restaurant

"We don't tolerate disturbances in restaurants," Magistrate W. R. Philp told a Norwood youth who pleaded guilty to causing a disturbance in the restaurant of the Havelock Hotel early today.

Hugh Mathews was fined $20 and $6.70 costs or 15 days in jail. Chief Robert Hall of Havelock said he found Mathews staggering down the aisle behind the counter in the restaurant and shouting. Chief Hall said Mathews was almost intoxicated.

Melville O. Campbell of Campbellford was fined $15 and $6.70 costs or one month in jail when he pleaded guilty to having liquor in a place other than his residence.

Can't Have Committee

TOKYO (AP) — In Japan, first country to undergo atomic bombing, the council of sciences has turned thumbs down on a proposal for a government committee on atomic energy. The influential academic body said yesterday the government could not be trusted to use atomic power strictly for peaceful purposes.

Celebrate Anniversary

PUSAN, Korea (AP) — Representatives of 21 countries with troops and hospital units in Korea today celebrated the seventh anniversary of the United Nations in a ceremony in Pusan stadium.

Japanese Diet Meets

TOKYO (Reuters) — The Japanese diet tonight began its first session since the elections, voting Liberal leader Shigeru Yoshida into his fourth term as prime minister.

Scientists Visit Islands Again

LONDON (Reuters) — Scientists have gone back ashore on Australia's Monte Bello islands to survey the effects of Britain's atomic blast there three weeks ago, it was announced today.

The recovery of recording instruments and significant salvage material will probably take several weeks, a supply ministry announcement said.

Prime Minister Churchill said yesterday the test simulated harbor conditions, but it is not known what structures were set up. Experts here believe they include at least the skeleton of a harbor complete with docks, cranes and buildings.

Today's statement added that the explosion, which distintegrated the naval frigate Plym, climaxed two years of secret planning.

"Elaborate arrangements" to guard personnel against radio-active contamination have been taken, it added.

Film Federation Meets In Pembroke

Arthur Pitchford and William Graff are representing the Peterborough Film Council at the annual meeting of the Federation of Film Councils of Eastern Ontario being held in Pembroke today and Saturday.

W. Sutton will represent the Peterborough County Film Council and Ross Ward, regional supervisor of the National Film Board, will also attend.

The main speaker will be Arthur Irwin, commissioner of the National Film Board.

The film, "Land of the Long Day," which is expected to win the 1952-53 National Film Board Award, will also be shown at the meeting. The producers, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Wilkinson, will be present to tell of their adventures while making this film on the life of Eskimos in Baffinland.

Traditional U.K. Pub To Get New Look

The House of Lords has ordered pubs in "new towns" — government-subsidized housing developments — to set aside a soft-drinks room.

How to argue

If someone tries to pick a quarrel with you, you can: (1) hit him; (2) walk away; (3) start a slam-bang argument and get no place; or (4) follow the advice offered in November Reader's Digest—and chances are you'll make him change his mind.

Stuart Chase, noted author and lecturer, describes a proven technique that will help you win arguments, may pay you dividends in social and business life.

Don't miss "How to argue" in November Reader's Digest. It's just one of 43 articles of lasting interest, condensed from leading magazines, current books.

Board Pays $100,000 For Hospital Wing

WINDSOR — (CP) — Board of Control yesterday promised payment of $100,000 toward Metropolitan Hospital's new 167-bed wing now under construction.

Dr. W. R. Waddell, chairman of the hospital board, told the board equipment for the five-storey wing will cost $175,000. The hospital hopes to raise the additional $75,000 by a public campaign.

Controllers said the city is now holding $50,000 which was set aside in January to equip the hospital wing. An additional $50,000 would be set aside next year.

Two Men Convicted Forging Money Orders

TORONTO (CP) — Basil O'Donnell, 43, and Robert Choma, 26, a photo engraver, yesterday were convicted of forging money orders. Frank O'Donnell, a brother of Basil was acquitted on this charge.

Later in the same court, but before a different jury, Frank admitted passing money orders which Basil said he forged. All three men are to be sentenced today.

Evidence showed both O'Donnells have long criminal records but it was Choma's first offence.

Pearson Urges Support UN General Assembly

NEW YORK (CP)—L.B. Pearson, president of the United Nations General Assembly, last night called for support for the U.N. and stressed the need for patience in dealing with international problems.

Pearson, Canada's external affairs minister, was speaking at a dinner given by the American Association of the United Nations.

"Our best course—indeed our only course—will be to persist in strengthening our collective capacity within the United Nations to resist aggression, and to continue with diligence and perseverance the search for solutions of problems as they arise," he said.

ALLIED AIR LOSSES HIGHER THAN REDS

NEW HEADQUARTERS of the Provincial Police in Cobourg were officially opened by Commissioner W. H. Stringer. Accompanied by Inspector James A. Stringer, head of District 8 with headquarters in Peterborough, the Commissioner inspected Provincial Police officers from all over the district: Bowmanville, Lindsay, Peterborough, Fenelon Falls, Cobourg, Brighton and Campbellford. Mayor John Burnet of Cobourg and Warden Harry Campbell of Northumberland and Durham spoke. — (Murray Smith Photo)

U.N. Forces Have Lost 812 Planes

Communist Aircraft Have Concentrated On Enemy Bombers

TOKYO (Reuters) — Allied air losses since the start of the Korean war have been greater than those of the Communists, Far East Air Force headquarters announced today.

United Nations forces have lost 812 planes since June 25, 1950. Allied planes have shot down 631 Communist aircraft, the announcement said. Of the enemy losses, 475 have been MiG jets.

The announcement said the U.N. pilots have destroyed 60,500 vehicles and 1,270 tanks as well as hundreds of military installations and other targets.

SUGGEST REASON

Military observers gave several key reasons for the greater allied losses. Among them were:

1. Communist planes have concentrated on attacking Allied bombers instead of venturing into Allied-held territory for attacks on ground targets.

2. U. N. aircraft, aiming at ground targets, have thus exposed themselves to anti-aircraft fire.

3. Communist planes have been able to flee to their bases in Manchuria — a forbidden territory to Allied flyers.

In the last week, the announcement said, the Allies lost four planes compared with three for the enemy. U.N. losses were one F-86 Sabre jet in air combat, an F-84 Thunderjet and an observation plane by ground fire, and an F-80 Shooting Star which failed to return to its base for reasons unknown. The three Communist planes were lost in aerial combat.

Farouk Rents Villa

ROME (Reuters)—Former King Farouk of Egypt has rented a 30-room villa at Castel Gandolfo, where the Pope has his summer palace, informed sources said last night. They said he will pay 500,000 lire ($805) a month to rent the villa. Farouk now is living at the seaside resort of Santa Marinella, near Rome.

Dr. D. W. Clark Succumbs To Heart Attack

Dr. David Wesley Clark of 508 Monaghan Rd., a general practitioner in Peterborough for 30 years, died in hospital today after a sudden heart attack. He was in his 74th year.

Dr. Clark was respected by his colleagues for his professional ability and he was known throughout the Peterborough district as a keen sportsman—interested in fishing and in the team games of baseball and rugby.

He leaves his widow, the former Ella Dartnell; three sons—Dr. Ralph Clark of Peterborough, Allan of Hamilton and Grant, also of Peterborough; a brother, William Clark of Pontypool, and five grandchildren.

BORN IN MANVERS

Born in Ballyduff, near Pontypool in Manvers township, he was educated in local schools and was graduated from Ottawa Normal School. Before studying medicine he taught school for some time.

In 1909 Dr. Clark was graduated from the University of Toronto and the first years of his practice were at Bowmanville. For 12 years he was a country doctor in Pontypool district. In 1922 he came to Peterborough where he continued as a general practitioner.

During the last couple of years he reduced his previously heavy schedule, though he still remained an active doctor.

In his youth he was a good football player and he later watched his sons follow in his sporting footsteps. He was an ardent rugby-football fan and closely followed the fortunes of Peterborough's senior baseball teams and the P.C.V.S. teams. He was also a member of the Peterborough Curling Club.

Besides being a vocal supporter of the teams, for many years he freely gave his medical services to the baseball and football teams.

Hurricane Heads For Bahamas, Cuba Hard Hit

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A severe hurricane re-formed today and headed toward Bimini in the Bahamas, vering away from the Florida coast. The Miami weather bureau said at 5 a.m. EST that the hurricane still had winds estimated at more than 100 miles an hour and gales extend outward 80 miles from the centre. At that time the hurricane was centred about 155 miles south-south-east of Miami and was moving north-northeast at about seven miles an hour.

The southeast Florida coast should not have dangerously high winds, the weather bureau said, but winds would reach hurricane force (75 miles an hour) during the day a short distance off the Florida coast eastward through the Western Bahamas.

The hurricane re-formed in the Florida Straits after being battered and distorted in the hills of central Cuba.

MANY HOMELESS

The hurricane, sixth of the season, threatened to brush Miami and the southeast Florida coast with gale-force winds as the centre passed about 50 miles to the east.

The rich "Gold Coast" area of southeast Florida had battened down. Rivers and harbors were clogged with yachts and fishing craft.

On its present course the storm would sweep over Cat Cay and Bimini around noon and continue toward the islands of Grand Bahama and Little Abaco in the Bahamas chain, leaving Nassau and other settlements to the east.

The hurricane thrashed across Cuba with winds up to 165 miles an hour. It cut a swath 60 miles wide through rich sugar-cane and ranch land and emerged on the north coast of the island republic about 125 miles east-southeast of Havana.

One Trooper Dismissed, Three Sentenced

HOHNE, Germany (Reuters)—A Canadian soldier today was ordered dismissed from the army and three others were given jail sentences of up to 18 months for their part in wrecking a German hotel at nearby Bergen Sept. 30.

They were said to be the ringleaders of a group of about 27 soldiers of the 27th Canadian Infantry brigade who beat up a party of young Germans in the hotel, breaking windows, bottles, furniture and a piano in the process.

All four were troopers of the Royal Canadian Dragoons.

Tpr. Henry Clarence Jobson, 19, of Elk Lake, Ont., was sentenced to 18 months' hard labor and dismissed from the army.

Tprs. Evan Ernest Bryans, 22, of Lindsay, Ont., and Joseph Jean-Roy Riendau, 19, of Montreal, were given 18-month hard-labor terms. Tpr. B.A. McPhee, 20, of Kirkland Lake, Ont., was sentenced to four months' detention.

The first three were found guilty by a court martial of leading the attack. McPhee was found guilty of taking part.

NOT UNUSUAL

Brig. Geoffrey Walsh, commander of the brigade, said today the incident was "most regrettable," but not unusual among troops posted in foreign countries. It would not, he said, harm relations between the troops and the people of Bergen.

A Bergen councillor who attended the court martial said the sentences had been more severe than he had expected.

The prosecutor, Capt. E.C. Hipwell, of Creston, B.C., emphasized that the attack had been premeditated, that it took place in a foreign country and that civilian property had been damaged or destroyed.

Defending officer Lieut. D. N. Ross of Fort Henry, Ont., said some Germans had not hid their dislike of the Canadian soldiers, and there was some bad feeling.

He asked that the youth of the soldiers be taken into consideration, along with language difficulties and the fact that similar incidents were known to have taken place, both in Canada and overseas.

Same Accident Same Scene Same Excuse

Augumentive girl friends are getting to be an accident hazard on Armour Rd.

An accident early today was practically a carbon copy of one that occurred early Thursday morning. Constable Harold Andrew investigated both accidents. They happened at the same time (3 a.m.); both occurred on Armour Rd., and both drivers blamed an argument with their girl friends for the accidents.

In the Thursday morning accident, the car ended up against a telephone pole and was badly damaged, but today, the car, driven by Wilford Finn, 32, of 305 Margaret Ave., went off the road and rolled over in the east ditch. The car was not damaged and neither Finn, nor his girl friend, Corinne Hanrahan, 22, of 522 Armour Rd., were injured.

Finn said he was driving south on Armour Rd., when he took his eyes off the road for an instant during an argument with Miss Hanrahan. They went to Miss Hanrahan's home after climbing out of the overturned car and phoned police.

Studies Appeal On Coal Boost

WASHINGTON (AP)—Economic Stabilizer Roger Putnam today studied a joint appeal from the soft-coal industry and John L. Lewis that he overrule the Wage Stabilization Board and approve a $1.90-daily wage boost for Lewis' United Mine Workers.

The appeal, details of which Putnam has refused to discuss publicly, was signed by Harry M. Moses, president of the Bituminous Coal Operators' Association, and Lewis as head of the U.M.W.

The board last Saturday reduced the wage increase negotiated by Lewis and the industry by 40 cents on the grounds that more than $1.50 a day would be inflationary.

RULING "COURAGEOUS"

Putnam, who has supervision over the board, called the wage boost cutback ruling "very courageous" and indicated his agreement with it.

Lewis' 375,000 soft coal miners [illegible] get the full $1.90, which would bring average daily earnings to $15.25.

Some observers felt that some other governmental officials were trying to persuade Putnam that the full wage boost should be approved in the interest of production.

Money Order Gang Given Jail Terms

TORONTO (CP)—What was believed to be Canada's first gang of postal money-order counterfeiters yesterday was sent to prison for terms ranging from six months to five years.

Basil O'Donnell, 43, of Toronto, described as the "prime mover" of the gang, was sentenced to five years. His 39-year-old brother, Frank, got six months and Robert Choma, 27, a photo-engraver, was given a reformatory sentence of two years less a day.

The O'Donnell brothers and Choma faced joint charges of forgery, uttering and conspiracy of which the jury acquitted Frank O'Donnell. The latter pleaded guilty to a second charge of passing forged postal money-orders from a post-office.

South Koreans Rout New Red Troops

SEOUL (AP)—Battle-weary South Koreans fought yard by yard up the highest pinnacle on Sniper Ridge today and routed fresh Chinese Communist troops in a 4½-hour ordeal of cold steel, hot rifle fire and bursting grenades. Then they drove on up the ridge toward the Yoke, a network of Red trenches and caves commanding the northern end of Sniper. Allied planes roared down on the Yoke, spilling armor-piercing bombs at the fortification network in an effort to open a chink in that stubborn Communist obstacle.

Only seven hours earlier, the hard-bitten South Koreans had pulled off Pinpoint Hill, highest peak on the ridge, under the onslaughts of two fresh Chinese battalions.

CONTROL PIKE'S PEAK

Elsewhere on the flaming central front, the Reds held control of Pike's Peak, their last stronghold on Triangle Hill just west of Sniper. They beat off United States 7th Division attacks last night and today. The Chinese also held Iron Horse Mountain, another strategic Peak 20 miles to the west.

In the air war, U.S. Sabre jet pilots reported shooting down two Communist jets in northwest Korea near the Yalu River border to Manchuria. Any Allied losses would be announced in the weekly roundup.

From dawn to dusk Friday, Communist artillery pounded South Korean positions with 20,000 rounds of big-gun fire. Then 1,500 fresh Chinese charged the peak with fixed bayonets and grenades.

ROUT BATTERED REDS

The South Koreans gave way. But they dug in on the south slope and counter-attacked at 8 a.m. They reached the crest of Pinpoint at 10 a.m. and fought a savage, close-quarter action on the top for more than two hours before routing the battered Red remnants.

Pike's Peak on Triangle Hill is also honeycombed with caves and trenches, AP Correspondent John Randolph reported. Intense Chinese fire pinned down 7th Division infantrymen attacking it today and stopped the Americans short of the crest.

One Suspect Kidnapper Caught By Police

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—The youngest of three suspects sought in the kidnapping of 20 persons—including two Canadian women—was arrested here early today.

A.I. Means of the Memphis office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation announced that Virgil Lemay, 15, was arrested at a Nashville home last night.

Still at large and sought on kidnapping and car-theft warrants were James Francis Hill, 29, of Framingham, Mass., and Charles Edward Hopkins, 19, of Jacksonville, Fla.

TAKEN INTO CUSTODY

Means said Lemay returned to Nashville, his home town, yesterday and went to the home of friends who were away at the time. He went to sleep there and when the friends returned they took him to another Nashville residence by prearrangement with police, Means said. The youth was taken into custody there.

Miss Ethel Clark and her 84-year old mother, both of Toronto, were among those kidnapped and robbed in the three-man crime wave. The two women were released by a passing farmer after their abductors left them bound by a roadside.

During a three-day spree through Georgia, into Tennessee, and back to Atlanta, the trio kidnapped 20 persons and stole three cars and a pick-up truck. All hostages apparently were released after a short period.

The latest victim, Herschel Myers, 20, of White County, Tenn., told police he was forced at gunpoint to drive the trio from Sparta, Tenn., to Atlanta. He said one of the bandits got out about 20 miles from Atlanta and the other two at different places in the city.

2 Haliburton People Hold Sweeps Tickets

MONTREAL (CP) — A Torontonian identified only by the nom de plume "Chookie" drew an Irish Hospital sweepstakes ticket on Cap of Gold, the favorite in next Wednesday's Cambridgeshire Stakes, it was announced yesterday.

A ticket on the winning horse is worth about $150,000. A ticket on the second-place horse will bring about $60,000 and a third-place ticket, $30,000.

The list of Canadian ticket-holders, as cabled to Montreal, with name or nom de plume, home-town ticket number and name of horse in that order, includes the following from Ontario:

Believes Russia Has New Plane

LONDON (AP) — The Daily Express says today Russia is experimenting with a rocket-jet fighter plane that takes off and lands vertically to intercept global jet bombers.

Group Capt. Hugh Dundas, the paper's air correspondent, says the plane, "needs no airfield and could operate from a forest clearing."

Dundas says the fighter, called a CZ2B, is 54 feet long, has a wing span of 42 feet, is 21.7 feet high, and weighs 3,874 pounds empty and 6,387 pounds loaded. First information on it came from a micro-film from a Polish technical institute where it was designed, he says.

Details on the plane will be published next week in the semi-official R.A.F. Review.

Dundas says it is "suggested" that a parachute released from the nose of the plane and tail rocket engines may be used to cushion the plane as it settles straight down to the ground.

The Germans experimented with a similar idea during the war, but the only such plane they turned out disintegrated in the air, Dundas says.

Cruiser Ontario In 2 Collisions

BUENOS AIRES (CP)—The cruiser Ontario was not seriously damaged yesterday in the first of two collisions just before entering port here. In the second collision, with a barge, only her paint was scratched.

Reuters news agency reported the first collision occurred while the Ontario was being towed by tugs up the river channel.

She was overtaken by the Chilean freighter Arauco.

In evading the freighter, the Ontario got stuck fast in the river silt along the channel edge. During refloating operations, the Arauco came into collision with her.

The Ontario was struck by the impact but not seriously damaged, Reuters reported.

Loot 2 Homes Of $15,000 Jewels

TORONTO (CP)—North York police said yesterday that jewellery valued at $15,000 was taken more than a week ago from two fashionable township homes—but never was reported stolen.

Police said they first heard about the thefts from the insurance companies involved.

The robberies took place at Col. Eric Phillips' mansion in Oriole and at the J.S. McLean estate near Sunnybrook Hospital. Col. Phillips, whose loss was estimated at $10,000, is a prominent industrialist and financier. Mr. McLean, president of Canada Packers, lost $4,000 to $5,000.

Earlier reports said the total loot was $50,000.

The mother was reported "fit and well." Three of her previous six children are dead.

Three Gunmen Escape With $1300 From Bank

FREELTON (CP)—Three gunmen escaped with about $1,300 from a bank in this community 14 miles south of Guelph yesterday. Police said the three used tactics like those of the Boyd gang.

The three men entered the Bank of Toronto branch here and the leader leaped over a counter. He ordered two girl employees to lie [illegible] being held in his back, "I just wouldn't open the safe."

Chinese Body-Snatchers Prowl Little Gibraltar

By BILL BOSS

WEST SECTOR, Korea (CP)—Chinese "body-snatchers" prowled Little Gibraltar's approaches last night, trying to recover the bodies of their comrades killed in Thursday night's battle with United Nations forces.

U.N. troops during the day had seen drag marks apparently made Thursday night after the Reds were dislodged from the rocky spur which they held only for seven hours. Last night the U.N. troops heard dragging noises from no-man's-land and called down artillery and mortar fire to discourage the Chinese activity.

The Thursday night battle ousted the Reds after they had briefly driven the U.N. forces from Little Gibraltar, which had been in Allied hands for months.

A Reuters dispatch from Tokyo said the U.N. soldiers were from the 1st Commonwealth Division, which includes the 25th Canadian Brigade. The action around Little Gibraltar hill, about 15 miles east of the Panmunjom truce site, was described as the division's biggest battle this year.

FIRE DWINDLES

The enemy held off on mortar and shell fire Friday. It was a break for U.N. troops who had taken steadily increased bombardments during the previous 20 days.

The commander of the U.N. soldiers, who predicted the Red attack and had ready-made plans for a counter-attack, said he wasn't sure of the Chinese intentions.

He didn't know whether the enemy intended to remain on the steeply-banked hill and were prevented by heavy allied artillery and mortar fire from bringing up reinforcements, or whether it was a raid to hold the position briefly and take prisoner.

U.S. Has Planes For A-Bombs

PARIS (Reuters) — The United States Air Force has had "for some time" jet fighter planes capable of carrying atomic bombs, Gen. Hout S. Vandenberg, U.S. Air Force chief of staff, said today.

A new group of combat-tested F-86 Sabre jets, equipped with "all the latest gimmicks," was on its way to Germany to replace the F-84 Sabres now based at Landstuhl, he told a press conference.

Vandenberg, who has been conferring with Allied defence chiefs here, was met with a barrage of questions on U.S. development of jet planes and atomic weapons.

Asked to comment on reports that British jets soon will be able to carry atomic weapons, he said U.S. planes "have had atomic capability for some time."

He commended the "excellent Anglo-American co-operation" in production and design of jet planes which he said gave both countries the benefit of the best brains of each.

He admitted Britain has produced more advanced jet planes "in some fields," but said the U.S. was superior in others. He added there was still much work to be done on jet development.

Will Propose Plan ShareAtomKnowledge

LONDON (Reuters) — Arthur Henderson, former Labor air minister, will urge a scheme in the House of Commons next week for Britain and the United States to pool atomic knowledge and resources.

Henderson, giving notice today of a question he will ask in the house, said the pooling should be done in the interests of common defence and economic security.

Missing Deaf Child Found In Bush

BRACEBRIDGE (CP)—A five-year-old girl, a deaf-mute, missing from her home in the bush near this Muskoka summer resort area for 18 hours, was found at 7 a.m. today cold and hungry about two miles from her home.

Police said some 75 provincial officers and 50 neighbors searched the bush most of the night for Pat Temple, a ward of the Children's Aid Society staying with a family about three miles west of here.

Temperatures of 30 degrees were reported in the area at 7:30 a.m. today.

Have Done Best For Peace

Acheson Accuses Russia Of Pushing War

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Dean Acheson, United States Secretary of State, accused Russia last night of deliberately planning and carrying on the Korean War. He warned United Nations delegates that the U.N. "cannot buy peace at the price of honor."

Speaking before the General Assembly's political committee, Acheson asked the 60-member Assembly to approve the conduct of the U.N. war effort. He introduced a resolution—backed by 20 countries including Canada—urging the Communists to accept an armistice on the U.N. terms.

Acheson's long speech was a calm and detailed review of the Korean War, all that led up to it, and the drawn-out attempts to end it.

SEEK HONEST ARMISTICE

The state secretary said the U.S. would do everything in its power to achieve an "honest armistice" if the Communists wanted one.

"But if this is not the case," he warned, "and if the resistance must go on, then we shall have to examine our position and our ability to carry that resistance forward."

Some delegations interpreted this as an indication that if the Communists turn down the armistice appeal, the U.S. may ask U.N. members for further military support and possibly reprisals against Communist China.

Most delegates except Soviet bloc representatives hailed the speech with approval. Communist spokesmen remained silent. There were some indications, however, that Russia's Andrei Vishinsky may seek to reply when the committee reconvenes Monday.

BLAMES RUSSIANS

Responsibility for the division of Korea, the attack on South Korea and the present failure to reach a peaceful settlement, Acheson said in effect, rest directly with the Russians.

The secretary ended, hoarse and fatigued, by calling attention to the sacrifices made by the United Nations and their troops fighting in Korea.

"Let no act of ours weaken or destroy the noble purpose of their sacrifice," he said. "This session of the General Assembly has the great responsibility of peace in Korea. We must not and cannot buy peace at the price of honor."

Acheson introduced the resolution asking the Assembly to endorse the stand of U.N. command negotiators at Panmunjom—particularly their opposition to forcible repatriation of war prisoners—and to urge the Communists to accept an armistice on those terms.

Show Commission Homemade Key Boyd Gang Used

TORONTO (CP)—A provincial inspector of prisons said yesterday he had seen a breach of security regulations at Don jail and had not reported it. John Irvine, former assistant superintendent at Mimico reformatory, told the Royal Commission inquiring into conditions at the jail that on Aug. 11, 1952, a month before the second escape of the Boyd gang, he inspected the jail. In the section where the gang was confined, the cell grilles were open.

"Another breach of the regulations," commented Judge Ian Macdonell.

USED HOMEMADE KEY

Exhibited for the first time was a homemade key which the gangsters are believed to have used to unlock their cell doors. Crown counsel George Walsh remarked: "A dandy job."

Prisons inspector Ralph Ayres testified that the metal key is similar in pattern to the keys used there. After the judge said he thought that to make such a key it would be necessary to have the real one, inspector Ayres said he did not think so. He had seen a key made by a prisoner who used what might be called the feel and touch method.

In the section where the gang was confined, the witness said, there were many places where a piece of steel could be concealed. "The only way to find them would be to take the place apart," he said. "Prisoners have nothing to do but figure out ways to beat us."

BLAMES JAIL OFFICER

T.M. Gourlay, chief inspector of prisons, said he believed James Morrison, jail officer now serving a two-year prison term, had probably brought the hacksaw blades to the Boyd gang for their second escape Sept. 8.

Asked if the blades couldn't have been brought in another way, Mr. Gourlay said that all prisoners in the recreation yard were carefully supervised and that all visiting is done through a screen.

"With the more dangerous men, there is not only a guard with the prisoner, but also one with the visitors. They are under constant supervision and I don't believe anything could pass between them."

Mr. Walsh: "Unless they had the co-operation of the guards."

Mr. Gourlay: "Then it would be possible."

Turkey Dinner Big Success At Centennial

WARKWORTH (ENS). — As a midweek portion of the centennial services which are being held at St. Paul's United Church, a turkey dinner was served in the Council Chamber of the Town Hall and the basement of St. Paul's United Church on Wednesday evening. Well over 400 were served and the proceeds were more than $525.

Special mention is given Mrs. W. Grant Allen and Mrs. Kenneth Gummer who were conveners for the turkey supper.

After the supper was served, a fine program made up of local talent was given in the Town Hall, with the Rev. A. L. Sisco, pastor, as chairman. With him on the platform were three of the oldest members of the congregation, Mrs. J. Diamond, Mrs. William Barringer, and Mr. Ben Buchanan.

The program opened with "O Canada," with Mrs. Douglas Knight, church organist, at the piano.

Mr. Sisco told of the letter received from the former pastor, the Rev. H. G. Lester, who had been instrumental in planning for this centennial celebration, wherein he sent greetings.

Mrs. J. M. Ritchie, wife of the Rev. J. M. Ritchie, of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, favored with two vocal solos, "My Ain Folk" (Scottish ballad) and "That Dear Land Across the Irish Sea" (Irish), which were well received by the large audience. She was accompanied by Mrs. Blair Huycke pianist.

Mrs. Little, elocutionist of Campbellford, presented two numbers. Edward Thompson gave a clarinet solo, accompanied by Garth Alen, pianist.

A vocal solo "Keep On To The End of the Road" was sung by Mr. Ambrose Atkinson of Dartford with Mrs. D. McKnight pianist.

The anniversary "birthday cake" was cut by Mrs. Wm. Barringer. After the cake was cut it was passed around for sale at the intermission period by Messrs. Wm. Bowen, Grant Allen, W. W. Baker and Glenn Hancock.

Mr. Sisco drew attention to historic news items regarding the church and its activities. He stated a young man by the name of Anson Reid (a Saddle Bag Rider) served at Percy Mills (now Warkworth) as far back as 1824. The Rev. George Carr was the first resident minister.

The present church was built and dedicated in 1869 with Robt. Reed being the first sexton receiving salary of $30. The first shed was built in 1871, the money having to be borrowed at 10 per cent. A church organ was purchased in 1885 and the salary of the organist was $25.

Elderly Mrs. J. Diamond, Mrs. W. Barringer, Mr. Ben Buchanan and Rev. Sisco (oldest members present.

Mr. Buchanan gave reminiscences and a brief talk dotted with many jokes.

Mrs. J. R. Clare (widow of a former pastor) brought greetings and many reminiscences of her earlier days spent in this vicinity. She also brought greetings from A. A. Martin, a local minister and former public school inspector in this district.

A junior orchestra gave three selections as well as playing while the audience gathered. The members in the orchestra were Grant Allen, the pianist, Edw. Thompson, clarinet, Billie Ward, trumpeter and Billie Isaac, drummer.

Mrs. Ritchie sang "Think of Me" which was very effective as Mrs. Ritchie is moving soon from this vicinity.

Ambrose Atkinson, soloist, sang accompanied by Mrs. D. McKnight, pianist.

Mrs. Little of Campbellford gave another humorous reading and the National Anthem was sung.

Stevenson Out To Puncture Ike's Prestige

WASHINGTON (AP).—Governor Adlai E. Stevenson stumped the vote-rich East today in apparent determination to puncture the prestige of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who has pledged if elected to visit Korea in a personal effort to end the war.

Stevenson, Eisenhower's Democratic opponent, seemed to have taken a leaf from the campaign book of President Truman. The president picked out Eisenhower weeks ago as his main target, but it was not until Wednesday night that Stevenson began hammering away at the general.

Stevenson's Wednesday statement—that Eisenhower is conducting a "sly and ugly campaign"—was expected to be a prominent theme in his speech-making barrage today.

LAUDS F. D. R.

In a speech prepared for Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Stevenson lauded Franklin D. Roosevelt as the man who restored "sense and sanity and responsibility," to American economic life. He said: "We shall never go back to the pre-Roosevelt period—to the reign of the Republican old guard. . ."

Eisenhower's declaration that he would go personally to Korea to seek a peace without appeasement indicated the timing of such a trip would be soon after Inauguration Day in January.

Eisenhower's vice-presidential running mate, Senator Richard M. Nixon, of California, said at Beloit, Wis., last night that Eisenhower's election would "put Americans back on the rugged road to moral and economic solvency."

Senator Joseph R. McCarthy told a Chicago press conference last night that in a Monday night radio-TV broadcast he will give a "very carefully documented history" of Stevenson and then "let the public decide whether we want him to lead the fight against Communism. . . ."

Senator Wayne Morse of Oregon quit the Republican party last night and said that from now on he will be an independent. He again pledged his "enthusiastic support" of Stevenson.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP)—Prices generally were lower in quiet trade Friday on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. Most prices closed at or near the lows of the day.

Commercial demand was limited to a few shipping orders in oats and barley. Flax reflected liberal hedging of new crop deliveries with depressed prices. Rye trade was local and dull. Prices for Class 2 wheat and I.W.A. were unchanged.

Bar Angry Senators From Parliament

TEHRAN, Iran (Reuters)—Iran's Senate held an angry meeting in a private home today after being barred from entering Parliament House.

Premier Mohammed Mossadegh's government declared the present 60-man senate had been dissolved by a Majlis (lower house) bill cutting their terms from six to two years. All 60 members began serving in the Senate four years ago.

A statement by the government senators said any bill passed by the Majlis must have upper house approval before becoming law. They also argued the bill could only apply to future senates.

But the wind was taken from their sails by a proclamation from the Shah who signed the Majlis bill a few hours earlier. The proclamation, issued after a two-hour meeting between the Shah and Mossadegh, announced the bill had become law.

Woman Hurt In Lindsay Crash

LINDSAY (ENS)—Damage of $600 to two cars and personal injuries to one of the occupants of one of them resulted from a midnight accident on Queen St. here early today.

Mrs. Howard Lamb, a passenger in a car driven by Carole Lamb, of R.R. 3, Lindsay, was taken to Ross Memorial Hospital with undetermined injuries following the mishap in which the car in which she was riding came into collision with a vehicle driven by Norman Burns, of St. John St., Lindsay.

Investigation showed the Burns car had been travelling north on St. James St., and turned into Queen where it met in collision with the Lamb car which was proceeding east.

Dr. J. C. Arnold, of Lindsay, was called to the scene and ordered the injured woman be taken to hospital. McArthur's ambulance transported the victim to the hospital but the extent of her injuries has not been released as yet. Both cars were extensively damaged.

To Appear For Hearing

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A Mexican judge has ordered Chinese Nationalist Gen. P.T. Mow to appear monday for a hearing on whether he is to be extricated to Formosa. Priest Reveals Tortures By Red Captors

HONG KONG (AP)—A Roman Catholic priest, recovering from Communist Chinese tortures that included ripping off his beard, told from his sick bed today how the Reds also hung him by his arms until his shoulders were dislocated.

The priest is Rev. Joseph Schyns of Brussels, Belgium, a missionary of the Scheut Order. He gave this account of his ordeal:

His arms were chained behind him. He was placed on a pile of bricks and his chained wrists roped to a spike in the wall. The bricks then were taken from beneath him until he was suspended with his weight pulling his trussed arms upward behind him.

The pull gradually forced his arm bones from their shoulder sockets. After 15 minutes the Reds took him down and pulled his arms down, roughly snapping the bones back into place. They did this 12 times over a period of months, trying to force him to confess to various crimes.

"I tried not to but I am afraid I screamed with the pain," Father Schyns said.

The priest, who reached here last month, told at that time of how he was pulled about the jail by his beard. He said the Reds put a heavy cord around his beard and tied it to a spike in the wall, then pulled him by his legs until the knot slipped and part of his beard was torn.

MORE ABOUT—

One of Dr. Clark's favorite hobbies was fishing. In the summertime he liked to try his luck with 'lunge fishing on Chemong Lake where he had a summer cottage.

Since the beginning of the school term in September he had been examining physician for the Board of Education. He checked the health of the rugby players, new staff members and new pupils.

Dr. Clark was a faithful supporter of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, and a senior elder of the church. He was one of the five elders who are working to get a Presbyterian church in south end of the city. He seldom missed attending divine worship twice on Sunday and prayer meeting on Wednesday night.

He was a Mason, and was a member of the Corinthian Lodge, and the Scottish Rite.

Horace Hawkey Again President Of Breeders

Horace H. Hawkey of Indian River was re-elected president of the Eastern Ontario Breeders' Club here Friday afternoon. Charles Fisher of Bailieboro is vice-president, and William Wood of Birdsall's is secretary-treasurer.

The director members of the executive are: Col. F. E. Birdsall, Harold Elmhirst, Dave Kerr, and Allan Linton of Cobourg.

In this meeting the Club completed its organization. A constitution drafted by Col. Birdsall was adopted on his motion, seconded by John R. Walsh. It is to be submitted to the Ontario Hereford Breeders' Association for approval.

The Club decided to hold another sale of Herefords consigned by members, the date to be early in June, and set by the executive. Prospects of between 30 and 40 head being consigned by the members present appeared in a round-robin estimate. That number may be reduced, but there are other members to be heard from later.

LAST WAS BEST

"Our sale last June was the best of the series so far," Col. Birdsall said. "By bringing out better cattle, and continuing to establish this sale, we should be ready for better days. We've had our ups and downs, and we shouldn't feel discouraged by the temporary conditions resulting from the U.S. embargo."

The meeting adopted the financial statement presented by E. V. O'Toole. Receipts of the sale of the 26 Herefords consigned last June were $9,285. The Club closed their term from May 1, 1951 to September 1952, with a credit balance. The meeting was well attended. Some of the members came from more than 40 miles to Peterborough.

Sailors Claim Steamer Looted

HONG KONG (Reuters) — Sailors on a Hong Kong steamer claimed today she had been attacked, boarded and looted by Chinese guerrillas from a raiding junk off Fooshow.

The 7,176-ton San Jorge operated by the Hong Kong Chinese Shun Cheong Steam Navigating Company, was flying the British flag at the time.

The company said the San Jorge tried to enter Fooshow, 350 miles northeast of Hong Kong, Oct. 19, but was diverted by what the crew believed to be a Nationalist Chinese gunboat.

When she tried again to enter the Communist port two days later a junk armed with machine-guns and bazookas opened fire.

The crew claimed that the guerrillas then boarded the San Jorge, took their watches and other personal property, and damaged the cargo.

James H. Willey Banker Dies In Hospital

James H. Willey, assistant manager of the Bank of Montreal, Peterborough branch, died on Friday in hospital following a short illness. He was born in Leamington, son of the former Florence James and the late Leon Willey, and had been in Peterborough for the last five years. Mr. Willey also served in the city some years ago prior to being promoted to accountant at Aylmer from whence he returned to Peterborough.

Besides his mother he leaves his wife, the former Jessie Luella Thompson, of Sault Ste. Marie, and a sister, Mrs. Fergus Carmichael (Frances), of Toronto.

Mr. Willey had been an employee of the Bank of Montreal for the past 25 years. He was a member of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church and of the Peterborough Club. His main hobby was outdoor life.

Funeral services will be held on Tuesday at the Comstock funeral home, at 3.30 p.m. The Rev. C. G. Boyd will officiate and burial will be at Little Lake cemetery.

Hungry Pigeons Now London Problem

LONDON (Reuters(— Tourists who fattened up Trafalgar Square's pigeon population last summer have helped create a new problem for blitzed and battered London.

The ministry of works said today the pigeons have turned ravenous since the tourist handouts stopped and are pecking away furiously at mortar between stones of London's ancient buildings. The birds crave lime found in the mortar, a spokesman said.

The feathered blitz, he said, has weakened the foundations of some of London's most ancient buildings around Trafalgar Square.

What Jesus Taught About Faith

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

Perhaps the most distinctive, and at the same time the most puzzling, thing that Jesus said about faith is in the words recorded in Matthew 17:20: "If ye have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain remove hence to yonder place; and it shall remove; and nothing shall be impossible unto you."

These words offer no puzzlement for us today, when we see such things actually being accomplished. Beacon Hill, in Boston, at the top of which I worked editorially for some years, is, I believe, only about one-third of its original height in the days of Puritan settlement when it got its name from the high-placed beacon which guided ships far out at sea.

This is a process that I have seen going on and the visitor who looks over the bay as he travels along the shore from Boston to Quincy can see the result.

This is an interpretation of the words of Jesus that we could easily make today, the greater works that were yet to be accomplished. But I don't think it is the interpretation that Jesus intended. I am wondering what the words meant to the disciples to whom they were spoken, and what Jesus intended them to mean.

It can at least be said that they were spiritually intended, and were not with reference to power-moving machinery. Did they refer to material mountains? Were they intended to be interpreted with cold literalism?

I hardly think so. Jesus spoke at times in strong, vivid, eastern figures of speech, such as the reference to the camel going through the eye of a needle. I doubt whether the disciples would misunderstand, or interpret the words with the literalism that we prosaic Westerners are too wont to bring to the reading of the Bible.

Jesus was about to give to these disciples a seemingly impossible task. He was sending them out to preach the gospel to every creature, to make disciples of all nations. What a vast, mountainous task that must have seemed to those few unknown men as they faced the immense Roman Empire, with its materialism, its power, and its paganism!

I wonder whether it was not these very words of Jesus that they must have recalled as they faced that mountain-moving task. And with what amazing results the power of faith was vindicated, both the Roman Empire and the whole world have known.

It is that sort of faith that we need today.

OSHAWA AND WEST DURHAM COUNTY Teachers' Institute invaded Peterborough 250 strong on Friday to visit four city public schools and have dinner. Some of those who headed the group were, left to right, Public Schol Inspector (Oshawa-Durham West) Earl Wilson; past-president John Turner, of Bowmanville; newly-elected president Harold Pascoe, of Oshawa; secretary-treasurer Miss Myrtle Wilson; Peterborough Public School Inspector Percy Windrim and Normal School teacher F. B. Smitheram.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

Master Scores "Armchair" Critics

Speaking to a teachers' convention luncheon here Friday, normal school master F. B .Smitheram criticized an Examiner editorial writer for taking "pot shots" at Ontario's educaiton system.

However, Mr. Smitheram admitted there was plenty of room for improvement in teaching methods and urged the 250 teachers from Oshawa and West Durham to keep apace of new developments in the psychology of education.

Emphasizing he was "not insensitive to criticism of our schools," he said he wished that "our armchair critics would take the trouble to inform themselves whereof they speak before giving utterance to their personal prejudices."

Mr. Smitheram took exception to an Examiner editorial on Tuesday which stated: "There is a feeling abroad that young people do not emerge from our schools as well educated as their parents were."

Quoting from a report of a secondary school inspector published in 1913, Mr. Smitheram said the inspector reported the following:

Of almost 2,000 junior high school pupils classified, the spelling of 14 per cent was good, 31 per cent fair, 28 per cent poor and 11 per cent bad. Their writing varied from 20 per cent good, to 27 per cent poor. "They cannot be trusted to write an ordinary letter or business paper on account of their inability to spell."

NOW ARE PARENTS

That report refers to "persons now at least 50 years of age," Mr. Smitheram told his audience and applies to "those superior trained parents" extolled in the Examiner editorial.

Continuing his castigation of critics who "prefer to rely on their imagination as a basis for attacking modern education," Mr. Smitheram charged that "these people do not want young people to think for themselves."

"It may be indeed," he suggested, "that these critics in themselves unwittingly embody everything which the school should not want to produce."

He said he held the view expressed by professor of education Dr. C. E. Phillips that "young people today are superior in every respect to the previous generation."

At this point, Mr. Smitheram said: "I must hasten to add I am not completely satisfied with the work which the schools are now doing. I am convinced that there is work for us to do." The vital question in education, he said, is what is the school's objective? What should we try to achieve?

Again quoting from the Examiner editorial (he did not name the Examiner directly but called it a daily having its largest circulation in the city where he lives), Mr. Smitheram termed the editor "a pseudo-expert on schools (and everything else)."

DRUDGERY IN SCHOOL

This time he singled out a paragraph dealing with "the aim of elementary education." Developing this question, the editorial said, "surely it is to give children certain necessary skills—reading, writing, spelling, grammar, some knowledge of geography and history and skill in simple arithmetic." The editorial continues that despite the efforts of teachers to keep learning as free of drudgery as possible, "the only way to acquire some of these skills is through prolonged drill and memory work — it remains drudgery at the bottom. There is is no virtue in drudgery for its own sake but drudgery to achieve a worthy aim is entirely denfensible."

Dismissing this analysis, Mr. Smitheram said it was fortunate for the teaching profession there were others willing to express their opinions.

He cited six basic things Dr. R. C. Wallace, retired principal of Queen's University, listed recently that should be taught to children.

They are, a knowledge of English; numbers in order to be able to compute; the world about them; co-operation; a sense of beauty through the teaching of art and music; and finally development of character.

Good elementary school teachers, declared Mr. Smitheram, have come to regard school as a sort of long-time controlled environment where children get experiences in group living in which they will continue to participate as citizens in the community outside the school.

SCHOOL AN EXPERIENCE

"To them, the school is conceived not as a place of drudgery, drill and paraphrasing, but rather as an experience environment for developing young persons who can think and judge and make decisions for themselves and who can be depended upon to make decisions in the light of democratic ethics and values."

Mr. Smitheram left no doubt that he is convinced the present educational system falls far short of this mark when he said, "In order to achieve this objective, I fear that we (the teachers) must realize first that there is work for us to do."

He said the only way teachers can acquire the technique to achieve this objective is by applying themselves continuously to a fuller knowledge of the process of child development and the principles by which learning occurs.

Pointing out that children are not interested in the past, because of its remoteness, Mr. Smitheram lashed out at the accepted method of teaching history and social studies.

TRAIN FOR PRESENT

"Even today, we are trying to train pupils to live with jet propulsion, nuclear fission, synthetic drugs, television and Communism by having them recite and paraphrase a few threadbare facts about Napoleon, Columbus and North American Indians. We seem to forget we live in a world of people such as Dr. Malan of South Africa, Dr. Mossadegh of Iran, Truman and Stalin and not with such characters as Julius Caeser, Louis XIV or George Washington."

He said there was plenty of opportunity for developing a new approach in the teaching of social studies to provide the experiences in group living they should obtain in the school environment.

Like a "master builder" building a home from rough stone or glazed bricks, Mr. Smitheram said a "master teacher takes each child with his crude experiences or refined mannerisms and skilfully shapes a worthy citizen by providing satisfying successful experiences."

To become such a teacher, he told his audience, they must acquaint themselves well with what psychology has discovered for them to apply.

50,000 Tourists Climbed Brock Monument

QUEENSTON, Ont. (CP)—Some 50,000 nimble-footed tourists this year climbed to the observation tower atop the 185-foot Brock monument at historic Queenston Heights. One of the attractions in the Niagara Falls area, the column commands a spectacular view of the surrounding countryside.

There are 235 steps on the circular stairway of the monument, erected in 1856 in memory of General Sir Isaac Brock, hero of the war of 1812-14. He was killed Oct. 13, 1812, while leading his men up the heights in an attack on American forces.

Most of those who huffed and puffed up the historic shaft were adults, but attendants say that some virile youngsters are able to scamper up and down the steps three or four times in an afternoon. Forty-five thousand persons made the climb in 1951. The monument is open from May 1 to mid-October.

Drowned In Bathtub

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs Helen Hodgins, 48, yesterday was found drowned in the bathtub of her west-end apartment. Police said they believe she had not mixed the hot water with cold when she stepped into the tub. She was scalded and then drowned, they said.

SECOND CENTURY — A push-button pressed in the London Stock Exchange Friday set off a siren in Toronto signalling the start of the second century of trading at the Toronto Stock Exchange. Some 450 visiting North American and British stockholders attended the ceremony. In 1852 there were only 36 stocks listed in Toronto against 900 issues today, with a value of $18,000,000,000. Shown during an actual trading session are a few of the 11 trading posts on the floor. Trading on the Toronto exchange is surpassed in dollar volume only by the London and New York Stock Exchanges.

US Voters Like Ike As Man, But Democrats As Party

By R.J. ANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK (CP)—It's hard to be against the general. He seems like such a nice man.

Many an American, with polling day only 10 days away, still appears to be torn between a personal liking for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and the hard facts of the United States presidential election: Whether to vote Democrat or Republican Nov. 4.

DIFFICULT CHOICE

The voter's choice is difficult. Undoubtedly the personal preference of many, perhaps most, of the 50,000,000-odd Americans registered to vote would be the personable, able administrator who led the Allied armies to victory in Europe in the Second World War, the man who so skilfully welded a multitude of conflicting interests into a cohesive whole.

But Eisenhower today is the Republican candidate for president. He stands opposed to the party that for 20 years a majority of Americans have shown they want to head their government.

Many—only the result a week from Tuesday will show how many—fear that his election will mean a retrogression of social progress.

Against him is Adlai Stevenson who six months ago was scarcely known outside Illinois, of which he is Governor. He offers on behalf of the Democrats a program that all but the well-to-do, the privileged and hereditary Republicans have shown they want: Continuation of the "New Deal" started by the late Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1933.

Put simply, campaign invective and election issues aside, the clearcut issue seems to be: Will the United States vote Nov. 4 for Eisenhower the man, apart from his policies, or continued Democrat policies, apart from the Democrat candidate?

Public-opinion polls, which in recent weeks claim to show that the public preference is for the Republicans, now indicate an even split between the parties. Eisenhower personally runs three points ahead of his party but, the polls profess to show, the trend is in favor of Stevenson.

PARTY OF REACTION

Perhaps unwittingly Eisenhower, a political neophyte, has become linked in the public mind as the titular head of the party of reaction.

He is viewed as irrevocably tied up with Herbert Hoover—"a chicken in every pot" in the great depression—with Ohio's Senator Robert A. Taft—who personifies isolation—and "McCarthyism," the symbol to indicate Wisconsin's Senator Joseph McCarthy, who sees a Communist behind every cherry tree in Washington.

On the other hand Stevenson, expert in politics and first-rate administrator at the local level, has leaped from comparative obscurity to become, in the minds of many, the bastion against reaction, the only hope of labor's millions.

He will lead the nation forward while cleaning up the rot in Washington which the Republicans claim has set in because the administration has been too long in power.

The old, old political cliche, "it's time for a change," is the slogan of the Republican party in this election. The polls indicate that it may be effective this time. If it is, it will be because of a man, not a party.

Eisenhower Plans For Ending Korean War Disappointing

By R.J. ANDERSON

NEW YORK (CP)—The Korean War and how to end it emerged today as the Republican's No. 1 election issue.

In a major speech in Detroit last night the party's presidential standard-bearer, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, promised to seek an "early and honorable end" to the costly conflict. He didn't say how he would achieve it. He promised only that he would go to Korea to attempt to find out.

To some, the general's speech was an anti-climactic wet firecracker in answer to demands of the Democrats that he disclose how, in the interests of his country, he would go about ending the costliest war the United States ever has fought, apart from the two World Wars. It promised an end to appeasement, but didn't say what course the general would follow if his demarcation line were crossed by communism.

"APPALLING FAILURE"

For most of the address, Eisenhower lashed the Truman administration's "record of appalling failure" that he said led to the Korean War. That was meat and drink to his Democratic opponent, Governor Adlai Stevenson of Illinois, who earlier in a strenuous day maintained that the war was the war of mankind, not President [illegible] put aside, at least for the moment, as the 1952 election campaign whirls to a boiling finish were earlier issues of what is wrong with the administration and what its opponents would do about it if their party took over. The main issue now is Korea—what caused it and what to do about it.

It began at Champaign, Ill., Oct. 2 when Eisenhower, in effect, suggested that if there must be war in Asia, let it be Asians against Asians. He proposed for the first time that South Koreans take over the defence of their country and that American troops be pulled back into reserve.

STEVENSON "SHOCKED"

That "shocked" Stevenson who three weeks later, also at Champaign, said that if the United States pulled out of Korea now, it would cost more money and more lives in the long run. And President Truman campaigning vigorously on Stevenson's behalf, called upon Eisenhower to offer a concrete program to end the war.

The general's Detroit address last night was the answer.

His immediate program:

Step up the program of training and arming the South Korean forces. United nations troops "manifestly" could not abandon Korea, but they would be held in reserve positions as assurance that "disaster would not strike again."

He would go to Korea to study the situation for himself.

In a 14-speech tour of New York Stevenson assailed Eisenhower's proposals that South Koreans take the burden of fighting in Korea off American troops. He said that would "risk a Munich in the Far East, with the probability of a third world war."

James Henry Graham

The funeral of James Henry Graham, who died at the home of his sister, Mrs. Ethel Fife of Otonabee on Sunday, was held on Tuesday from the Mather Funeral Home with burial in Fife's Cemetery. The Rev. H. B. Herrington of the Keene United Church officiated. Pallbearers were James Barnie, Stewart Laing, Richard Davis, James Miller, Wilbert Miller, and George Chamberlin.

Gets Prison Term

BARRIE (CP)—Ralph Coon, 37, of Huntsville, yesterday was sentenced by Magistrate G. R. Foster to six months definite and three months indefinite on 27 charges of false pretences in more than 10 [illegible] centres. Testimony showed [illegible] called on merchants and arranged to repair, paint or erect signs for business establishments. A down payment, usually of $25, was obtained with a promise the work would be completed soon. After making several arrangements in one place, Coon moved on to another.

ST. THOMAS (CP) — Sparks from a welding torch yesterday ignited a twin-engine Cessna Crane light aircraft at the St. Thomas municipal airport, Yarmouth Centre. The fabric-covered plane was quickly reduced to smouldering framework, with damage estimated at several thousand dollars.

Optimistic Note On Market As Second Century Passes

By HARRY KINGDON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Toronto Stock Exchange this week entered its second century of activity on a slightly more optimistic note.

Optimism has been absent from the market for some time. Prices have been declining fairly steadily since Sept. 5—in that time, the exchange's indices have taken an average drop of 18.15 points.

A survey among those celebrating the exchange's 100th anniversary would probably show guarded optimism. There is still uncertainty in the market but the short-term outlook is improving on several fronts.

WESTERN OILS DIP

Western oils, which dropped about 22 index points between Sept. 5 and Oct. 24, may be approaching their "actual value." Many traders now feel that the boom in oils earlier this year drove prices up beyond what a sober consideration of their possible earnings would warrant.

Prices are expected to decline until investors feel they are low enough to be a good buy. Recent short-lived upswings in the Toronto Western oils index have hinted that the level of "actual value" may be near.

The United States presidential elections will be out of the way in less than two weeks. Uncertainty over the winner and his policies soon will be resolved.

METAL PRICES OFF

Declining base metal prices still provide a bearish factor. Companies producing lead, zinc and other metals cut prices to meet foreign price cuts and stock market prices slipped.

[illegible] forward look for good market in 1953 and possibly a slight recession in business activity

On the whole, however, they see rays of promise through the recent financial clouds.

Western oils and base metals started to decline Monday on the Toronto market and industrials headed down in Montreal. On Thursday, prices turned mixed in both markets. Western oils rose from a mixed Toronto market Friday and both papers and industrials advanced in Montreal.

New York trading was lower early in the week until rails started a rise Thursday that was continued by motors Friday.

From Friday to Friday, the Toronto Stock Exchange indices showed industrials down 2.93 at 310.39, golds down 2.59 at 79.91, base metals down 7.00 at 168.93 and western oils down 4.27 at 115.81.

In the Montreal averages, banks were down .11 at 31.40, utilities down .2 at 87.5, industrials down 2.4 at 198.4, combined down 1.7 at 161.4, papers down 5.85 at 659.03 and golds down .51 at 61.27.

Mr. Frost Recommends Toughness

By the proposed tax-rent arrangement with Ottawa, the provincial government of Ontario will get $20,000,000 as its share of Income Tax collected from the people of this province. But Premier Frost has made it clear that the municipalities will not receive any of this money; Queen's Park wants it all. The municpalities, in the Premier's beautifully simple words, are to "use a little courage and toughness in cutting down expenditures."

* * *

We should like to know why the municipalities are expected to be ruthlessly economical and penny-pinching, when the federal and municipal governments are spending money like water, and are enjoying to the full the fruits of the country's prosperity? Is municipal government a Cinderella, that it should toil and scrape and pinch, while its uglier, older, bigger sisters dance at the ball? Queen's Park is about to conclude a very substantial deal with Ottawa, and the people of Ontario will benefit—but only in such ways as are plainly marked "Queen's Park." In the municipal field, property owners will continue to carry by far the heaviest load, with no prospect of relief save the tough penny-pinching which the Premier advises.

* * *

Where are we to begin in our tough and courageous program of cutting down expenses? In education? We shall have to teach what Queen's Park prescribes, in the way Queen's Park prescribes. At present 83 per cent. of our educational costs locally are for salaries; does the Premier suggest that we should economize by cutting teachers' salaries? Or by cutting the salaries of any other civic employees? Or by collecting ashes and garbage only once a week? Or by drinking untreated water? It would be interesting to know where the ruthlessness should begin. If the municipalities are to scrape and skimp in a land of plenty, it would be illuminating to have a program of guidance.

* * *

Premier Frost gave the Legislature to understand that municipalities would share in the benefit of any tax-rent plan, when he spoke on this subject in the spring; municipal taxpayers carry a heavy load and they need consideration as much as any group of citizens in Ontario. The Premier's change of attitude suggests that there is substantial truth in what the municipalities have long asserted: that Queen's Park wants to reduce municipal governments to the lowest possible level, seizing all effective power from them, depriving them of the ability to work freely as local governments and wiping out that municipal individuality which can only come from a reasonably free hand in local affairs. To suggest to the municipal governments that they scrape and pinch, when the provincial government is rolling in tax-money is the nakedest revelation of the principle stated above that we have yet seen. Both Liberal and Conservative governments have worked along those lines, but we are surprised that this bald denial of the importance of municipal government should have come from Premier Frost, who has shown himself in other ways to be a fair and far-sighted legislator.

Population Believed To Number About 2,000

Queen Charlotte Islands, a group off the [illegible] the mainland and 135 miles northwest of Vancouver Island. Area 4,000 square miles. The largest Islands are Graham and Moresby, each about 160 miles long and 70 miles wide. The surface of Graham is rolling land; but the other Islands are rugged and mountainous. Dense forests and a luxurious growth of small plants cover the Islands. Copper, anthracite coal, iron ore and gold-bearing quartz are found here; fishing is the chief occupation. The inhabitants, believed to number about 2,000, are mostly Indians.

That is about all we know about the Queen Charlotte Islands, and we got that information from the 1951 edition of a large and good encyclopedia. We have never met anybody who has lived on the Queen Charlotte Islands, not even an Indian. We write about the Islands out of ignorance, in the belief that others share our ignorance, and like us, must be tantalized by these four thousand square Canadian miles with their few people.

We can comfortably refrain from speculation about four thousand unknown miles of, say, barren land in the frozen north. But this Queen Charlotte territory is in a temperate zone, has a lush growth and seems, from this distance, to be most attractively removed from the world of commerce and guile. It might even be richly rewarding for some ambitious person to go there with commerce and guile and exploit the dense forests, the copper, the anthracite coal, the iron ore and the gold-bearing quartz.

We have now (since reading the encyclopedia's entry) inquired further into the Queen Charlotte situation and have discovered that a tree out on the Islands —even if it does rise straight as a ramrod two hundred feet towards the sky (and there are many such trees there) —is still five hundred miles from the mill it will feed—five hundred miles of treacherous travel across mountainous terrain and a hundred miles of open Pacific. And we have learned, too, that we have not been the first to think of exploiting the Queen Charlottes, and to discover the cost. Recently the Kelley Logging Company (a British Columbia firm) opened a camp on Justkatla Inlet, an arm of Masset Inlet which cuts forty miles into the heart of Graham Island —that is the island of rolling land referred to above. The company put one million dollars into the operation before one log splashed into the water.

This company had to open lines of communication from the waterside to the trees it was intending to crop—a stand with one and a half billion feet of spruce, hemlock and red cedar. A main road fifteen miles long and thirty-two feet wide was built, and built sturdily to carry hundred-ton loads. In addition, a hundred miles of branch road were cut up mountain sides, to heights of 1,500 feet. (It begins to look as if our encyclopedia were not infallible—Graham Island is merely rolling land, it said; the other islands are rugged and mountainous.)

Over these new roads now travel the biggest trucks in the world—forty tonners pulling thirty-five ton trailers which can dump 50,000,000 feet of timber into the sea inlet in a year.

We have this information from Mr. Leslie Roberts who was up Queen Charlotte way last year and saw what was going on with his own eyes. He reports on this lumbering operation in a book just published: Canada: The Golden Hinge. What happens to the 50,000,000 feet of timber dumped into the sea?

"A huge Sitka spruce, resting in the water at Juskatla, has a hundred miles of treacherous sea to cross before reaching the lea of the coast and the smooth run down, inside the chain of inshore islands, to the booming ground at its home mill. It will take the hazardous journey in company with other logs to a total of approximately 2,000,000 board feet, lashed together in a cigar-shaped Davis raft. The raft is begun by lashing eight-foot logs—called "side sticks"—together to form an elliptical frame. Inside are stowed the biggest and heaviest trees the master raft-builder can find in his booming ground. Once the floor has been filled and lashed, logs are piled on logs, and the lashing goes on. As the bottom logs sink, more go on the pile, until the completed raft draws as much water as a 10,000 ton freighter, and rises to the height of a two-storey house above the water-line."

A sea-going tug takes the completed raft in tow, through the inlets and channels and, when favourable weather is reported 'outside', makes a run across the Hecate Strait and Queen Charlotte Sound, for the shelter of the coast. Sometimes in the turbulent Sound, really open sea, a raft breaks up despite the tug crew's battle to hold it together, and a million dollars worth of lumber goes adrift in the Pacific with little hope of recovery to the owners.

Now that others are encamped on the Charlottes, to take off the lumber, we might possibly turn our attention to the copper, anthracite, iron ore and gold-bearing quartz, but judging from the difficulties, perils and expense of lumbering there—and courage and risk demanded—we shall leave the coal, iron and gold alone. Probably others have been there before us, anyway, even in these fields. We shall be content to read about them and the Islands.

The Islands were named after Queen Charlotte of Mecklenburg, wife of George III, who was his Queen during the time that Captain Vancouver was exploring the British Columbia coast (1791-94).

The 1951 edition of our encyclopedia is pleasantly vague about the population of the Islands. The 1951 Canadian [illegible] consists of 1,507 males, 521 females, and 411 male Indians and 361 female Indians live on reserves. Thus the total population of the Queen Charlotte Islands (1951 census) is therefore not "believed to be about 2,000," but precisely 2,389. We shall not venture to guess how long the population will be "unorganized," with a million-dollar lumbering industry now in operation.

NOTES AND COMMENT

Zazu Pitts, arriving in Vancouver, revealed that she thought Canadians still paid taxes to England, and is not yet convinced to the contrary. Next time anybody asks if Zazu is as dumb as she acts, tell them.

The Canadian Postal Department is going to use telephones and helicopters to speed up the mail service. But apparently nothing is to be done to restore the two deliveries a day which we had back in the old days when you could be sure that a letter posted in Peterborough tonight would be delivered in Toronto tomorrow morning.

The Journal of Samuel Marchbanks

SUNDAY: Was talking to a musical person this afternoon who informed me that a celebrated pianist would "concertize" in Toronto next month. This remark nearly caused me to swallow my pipe, for though I have seen the vile word "concertize" in print for several years this was the first time I had ever heard anyone use it in conversation. I was taken aback as if my hostess had said, "Won't you climax your meal with another cup of coffee?" Such words fill me with an urge to seize the person who uses them in a commando grip and twist him (more often the offender is a she) until I have broken every bone. Then, their broken-boned walking would be appropriate to their broken-boned speech. O Mighty Music! Did David concertize before Saul, or Bach before Frederick the Great? Did Beethoven concertize? (In the time, of course, when they were not composerizing.) No, apes and dung-beetles, they PLAYED!

✧ ✧ ✧

MONDAY: Saw a motor-bicycle parked in the street today, and on its windscreen were several alluring pictures of girls, one of whom wore what appeared to be a scanty outfit of leopardskin underwear; she stretched her arms above her head (presumably in order to give greater freedom to her considerable bosom) and carried a banner upon which was written "If you don't see what you want, ask for it." As I looked at it, the owner came out of a house, mounted the machine, kicked it fiercely in the slats several times, and at last goaded it into action. He was a smallish, mousey fellow with rimless glasses, and did not look to me as though his acquaintance included any girls who wore leopard next to their skins. And it has been my usual experience that pin-up girls and Petty girls and all those wildly improbable girls who exist only in the minds of artists appeal chiefly to young men who either know no girls at all, or know only girls of a mousiness equal to their own. Pin-up girls are dreams, and dreams unlikely to come true. And a good thing, perhaps, for what would the average young man do with a girl who never put on her clothes and needed costly fur underthings to make her happy?

✧ ✧ ✧

TUESDAY: Had to have my picture taken today, and although I do not like being photographed I am fascinated by photographers. I am old enough to remember when photographers used huge rosewood cameras with a long bellows on them, and a big piece of black velvet under which they hid. But now most of them use tiny cameras, and scorn black velvet. Howevér, the fellow who went to work on me today had a terrible time seeing what was in his camera-eye (which suggested to me that he needed a bigger camera) and he hid under his own coat when squinting at the image (which proved that he needed a black cloth). And he fussed miserably because he could not find a way of avoiding the reflection of light in my spectacles. But why try to do so? I suppose that most people see me with two shiny windows where my eyes should be, and therefore those shiny windows ought to appear in a true picture of me. However he did not ask me to smile, for which I was grateful, though he did chide me for looking miserable; I was too polite to tell him that his own nervousness had brought me to a low point of sympathetic suffering.

✧ ✧ ✧

WEDNESDAY: Business took me to Ottawa today and I reflected, as I do whenever I approach Ottawa by train, that it has a romantic and fairy-tale appearance. I also pondered on the fact that Ottawa, at present, has a population about equal to that of Athens in the days of Pericles, and that a city does not have to be huge in order to be great. It might be argued that great numbers of Athenians were slaves, and it could be replied that great numbers of Ottawans are slav- also, but I cannot see that this alters the comparison in any important way. Ottawa might be wise to develop a few philosophers and artists . . . . Mounting Parliament Hill I was accosted by an elderly man who professed acquaintance with my family and revealed that he thought that I was the elder brother of a gentleman who is, in fact, my father. This shook me so deeply that I responded with entirely unintended generosity to his request for temporary monetary assistance, and hurried on, my back bent, my limbs trembling and exhibiting every outward sign of senile decay. For the rest of the day I felt ninety, and snarled angrily at a stripling in his sixties who neglected to offer me a chair.

✧ ✧ ✧

THURSDAY: Had the pleasure today of viewing a beautiful indoor garden, owned by some very wealthy people, and marvelled foolishly because there were no weeds in it. Indeed, the earth had been topped with some black, velvety substance to set off the flowers which grew there. But what really made my eyes pop was a collection of ferns and decorative plants, the leaves of which had been lightly oiled in order to make them shine! This is gardening on a level undreamed of at Marchbanks Towers, where the only thing I ever oil is the head gardener (myself) when half an hour's unbroken work has sapped my vitality. I apply a special oil inwardly. However, I am thinking of trying this treatment on my aspidistra, using what remains in a bottle of oil left at the Towers by a constipated visitor.

✧ ✧ ✧

FRIDAY: Watched some court proceed[illegible] judge, who had a bad cold. To listen to public speaking, for hours on end, without any opportunity to speak himself, is an extreme of torture which no man should be called upon to endure; to undergo this ordeal with a cold in the head is to be subjected to treatment beyond the power of mortal to bear. Judges must be impartial. Yet how can a man be impartial when he has a cold? When I have a cold I cannot hear, see or speak as freely as I wish, and I am likely to vent my spleen upon everyone who comes near me; it is a good thing I am not a judge. . . All the lawyers appeared to be afraid of him, and resorted to the strongest flattery of his hands, which surprised me, for they were concealed in the black and violet folds of his robes. Yet they talked of his "most learned hands" and his "most capable hands" at every opportunity; I yearned for a sight of these hands, much as an art-lover might pant for a peep at the missing arms of the Venus de Milo, but he was modest, and kept them hidden.

✧ ✧ ✧

SATURDAY: Train travel today, and across the aisle from me were some English business men, new to Canada and apparently travelling here to reap some dollars for the homeland. They had a lot of Canadian newspapers with them, and they expressed their dislike of these loudly and with great frankness. "Rags" was the most flattering word they employed, and they agreed that on the whole the papers were "simply Death." Even so I have heard Canadians blather their dislike of the English press, because the "Times" carried no account of the ploughing-match at Skunk's Misery (Ont.); I suppose these Englishmen missed news of the Harvest Festival at Lesser Piddle-in-the-Puddle (Beds.) English papers publish very little Canadian news and Englishmen are apt to snigger in a superior manner when this is pointed out to them; they imply that Canada has no news that anybody wants to hear. So I was glad that these noisy rascals found our papers distasteful for identical reasons, and I read my own sheet with loud "Oohs" and "Ahs" indicative of extreme relish, to vex them. And it did, and they moved to the dining-car, grumbling at the thought of being given ice-water to drink.

An Ameri can Opinion:

English For The Few

(A LETTER IN THE OTTAWA CITIZEN)

EDITOR, CITIZEN: I have been very interested to notice the comments in your newspaper by gentlemen like President Sidney Smith of Toronto University and Prof. A. M. Beattie of Carleton College of the dreadful state of preparedness to read or write in the English language that is displayed by the average student in our universities.

In all humility I would like to suggest that the learned gentlemen are beating their gums about nothing. The appreciation of the English language will always be confined only to those who are blessed with the means to appreciate it. It is a futile anachronistic myth of the Victorian avant-garde to believe that every graduate of the huge sprawling educational factories that we call universities will be able to love our mother tongue, let alone discourse in it, or understand it.

The majority of the occupants of our universities are the future drones of our civilization; being trained how to produce the material necessities of our age. The embryo engineer who is to build the space ship of the future needs only to know how to communicate to his professional leaders. However, the English taught the engineer should never be allowed to jargonize to the level where the leaders in his profession will not be able to talk to the men who are guiding the destinies of nations. Should this occur, anarchy would result as the engineers would have no idea of why they were building or flying their space ships.

I realize that all this begs the question of who are the men who guide the destinies of nations.

Generally, they are vulgarly referred to as "politicians"; though among themselves (probably because of their study of English) they call themselves statesmen. To a T they are men who in the university studied Arts and then pursued post-graduate study in some soul-broadening discipline such as Law, History English or the pseudo-disciplines such as Political Science, Economics or Sociology. They are the men who decide why their contemporaries produce atomic bombs, and where and when they should use them. No one can deny that these men need much training in English and the other disciplines which will aid them when they guide the destinies of the drones who make up the mass of their contemporaries.

I HAVE consulted associates of mine here in the East Block, who also studied in European universities, where emphasis is still placed on the training of future statesmen in the basic principles, and they agree that the disciplining of Science students and Engineering students in the English language should be kept to a minimum. Too much emphasis on this particular discipline, which in any case will be beyond their capacities or inclination, will only retard their study of how to produce material goods for their contemporaries. Let them be literate enough to communicate to each other, and to understand the men who will tell them why they do what they do. Otherwise, the educational factories where they study should concentrate on increasing their skill in their particular trades.

In all honesty I believe only the faculty of Arts should be labelled the "university." Much confusion in the minds of men like Sidney Smith and Professor Beattie could be avoided if the various science faculties could be seen clearly for what they are—glorified trade schools.

"It must have been wonderful," said the listener. "But what about the basses."

"That was it!" said the dreamer. "Suddenly the conductor stopped the choir, and turning to me, said: "Not quite so loud in the bass, please, Mr. Jones."

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying, Also on the tenth day of this seventh month there shall be a day of atonement: it shall be an holy convocation unto you; and ye shall afflict your souls, and offer an offering made by fire unto the Lord. And ye shall do no work in the same day: for it is a day of atonement, to make an atonement for you before the Lord your God. (Lev. 23: 26-28.)

Long-Lived Plays

(Ottawa Citizen)

Relatively recent phenomenon though it is, the long-running play has become a well-established feature of the theatre. The London Times, doing a little research finds that some 20 plays have been given more than 1,000 consecutive performances in the British capital since the turn of the century. During the same period 14 plays on Broadway made four-figure runs. Where the individual production is concerned, the English record established by "Chu Chin Chow" (2,238 performances) has been beaten four times in New York—first by the stage adaptation of Clarence Day's "Life With Father"; which ran 3,213 performances, then by "Tobacco Road" (3,182), "Abie's Irish Rose" (2,327) and "Oklahoma!"

The light-hearted revue, "The Drunkard," which Ottawa audiences saw with a Canadian cast a few years ago, was the first to run for 100 consecutive performances in the United States. As a temperance drama, written by "W. H. Smith and a Gentleman," "The Drunkard" was first approved by an audience at the Boston Museum in 1844. After its New York run in 1850, it left the stage until 1933 when it was revived in Los Angeles. By 1950, it had completed 17 years' continuous run with a total of 6,346 performances. Mr. W. H. Smith and his gentleman collaborator would not, however, have acknowledged the modern version as their own.

Development of Rural Mail From Village Post Office: Courier Pioneers of Service

By RICHARD CHOATE

Years before the first railway for the Peterborough district was in operation the "Warsaw Stage" was running. In its first years, trips were made once a week. Inauguration of the mail carrier service, of course, was an integral part of the establishment of the Postoffice at Warsaw, on October 8, 1842.

Writing to the just appointed Postmaster at Warsaw, Thomas Choate, under date of "City of Toronto, 30th Sept., 1852", William Richardson, Acting P.O. Surveyor, remarks in a postscript, "I shall in a few days arrange for the conveyance of a mail from Peterborough to Warsaw."

Such was the beginning of the mail service on October 8, although October 6 was officially designated as the opening date of the postoffice.

INCREDIBLE DIFFICULTIES

Warsaw Postoffice records show how well maintained was the mail-carrying service through the almost incredible difficulties of the earliest decades. Indeed through the whole 110 years there have been few delays, even for a day, in the routine of those who have travelled the Douro route in fair weather and foul and upon all kinds of roads, often over fences and across blizzard-swept fields, in times of high-piled snowdrifts. Sometimes only the alternative route, that via Nassau (instead of that via Ashburnham) was passable.

Establishment of South Douro postoffice, at the St. Joseph's Church corner, involved a detour, adding two miles to the direct Warsaw-Peterborough distance of 14 miles. Books of 1859 show entries for both North Douro and South Douro. The present office, now named Douro, has been in operation since 1856. The postmasters have been Daniel Sullivan (1856-1866); Bridget McCarthy (1866); Thomas Hanrahan (1867-1883); Mrs. Thomas (Catherine) Hanrahan (1883-1891); Jeremiah O'Gorman (1892-1893); George Towns (1893-1904); Patrick George Towns (1904-1948); William George Towns (1948-). The successive members of the Towns family through the years have established an enviable record for courteous, faithful service.

In the earlier years the Warsaw-Peterborough courier service was weekly. By the 1860's it was twice-a-week, Wednesdays and Saturdays. Only July 1, 1871, conveyance service was stepped up to thrice-a-week, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. Calls for contract tenders had stipulated the use of "a public or other vehicle", and a rate of travel of "not less than five miles per hour", including stoppages. Time bills of the period fixed arrivals and departures as follows: Leave Warsaw at 7:30 a.m. and arrive at Peterborough at 11 a.m. Returning, leave Peterborough at 2 p.m. arrive at Warsaw at 5:30 p.m.

On March 18, 1879, the Postmaster General at Ottawa acknowledged receipt of a communication from Messrs. A. R. Kidd, James Galaher and others of Warsaw, recommending a daily mail service. The subject, it was added, would receive "due enquiry and consideration." In the early eighteen-twenties the period of official reflection ended with the inauguration of the daily trips at the same rates of travel.

About this time Patrick Kennedy was stage-driver. Succeeded by Donald McIntosh, Mr. Kennedy later drove the Apsley stage.

DAILY SERVICE

Inauguration of the daily service was an all-round boon. Vehicles became more capacious and comfortable. Passengers were carried in increasing numbers; and relatively few people have been conscious of the importance of the Peterborough County stage routes as arteries of trade, or of the revenues they brought to the wholesalers and retailers of the city. Though "drummers" (commercial travellers) from the larger cities were assiduous in their attention to the village merchants calling regularly with their trunks or sample cases, many of the country stores obtained a substantial part of their stock-in-trade under jobbing or pooling arrangements with Peterborough business houses. It was an "off" day when staple groceries, for instance, were not picked up by the stage at stores such as those of Matt. Carton, Ashburnham. Similarly the current needs for hardware, oil, drugs, dry-goods, shoes and other kinds of merchandise were supplied from day to day by Peterborough merchants.

The stage-driver was an astute buying-agent, usually laden with commissions from villagers or farmers, some of the orders being so exacting as to call for the wisdom of a Solomon. Perhaps a bustle, or certain nether garments suitable for a woman of Aunt Sarsaparilla's ample physique was required; or perhaps a new-fangled electric belt which would rejuvenate Uncle Ichabod; or again, a pair for a disabled binder to be obtained at Peter Hamilton's foundry. Hurrying through his errands, the Warsaw driver frequently had little time left for dinner at the stage headquarters, which for many years was at the Morgan House, site of the present office of the Examiner.

MAIL PASSENGERS

Passengers in the main enjoyed their unhurried trip thinking not at all of speedometers or miles per hour. For juveniles the morning drive from Warsaw to Peterborough was filled with varied joys. First the fine panoramic view from Paddy Fitz's hill. A few more miles and they were at the "Blind Man's Corner" where in a log house lived the aging Mr. Davey, from whose pump gushed clear, cold water into a tin cup. Then, as the stage detoured, the stone tower of the "Douro Church" (St. Joseph's) was glimpsed in the distance. Here was a pause long enough to permit the young tourists to spend some of their pennies on confections at the store.

Thence along and back to the Warsaw road. The "Half Way House" at Mahoney's Corner, whereat flared bright circus bills or other posters affixed by the flying paste-brush of Walter Stocker, was an object of perennial interest. And so on to "Geordy" Brook's cheese factory, the forks of the Nassau road, along the "Hog's Back", until finally sighted afar was Curtiss brickyard, proclaiming that the drive was all but over. A motor trip to Toronto today requires less time than did this 16-mile stage journey.

Yet we may ask ourselves if the whirring engines of later years have ever filled passing minutes with a larger measure of values received than those which were counted in each sixty seconds worth of distance run in the old stage days.

Road conditions in the first year of the Warsaw-Peterborough mail service (1842) clearly taxed the resourcefulness of the courier. Fortunately, however, improvement was not long delayed. For a year later, on September 17, 1843, T. J. Dennehy began his survey of the road, remarking in his notes, "Went down to Dummer Mills, got Mr. Choate and another man he provided, then went and examined the route towards Allen's for the Peterborough road."

ROAD IMPROVED

The veteran Dennehy, one of the most skilful and active surveyors of his time, affected improvements in the routing for which all who have travelled since over the high, hard-surfaced ridges (avoiding the corduroy "cross-ways" of swampy areas) must be grateful to him. Crooked stretches, too, were straightened.

After the survey, road-surfacing improvement was carried on with increasing energy, until by the sixties Thomas Choate (always an owner of spirited horses) could cover the 14-mile stretch to Peterborough behind his pacer "Doll" in one hour flat. Driving visitors from distant cities to catch a train, it was his humor that they should not fall short of city speed and punctuality. He allowed himself one hour and if there was any tedious delay on arrival at the station it was for the train and not for his pacer to bear the onus.

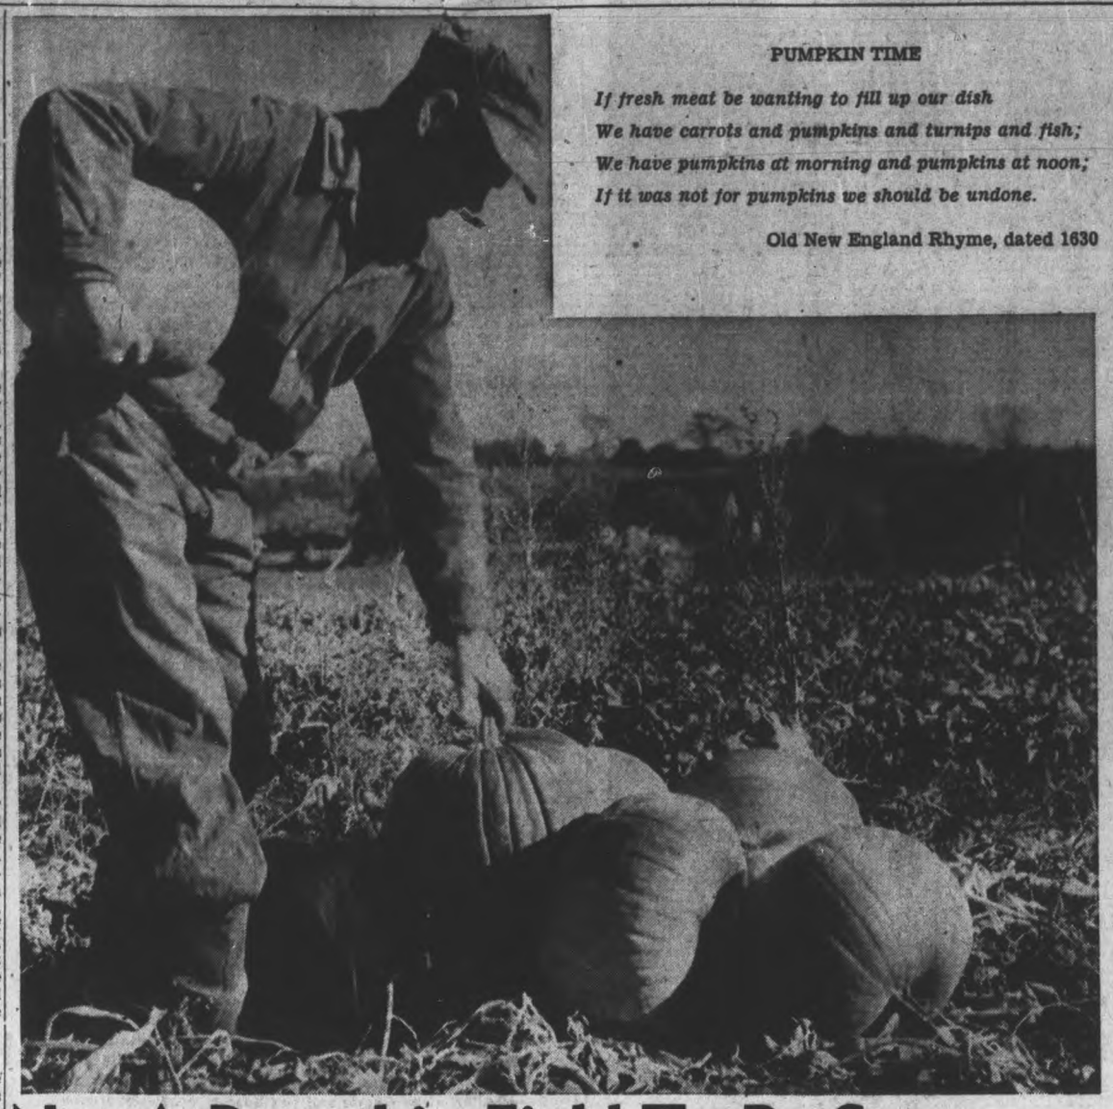
Canadian writers have been singularly (dare we stick our neck out and say stupidly?) blind to the romance of the early Ontario roads. Some of the stage-drivers of the old Warsaw road are worthy to rank with the Dickensian characters who radiated so much of the joie de vivre which made the coaching days of Merrie England so memorable.

COURIER CONTRACTS

One of the early Warsaw stage drivers was William C. Gordanier who terminated his service December 31, 1866, receiving from the Warsaw postmaster his final quarterly payment of $25. Like other couriers of the time he had taken oath solemnly before Thomas Choate, J.P., and said:

"I, William C. Gordanier, mail courier of the Warsaw and Peterborough mail service, do solemnly and sincerely promise and swear that I will faithfully perform all the duties required of me by my employment in the service of the Post Office and will abstain from everything forbidden by the laws for the establishment and government of the Post Office Department in Canada. So help me God."

Courier contracts were for a four-year term, sureties of $400 being provided.



Succeeding Mr. Gordanier on New Year's Day, 1867, was Charles Payne, who on July 1, 1868, enjoyed a pay increase, receiving thereafter $30 a quarter. The colorful zestful "Charley," on relinquishing the reins years later, carried on a market garden below the Lukey hill, with its fine stone house, at Warsaw. He is remembered in tradition for his psalm-singing proclivities which seem to have been infused with the vigor of the "Auld Kirk."

"Charley," according to recollections of his fellow-travellers, was wont to begin vocal operations lustily upon the 199th Psalm when with sundry prayers, praises, and profeccions of obedience." Setting forth resonantly from "blessed are those that are undefiled in the way; and walk in the law of the Lord" (or its metrical version), the "prayers, praises and professions" are said to have continued until the arrival at the Ashburnham village finger-post where, with the drivers stamina still in the ascendant, there boomed forth the finale which doubtless echoed against the Smithtown hill; "I have gone astray like a lost sheep: O seek Thy servant; for I do not forget Thy commandments."

LOST MAIL BAG

It was many years later in the long term of Donald McIntosh's faithful service as driver that the only untoward incident occurred in the 110 years of mail conveyance. Happily, the suspense occasioned by the Mystery of the Lost Mail Bay was of short duration. On a cold Saturday evening of the late nineties when "the Januar' winds were blawing wild," Donald arrived at Warsaw minus the heavy leather pouch (newspapers were carried in a canvas bag). Losing not a moment, the conscientious driver headed back through the storm to his last point of call, the Douro post office.

Not A Pumpkin Field To Be Seen

By A. J. THOMAS

Pumpkins have come to a squashy end in this part of the country. You can drive fifteen miles in any direction from Peterborough and not see a field of them.

An Examiner photographer toured around looking for a field of pumpkin that would provide a traditional Hallowe'en picture: stubble and hundreds of the plump, brilliant yellow gourds making a picturesque autumn pattern. All he could find were a few patches of pumpkins.

Why has the pumpkin withered locally? Do people not eat punkin pie any more? Yet—but most get the stuffing for the pumpkin pie out of tins. The raw stuff is too big for most families' needs, and moreover, too much work for the household cook. So much easier to use a can-opener than to wield a knife and scraper on the actual gourd.

NO CANNING

Frank Paterson, Provincial agricultural representative, says that when Canada Packers stopped canning in Peterborough, farmers stopped growing pumpkins, for there was no market big enough for a half-acre or two acres of the gourds.

People who cannot settle comfortably into winter without first casting a nostalgic eye over a yellow-dotted acre, will have to go to Brighton, Port Hope, Bowmanville and other lake-front areas, where canning factories operate, and where tons of pumpkin lie in the fields. Maybe today the pumpkins, even there, are collected out of harm's way: black frost has already hit what few pumpkins are grown in the Peterborough area.

Another reason for the disappearance of the pumpkin is that farmers no longer feed them to cattle and pigs. In fact, pumpkin as fodder was never very popular hereabouts, as far as this reporter can find out.

So there are no commercial crops of pumpkin in this district.

Farmers in the Brighton to Bowmanville area, and up Norfolk way do not feed pumpkins to cattle either—except rejects from the canning factory. These seconds are not ground up—just knifed down the middle and thrown to the beasts.

Good pocket money can still be made locally out of the gourds, as the gardeners and farmers who have small patches know. At this season of the year people cannot be completely satisfied with the canned variety — especially if there are youngsters in the family. So local growers readily sell pumpinks on the market and to grocery and vegetable stores. The ones the mothers do not want to use in pies the children can hack up for jack-o'lanterns.

Here there is a difference of opinion between parents and their children. The children like the big pumpkins to carve the hallowe'en faces; the parents like the small ones, as being more manageable in the kitchen.

The solution of this domestic problem is to buy pumpkins for cooking AND pumpkins for Hallowe'en decoration. Anyway, a gourd that has been hacked for a face and smudged with grimy hands and smoky candle is no good for cooking; and vice versa.

The really biggest pumpkins are too unwieldy for lanterns or pies. How could a 50-pound pumpkin sit on a window ledge? What household could eat as many pies as such a pumpkin would make? (Only 1½ cups of pumpkin are required for one pumpkin pie.)

Mrs. Urban Kubica, of Parnell street, is one of Peterborough biggest pumpkin-pie makers. She bakes about fifty pies a week right through the year, of all kinds. Although was was born in Czechslovakia, she has been in Canada for twenty years, long enough to learn the Canadian fondness for pies; and this week—as our picture shows—is concentrating on pumpkin pies, making as many as her time and the oven will allow. Her daughters are not eating their way way through 50 pies a week; the 50 pies are helping put them through school and college, from the money pie sale brings.

Pumpkin varieties ranging from 40 to 100 pounds are best for fodder; and since it is American farmers who mainly use them to feed animals, it is in the U.S. you are likely to find the biggest show of big pumpkins.

IN CORN FIELDS

The favorite American place to plant pumpkin seed is in a corn field between the corn rows. The seeds are usually sown at intervals of about twelve feet, and the plants are allowed to shift (shift is the right word) for themselves, and to ripen beautifully after the corn is cut. The vines spread out all over the place.

Pumpkin vines grow rapidly and long—sometimes they exceed 20 feet in length. Although pumpkin is thought to be native to tropical America, it is not known in a wild state—only in cultivated. It is widely grown in temperate North America and Europe, and is a favorite gourd of English cottage gardens.

Pumpkins are a fruit, not a vegetable; they form from the pistillate of the large yellow flowers. They vary greatly in shape lar, but more frequently are oblong or ovoid in shape. It is difficult to keep the varieties pure, particularly if various kinds are grown together, but the true squashes (Curcurbita Maxima) do not hybridize with the true pumpkin species (Curcurbita Pepo).

PUMPKIN AND PUNKIN

The word pumpkin is though by some to be a name adapted from an American-Indian word, but the Shorter Oxford Dictionary traces the ancestry of the word back to Latin and Greek, which seems to give the lie to those who believe the fruit indigenous to this continent only. The dictionary identifies pumpkin with pompion, an obsolete name for pumpkin, and this comes from French through Latin and Greek words which look and sound much the same.

Incidentally, this same dictionary accepts 'punkin' as a correct spelling and pronunciation in the United States.

So we can indulge our taste this week in punkin pie, and prepare the pumpkins for the gala witchery of Hallowe'en jack-o'lanterns. But only if a cannery begins operating again in these parts will we be able to see here whole fields, brilliantly studded with yellow pumpkins.

Your Garden:

Proper Care Of Bulbs Pays Off Next Spring

By HENRY PREE (NEA)

The care of summer-blooming bulbs, such as gladiolus, canna, dahlia, and tuberous-rooted begonias, should be part of this month's garden program. These tender bulbs can be kept over winter and planted next spring for another season of bloom.

Actually, none of these are bulbs in the true sense of the word. The "bulbs" of gladiolus and tigridia are botanically [illegible] while those of them in dry sand or peat moss.

Gladiolus: A top-ranking gladiolus grower says that "at least six weeks are needed to mature the corms after the plants have finished blooming. However, bulbs should be dug when the plants are still green, so do not delay too long after the average killing frost date in your area.

Do not leave part of stem on bulb. Cut close and burn the tops. Do not leave bulbs to dry where frost can reach them. Do not pile deeply. Quick drying (not in hot sunlight) is extremely important to prevent spread of diseases in storage. Do not remove roots and old bulb for some weeks unless the old bulb is soft or shows decay. Wait until they separate with ease and without tearing the new root base.

This waiting period is the most desirable time for dusting your bulbs with DDT.

Use any DDT dry dusting powder — 5 per cent strength is enough, more than 5 per cent is a sheer waste of money and increases the possible human hazard by inhalation.

Canna and Dahlia: The treatment for storage of these two plants is similar. Dahlias are not difficult to winter if the gardener follows instructions and makes certain the storage room temperature does not rise above 50 nor drop below 38 degrees. Dahlia tubers should be dug up a week or 10 days after frost has blackened the leaves.

Dig—do not pull up—the plants to prevent breaking the necks. After digging, turn the tubers upside down to drain the moisture remaining in the stem, and dry in the sun for a few hours.

When the earth shakes freely from the clumps, cut the stems off about six inches above the tubers. Do not wash off the soil, because soil clinging to the clumps guards the necks from breaking and reduces the possibilities of the tubers drying out.

You may store the tubers in a box or barrel lined with newspaper, or they can be packed in dry sand or peatmoss. The tubers should be lightly dusted with sulphur to reduce danger of mildew during storage. However, since some moisture is necessary to keep tubers from shrivelling, it is wise to sprinkle them occasionally during the winter.

Tuberous-rooted Begonias: Tuberous-rooted begonias continue to bloom until the frost cuts them down. A covering of cloth or paper during the early frost will protect them and often blooms continue till mid-November.

This treatment permits the bulbs to mature naturally, otherwise one will have difficulty carrying them through the winter.

Dig them up before severe frost and spread out in flats (leaving soil adhering to roots). Put in a sunny, airy space and allow to ripen. When stems and leaves have died, clean off and store the tubers in dry sand, soil or peat [illegible] gridia are lifted and stored, as are those of the gladiolus, being sure that they are dry before storing. Propagation is from seeds or from cormels.

Gardening Questions

Q.—I would like to know how to start peach trees from seed, as they are very good peaches. Should I start them now or in spring.—L.Y.

A.—Peaches may be started from seed, but there is no guarantee that you will get the quality of peach you desire. Sow seed early next spring, when the soil is workable. Commercial peach growers propagate by summer-budding of the desired variety on seedling trees grown from seed sown the previous spring. In the meanwhile, store your peach stones in a cool dark place.

Q.—Can Native Rhododendron and Mountain Laurel shrubs be cut back to keep them within bounds?

A.—The Mountain Laurel can be kept to a certain height by yearly cutting back the leader of each branch. While Rhododendrons will tolerate annual pruning they are best used where they can grow as nature intended, to a height of 10 feet and more.

Followed a tip-off from my friend Clem of the Empress Hotel about a man down at that hosteiry with an odd-looking bird, dead of course. Living up to my reputation (see paragraph above) investigated and found a duck hunter with a Double Crested Cormorant, wingspread 52 inches. This giant diving specie bird was certainly on the wrong southern migration lane. It belongs to the Central Canada Flyway where its kind breed in great numbers in Northern Manitoba and north yet from there.

It came into this shooter's decoys in front of a blind at Rice Lake with some teal and was shot for mixing with the wrong crowd. Shouldn't have been killed, however. Cormorants are protected. In Georgian Bay area where the birds do terrible damage to commercial fishermen's nets, Lands and Forests men spray clutches of eggs to render them unfertile. This is their only means of control since the law says "Don't shoot."

In the days before the Ganaraska River watershed was denuded of timber to become the most evil-looking badlands in the province, the waters near Port Hope teemed with land-locked salmon.

Fisherman James Sculthorpe in 1801 reported that one evening he and his uncle speared 300 salmon; they refused $50 for the lot. The same man during the same year, in company with a young man who took convulsions, dumped their boat in a bay near the river mouth. The sick youth managed his way to shore and safety and the following morning the boat was found belly-up with 32 fine salmon wedged beneath the seats.

Besides salmon, sturgeon supplied the early settlers with food and Indians taught the whites how to land the three-foot fish. These incidents appeared in "A Report on the Ganaraska Watershed" by A. H. Richardson.

Tag End Of October

It is ten days now since the Thanksgiving turkey carcass gave up its last shred of goodness to the soup pot. The flaming foliage has all but blown away on keen winds and the thermometer has sagged several times below 32.

Frantic work around the home to get ready for winter keeps all hands busy. Leaves to rake and burn. Screens to come off and storm-window puzzle to solve once again. Car radiators gulp anti-freeze by the gallon. Starting motors are sluggish. The ground is as hard as iron, some mornings, and ruts are filled with patches of glass ice. A sudden flurry of snowflakes makes the children cheer like mad and sends them rushing to the attic to look for skates and hockey sticks.

"We'll have Indian Summer, now," observes the Fat Man as the weather moderates again.

I doubt it, for a little while, at least.

The other evening at sunset the low sun shone over the drab pasture field. The silvery stuff from burst milkweed pods shed a bright sheen over the dead grass. A shallow creek led the eye to a swamp where a stand of yellow tamaracks glowed in the last light. Black bare elms barred the orange sickle of a new moon.

"Let's go home," said the child beside me, "it is getting cold. There's baked apples and hot spiced cake for supper."

Churchill's Size 19½ Neck

Sylvia Gray, the B.B.C.'s woman news reporter, recently talked in "Radio Newsreel" to Keith Gems, director of a London firm that makes wax figures for export. Mr. Gem's firm has been supplying them to an American millionaire who is spending vast sums on creating a huge exhibition. Before making a figure the firm gets pictures of the person concerned and a dossier describing his individual characteristics. The head is modelled in clay, a mould is made from this and a rough wax head cast from the mould. The head is then finished off by Mrs. Attwell, who has been forty-four years on the job. Every hair is put in separately, and up to a quarter of a pound used on each head. Even the beard hairs are set in individually and then shaved afterwards if a shadow is needed. Full-blooded men with florid faces give Mrs. Attwell the most trouble: one of her favourites is Mr. Churchill, whose dossier shows that he takes size nineteen and a half in collars.

P.C.V.S. Beats Woodstock By A Score Of 16 To 6 In Red Feather Tourney

By DON GRANT

There's more than a good chance that the Ontario High School senior football championship will come to Peterborough this year. Bev. Goulding's Garnet and Grey from P.C.V.S. performed like champions Friday night in downing the W.O.S.S.A. representatives, Woodstock Collegiate, 16-6 in the opening game of the Red Feather Tournament for the Ontario honors. In the second game, St. Patrick's College of Ottawa pulled an upset as they edged the Green and Gold of Hamilton Westdale Collegiate 7-6. This game was marred by fumbles and penalties. The P.C.V.S. game could only be compared with the C.O.S.S.A. final last year with Stamford. The whole team, line, backfield and reserves just could not do anything wrong; they definitely overwhelmed the highly-regarded Red and Whites from Woodstock.

FINE LINE WORK

The line's work in the first half ng by Centre Larry Forbes and Inside Hugh Outram backed by Bruce Walker, Garry Gilders and Jack King, punched gaping holes in the Woodstock line and the plungers poured through for yardage.

But once the plungers were beyond the line they were on their own, and their own was tops. Murray Grafstein steamrolled to the team's selection of best player and was awarded the gold watch for the player most valuable to his team. His drives were hard and long; Woodstock had trouble stopping him on his journeys. But Spin Hope and Dave Langhorne all had their moments and usually those moments were at the best time in downfield marches for major scores.

LANGHORNE-CRAW

Langhorne also stood out in another department along with Bob Craw who was the most sensational player in both games. The short quarter popped up twice out of nowhere to toss snap passes to Craw. Both times Craw's catches were nothing short of sensational.

If Woodstock matched the Garnet and Grey in any department, it was in the punting. The Red-Whites' Pete Ferguson matched the efforts of P.C.V.S. kickers Spin Hope and Jack Corbett. The latter getting several lofty kicks away. But Ferguson ran into trouble several times as the Garnet and Grey surged through, once blocking.

The Garnet and Grey lost little time in showing their strength. Ferguson arched a high punt to Corbett midway through the first at the Peterborough 35. From there Grafstein, Scriver, Hope and Langhorne rushed the ball up the field. Finally Hope carried to the one-yard line where Grafstein charged over.

A GREAT RUN

Th game's thriller play sent the Garnet and Grey further ahead in the second quarter. Quarter Langhorne just seemed to pop into the air and passed to Craw. On the dead run, the fleet back took the ball away from Woodstock's outstretched hands and raced 60 yards in the clear to score. Langhorne converted for a 11-0 score.

In the third quarter the Red and [illegible] score, only time they threatened. Grant Thompson, James Carnwath and Wayne Milburn carried the ball on plunges from the Woodstock 25. Carnwath scored on a quarter sneak and then converted.

Woodstock began to gamble on third downs in the final quarter. After the first time, the Garnet and Grey rolled, featuring a passing play (the old Langhorne to Craw throw) which saw Craw snatch the ball out of the air when it was inches from the ground. This march ended in P.V.C.S.'s only fumble.

Woodstock gambled again minutes later on their 25-yard line and failed. On the second play, Grafstein with his arm warded off would-be tacklers and bounced for 17 yards to score. That TD made the score 16-6.

RATHER DULL

Apart from a brilliant 95-yard run by Hamilton's Phil Clarke in the opening minute of the second game the Westdale St. Patrick's game was rather dull. The boys from capital hill went up 1-0 in the second quarter, only to have the ambitious city lads take a 6-1 half lead.

Both teams were scoreless in the third quarter and then, in the final, some good broken field running by Ottawa's Mat Robillard gave St. Patrick's the win 7-6.

On the night's play the Garnet and Grey should have a slight lead in the title hunt. Unless Stamford, Etobicoke, North Toronto and Scollard Hall of North Bay come up with something better tonight, the Ontario honors will be carried home by P.C.V.S. Garnet and Greys.

Lindsay Girls Take First Over Black's

Lindsay squeezed out a 20-19 decision over Black's in the Y.W.C.A. last night to open the Girls' City Basketball League in the only game of the evening. Black's led 9-6 at the halfway mark, but Lindsay finished a little stronger to outscore them 14-10 in the second session of a close, clean and speedy contest.

Ruth Gilson led the winners with eight points, M. Owen having seven, Isabel Green and Shirley Algar two each and D. Copp one. Mabel Gillen was best for Black's with nine points to her credit, R. Naylor also being effective with six, as C. Gibson and J. Laidlaw clicked for a field goal each. Only two players, one to a side, drew as many as two personal fouls. Games next Friday: C.G.E. v. Collis, and Civic v. Black's. Teams:

Black's — C. Raper, M. McGill, J. Laidlaw, E. Mellhagga, R. Butcher, C. Gibson, M. Gillen, R. Naylor, B. Partridge, L. Lee.

Lindsay — I. Green, R. Gilson, S. Algar, D. Britnell, D. Copp, M. Owen.

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Norman Von Nida, the Australian open champion, fired a one-under-par 71 yesterday to maintain his three-stroke lead over America's Ed Porky Oliver at the three-quarter mark of the 72-hole Ampol golf tournament.

The little Aussie pro had 214 for 54 holes on rounds of 72-71-71. The final 18 holes of the £7,000 tournament are to be played today over the Lakes course. A second 72-hole division of the tournament will be played over the Huntingdale course in Melbourne.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Seems there's a sort of gentleman's agreement in grid circles this semester—particularly in the upper brackets—whereby the sleeper play will not be used. That's the low piece of trickery where a player lies away over by the side-lines (but just on the field) as his mates huddle and then line up for the play. This "sleeper" suddenly comes to life and maybe takes a long pass while uncovered to romp for a touchdown. If he isn't spotted in time. Anyway, with the unlimited substitution rule in effect and players not having to report to the head linesman—plus frequent and fast changes in the two-platoon system—'twas felt that it was too easy to slip in a sleeper often. Hence the gentleman's agreement to outlaw it, though legally it is still permitted.

Lots of grid activity this weekend concerning local teams, apart from the P.C.V.S. game to open the Red Feather tourney in Toronto last e'en. Intermediate Orfuns are away to Cobourg today for an important O.R.F.U. group game, and they could emerge champs from it. Or it could mean a play-off later betwixt these clubs. St. Peter's seniors go to Toronto tomorrow to clash with St. Mike's in a Catholic Conference playoff, with S.P.S. favored to win again. Here at Morrow Park this aft, St. Peter's seniors play Oshawa Combines an exhibition at 1:15, and it is followed by a junior group fray between O.C.V.I. and S.P.S., one the latter practically have to win to keep in the titular hunt.

Protection For The Kids

O.M.H.A. has what appears to be an excellent insurance plan for minor hockeyists, providing protection against injury expense incurred at games, practises or in travel to and from such, to the extent of $250 for medical or hospitalization care, or $35 for dental care. At a cost of $1.00 a player for the season. If a parent doesn't feel like putting up a dollar to protect his boy to this extent in hockey through five or six months of play, then something is wrong. What can you lose? Ernie Crandall of Bobcaygeon, member of the O.M.H.A., did the checking and, believe it or not, cut the first named premium of $10 a player down to $1.50 and finally to a buck! Provided enough boys in Ontario take out this insurance. After all, injuries do occur in hockey and cost money—so we're in favor of this low-cost insurance for the kids.

Quinte columnist, commenting on the report that the Petes might have to fold, says: "It seems a shame the lads cannot bury the hatchet and merge into what could be one of the strongest teams in the group. Belleville and Kingston especially would miss Peterborough. Rivalry was always keen between the Quinte and the Kawarthas. Peterborough was one of the best drawing cards Belleville had. Both teams always fought to the last ditch to win, with the result that fandom usually had one on their best nights in these clashes. It is hoped the boys up that way see the light and for the game's sake and the betterment of the group heal their differences." Meantime, Belleville is drilling hard now for the scheduled opener here next Friday night.

Petes' Puckists Carry On

Petes plan to carry on this semester and will start their senior schedule here next Friday 'gainst Belleville. This was announced at the minor puck benefit tilt last p.m. in Civic Arena as the Petes took a 9-3 exhibition win o'er the Oddfellows. Not a bad game, speedy, clean and a bit scrambly, with the juniors showing a lot of promise. Glad to see Chum Fryia out again with the Ellis outfit, and they plan to do some real digging for talent to round up a contending club again. List of draw winners is in elsewhere, and the crowd wasn't too big for such an occasion. A lot of fans mustn't be too interested in helping minor hockey along. Russ Payne and Bun Kingdon handled the game capably.

Bev. Goulding's good P.C.V.S. senior gridders roared through to a 16-6 victory over Woodstock Friday p.m. in Toronto to open the Red Feather tournament. They took a 5-0 lead in the first on Murray Grafstein's major and made it 11-0 at the half when Bob Craw took Dave Langhorne's jump pass and tore 60 yards for a try, shaking three tacklers en route. Langhorne converted. Grafstein added a touchdown in the fourth, and he won the watch as the club's best player in the game. Ottawa St. Pat's edged Hamilton 7-6 in the other end of the twin bill, the tourney concluding tonight. Don Scriver and Spin Hope were other starry backfielders behind a powerful, charging line—and that line proved the main difference between Peterborough and Woodstock. It was a fine showing for the Garnet and Grey. A panel of judges tonight votes on the best team in the tourney.

Petes Decide To Stay In; Defeat I.O.O.F., 9-3 In Benefit Exhibition Tilt

It was announcer at the hockey exhibition game last night in Civic Arena that the Petes would carry on this season, opening their O.H.A. senior "B" schedule against Belleville Glens here next Friday night. The executive has decided it can round up enough good puckists to ice a contending club. The announcement was made during the tilt which the Petes won 9-3 against the Junior Oddfellows before some 500 fans. Proceeds of the tussle were to go toward aiding minor hockey in the city.

THE WINNERS

Draw prizes went to the following, Police Sgt. Clair McGillen making the draws: TV set, Ed Panter; girl's skates, Phyllis Godfrey; boy's skates, Ron Robinson; cases of soft drinks, P. E. Thompson, Ed Allen, B. McNamara and R. Renwick; ties, A. Price, J. Smillie and A. Shephered; oil change, L. Symonds; hockey sticks, E. Cournyea, R. Lamb and M. Vinette; shin pads, K. Richards; shoulder pads, P. Ballantyne; frying pan, K. Anderson; cup and saucer, D. Kates.

The game was fairly fast, quite clean but marked with the usual scrambly hockey seen early in the season before teams are picked. The juniors used a raft of players, and the seniors also tried out different combinations. Each club used two goalies. The score was 2-1 for the Ellis outfit in the first period and 4-1 for them going into the livelier third. A few minor penalties were handed out for accidental trips by referees Russ Payne and Bun Kingdon.

FRYIA SCORED

Chum Fryia scored the first one and Ted Collins made it 2-0 from Floyd before Red Robinson pulled a neat solo to tally for the Oddfellows. Louth drew a tripping penalty in the first frame. Early in the second, Sabatino went off for tripping and Greenlaw scored. Later, Gus Leonard slapped a screened shot in on a pass back by Don Floyd. McCormick was gated for elbowing and Floyd followed a few minutes later for boarding. There was time out then for the draw.

Ferguson notched a screened goal from Coyle to open the third, and Fryia flipped two home for the Petes, aided once by Mason. Greenlaw cuffed in Mason's pass, and, after Ken Floyd scored from Frizzelle, West tallied twice to end it, aided first by Floyd and then by Mason in the final minute of play.

The crowd was disappointingly small, the fans who didn't show up being directly to blame. The arena, teams, press and radio all co-operated to help the kids, and merchants gave many fine prizes, but a lot of fans apparently weren't interested. The teams:

I.O.O.F. — Lingard, Delahaye, Bigford, Sullivan, Sabatino, Kimball, Church, Newman, McCormick, Twist, Coyle, Ferguson, Robinson, Frizzelle, K. Floyd, Doris, Gardner, McCracken, Snape, Stevenson, Laing, Allen.

Petes — Byers, Harding, E. Leonard, Louth, Landry, West, Collins, Floyd, Fryia, Mason, Greenlaw, J. Mortimer, Wasson.

CLINCH FIRST PLACE

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Patterson Collegiate Panthers clinched first place in the Windsor Secondary Schools Association Football League here last night by trimming Assumption High School Purple Raiders 24-5 at Windsor Stadium.

After a scoreless first period, Al Newman's undefeated Patterson team struck for 17 points in the second quarter.

Patterson wound up the regular season with five straight victories.

In yesterday's other action, Kennedy Collegiate Clippers blanked Walkerville Collegiate Tartans 19-0 and Lowe Vocational Roughriders fought Forster Sandwich Collegiate Spartans to a 6-6 deadlock.

In next week's sudden-death semi-final playoffs, Patterson will play fourth-place Lowe Vocational while Kennedy will square off with Assumption.

St. Catharines Defeats Barrie Flyers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The teetering Barrie Flyers managed to stay on top of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A pile last night but it wasn't the fault of St. Catharines Teepees.

The Teeps handed the Flyers their second loss of the season and their second in a row by outscoring them 3-2 in Barrie. It left the Barrie team with 11 points, two ahead of Guelph Biltmores and Galt Black Hawks.

The Biltmores, Memorial Cup champions last year, proved their Thursday win in Oshawa was no accident by taking the Generals 8-6 in Guelph in overtime.

WINDSOR'S FIRST POINT

Windsor Spitfires earned their first point of the season by holding on to a 3-3 tie in Kitchener while St. Michael's and Marlboros staged a rousing home-town battle in Toronto with the Irish scoring a 9-3 victory.

The wins by St. Michael's and Teepees moved them into a third-place tie while Kitchener-Waterloo's single point gave them sole possession of fourth place. Marlboros are next with five points, Oshawa has three and Windsor one.

Galt was the only Ontario team idle last night. They play Three Rivers Reds tonight in the third game of their Quebec series.

BLOW LEAD

In losing to St. Catharines, Barrie blew a 1-0 first-period lead. After Doug Mohns put the Flyers in front, Ed Mateka and Wilford Roberts came back in the second to give Teepees a 2-1 margin. Captain Skip Teal tied it up for Flyers in the third but then Wimpy Roberts scored the winner for the visitors.

In Kitchener the Greenshirts spotted Windsor a 2-0 lead early in the first period on goals by Joe Zorica and Cummy Burton. Then Gary Collins scored for the Shirts and Ron Craven replied for Windsor. The second period was scoreless but Glen Cressman tied it up for Kitchener-Waterloo in the third. The overtime was scoreless.

In Guelph the scrappy Generals battled the Biltmores to a 6-6 tie in regulation time only to have Chuck Henderson and Irv Scott score in overtime.

UPHILL BATTLE

It was an uphill battle for Generals as Guelph led 2-0 early in the game. Oshawa tied it up and led 3-2 in the second, then Guelph scored twice more. The Generals came from behind three times in the third to force the overtime. Bob Attersley scored three for the Generals while singles went to Bill Stewart, Bob Mader and Stan Parker. Ron Murphy and Billy McCreary scored two each for Guelph with Jim Connelly and Birley Dimma getting singles.

St. Michael's and Marlboros staged a neighborhood brawl in Maple Leaf Gardens. The Irish were never behind, leading 2-0 after the first, 4-2 at the end of the second and outscoring the Dukes 5-1 in a fight-studded third period.

Murray Costello scored three for St. Michael's, Jack Caffrey and Ed Plata had two each while Paul Knox and Dick Duff accounted for singles. Eric Nesterenko, shifty right-winger for the Dukes, scored two, while Parker MacDonald fired the other.

Despirito Goes After Another Turf Record

SALEM, N.H. (AP)—Tony Despirito, 17-year-old Lawrence, Mass. apprentice jockey, started after the United States turf's record of 388 victories in one year today as he accepted his last riding assignments on Rockingham Park's closing day.

The youngster Friday became the eighth American rider in history to boot home 300 winners in a year when he brought in the winner in two of his eight engagements.

He joined the select company of Walter Miller, Vincent Powers, Jackie Westrope, Johnny Longden, Joe Culmone, Willie Shoemaker and Charlie Burr.

Miller set the 388-record back in 1906 and both Culmone and Shoemaker equalled it in 1950.

JOHNNY BRIGHT, who turned the touchdown "hat trick" for Calgary in their upset of the Eskimos. Calgary leads the two-game total point series by 19 points as they downed the favored Eskies 31-12.

Two Favorites Installed At 21 To 2

LONDON (AP) — George Maclean's three-year-old Cap of Gold and George Bayliss' Richer were installed joint favorites at 21 to 2 last night in a bookmaker's call-over on the Cambridgeshire Stakes.

The nine-furlong race — second leg of the autumn betting double—is scheduled at Newmarket next Wednesday.

Maclean, a member of a Scottish bookmaking family, won the first leg of the double—the Cesarewitch Stakes—two weeks ago with his 33-to-1 longshot, Flush Royal.

Fifty-four horses are still in the race, but a few scratches are expected before post time.

22 GIVEN ODDS

Twenty-two of the horses in the handicap race were given odds by the London bookies.

Prices of the named horses were:
Cap of Gold and Richer, 21 to 2.
Hilltop, 100 to 9.
Brunetto and Nicky Nook, 20 to 1.
Valdesco and Stranger, 25 to 1.
Fleeting Moment, 28 to 1.
Longstone, 33 to 1.
Antrycide, Kriss Kringle, King Cardinal, High Principle, Noholme and Pink Jasper, 40 to 1.
H.V.C. Mehmandar, Signal Box, Damremont, Cock of the North, Sunny Brae, 50 to 1.
Merry Prince 66 to 1.

Chatham Whips Sarnia Sailors

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The opening night of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series was a "home town" night. The locals at Brantford, Chatham and Stratford came through with victories.

Chatham Maroons had no trouble trouncing Sarnia Sailors 8-2 Stratford Indians overcame Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen 5-3 while Brantford Redmen staged a third-period rally to top Owen Sound Mercurys by the same score.

It was a night for spectacular individual efforts. Ernie Dick led his Chatham teammates to victory by scoring four goals while Joe Carveth slid in three others. Jack Price got the eighth Chatham marker. Chatham led 3-1 after the first and 5-1 after the second. Mac Beaton and Skippy Frezell scored for Sarnia.

In Stratford Dinny Flanagan was the outstanding individual scorer as he counted three against Kitchener-Waterloo. Herve Dejordy and Tommy Walker were other Stratford marksmen.

Billy Mitchell scored a lucky one in the first to open the scoring for Kitchener-Waterloo. Al Buchanan and Charlie rooker added two more in the third.

Brantford had trouble in downing Owen Sound. The Mercurys scored three times in the first frame before Bev Haynes notched one for Brantford. Buck Porslund, Red Leckie and Tommy Burlington were Mercury marksmen

Patrick and Ross Hailing Bruins As Stanley Cuppers

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The 13,000-odd Toronto Maple Leaf hockey fans will watch this year's Stanley Cup champions tonight at Maple Leaf Gardens. The players will be decked out in the gold, black and white colors of Boston Bruins. At least, that's the advance publicity pumped into the unbelieving ears of Toronto sports writers by tub-thumper Lynn Patrick who happens to coach the Bruins. Said Patrick:

"We probably won't finish first. We have an outside chance of finishing second and I think we'll go on to win the cup. This is the best club I've had since I started coaching in the National Hockey League in 1948."

And Art Ross, who happens to be the Bruins' general manager, breezed into Toronto and had this to say:

"We may nail the roof on a top contender this season."

ONLY NINE GOALS

Maybe Patrick and Ross haven't had a good look at the N.H.L. standings this season. In five games they've tied three and won one and have scored only nine goals, the lowest in the six-team league.

The Bruins are running fourth, three points off the pace set by Detroit Red Wings, Chicago Black Hawks and Montreal Canadiens, who have eight points apiece, and two behind the Leafs.

The Wings have the best chance to break out in front in the week-end. They tangle at Montreal with Canadiens tonight and at New York against the bottom-place Rangers Sunday.

The Bruins complete the four-game week-end schedule at Chicago Sunday night.

Eskimos Facing Their Last Chance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

This is last-chance weekend for Edmonton Eskimos in the Western Conference Football Union and it could be a disastrous one for the Dominion champion Ottawa Rough Riders in the eastern Big Four. Both clubs are on the griddle.

Edmonton must make up a 19-point deficit over Calgary Stampeders to advance into the best-of-three western finals against Winnipeg Blue Bombers and the Rough Riders meet their old hex club, Toronto Argonauts, in a game that could decide a playoff position.

The Eskimos were clobbered 31-12 in Calgary Wednesday night when the Stamps gambled on quarter Keith Spaith, sidelined for two weeks. Spaith justified coach Les Lear's confidence by tossing four touchdown passes that practically broke the hearts of the Eskimos.

The Eskimos probably will take to the air in desperation to overcome the lead that, to their supporters, looks something like the national debt.

ARGOS ONE POINT UP

The Riders have managed only one victory over Argonauts in a couple of years and last time out—at Ottawa a week ago—the Toronto club walloped them 25-6. The victory gave Argonauts 11 points, one up on the Riders, and after Saturday's game Argonauts close out the schedule in a home-and-home series against the last-place and winless Montreal Alouettes while Ottawa meets the league-leading Hamilton Tiger-Cats in a twin bill.

Tiger-Cats can latch onto a play-off position with a decision over the Als at Montreal Sunday.

Minister, Teacher, Writer To Visit St. James' Church

Forty-seventh anniversary services will be celebrated at St. James' United Church on Sunday, a 11:00 a.m. and 7:00 p.m. The Rev. H. A. Kent, M.A., D.D., Principal Emeritus of Queen's Theological College, Kingston, will be guest preacher. Dr. Kent spent his boyhood in Nova Scotia. He received his M.A. degree from Dalhousie University and his studies for the ministry were taken at Pine Hill Divinity Hall. After ordination he taught in Trinidad for some years. On his return to Canada he lectured in Old Testament at Pine Hill. In 1924 Dr. Kent was called to Queen's Theological College and was Principal there until his retirement this year. His accomplishments in the field of Old Testament study were ecknowledged in two fellowships, one of the Royal Geographical Society and the other of the Royal Archaeological Society. He was elected President of Bay of Quinte Conference for 1949-1950. During The First World War he was a staff officer in the Canadian army and was senior chaplain in the First Canadian division during The Second World War. He is now a colonel in the Army Chaplains Corps. As minister, teacher, writer and soldier, Dr. Kent speaks from broad experience. The congregation and friends of St. James' United Church are anticipating with pleasure his anniversary messages.

Safe Looted

LONDON, Ont. (CP—The safe at Coad Brothers Orange Crush plant on Princess Avenue, was cleaned out Thursday night for the second time in six weeks. Company officials said contents included about $1,200 in cash in payroll money. In a Sept. 10 break-in the same safe was looted of more than $200.

TINY REPUBLIC

San Marino, founded as a republic on the Adriatic in the fourth century, has an area of only 38 square miles.

New Cabinet Ministers

REGINA (CP)—J. W. Burton was sworn in yesterday as provincial secretary of Saskatchewan and minister in charge of the bureau of publications and its tourist branch. Alex G. Kuziak was sworn in as minister of telephones. The appointments, announced in a bureau of publications release, brought the membership of the C.C.F. cabinet to 14.

Ex-Mayor Fined

INGERSOLL (CP)—Dr. E. J. Murray, a former mayor of Ingersoll, yesterday was fined $50 and costs for careless driving as a result of a traffic accident last month in which Max Tomlinson of Woodstock was fatally injured. Charges of dangerous driving and of driving without an operator's licence were withdrawn.

UNWANTED WALNUTS BY THE BUSHEL lie among the leaves of front lawns in Bailieboro. Of the 200 trees planted by the late John Lucas at the time of Confederation, half that number still stand. On the original farm (bottom right photo). Great-granddaughter Helen Rutherford (left photo) plays idly with quantities of nuts lying at her front doorstep. Her pal, Donna Wood, tries to peddle a basket to general store merchant Laura Hazeldon. She has no luck. TRUCK STOLEN

A truck stolen from the farm of R. J. Archer, R.R.1, Campbellford, Friday afternoon, was recovered during the night in Toronto by police. Its juvenile driver is being brought back today.

Female Vagrant Troubles Police, Finally Tethered

City and provincial police had difficulty early today apprehending a female vagrant at the north end of the city.

After a chase by constables of both departments which lasted half an hour, she was finally caught by a citizen who grabbed her by the ear.

Although he has been trying all morning to find out where she belongs, desk sergeant Leo Murphy has had no luck as yet and police admit they are baffled.

TETHERED

The cause of the mystery is a red and white hereford cow, now tethered on the east side of Water St., near the Goose Pond.

Apparently tired of country life, she wandered into town down Highway 28 and constables Harold Andrew and Vic McConnel had to enlist the aid of two men who happened along in order to catch her.

After Daniel House caught the cow by its ear, Constable Harold Andrew made a halter from a rope. However, bossy was reluctant to be taken into custody and their troubles were not over yet.

Another man who happened along at this point picked up the cow's right front foot.

Leading her by the rope halter, they then hobbled the cow on three legs over to a post on the east side of Water St., where they tied her up.

At 7 a.m., after she had been fed a bagful of hay obtained from a dairy barn, humane society inspector Bruce Menzies arrived and relieved bossy of three quarts of milk.

No one has reported a cow missing as yet and police are at a loss to know who owns her.

To deputy chief John Naples, the incident recalled a similar one several years ago, when he and Police Chief John Thompson and another policeman came upon a cow loose inside the city.

Deputy Chief Naples said he managed to get a rope around the cow's nose and they led her to the old police station to give her a drink from the watering trough that was outside.

After quenching her thirst, she decided to make a break for freedom and he was the only one on the end of the rope which was fairly long. Fortunately, there was a post handy and he snubbed the cow around it, but had some rope burns on his hands to show for his cattle-roping adventure.

Steel Men To Vote On Mine-Mill

Board Conducts Vote To Decide If Union To Represent Workers

MARMORA (ENS) — Production workers at the Marmora-Bethlehem Mines, a subsidiary of Bethlehem Steel, will vote on Oct. 31 to decide whether or not the majority are in favor of having the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (Indep.) as their collective bargaining agent.

The date has been set and the vote will be conducted by the Ontario Labor Relations Board.

FILED 102 CARDS

At a hearing in September the Mine-Mill union filed 102 cards, claiming to represent a large majority of the 157 ironworkers in the company. A group of 56 workers, at the same hearing, informed the O.L.R.B. that they didn't want to belong to Mine-Mill. They also said attempts had been made to intimidate them.

The minority group were represented by David Lewis, counsel for Mine-Mill's bitter rivals, the United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.). However the Steelworkers did not directly intervene.

Should Mine-Mill fail to win the vote on Oct. 31 it is expected that the Steelworkers—already actively campaigning to sign up members—will apply to the O.L.R.B. for certification.

Bancroft Man Agrees To Pay $1,688 Damages

Fred Brethour, a Bancroft woodcutter, has agreed to a settlement of $1,688 in a damage claim against him, laid by two C.P.R. section hands.

In an out-of-court settlement he agreed to pay Vernon Fleming $1,377.19 and Garfield Aylesworth $150.81, plus costs of $200. Fleming and Aylesworth were working at Ivanhoe when their car collided with another vehicle, driven by Brethour, three and a half miles south of Madoc.

The accident was on Jan. 31, 1951.

Minutes of settlement were filed before Mr. Justice W. F. Schroeder at the Supreme Court non-jury sitting that adjourned Friday.

Fleming originally asked for $1,784 for personal injuries and damage to his car. His passenger at the time, Aylesworth, claimed $202. In the settlement claims were scaled down to $1,337 and $151, respectively, and a counter-claim by Brethour was dropped.

Brethour had already paid $892 into court on Fleming's account and $101 on Aylesworth's

The claims will be paid off in monthly instalments of $100.

Engineering Students Told Take A Chance In World

"The road to success is to forget security and take a chance".

Dr. J. B. Stirling, president of the Engineering Institute of Canada, has been travelling across Canada giving this piece of advice to students. Friday night he repeated it to the Peterborough branch of the Engineering Institute.

FAILS TO WORK OUT

"I try and tell students that they can't plan their careers for years ahead," said Dr. Stirling. "Nobody can see into the future. But it's difficult to tell them they can't plan their careers when they are constantly being told by their parents and professors that they must fix their eyes on an objective and never swerve aside.

"That's great in theory but it doesn't work out in practice."

Dr. Stirling indicated that he wasn't theorizing himself when he made this statement. He analyzed his own class that graduated from Queens University 41 years ago.

Fifty per cent of them remained in the professional engineering field. The other 50 per cent had become successes in other walks of life, including real estate, journalism and bus transportation. One had wandered into the women's wear business.

TERMED PROPAGANDA

"I'm shocked and amazed at the propaganda I've been reading in technical papers and in the press to the effect that engineers are grossly underpaid; that they are not pulling their weight in public service; and that they are not recognized as an important profession."

He said he wasn't much worried about the low-pay claim. That can be rectified. But he was concerned to see that, according to a recent poll, engineers ranked seventh in prestige among the professions.

Apparently the general public has a higher opinion of medicine, law, university teaching, the ministry, banking and finance.

Dr. Stirling said he didn't agree, but if engineers keep harping on these themes the public will come to believe them and employers will be getting engineers for a cheap price.

ACTIVE IN COMMUNITY

He urged engineers to take an active part in their community life and not limit their interests to strictly professional work.

"Public service is the engineer's road to recognition," he said.

Ross L. Dobbin, manager of the Peterborough Utilities Commission, is an example of a professional engineer who has been active in community work, Dr. Stirling pointed out. And Mr. Dobbin is known from coast to coast.

Earlier in his address Dr. Stirling told of how Canadian engineers can help their South American colleagues. The engineering standard is not so high in those countries, he said.

"Canadian engineers are on a par with those in the United States. We have in countries like that," said Dr. Stirling. "They are equally as good and sometimes better than our trade commissioners."

Dr. Stirling is travelling across Canada, paying the president's annual visit to the 41 branches of the Engineering Institute. He is also speaking to engineering students in 11 colleges that give degrees in engineering and to eight others that give two or three years of instruction.

He was accompanied by Col. H. G. Thompson, assistant general secretary.

Dr. Stirling was introduced by Robert Hailey and thanked by the chairman, D. Alan Drynan.

Oshawa Teacher Elected Durham Pres.

H. Pascoe of Oshawa was elected president of the Oshawa and West Durham Teachers' Institute which held its annual convention here Friday.

Mr. Pascoe is principal of Westmount Public School in Oshawa and moved up from vice-president. Arthur Winter, principal of Cedar Dale School, Oshawa, was elected vice-president. Miss Myrtle Wilson of Mary St. School was returned as secretary-treasurer.

In the morning, the 250 teachers attending divided into groups and visited four of Peterborough's public schools, Prince of Wales, King George, Queen Mary and King Edward.

Miss Wilson said she had heard several of the teachers comment they were very well pleased with the facilities in the schools they had visited.

IMPRESSED BY ART

Individually they commented that "the classrooms were well organized" and a Bowmanville teacher said she was particularly impressed with the art work being done at King George School.

Highlight of the convention was the luncheon at Club Aragon.

The new officers were elected for the coming year and F. B. Smitheram, of the Normal School staff gave a talk on educational psychology.

Mr. Smitheram took as his theme "There's Work to be Done."

A. J. Noftall Heads Teachers' Council

A. J. Noftall was elected president of the Peterborough Teachers' Council at a meeting Friday in Central School.

Elected vice-president was the Rev. Leo Leahy, and secretary-treasurer, J. M. Burns.

The council consists of representatives of Public School women teachers, Public School men teachers, Separate School teachers and Secondary School teachers.

Retiring president Miss M. Mutton commended the harmony and co-operation that existed among members of the organization during the year.

Bailieboro Walnut Trees Give Rich Harvest Nobody Wants

By NICK NICKELS

When John Lucas came to Upper Canada from Northern Ireland well before Confederation, his parents settled at Garden Hill. Young John became a carriage maker but the love of the land attracted him to South Monaghan township where he purchased 200 acres of good ground. While building a house and breaking the good soil to the plough he planted more than 200 black walnut trees on the outskirts of a hamlet that developed into Bailieboro. As the saplings grew to maturity along the highway, farm lanes and in a planned woodlot behind the barn the property changed from father to son to strangers.

Living descendants of the pioneer walnut tree planter are son William Lucas, and grandson Jack, both of Ottawa, and granddaughters Mrs. Dawson Rutherford, Bailieboro; Mrs. Ruth Smith, Timmins; Miss Margaret Lucas of Toronto and Mrs. Murray McCullough of Peterborough.

Now, no one knows Mr. Lucas' original plan in planting them. Perhaps it was for the production of lumber since he worked in wood in his early days as a carriage maker. Perhaps it was for ornament.

At least half the trees are still flourishing and the good people of Bailieboro on whose property they grow haven't a good word for them.

DIRTY TREES

They are "dirty" trees, they say. Leaves and trash are shed constantly throughout the growing season and bushels of nuts.

Hamlet children gather a few aimlessly and get their hands and clothing impregnated with brown stain from the outer green husks. The nuts are no use to them. Local merchants will not buy them though they sell the broken meat of imported Californian English walnuts for a dollar a pound.

The only good use they have found for them, after a long drying process under cover, is for fuel. Ira Dawson, of Bewdley, says they burn as well as briquettes.

Until 1946, the Department of Lands and Forests bought some walnuts for nursery planting at their Orono station but none have been sold anywhere for the past six years.

Village ladies say that they use a little of the tasty meat to give flavor to cookies and cakes. They find them hard to season and harder to crack open.

"Nuts to walnuts," is the general opinion of village people.

COULD BE LUMBER

If the present owner of most of the original Walnut Farm, Roy Sanderson of Smith township, wanted to, he could probably turn a neat profit by sawing the unwanted trees into valuable lumber. He would not comment on this possibility.

City lumber dealers say that those who could afford to buy black walnut lumber these days would pay a fancy price of about $400 a thousand feet for it. Instead of being sold in lumber these days, they say, black walnut is in most demand as a veneer and is used extensively in furniture making in Western Ontario. All the stock comes from the United States.

Tenders are being called for a new public school in Fenelon Falls. It is now nearly three years since ratepayers of the Victoria village approved the spending of an estimated $160,000 on the school.

nut — and owners will always emphasize that it is "solid" walnut —hang on to it. The piece is priceless and the raw material highly thought of everywhere, except in Bailieboro.

Cancer Expert To Speak On The Cobalt Bomb

Dr. Ivan H. Smith, director of the Cancer Institute, Victoria Hospital, London, Ont., will be the guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Peterborough Cancer Society to be held Nov. 27.

This announcement was made today by Mrs. Maurice Holt, president of the society.

Dr. Smith is one of Canada's foremost cancer specialists and is at present pioneering in the field of Cobalt 60 Therapy.

The subject of Dr. Smith's address will be, the Cobalt Bomb.

5,000 Bulbs Planted In Parks

Peterborough will burst into bloom next spring as a result of planting being done by the city's Parks Department.

More than 5,000 spring flower bulbs — tulips, hyacinths and daffodils — are being planted by the department's employees in parks and other parts in the city.

The department is paying special attention to the traffic islands on Charlotte St. at the intersection of it with Clonsilla Ave., Victory Cres. and Gordon Ave. Both shrubs and bulbs are being planted on the four islands.

All the bulbs are part of a shipment of 3,000 which arrived in September.

Parks Superintendent Amar Butcher said today that he expected the planting would be completed early next week.

Accidents Spoil C.G.E. Hopes

Hopes for an accident-free month at the C.G.E. have been shattered.

October had been named, No-Accident-Month, but in the 12 working days between Oct. 1-17, 14 accidents which were compensable or required medical aid, took place.

Safety Supervisor, Tom Lister reported that the injuries received in these acicdents were the same that had plagued the works all during the year. The majority were finger and eye injuries.

Mr. Lister explained that these are the types of accidents that have caused the greatest concern in this and past years. They are also among the injuries that can most easily be prevented by simple measures such as glasses and gloves.

Comfort Will Judge Art Exhibition

Charles Fraser Comfort, R.C.A., noted Canadian artist and associate professor of the Art and Archeology Department of the University of Toronto, will be the judge and guest at the Examiner Art Scholarship Exhibition to be held tonight at the Public Library.

The work of art students participating in the Examiner Art Classes this summer will be on display and will be judged by Mr. Comfort. The exhibit will remain on display until next Thursday.

Thirty-two students participated in this series of 12 classes. The classes were conducted by Oscar Schlienger.

Family Flees Fire In Burnt River Home

LINDSAY. — A Sommerville township family of five were left homeless Friday morning when fire destroyed their home at R. R. 2, Burnt River, about 35 miles northwest of Lindsay.

Mrs. Nelson Barr and her three children, were driven from the house when the fire which broke out in a chimney about 9 a.m. and quickly spread to the roof.

The father, Nelson Barr, was away at the time and arrived just as the house was reduced to a pile of smouldering rubble.

A bucket brigade was helpless in its efforts to save the building but some of the furnishings in the downstairs were saved by volunteers.

I Confess

Reporter's Financial Statement Follows U.S. Tradition

By JIM ENGLISH

The great "leave-us-confess" epidemic sweeping through the political ranks of the United States has infected me, too. When I talk to a friend or acquaintance and tell him I'm going to bet on Eisenhower to win the election in the States, I want him to know that I haven't been bought.

No, I haven't been bought. In fact, nobody has even attempted to bribe me. When I think of all that money being spent in swaying opinions and votes, it disturbs me that I've been left out.

However, I'm going to make as clean a breast of it as I can. This, heaven help me, is my financial history.

Since I began working for a living—and a nastier way to make a living I can't think of—I have been paid something like $17.23 a month. That's take-home pay, after my pay envelope has been ravished by unemployment insurance and everybody's friend, Doug Abbott.

Offhand, I can't remember how many months I've been working. It's been about three years; let's let it go at that. That would put me in the $600 a year bracket.

All that time I've been in the newspaper business and nobody, least of all any of the U.S. politicians, has offered me money to do something for them. A lot of people have approached me and asked me to keep their name off of the paper, but nobody's come through with a cash offer yet.

Do I look incorruptible?

SWAMPED IN DEBT

My debts are the sorrow of my life. Right now I owe one of my fellow-reporters 27 cents. I forget what the 26 cents was for, but the cent was for a book of matches.

I've got a chattel mortgage on my fly rod and three payments to make on my landing net. With the $1.39 owing on the fly rod, and these three payments of seven cents each on the net my family has a pretty shaky time ahead of it.

Besides all that, I owe the corner grocery 39 cents for candles, 17 cents for kerosene, and 11 more for the bar of soap I bought last November.

In a worn old cotton sock—cotton so the moths won't eat it—my wife and I have saved 47 cents, two Second World War meat tokens, and a rain check from a lacrosse game. In my wallet are three bills, all unpaid, seven moths, and two telephone numbers on a piece of paper. Worst of all, I don't know whose numbers they are.

Unlike Senator Nixon, the Republican vice-presidential candidate, we have no dog. We had one, but gave it away when we began to look at it hungrily.

I do own a typewriter, but there's no ribbon for it, and I have to fill in the letters with pencil to keep up appearances.

I see by the paper where good old Doug Abbott thinks taxes might be lower next year. That will be Canadian election year, and I'll probably have to do this all over again to account for my improved financial condition (if taxes are cut).

(Editor's Note: Mr. English is fond of exaggeration and has done it again here. He really makes $17.25 a month.)

Selection Of Good Builder, Important For New Home

The selection of your builder is an important step in the process of becoming a home owner. Take the time to find a man or firm with a sound reputation.

With the right builder your headaches are at a minimum. Everything will move smoothly till the happy days when you are handed the keys to your new home.

There are several ways to choose a reputable, responsible, experienced builder:

1. Your banker or mortgage lending institution usually will have a good idea of the calibre of the work done by local builders.

2. If your city has a local association of home builders you can call their offices and inquire about member builders.

3. Lumber yards and material dealers know the relative merits of a community's builders. If you can get one to talk about his customers, you will find a mine of information.

4. The best check of all is a number of satisfied customers for whom a builder has erected houses that have stood the test of years of useful life with low maintenance and repair costs.

SEE WHAT WORK DONE

Visit projects erected by the builder. Talk with people for whom he has built. New owners are inclined to be critical of their builder, so kind words and apparent satisfaction speak volumes.

Seek a building firm which has an abundance of good, modern equipment, of mechanical tools that are time and labor-savers. The care a builder gives to materials delivered to the job site and waiting for use tells much. Window frames and sash, interior doors and kiln-dried lumber for trim should be stored under a roof.

Timbers and rough lumber should be stacked carefully to avoid warping that inevitably results if it is left as it falls when carelessly tossed off a truck.

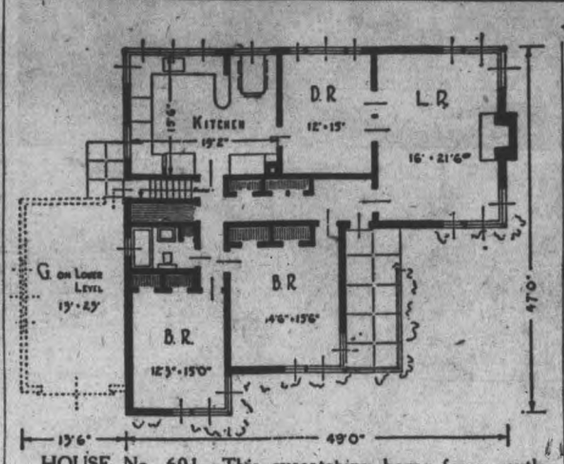
EXERCISE CARE

You will have a close relationship with your builder for months. Exercise the same care in getting along with him that you use in your regular business dealings. The following pointers will help:

1. Don't expect more from him than your agreement calls for. You have the same right to expect him to carry his agreement to the letter that he has to look to you for the agreed payments—that, and nothing more.

2. Assume that he is honest and capable, until proved otherwise.

3. Don't expect the same progress on the work in bad weather as in good. Delays cost the builder money. He is undoubtedly as anxious to finish your home and move on to his next job as you are to move into the new home.



4. Reduce all extras (outside the scope of the original plans) to writing, and clear them with the builder or his sales agent.

5. Never complain, or attempt to issue instructions, to the builder's workmen or sub-contractors. They recognize only one boss, the builder, even though in the last analysis you are footing the bills.

6. If you insist on making inspections, make them after working hours. By all means avoid interference with the work by too frequently conducting the whole family and a host of friends on sight-seeing tours during the working day.

While the building operation may be a great edventure packed with emotional thrills for you, try to remember that it is routine, bread-and-butter business to the builders.

HOUSE No. 601—This eyecatching home faces southwest on a corner lot 65' x 142'. Outside walls are light green cedar shakes, double-coursed to produce deep shadow lines. Roof is of mauve cedar shingles, porch and chimneys are red, trim is white. On the ground floor are five well-planned rooms, with ample closet space. In the full-sized basement there is a large rumpus room with snack bar. House is oil heated and air conditioned. For further information write Home Building in Canada, 372 Bay St., Toronto.

Pair Fined $840

WELLAND (CP) — A woman and her son today were ordered to pay $840 in fines and costs for having liquor illegally. Police said they seized 120 bottles of beer and two part bottles of whisky in a raid Oct. 5 on the home of Mrs. Anna House and her son William.

Reeve Denies Figures Untrue

WINDSOR — (CP) — Barry E. Atkinson, reeve of Sandwich East and president of the Ontario Association of Mayors and Reeves, last night replied to Premier Frost's charges that municipalities are misrepresenting their financial positions to gain additional provincial aid.

The reeve said it was the province's own figures which are used in the association's submission.

Mr. Atkinson said: "The statistics contained in our brief to the provincial-municipal relations committee last January were taken from the annual report of the department of municipal affairs. The figures regarding the amount of grants which the province purported are of assistance to municipalities were taken from the provincial treasurer's (Mr. Frost) statement to the legislature in presenting the provincial budget."

National Ballet Touring Canada

TORONTO (CP)—The 41 members of the National Ballet Company left Toronto last night on the first stage of a country-wide tour that will bring ballet to many Canadians for the first time. When they finish their last performance they will be the first to have made a coast-to-coast tour on a professional basis.

The first stop will be Calgary.

Before the company left, it was announced that Z.R.B. Lash, Toronto lawyer, has been elected president of the National Ballet Guild.

Cobourg Man Named League Vice-President

TORONTO (CP)—The National Council of the Navy League of Canada yesterday recommended that a party of not less than one officer and 12 sea cadets visit Britain next year for the coronation. The recommendation followed an invitation from the British League to send a group.

Officers elected included: President, C.K. McLeod, Montreal; and J.G. Dunlop, Cobourg, a vice-president.

Textile Workers Call Off Walkout

HAWKESBURY (CP) — Striking workers of the St. Lawrence Textile Company mills here Friday called off a two-day-old walkout and returned to their jobs.

The decision to return was taken at a mass meeting of the 70 striking members of the Textile Workers Union (T.L.C.), this morning after management assurances that contract negotiations would be reopened.

The 70 employees struck Wednesday and threw up picket lines around the mills following a breakdown of negotiations. About 30 employees of the plant crossed the picket lines and continued at their jobs.

The union seeks a wage increase, four paid holidays a year, double time for holiday work and other concessions.

Ike Prepared To Go To Korea

DETROIT (AP)—General Dwight D. Eisenhower pledged last night that he will go to Korea himself in an effort to end the war if he is elected president.

The Republican presidential candidate, in a speech prepared for delivery in Detroit, said one of the first jobs of a new administration must be to bring a close to the conflict that has been raging since June of 1950. And he declared:

"That job requires a personal trip to Korea. I shall make that trip. Only in that way could I learn how best to serve the American people in the cause of peace."

Eisenhower placed full responsibility for the war on the Truman administration. He said—without naming either the president or State Secretary Dean Acheson—that they ignored repeated warnings and that they assured inquiring senators that the South Koreans could defend themselves alone.

Charges Plant Provoked Strike

OSHAWA (CP) — M.J. Fenwick, international representative of the United Steel Workers of America, last night said the strike of 200 employees at a Pembroke steel plant was provoked by the Steel Equipment Company of Canada.

He said in a statement the company provoked the strike by a letter to the union saying it will not make its offer of a wage increase of 10 cents an hour retroactive to July 1, the date the previous contract between company and union expired.

Mr. Fenwick said he questions the propriety of a statement by J.H. Stitt of Ottawa, chairman of the conciliation board, that the strike is illegal.

Army Announces Yule Mail Deadlines

OTTAWA (CP)—Warning from the army: It's almost time to send Christmas parcels and mail to soldiers and airmen overseas.

Parcels and ordinary letters to troops in Japan and Korea must be posted to reach Vancouver not later than Nov. 7. Airmail must arrive in Vancouver by Dec. 5.

Parcels for troops in Britain and Europe must be posted to reach Montreal not later than Nov. 25. Ordinary letters must reach Montreal by Nov. 27. The deadline for airmail is Dec. 14 at Montreal.

Weight limit on parcels to the far east and Europe is 10 pounds by parcel post and four pounds, six ounces by airmail. A customs declaration form should be completed and attached to all parcel post.

Student Group Discusses U.N.

A senior group, under the auspices of the Student Council, Friday, conducted a discussion of U.N. activities before the assembled classes in St. Peter's auditorium.

President Jack Richardson acted as leader of the discussion group. Jim Feeley started things going with a brief review of the organization of the U.N. Jim Clarke summed up the achievements of the U.N. since its inauguration.

Such matters as the Kashmir crisis, the South African race problem, the Palestine Arab issue were talked over by Teresa Gordon, Peter Ferren and Betty Szammers. Maps and U.N. posters formed a background for the discussion group.

Early in the week the Religious Committee, an intermediate group of the Student Council, presented an interesting program dealing with the film "Miracle of Fatima."

MORE PLANT WORKERS

At March 1 Canada had 3,638,000 workers engaged in non-agricultural industries, compared with 2,560,000 one year previously.

Frost Expects Gas To Come From Alberta

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Frost indicated last night that he expects Alberta natural gas to enter Ontario and Quebec.

In an address to a dinner of the Toronto Stock Exchange, Mr Frost said in part:

"We are on the threshold of many new developments, such as the St. Lawrence seaway and power project, and the pipeline which will bring the natural gas of Alberta to the Ontario and Quebec markets."

Sale of Alberta natural gas in the east has been under discussion for some time, but no decisions have yet been announced.

New Paint Can Beautify The Basement

Activities of home handymen will be pretty much of the indoor variety during the winter months ahead, so their attention will naturally turn to painting and decorating that was put off during the more inviting outdoor seasons.

Recreation rooms in basements may draw some of the attention, but here and there a home owner will take a look at his soaking wet basement walls and back away muttering something about reading a good book.

There are several answers to this wet-wall condition. One of them, according to its Cleveland, O., manufacturer is a one-coat, oil-base masonry paint that makes it possible "to seal and beautify masonry surfaces with one application."

This new paint may be applied above and below grade, exterior and interior. It is especially effective in resisting normal "hydrostatic conditions" on interior below-grade walls.

Due to its penetrating oil base and adhesive qualities, this sealer may be applied to damp surfaces as well as dry ones and will effectively cover rust stains and discolorations.

It seals rough-textured walls to give a smooth appearance and is resistant to lime, alkali, salt, mold and fungus, the manufacturer states.

The new paint contains an extremely fine grit that binds it to all types of masonry surfaces. Due to the process of manufacturing the grit stays in complete suspension out...

A ONE-COAT, oil-base masonry paint seals and beautifies basement walls. Fine grit in suspension makes it cling to the masonry.

base paint, it won't sag or run and may be brushed out like conventional paints.

The outstanding advantage of this product, says the maker, is its ease of application, direct from the can. It may be applied with equally good results to new or old surfaces previously treated with water-cement-type paints.

It requires no sizing. To prepare surfaces for the paint, simply brush loose flakes and particles of old paint off the walls.

The sealer may be spray applied, although it is packaged in the proper consistency for brush application. One gallon should cover 100 to 250 sq. ft. of wall area, depending upon the porosity and surface irregularities.

For spray application the paint may be thinnned and applied according to standard practices. It dries in from four to six hours.

The paint is available in seven pastel colors that resist fading. It is recommended for application to cinder blocks, cement blocks, brick, stucco, tile, asbestos siding and poured concrete forms, comes packaged in one- to 55-gallon quantities.

One more point of interest to the wintertime handyman is that this sealer may be applied the year round, because, the manufacturer claims, it remains unaffected by temperature extremes.

In the Victoria, Haliburton, Durham area Canadian Arsenals of Lindsay employees have subscribed $51,700, Horns Bros., Lindsay, $5,650; National Textiles, Lindsay, $7,650; Nicholson File, Port Hope, $15,700, and J. Anderson Smith, Newcastle, $10,700.

Mayor Garnet Coulter Assured Of 6th Term

WINNIPEG (CP)—Mayor Garnet Coulter was assured of his sixth two-year term last night when transferring of votes under the city's system of preferential balloting was completed in ward two.

The 70-year-old mayor had 34,963 first and second choice votes in wards one and two. His 8,124 first choice ballots in ward three gave him a total of 43,087 votes.

Stephen Juba, the only candidate besides Mayor Coulter remaining in the race, held no chance of reducing the lead.

THE TRIM MOTORSHIP Adolf Leonhardt, Germany's largest dry cargo ship afloat, will make port history over the weekend when she sails for Hamburg with what is reported to be the largest grain cargo ever carried from Montreal harbor. The freighter is loading more than 750,000 bushels of grain, larger by many thousand bushels than any ever taken from the metropolis. The trip is the first for Capt. J. Wiese and his 37 man crew, all of whom have been with the ship since she left a German shipyard in 1950. She'll make one more trip here before the close of the season but Capt. Wiese expects to make Montreal one of his frequent ports of call next season.

Declare City Sold Red Maples

TORONTO (CP)—The firm which supplied those University Avenue maples—the ones which turned a dirty yellow brown, not a brilliant red—said last night that they sold the city red maples, although they were not "acer rubrum" as specified in the order.

Holland Bulb Gardens said that what it did sell to the city was "acer cappidocicum rubrum," which the nursery firm considered more suitable.

The 145 small trees planted along the wide thoroughfare caused a fuss when they didn't turn a brilliant red.

The nursery said in a letter to a newspaper (The Globe and Mail) they considered they "fulfilled the order," adding "the coloring is not in our hands, as this depends entirely on soil, etc."

UN Official Admits Serving Red Underground Ring

NEW YORK (AP)—The publications chief of the United Nations finally admitted yesterday that he served a Red underground ring in 1936, but insisted he never joined the Communist party.

David Zablodowsky, American-born U.N. publications director, first was branded a Red in 1945, but at the time he denied he ever was a Communist or "Communist link of any sort."

Thursday Whittaker Chambers fingered him as a pre-war underground aide and 24 hours later Zablodowsky admitted as much to a U.S. Senate internal security subcommittee, probing subversives in the U.N.

Shortly after Zablodowsky's admission, Senator James O. Eastland (Dem. Miss), acting chairman of the sub-committee, loosed a blast against the U.N. and demanded that the U.S. Congress cleanse it of American Reds.

EASTLAND APPALLED

Eastland said he was appalled at "extensive evidence indicating there is today in the United Nations among the American employees there the greatest concentration of Communists that this committee has ever encountered."

Of Trygve Lie, the U.N.'s general secretary and U.N. plans for an independent study of the charges, Eastland said:

"I am disappointed at the position taken by Mr. Lie in the light of this record, to give these people leave with pay—in effect a paid vacation—while an international body determines the merits of this case.

"Let me make this crystal-clear. No international body will be permitted to deprive or circumvent the United States government in the control of its own citizens. . ."

Lie denounced what he called an unbridled attack by Senator Eastland on the United Nations and said "lynch law" would never spread to the U.N.

SHOCKED AT STATEMENT

Lie said he was "shocked" at Eastland's statement and did not believe he spoke for the government or even for the Senate.

Lie's reply, made in a formal statement, was the strongest blast the U.N. chief executive ever directed at an official of any member government in the U.N.

Lie said:

"I believe. . . that the overwhelming mass of the 2,000 Americans employed in the United Nations secretariat are loyal American citizens and above reproach. But I repeat that I do not want in the secretariat even one American who is disloyal to his country. I am taking such orderly and legal measures as are available to me to deal with the situation effectively and judiciously, without resort to lynch-law and smear."

Still no trace along the road of the missing bag. Meanwhile, there had arrived at the sheds of the Morgan House in Warsaw a farmer of the district who called upon the Postmaster, Arthur F. Choate (the writer's father) intimating that he had found a mailbag, which he would produce on receipt of $5.

The spirit of the Postal Service flared quickly and in a moment the importunate blackmailer was on the receiving end of a stinging reminder of the severe penalties attaching to the tampering with Her Majesty's Mail, which ended with the laying down of a time limit for production of the bag. If the demand was P.D.Q., so likewise was the response of the farmer who produced the missing bag from beneath the blankets in his sleigh.

NEW ROUTES

In the seventies when the courier service to the Hall's Glen and Stony Lake post offices was established, the trips were first made each Monday. Later they were on Wednesdays and Saturdays. The computed distance to Stony Lake (Clarina) near Crowe's Landing, was twelve miles. The Hall's Glen office was at the site of the present store of Jack Morgan about a mile from McCracken's Landing. James Robb, postmaster at Stony Lake and later reeve of Dummer, was a courier in the early days.

Among the drivers of the Warsaw-Peterborough stage in the course of the 110 years were the following, in chronological order:

William C. Gordanier, Charles Payne, Richard Deen, Patrick Kennedy, Donald McIntosh, Joseph Crowe, Ernest Carveth, Adolph Crapp, Herbert Richmond, William Bell, Charles Storms, Fred Sharpe and Elias Thompson (record service of 23 years). All these were of Warsaw. The present driver is L. Blackwell, who, living in Peterborough, has reversed the direction of travel.

Drivers of the Warsaw-Stony Lake stage have included: James Robb, Edward McIlvena, Sr., David Madill (postmaster at Hall's Glen) and Colonel Merithew, a U.S. Civil War veteran.

After the establishment of Rural Mail Delivery the North Dummer offices were closed. R.R. No. 1 Warsaw was inaugurated about 1912 with Joseph Crowe as courier and R.R. No. 2 Warsaw about 1914 with Arthur Payne as courier.

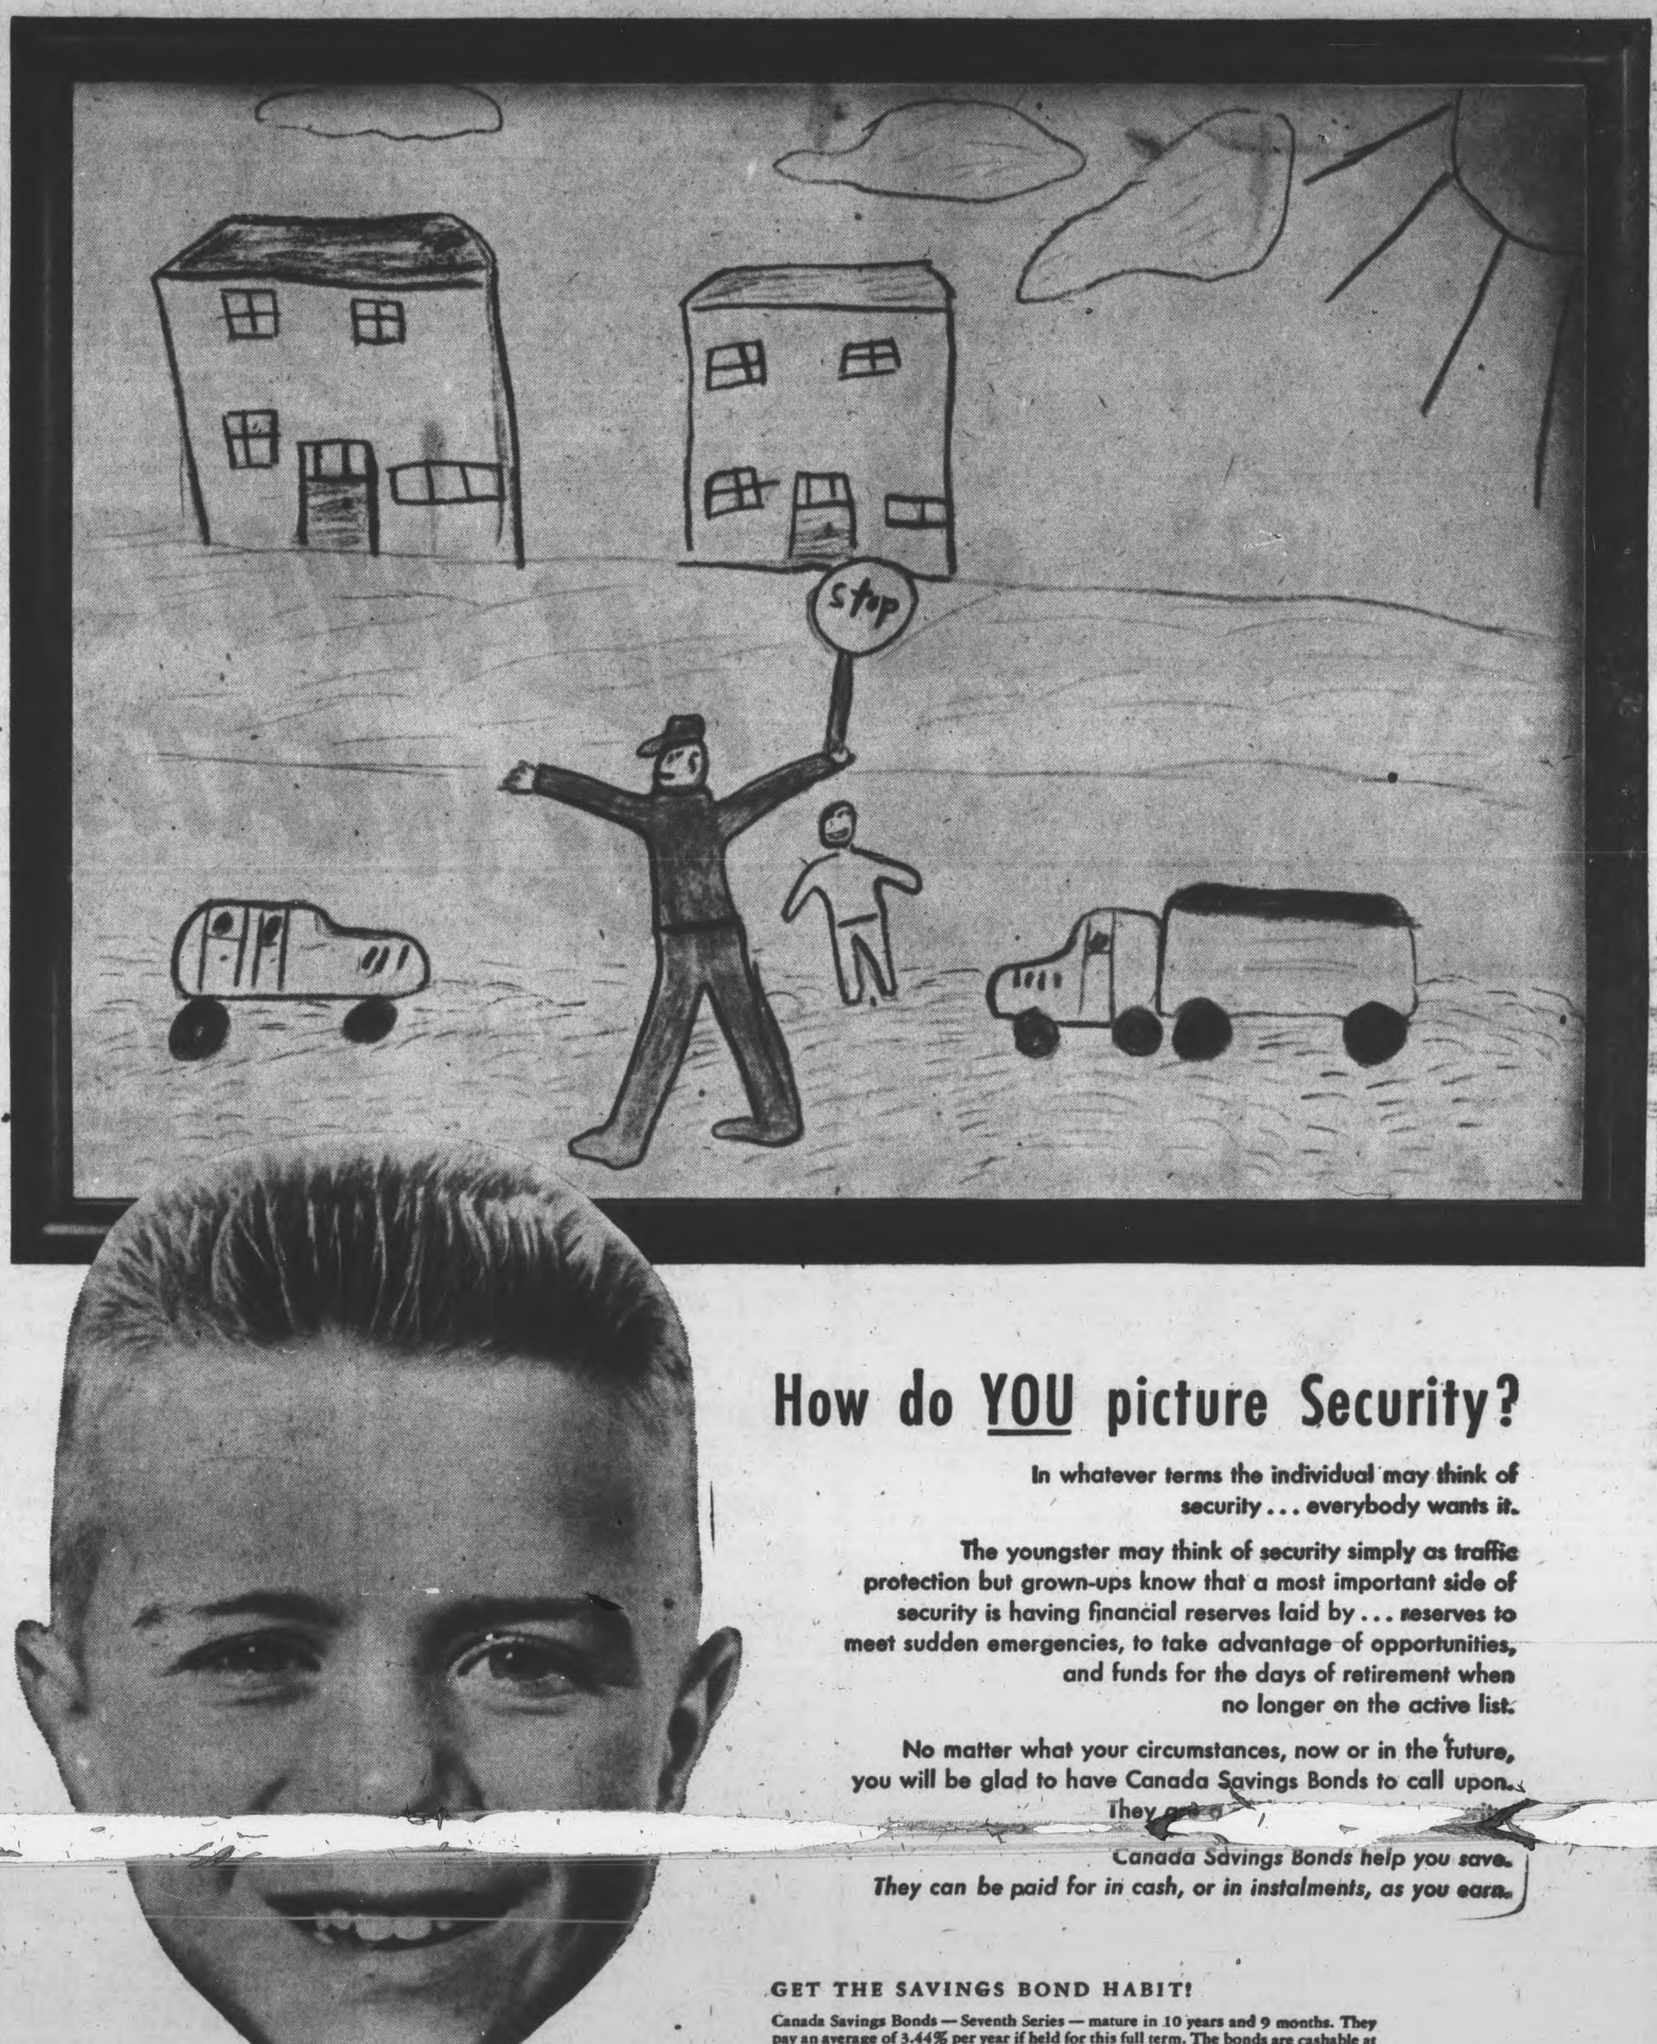
Great Future Awaits Canada Toronto Exchange Told

TORONTO (CP)—The Toronto Stock Exchange, celebrating its 100th anniversary, was told [illegible] likely be recorded "as merely the opening in the life of a great Canadian institution."

The prediction came from G. Keith Funston, president of the New York Stock Exchange, addressing a dinner given by the exchange to more than 600 business, financial and public men.

J.R. Braithwaite, chairman of the London Stock Exchange, described Canada as "probably the greatest land of opportunity left upon the earth."

CANADA BIG EXPORTER



Premier Frost, the guest speaker, commenting on the large amounts of foreign capital invested in Canada, said Canada is also a big exporter of capital.

"In the last 12 years our investments in foreign enterprises have increased by about $4,000,000,000—so that we have exported a somewhat greater amount of capital than we have imported. We are pulling our weight in the world of today."

He said: "Perhaps we Canadians had better rediscover Britain and the Commonwealth. We should never sell the old British Commonwealth or the old British Empire short. They still are a potent factor in this world."

DOUGLAS LLOYD

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd of 104 Warren Ave., Oshawa, is 9 years of age and in grade 4 of Centre Street School at Oshawa. He belongs to the 7th B Cub Pack and his hobby is making model airplanes. Already he had definite ideas of what "Security" means to him at his age, as expressed in his drawing above.

How do YOU picture Security?

In whatever terms the individual may think of security . . . everybody wants it.

The youngster may think of security simply as traffic protection but grown-ups know that a most important side of security is having financial reserves laid by . . . reserves to meet sudden emergencies, to take advantage of opportunities, and funds for the days of retirement when no longer on the active list.

No matter what your circumstances, now or in the future, you will be glad to have Canada Savings Bonds to call upon. They can be paid for in cash, or in instalments, as you earn.

Canada Savings Bonds help you save.

GET THE SAVINGS BOND HABIT!

Canada Savings Bonds — Seventh Series — mature in 10 years and 9 months. They pay an average of 3.44% per year if held for this full term. The bonds are cashable at full face value plus interest at any time at any bank in Canada. Each bond bears ten 3¾% coupons — the first of these being payable on August 1st, 1954 (1 year and 9 months from date of issue). Subsequent coupons become payable August 1st yearly thereafter until maturity. If the bond is cashed before the first coupon becomes payable simple interest is paid at 2.14% per year calculated monthly. The average return per year gradually improves the longer the bond is held until it reaches 3.44% at maturity. The Seventh Series is available in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1000 and $5000 and the limit for holdings in any one name is $5000. The bonds are registered in the owner's name. They are non-assignable and non-transferable. They may be purchased from investment dealers, banks and other savings institutions or through the Payroll Savings Plan.

A DEJECTED SEXTET of Montrealers left Provincial Police cells in Montreal to appear in a St. Jerome courtroom, charged with receiving stolen bonds, in connection with the safety-deposit box robbery at the Banque Provincial in the Laurentian town last November 4. The six photographed above are charged with receiving the stolen bonds. Police are still looking for those who actually pried open the bank safety-deposit boxes and made off with bonds valued from $500,000 to $1,000,000.

Casualty List Reports 3 Dead Eight Wounded

OTTAWA (CP)—The army yesterday issued its 147th casualty list of the Korean War, reporting three men killed in action and eight wounded, one for the second time.

The army has been issuing casualty lists almost daily in the last week, reflecting the heavy fighting Canadian troops are believed facing because of sharp Communist attacks.

Since Oct. 16, the army has issued six lists, reporting 11 dead, 51 wounded and six missing.

The latest casualty list brings to 1,138 the number of casualties suffered by Canadian troops in Korean action. These include 208 dead, 840 wounded 75 injured, 14 missing and one captured.

The navy has reported three dead and three injured. The R.C.A.F. has suffered no casualties. Apart from a handful of exchange pilots serving with the United States air force, the air force has not been directly involved in Korean action.

The latest list included these Ontario names:

KILLED IN ACTION

Hackett, James Caswell. Pte.; R.C.R.; Mrs. James Brydges (mother), Ridgetown, Ont.

WOUNDED IN ACTION

Caswell, Kenneth Royden, Pte., R.C.R.; Mrs. Mildred Caswell (mother), Box 238, Durham, Ont.

Stewart, Norman Edward, Pte., Woodstock, R.C.R.; Mrs. Lucy Ellen Stewart (mother), 108 Shakespeare St., Stratford.

Chinese Communists Have Healthy Respect For Little Gibraltar

(Editor's Note: For almost a year, a rocky hill, nicknamed "Little Gibraltar," has been named frequently in dispatches from the Korean battleground. Less frequently, Canadian troops have been located in the vicinity of an unidentified "Hill 355." In this story Bill Boss, Canadian Press staff writer with the Canadian forces, discloses that Little Gibraltar and Hill 355 are the same crest.)

By BILL BOSS

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA (CP)—The Chinese Communists have a healthy respect for Little Gibraltar which dominates a section of the United Nations front in western Korea.

It is a massive crest where the 2nd Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment, held a spur for five days of non-stop hostilities last November until other U.N. troops could regain the main height.

The Chinese recently stormed Little Gibraltar again but were driven from its peak after seven hours.

When the Royal 22nd action occurred I could name the hill only by its height in metres as shown on army maps—Hill 355.

The 1st Commonwealth Division and Little Gibraltar have been linked in news reports since the division was formed.

PLAYED WILY GAME

Until their recent action the Chinese played a wily game—as did the 1st Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment which then held the hill.

"Our fighting patrols went out in all directions but did not find them," said Lt.-Col. Peter Bingham, R.C.R. commander.

To capture a prisoner last Sept. 24—the first taken by the Canadians since they returned to the line in mid-August from summer reserve—the R.C.R. had to send out two patrols. One "laid up" in enemy territory for 48 hours to learn the Reds' habits, the other effected the capture. Lieut. Russ Gardiner of Carleton Place, Ont., led both.

Through the autumn, the R.C.R. fought a cautious war. Action usually was at night. Daylight activity was confined to artillery exchanges and a keen look-out from observation posts.

FIRE WITHHELD

Chinese night patrols, probing R.C.R. defences, got no answering fire. They got grenades instead, because grenades don't betray weapon positions.

Bingham forbade his men to fire rifles or machine-guns at night unless they had a man clearly in their sights.

Once the Communists raided and almost surrounded an outpost commanded by Cpl. Gordon A Auger of St. Catharines. That time the R.C.R. had to reply. ger fought it out without casualties.

Hill 355, with its Gibraltar-like crest, attracted the Chinese fancy as a conspicuous target. The area consequently got a daily autumn raking-over.

3 Canadians Receive Honorary Degrees

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A.R. Ford, chancellor of the University of Western Ontario, yesterday conferred degrees and diplomas on 151 honorary graduates, graduate and undergraduate students.

At the convocation the university conferred honorary degrees on three Canadians, a novelist, a historian and an educationist.

The honorary degree of doctor of letters was received by Hugh MacLennan, distinguished novelist. The degree of doctor of laws was conferred on historian Louis Blake Duff and Leonard Whealton, former superintendent of Windsor schools. The three candidates were presented to the chancellor by Dr. G.E. Hall, university president and vice-chancellor.

Dr. Duff was convocation speaker.

Dr. Hall in his citation of Dr. Duff and Leonard Wheelton, forzen's prowess as a lecturer, historian, newspaperman and publisher, author, humorist, bibliophile and athlete.

"A GREAT CANADIAN"

"In fact, Louis Blake Duff has been called a lot of things—but all relative to his status as a great Canadian. And it is this composite man to whom the university wishes to pay tribute—a true scholar, an eminent historian, a dignified compatriot, an inimitable humorist and a solid citizen of this country."

Presenting Dr. MacLennan, Dr. Hall said Canada's standards are world standards in the field of literature—"standards which accept Canada as a recognizable background for good fiction."

"Recognized, perhaps, as a greater writer by the people of the United States than yet by the people of Canada, Mr. MacLennan has brought realism into Canadian writing; he is giving articulation to Canada."

In his citation of Dr. Wheelton Dr. Hall traced the educationist's background through a "vivid picture of education in Northern Ontario at the turn of the century," to Ontario Normal School, and back to teaching again.

Dr. Wheelton, Dr. Hall said, by his repeated terms as student—in normal school and university—and teacher throughout the province, is "a lesson in determination and [illegible] purpose."

To Contest Mayoralty

OTTAWA (CP)—Mayor Charlotte Whitton, spectacular and controversial figure in Ottawa's municipal forum, yesterday threw her bonnet into the mayoralty ring. With little more than one month to go before the biennial civic elections Dec. 1, Miss Whitton announced her decision to run for mayor against a still-uncertain field of men.

Rumor 3 Atom Bombs Stored In Morocco

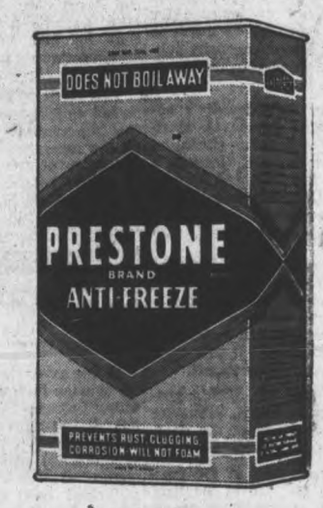
MADRID, Spain (Reuters)—Mrs. Ann Davison, attractive British widow attempting to sail across the Atlantic alone, yesterday reached Las Palmas in the Canary Islands after a month in which her yacht Felicity Ann had not been heard from. Mrs. Davison set out Sept. 23 from Casablanca, on the French Morocco coast 700 miles from Las Palmas.



Money For 'Copters

WASHINGTON (AP) — Industry and pentagon sources said yesterday the army has asked for a record-breaking $200,000,000 for the purchase of some 4,000 helicopters during the 1953-54 fiscal year. Budget estimates have not yet been released, but it was learned that the army wants $20,000,000 for development work on helicopters and $180,000,000 for production.

£100 Limit On Bets On U.S. Election

LONDON (AP) — A leading British bet-taker today placed a 100 limit on bets on the United States Presidential election following what he said was a "rush of wagers on Adlai Stevenson."

Douglas Stuart, Ltd., said heavy betting on the Democratic candidate in the last two days had made the odds the same for both candidates — 4 to 5 and take your pick.

Before yesterday, a company spokesman said, Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower was odds-on 4-to-5 favorite.

The spokesman would not give the total amount of money bet on Stevenson in the last two days, but said it ran into "thousands of pounds."

Dalhousie Marks Eventful Occasion In N.S.

HALIFAX (CP) — Dalhousie University law school, whose graduates included prime ministers and other notable contributors to Canada's legal and industrial heritage, today marks an eventful occasion by conferring honorary degrees on four Canadians and an American.

For the first time in its 69-year history, Canada's pioneer law school will have a building for its exclusive use on the university's trim, willow-landscaped campus.

The ivy-covered stone building, which it officially takes over today during a 12-hour program of lectures and ceremonies, was formerly shared with arts students but completion of the $1,600,000 arts and administration building gave them a home of their own.

DEGREES FOR FIVE

Receiving honorary degrees of doctor of law are Justice Vincent C. MacDonald of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia; Dean George F. Curtis, University of British Columbia law school; Mr. Justice Ivan Rand of the Supreme Court of Canada, Andre Taschereau, president of the Canadian Bar Association, and Dean Irwin N. Griswold, Harvard University law school.

The school has never been large in terms of enrolment, staff or accommodation. Its achievements are more notable for that reason. Never merely a vocational school, it has stressed fundamental theory and professional responsibility for the development of law as an instrument of social welfare.

It owes its origin to George Munro, a liberal benefactor who gave the university $40,000 for the endowment of a professorship of law. It meant blazing a trail not only in Canada, but the British Commonwealth.

TWO PRIME MINISTERS

Canada's cabinet during the Second World War held several who were either graduates or faculty members. Men like Defence Ministers J.L. Ralston and the late Norman Rogers; Finance Minister J.L. Ilsley, now Chief Justice of Nova Scotia; Transport Minister J.E. Michaud, now Chief Justice of the Queen's Bench, New Brunswick and Naval Minister Angus Macdonald, now Premier of Nova Scotia.

Hydro Project Opened

MONDRAGON, France (AP)—A huge hydro-electric project came officially to life today to pump 2,000,000,000 kilowatt hours of electric power annually into France's power-hungry industries. The project harnesses the Rhone River 50 miles north of where it pours its muddy alpine waters in the Mediterranean. It also provided irrigation for tens of thousands of acres and a 19-mile canal to bypass a rough stretch of river. It cost $225,000,000.

Not Much Interested

WASHINGTON (AP) — United States soldiers in Korea talk politics, but as a topic of conversation it ranks a poor fourth behind "home, girls, and gooks (Chinese Communists)." That was brought out yesterday in an interview with a newly-arrived group of wounded veterans. By far the most popular topic among combat men is "home and everything that goes with it," said one officer.

Collaborators In Jail

PARIS (AP) — Leon Martinaud-Deplat, minister of justice, told the French National Assembly yesterday that 1,295 men and 275 women are in prison for collaboration with the enemy during the last war. In March, 1946, prisons held 29,401 persons accused of collaboration. The assembly is debating a general amnesty bill.

Donations Of Blood Keep War Deaths At New Low

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.

Millions of people either during the last world war or since then have contributed their blood through the Red Cross blood program. But millions of others have held back either because they thought the need was not real or because they feared they themselves would be harmed by contributing.

First, I should like to say something about the need. Few people have to be told now that blood saves lives among those injured in warfare.

Many casualties in Korea have needed much more than the single pint of blood given at one time by a donor. But thousands are back in full health who would not have survived without blood transfusions.

Indeed, this is one of the principal reasons for the new record low death rate among men wounded in war.

But this is not all. The use of blood in the civilian population is of enormous importance. Blood is literally life-giving in many human diseases, and after many injuries or accidents. The fact that it is immediately available when needed has helped thousands of men, women and children utterly unconnected with the fighting front.

It is essential, too, that we have a good stockpile of blood in event of emergencies. If an atom bomb should fall, it might leave many thousands of people injured, and for them blood and its products would be the greatest single life-saving medicine. Much as we should like to, we cannot shut our eyes to this terrifying possibility.

NOTHING TO FEAR

This gives an idea of the need for blood.

From the standpoint of the person who gives blood, there is nothing to fear. The prospective donor is tested before the blood is taken and if there is any disease present or any abnormality which makes it inadvisable to take it, he or she is passed over.

But for the normal person, giving blood is safe and easy, painless and harmless. It can be given three to five times a year, and when one considers the enormous benefit which this blood provides, such donations seem little enough to give.

Seeking Sadist In Kidnapping

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police today sought a sadist accused by a pretty 17-year-old co-ed of kidnapping and raping her, and then abandoning her in a restroom in downtown Pershing Square.

Joan Leila Burris apparently had been drugged, police said, and "X"-marks had been scratched on her body, probably with a piece of glass.

Miss Burris said she was kidnapped Thursday and taken to a hotel. After blacking out a couple of times, Miss Burris was found half-clad and semi-conscious in the restroom yesterday. She said her assailant had "put out cigarettes on my stomach."

A physical examination disclosed she had been raped, police said.

Requests New Trial

BALTIMORE (AP)—George Edward Grammer yesterday filed a motion for a new trial, pleading he was illegally convicted of first-degree murder Thursday for killing his wife so he could marry a pretty Canadian girl, Mathilda Mizibrocky whose family lives in Hamilton. She is a United Nations secretary in New York. The 35-year-old New York office manager faces hanging or life imprisonment.

Flames Fed By Oil Damage Trenton Home

TRENTON.—Flames fed by fuel oil and fanned by a stiff breeze partially destroyed the stucco home of J. Creighton Friday afternoon. Extensize damage was done to the interior of the house. Mr. Creighton, his wife and two children, Catharine, 13, and Danny 3, were not at home when the blaze started.

Herman Luymes, who was repairing the roof of the Creighton house before the outbreak, said he saw smoke coming from a shed in which fuel oil for the stove was stored. He investigated and found that some kindling wood had caught fire. He grabbed a pail of water and vainly attempted to extinguish the flames.

He gave the alarm, but one wall and the roof were blazing before the Trenton Fire Department, under the command of Fire Chief H. Filion, arrived. Oil leaked from the drums in the shed as the bungs in the barrels were blown out by intense heat.

After an hour-long battle, the blaze was controlled but the roof and one wooden wall of the house were destroyed.

Duce's Granddaughter Weds A Napoleon

ROME (Reuters) — Mussolini's 18-year-old granddaughter, Raimonda Ciano, today married a distant relative of Napoleon in an ancient church attached to the pal[illegible] tator ruled Italy for 20 years.

Raimonda is the daughter of Edda Mussolini, the widow of Count Galeazzo Ciano. Mussolini had Ciano shot for treason in the last days of the Fascist regime.

The bridegroom, 23-year-old Sandro Giunta, is the son of a former Fascist party secretary. His mother, Marchioness Zenaide Rocca-Giovine del Gallo, is a descendant of Luciano Bonaparte, one of Napoleon's brothers.

Atom Age Great, Helps Officer Find Wallet

AURORA, Ill. (AP)—The atomic age, says Richard Francis Fitzsimmons Jr., is a wonderful thing.

Fitzsimmons, a navy chief petty officer, poured the concrete for his sidewalk earlier this week. When the concrete dried, he discovered his wallet with $5 was missing.

In the pre-atomic age his choice would have been: chop up the new sidewalk or forget about the wallet.

But Fitzsimmons remembered that a small radioactive disc, given him while he was attending a radiological defence school, was in his wallet.

Yesterday, the young man borrowed a geiger counter, passed it over his sidewalk and got some rewarding ticks on the instrument.

He ripped up a small section of sidewalk giving off the loudest radioactive clatter and there was his wallet.

Charles Wants Fight A Month After Triumph Over Brion

NEW YORK (AP)—A busy, fight-a-month campaign was mapped out today for Ezzard Charles following the former heavyweight champion's decisive triumph last night over game Cesar Brion of Argentina.

Determined to fight his way into another title shot, Ezzy will come back late next month against either Jimmy Bivins, Brion or "anyone else we can get."

The last quote came from co-manager Tom Tannas.

"We've got offers to put Ezzy in next month against Bivins in St. Louis, Chicago, Detroit, Cincinnati and San Francisco," said Tannas. "If not Bivins, we'd like to get Danny Buccerone, Rex Layne, Harry Matthews or anyone else that will move Ezzy closer to a title shot."

CHARLES DISAPPOINTED

Charles was disappointed that he didn't knock out or floor Brion although he handed the husky invader an artistic shellacking. Nobody ever has put the 25-year-old Brion down for keeps. Eight ounce gloves were used for the first time. If six-ouncers were used, Charles might have scored his kayo.

Swinging for a kayo from the opening bell, Charles opened a cut over Brion's left cheekbone in the first round, hurt him with a left-right combination to the head in the same frame, and staggered his 6-2, 196¾ pound rival with a jarring left hook to the jaw in the second.

Brion's best rounds were the third and fourth. He came back in the third and leaned over the 186½-pound Charles, scoring with body blows and light head punches. In the fourth, he forced the pace and brought cheers from the crowd by his unexpected aggressiveness. He was awarded the eighth round by referee Ruby Goldstein when Charles hit low with a left.

Outside of that it was all Charles.

The unanimous verdict had Goldstein scoring it 7-2-1 and Judges Harold Barnes and Joe Agnello voting 7-3 each.

A large number from this community attended the grand opening of Victoria Opera House, Cobourg, on Thursday night.

THE ORPHANAGES OF KOREA are full these days — full of youngsters like these praying over their dinner bowls. But orphanages are only for those under 14, and there are at least 50,000 homeless youth in South Korea.

MISS CORA B. AHRENS who has lectured and given courses across Canada on problems of music teaching, and is author of a series of books on ear-training, will be heard in lecture on Tuesday evening, October 28th, at the Public Library auditorium. Miss Ahrens gave a piano teachers' course in Peterborough several years ago. She is past president of the Ontario Music Teachers' Federation, having lived all her life in Stratford. She has made a broad survey of the literature of piano pedagogy and her lecture should be of great value to parents and music pupils as well as music teachers.

Small Orphanages Help In Life Of Lawlessness

By ELENOR SPALDING

SEOUL, Korea — (NEA)—At Anyang Reformatory, 22 teenaged boys sleep in a single room on blankets on the floor of one of the two stucco cottages.

The only ornament is a picture of a high school graduating class, cut out of a U.S. newspaper—a group of smiling, clean-cut American boys and girls who never knew the degradation of Korea at war.

The reformatory boys themselves put the picture up. They want to be like that when they graduate.

Until now, they have had little chance. Thievery comes as naturally to the homeless boys of Korea as the will to live, for it is part of the struggle to live.

LIFE OF CRIME

Pilfering Army goods, pandering for prostitutes, stealing from other Koreans who cannot afford to lose the little they have, all are ways of eating in a country where the orphanages are full and there are no breadlines.

The number of homeless children in South Korea is estimated at about 50,000. Actually nobody knows, for nobody has counted them. Few of them in Seoul are eligible for relief because they have entered this closed city illegally. Most of them have fled from hunger in refugee areas.

You see them everywhere. There are so many shoe-shine boys in Korea that they split the trade, two boys each shining one boot for a soldier. Then the soldier is apt to find himself surrounded by a half-dozen youngsters all wanting to get paid for the job.

The boys travel in gangs. Otherwise whatever a boy got his hands on would be taken from him by the gang. Getting caught at stealing is one way of getting fed for a few days. Then what? Most are released to do it again or go hungry.

* * *

After more than 15 months of relative stability on the fighting front, only isolated efforts are being made to save uprooted youth from complete degradation.

ROUNDED UP BOYS

In Seoul, where facilities are more adequate than elsewhere, because the population is limited, an effort was made to round up all boys under 14 and put them in orphanages. Many of them would not stay.

These are boys under 14. Boys over 14 in Korea are supposed to know how to take care of themselves. When they slip, they are apt to be thrown into jail with hardened criminals.

* * *

In Seoul, UNCAK has helped establish a Juvenile Court. Now, with the help of Maj. Stanley S. Slick, UNCACK public safety officer, the Anyang Reformatory has been reopened for the first time since July, 1950, when the superintendent told his boys to scatter as the Communists approached.

Anyang, about 15 miles southeast of Seoul, consists of two stucco cottages with two bare rooms in each. The one thing the boys want most is a pump for the cistern. Without it, they have to carry all their water up the hill.

SEPARATED FROM FAMILY

One boy, 17, told of coming down from North Korea with his family. He and his mother were separated from his father and brother, whom they never saw again. The boy stayed with his mother in a refugee area until hunger drove him to sneak into Seoul. He was caught stealing candy.

Another told a heart-rending tale of his fall from good standing. He described, with great pride, his mother, who ran a boarding house for policemen, and his sister, who was engaged to an American soldier. Unhappily, there was no reason to believe any part of his story. He was listed on the records as an orphan.

* * *

A third lad was only 15 but tough.

"I had a job, but they picked me up anyway. They haven't anything on me. I didn't tell them anything," he said.

Kung's job was that of "messenger" for a restaurant. Messengers frequently are used to procure liquor and women. But he was booked on a charge of Communist activity.

"Sometimes they use that when they haven't got anything else against them," Mayor Slick explained.

Besides working, these boys learn to read and write. They also have an art class. Their subjects are most apt to be helicopters, tanks or guns. But they also draw ox carts and roses.

Their mild mannered superintendent An Chong Soon, wants most to teach them self-respect, so they can be like the American boys and girls in the reformatory pin-up picture.

Fairview Girl Captures Oratory Title

NORWOOD (ENS).—Rita Parsons of Fairview, a Smith township school, won first prize in the county final oratorical contest held in the new Norwood District High School Friday night.

A grade eight pupil, Rita spoke on the trip that Smith and North Monaghan pupils took to Ottawa last summer.

Paul O'Brien of Lakefield was awarded second prize. Lakefield Chamber of Commerce was the subject of his speech. He is in Grade 6.

There were eight contestants and June McNevan of Keene, a grade eight pupil, won third prize She spoke on the Village of Keene.

DISTRICT FINALS

In addition to the trophy which she will keep for a year, Rita Parsons was presented with a small replica of the trophy and $15. The second prize winner won a pen and pencil set and $10 and the third prize winner was presented with a pen and pencil set and $5.

Other contestants were John Godfrey of Selwyn who spoke on Winston Churchill; Beverly Alphey of Apsley, speaking on early history of South America; Shirley Jewell of Havelock who talked on A Thrilling Adventure—an imaginary trip to Wyoming; Beverly Rothwell of Norwood, also speaking on British Prime Minister Churchill and Wayne Windover of Buckhorn who chose as his topic, Our Picnic Trip.

The other five competitors each received a silver dollar.

AWARD PRESENTED

The prize winners were presented with their awards by Mrs. Everett Birdsall of Birdsall who was chairman and Mrs. Harry Digweed of Warsaw.

Robertson Davies judged the contestants and before announcing the winners, he commented briefly on each of the speeches. Mr. Davies suggested ways the contestants might improve their speeches and he explained how a speaker should stand when giving a speech.

He said that instead of reciting a memorized account of a subject, oratorical contestants should select topic of which they have some first hand knowledge. Mr. Davies corrected the pronunciation of some words the contestants had mispronounced and suggested that phrases used by some of the speakers should not have been used by speakers of their age, because they had merely memorized them, without being aware of their proper use.

Mrs. William Garden, Jr., sang a solo and was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. J. H. Caskey. Miss Doris Brown entertained with an instrumental number.

THIS ENVELOPE DESIGN, incorporating a photograph of Queen Elizabeth made by Karsh of Ottawa, has been produced by the British Philatelic Association and the Philatelic Traders' Society. The envelopes will be on sale next year, mainly for use on the day coronation stamps are first issued. The portrait is to be in sepia and the frame of gold outlined against purple. The crown will be purple and gold.

Council of Women Fall Tea Held On United Nations Day

A "United Nations Tea" held by the Local Council of Women Friday afternoon was the only public event in the city to mark United Nations Day, October 24th. More than a dozen countries in the United Nations were represented there, either in decorations, flags, or by ladies wearing native costumes.

The tea table centrepiece was of American beauty roses and large, white Japanese 'mums, tied with red, white and blue ribbon, and the tea cloth was of fine Chinese linen with cutwork and embroidery.

Prominent among the flags, placed in standards around the Y.W.C.A. Green Room, was the blue United Nations flag which has a design of the world and symbols of peace in white. Less familiar flags taking their place with the Union Jack and Stars and Stripes were the flags of Israel, New Zealand, Australia and South Africa.

One of the interesting native dresses was that of Bolivia worn by Mrs. Edgar Woodcock who also displayed some extremely odd souvenirs brought home by her daughter who has been doing missionary work in Bolivia for some years. Among these was an Indian fighting helmet, made of strong hide and large enough to protect the entire head and the back of the neck, and an Indian boxing "glove," also made of strong hide with strips criss-crossed at the end to make it a more dangerous weapon. Bolivian handcraft included pottery cups and dishes and an intricately designed sweater knit entirely without pattern.

Mrs. I. G. Pollock wore a costume she had brought from South Africa. Mrs. T. B. Hawkins was in Swedish dress, Mrs. Gordon Rutherford in the garb of the Montang Indians of Labrador, Canada, Mrs. George Rutherford represented India and Mrs. Mackenzie, England.

A very pleasing number of ladies attended the tea, the opening at three o'clock being quite crowded. Mrs. P. Latchford and Mrs. F. R. Samis took registrations and Mrs. J. M. Fanning was treasurer.

They were received by the Council president Mrs. W. C. Steinkrauss, and Mrs. C. C. Pilon, Mrs. W. H. Morton and Mrs. A. W. Nelson.

Tea was poured by Mrs. Hugh Waddell, Mrs. G. K. Fraser, Mrs. H. A. Mitchell, Mrs. S. Moldaver, Miss L. Esplen and Miss Agnes Chalk, in turn.

Mrs. W. F. Connal was convener of the tea and was assisted in the tea room by Mrs. F. M. Somerville, Mrs. Karl Simpson, Mrs. James Dutton, Mrs. R. G. Cottrell, Mrs. H. Tremain and Mrs. A. A. McIntyre as hostesses.

Serving were Mrs. A. Hancock, Mrs. P. C. Sanders, Mrs. G. Hewitt, Mrs. F. L. Edworthy, Mrs. E. Chambers, Mrs. Charles Forsyth, Mrs. George Munro, Mrs. Floyd Curtis, Mrs. Phyllis Kingdon, Mrs. W. T. Fanjoy, Mrs. A. R. McWilliams, Mrs. M. E. Clarke, Mrs. O. J. Hayward, Mrs M. A. Fitzgerald, Mrs. H. Hunter, Mrs. A. Mason and Mrs. M. Holland, representing organizations affiliated with Council. Table replenishing was looked after by Mrs. Cottrell and Mrs. C. Olaveson.

A table of home baking was convened by Mrs. L. M. Richardson and her assistant salesladies were Mrs. Allan Mann, Mrs. F. Turner, Mrs. V. Post and Mrs. W. Crookshank of Bridgenorth.

Margaret Smith Weds T. V. Devolin

MARMORA ENS.—The wedding took place in Christ Church, Belleville, on Wednesday, of Margaret Greta Smith, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James E. Bailey of Marmora township, and Thomas Victor Devolin of Belleville.

The Rev. E. P. Smith officiated. They will live on the groom's farm in Marmora township.

Stephens-Kerr

The marriage of Lillian Lorraine Kerr, Reg. N., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. Kerr, Cobourg, to Russell B. Stephens, Norwood, son of Mrs. Louis Stephens and the late Mr. Stephens, Campbellford, took place recently in Trinity United Church, Cobourg. The Rev. E. C. Kelloway officiated and William Ramsay played wedding music.

The bride wore a navy nylon marquisette dress and white feather hat and corsage of cream roses. Her cousin Mrs. Marie Dayman of Port Hope as matron of honor was dressed in blue lace with a navy feather hat and wore yellow 'mums.

Mr. Alvin Stephens of Port Hope was groomsman for his brother.

Guests from Peterborough, Toronto, North Tonawanda, Brampton, Port Perry, Port Hope, Campbellford, Oshawa and Norwood attended the wedding and reception in the Memorial Hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephens will live in Lindsay.

Junior Choir Given Hallowe'en Party

Members of the Junior Choir of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church and their leaders Gwen Craw and Christopher Gledhill were entertained at a very successful Hallowe'en party on Friday evening. The girls and boys came in various costumes and prior to the dinner a grand march was held. The tables were decorated with white cloths over which was placed orange and black twisted streamers. The centre pieces on each table were pumpkin jack o'lanterns and orange candles. At each place was a bag of candy nicely gotten up in Hallowe'en colors.

After the dinner games and contests were held. The dinner was sponsored by the Ladies' Aid of the church and convened by Mrs. John Buckley. Assisting Mrs. Buckley were Mrs. G. Coleman, Mrs. H. Perry, Mrs. R. Ward, Mrs. W. Caldwell, Mrs. C. Grant, Mrs. G. Minty and Mrs. J. Hornal president of the Ladies' Aid. The thanks of the Junior Choir was ably expressed to Mrs. Hornal and the mothers who assisted by Marjorie Cuffe.

Special Days In Calendar Always Interest Children

By NANCY CLEAVER

"My Mum thinks Hallowe'en is one awful nuisance! She'll be glad when it is over! Tommy said sadly, "What does your Mum say?" John looked horrified at his chum's remarks, and then answered frankly: "Oh, we have fun at our house at Hallowe'en!"

✧ ✧ ✧

A nuisance —or fun —what a contrast in the atmosphere in Tommy's and John's homes towards the end of October! What is your attitude to special days in the calendar like Hallowe'en? It makes all the difference to family good times if the parents, especially mothers, look at the plans and nonsense which are associated with the eve of All Saint's Day with sympathetic eyes.

Busy children are happy children and most mothers of small children know that investment in handcraft supplies is money well spent. Sheets of orange and of black cardboard can be cut into pumpkins, witches, black cats, and all sorts of designs or silhouette scenes. Large, soft wax crayons with a paper covering are easy for little fingers to grasp and large sheets of wrapping paper or pages from an old wall-paper sample book can give the young artist many enjoyable half hours. Colored chalk and a blackboard or pastel crayons and colored drawing sheets are appreciated by school age youngsters for their Hallowe'en drawings. But small jars of poster paints each with its own brush, and large sheets of paper provide the best fun of all!

DRESSING-UP TIME

Hallowe'en is "dressing up time"! Wise is the mother who has a trunk or a large carton filled with articles of clothing which can be used on just such occasions! All sorts of things come in handy—gloves, scarves, purses, bits of lace and ribbon, artificial flowers and feathers as well as old dresses and suits. Homemade masks are fun to design and color and can be as effective as "store" ones.

Children love to pretend and there is nothing which many of them enjoy more than acting in a play. Sometimes Hallowe'en costumes start them on a series of Saturday afternoon dramatics planned and produced by a neighborhood "gang." It doesn't seem to matter if the number in the audience is very few—What each child wants to do is to be in the play for some part, long or short!

CUSTOM DEGENERATED

It is too bad that the custom of calling [illegible] into a large-scale campaign of "Shell Out"!

Candy-making has quite an impetus at Hallowe'en time in many homes. This is a good time to let son or daughter learn how to read a recipe carefully, assemble all the necessary ingredients and utensils, and then follow the directions exactly. There is no candy which tastes quite so good as a piece of one's own making!

Hallowe'en also provokes a discussion on property damage in many households. When does a prank, or a practical joke overstep the bounds of good sense? Is Hallowe'en a valid excuse for a gang of fellows to destroy fences, gates etc., and break windows? Is this really rather childish? What does your youngster think about the property destruction, your own and other peoples?

Possibly his ideas and standards are quite different from yours. He may feel much less responsible about the neighbor's possessions than you do! But it is worthwhile to let each other know what you are thinking and why. If you believe in democracy and free speech in theory—and adolescent in your home plus Hallowe'en gives you the chance to put some of your theories into practice in the friendly exchange of ideas!

WHO IS WHOSE? —The Smith twins, and their pretty twin wives. That's George, or is it William Smith, left, and that's Joy, or is it Gloria linking arms with George or William. The two sets of twins were married on TV in New York and are honeymooning in the Laurentians. They flew to Montreal after the ceremony.

DOROTHY DIX

More Credit To Mothers Request Of Teen-Ager

DEAR MISS DIX: Don't you think 'teen-age daughters are sometimes forgetful of their mothers, and don't realize that mothers are just girls like us, only grown up? This fact has been in my heart for some months, and I wonder if you might write something about it in your column to wake us up. Our mothers have done worlds of things for us besides the drudgery of bringing us up. They provide refreshments for our parties, but how often are they complimented on the delicious food? They make nice clothes for us, which we take for granted. They take special pains to be friendly to any new kids we bring home, but do we ever say "Thank you, mom"?

I am trying hard to be different with my mother. I help around the house as much as I can, thank her for the extras she does for me, and try to be agreeable and considerate.

Mom should be more than a supervisor over our lives; she should be the best pal we have. Let's make it that way.

RENE C.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: And the same goes for Pop, too. Too little credit goes to the man who makes the home possible. His role may not always be as spectacular as Mom's but it is certainly necessary.

A FINE EXAMPLE

Rene sets a fine example for all 'teen-age girls to follow. It is perfectly true that most youngsters assume for granted everything their mothers do to make life cheerful, pleasant and comfortable. The one reward she wants more than anything else is to have her children's confidence, trust and love. If she lays down laws that seem unnecessarily stringent to you, talk them over and you'll find out that your safety and welfare are the sole purpose behind the rulings.

All 'teen-agers should assume some part of the family's household routine. This gives Mom more time to herself, for her own activities, or to devote to the extra touches that Rene appreciates so much.

Spread this cult among your friends, Rene, and have them all join your "Three Cheers for Mom" club.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a mother of three fine children, with a husband who is wonderful. He works hard, we get along fine, and love each other very much. The trouble is, we never have the home to ourselves. For the thirteen years of our marriage some of my people have always been here. My father drinks a lot and often comes to my house to start trouble. He also comes for money to buy cigarettes and other things. My brothers work when they feel like it, and come to me the rest of the time. My husband says if they don't stay away he'll leave.

MRS. R. M.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Don't let a lot of sponging relatives spoil your happy marriage and break up your pleasant home. Your family should be told, by you or your husband, whoever is more forceful, that they must stop their indeterminate visits. I know it is hard to take that attitude towards your own blood relations, but they are making too much of a good thing with their use of your home. Don't let them get the upper hand.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Though I have been happily married for two years, and have an adorable baby girl, I cannot seem to forget one of my old fiancees. I know he is staying single because of me. I think if I could see him once more and talk to him, I would then be able to forget him.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your premise is all wrong. See him once, and you'll be on the road to a most unpleasant batch of complications. It's not unusual for a married woman [illegible] lost loves of her mid-teens. You must school yourself to forget and get over these romantic notions. No good will come of them.

Readers' Saturday Column by Mary Moore

QUESTION: I would appreciate advice in selecting a good cookery book as a birthday present. Mrs. M. M.

ANSWER: This is risky business, for I could be accused of prejudice. Is it sufficient to say that I like the following—each one for a different reason?: "Canadian Cook Book" by Nellie Lyle Pattinson; "New American Cook Book" by Lily Haxworth Wallace; "Good Housekeeping Cook Book"; and Betty Crocker's Cook Book. Any cook owning any or all of these books will find them dependable.

QUESTION: One year during the last war it was impossible to buy any prepared pectin for jelly making. One woman told me to use Epsom salts—this I did and I had wonderful tender jelly, but I have forgotten the proper proportions. Can you give them to me? . . . I have trouble at times with my canned peas spoiling. Is there any preservative I can use? How about benzoate of soda that the large pickling firms use. Can an ordinary housewife use it and what proportion. Mrs. M. D.

ANSWER: My experience with Epsom salts in jelly making is limited—I have used it as a test for pectin, and in very small amounts in strawberry jam—¼ teaspoon to 8 8-oz. jam jars. I would be grateful if our readers who use Epsom salts would write to me and tell us exactly what to do. There is no substitute for sterilization in canning peas. Benzoate of soda is not used by canners in packing peas. They must be sterilized under pressure—10 lbs. for 40 minutes. It is possible to sterilize canned peas in hot water bath but it is never recommended because botulinus poisoning is too common from peas and corn and beans that are not processed under pressure.

QUESTION: My problem is pickles . . . am puzzled about the matter of fermentation. As I pick the cucumbers I put them in crocks according to their sizes. I cover them with brine made of 2 cups salt to 2 quarts water. The gherkin sizes I make into sour or sweet or twelve-day pickles when the crocks are full and have stood a week or so. They turn out wonderfully. The dills are the problem. I add dill and a little white vinegar to their crock. All directions I have say to leave them until fermentation ceases. How do you tell when this is so? Last year I bottled them when the crocks were full and they had stood a while. They were good pickles but lack the oomph of the ones you buy for 5 cents apiece. This year I left them longer, and then the brine started to get a little slimy so I bottled them. They are better than last year's but still not what I am aiming for . . . . Mary I. C.

ANSWER: The following recipe for making dills answers all of your questions.

DILL PICKLES

Place 100 dill size cucumbers in crock which is thoroughly clean and cover with a brine made by using 1½ cups salt to 1 gallon of water. (You see your brine is much too strong.) Leave the cucumbers in the brine until acid test is given. (Blue litmus paper turns pink when placed in acid brine—this means that fermentation has ceased. Buy litmus paper at the drug store.) Drain and arrange in layers in jars and put grape or cherry leaves in the bottom of jar. Place a layer of cucumbers on leaves and sprinkle the cucumbers with dill, cloves and pieces of red pepper. Repeat until the jar is filled. Add ½ cup mustard seed, ½ cup horseradish and ½ cup salt to the brine which was poured off the cucumbers. Pour over cucumbers and cover with piece of cheesecloth. Place a board or plate with light weight on top, and cover all with a heavy coating of paraffin, OR seal jars.

NON SEPARATING FRENCH DRESSING

QUESTION: After using your recipe for French Dressing that doesn't separate all summer I have lost it. We don't want to go back to the ordinary kind. Could you print it again? Marjorie S.

ANSWER: Mix together in beater bowl one -third cup vinegar, 1 tablespoon paprika, 1½ teaspoons salt, shake of cayenne, slice from clove of garlic, 3 tablespoons sugar, and 1 egg. Beat for 3 minutes, then very slowly add 1 cup cold oil, being sure it is incorporated as you pour. The adding of the oil takes about 5 minutes with electric beater, about 7 minutes with hand rotary beater. Keep tightly covered.

Q.M. Country Fair Pleases Family About 700 Attend

Dad said "A terrific show"; Mom said "It was very enjoyable"; the kids said "It was good—especially the show and the hot dogs."

"It" was the "Country Fair" at Queen Mary School Friday evening where about 700 men, women and children were taking part in the variety of features offered at booths and on the auditorium stage. They were also anxiously awaiting the judging of the country fair costumes many wore and the choices of the best decorated cakes.

In this cake contest the judges, three ladies of the teaching staff narrowed their selection down to five and then drew for the winners of the two prizes, when a last minute effort to provide more prizes failed. Each cake was made from a prepared mix and they were judged for decoration only. Popular choices of the crowd was the "merry-go-round cake" which had animal cut-out cookies for the riders and a gay, striped canopy top.

The auditorium filled twice for the showing of the Royal Tour and in between there was an exciting puppet show for the children and also songs by the Kiwanis choir. Afterward the square dancing took place on the stage with Jim Byrne on hand as the "caller."

School safety patrol leaders demonstrated their ability by helping to keep the crowd in order and also displayed the safety cones used on the street and their white belts and signs.

The Home and School Association had a booth displaying their health literature and they were also taking memberships. A display of handcrafts was put in by the Recreation Commission.

Though entertainment was the keynote of this affair, it was also a money-making proposition with the home cooking table one of the good sources along with the soft drinks and hot dogs. Late in the evening coffee was sold at 15c per cup with pieces of the cakes in the contest being given free.

The "fair" was arranged under the chairmanship of Mr. Doug Vaisey, with the advice of Association president Mrs. R. C. Honey and the help of the program committee.

Officers of junior group: W. Outram, president; Dianne Dalton, secretary; S. Howard, treasurer. Intermediate group: B. Bacon, president; S. McGee, sec.-treas. Senior group: J. Copp, president; E. Armstrong, secretary; M. McKim, treasurer. The meeting closed with Taps.

Of Interest to Women

SPARROW THINKS HE'S "PEOPLE"—Pee Wee thinks a sparrow's life is for the birds. He much prefers to live with the Ray Summers family in Kansas City, Kan. Mrs. Summers is shown, above, as she gives the house-happy sparrow a bath in the kitchen sink. Rescued when he fell from his nest when a fledgling, Pee Wee answers to his name, loves to be petted, and is acquiring a repertoire of tricks. So far, he's shown no desire to resume a normal sparrow's life.

6—In Memoriam

CASEY—In loving memory of John Wesley Casey, who passed away October 25th, 1944.
His memory is as dear today,
As the hour he passed away.
—Ever remembered by his loving wife and family.

PAGETT—In loving memory of a dear husband and dad, who passed away Oct. 26, 1948.
God's greatest gift remembrance.
—Lovingly remembered by his wife and family, Art, Mary, Gerry and Don.

THOMPSON—In loving memory of Albert E., who passed away Oct. 26, 1949.
From our happy home and circle
God has taken one we loved,
He is borne away from sin and sorrow
To a nobler rest above.
Jesus doeth all things well.
—Lovingly remembered by mother and sister.

THOMPSON—In loving memory of Uncle Ned, Albert Edward Thompson, who passed away suddenly three years ago, Oct. 26, 1949.
You're not forgotten, Uncle Ned
Nor ever shall you be,
As long as life and memory lasts,
I shall remember thee.

DOGGONE GOOD SAFETY LESSON —"Lassie" (no relation to the movie dog star), shows pupils of Barton School, in Minneapolis, the safe way to cross the street. "Baby," in the buggy, is an anonymous bitplayer who travels with an all-dog troupe which is helping to teach school children safety lessons. Policeman Ernest Pressley, of Charlotte, N.C., who is taking his safety show on a 20-state tour, says the everpopular act has played to more than 3,000,000 children so far.

Warden And Wife Entertain Institute

BAILIEBORO (ENS)—Bailieboro Women's Institute met at the home of Warden and Mrs. Henry Campbell, with a large attendance of ladies and gentlement. The roll call was answered by "A New Canadian Product."

Mrs. A. Stewart and Mrs. Max Perrin were appointed as leaders of the girls' "garden club."

Mrs. Ray Eagleson and Miss Mary Tanner will be delegates to the annual convention in Toronto in November. The Institute is planning to hold euchre parties at Centerville during the fall and winter. Mrs. John Gaynor gave an interesting paper on "Radium." The Bailieboro male quartette favored with several vocal numbers.

The guest speaker was Mr. Gadd from Cobourg and gave an interesting address on "Plastic." Mrs. Alex Watt thanked the speaker and all those who helped with a successful evening.

Mrs. J. W. Perrin

MILLBROOK (ENS)—The funeral service for Mrs. Joseph Wellington Perrin, who died in Civic Hospital, Peterborough, early on Tuesday morning was held on Thursday at two o'clock from the MacPherson funeral home. She was seventy-three years of age.

Mrs. Perrin was born in Millbrook, the daughter of George Lock and the former Lillie Mallory. She married Joseph Wellington Perrin on March 19, 1902, after which they made their home on a farm in South Monaghan. Two years later they moved to a farm on the 9th concession of Cavan township where she lived until after her husband's death in 1938.

From this union three children were born: Mrs. A. Ross Browne (Olive) and Miss Alma E. Perrin, both of Toronto, and the late Cpl. Melville G. Perrin, who was killed in action in Italy on May 24th, 1944. There is also one granddaughter, Miss Barbara Browne of Toronto.

Two sisters, Mrs. John McKnight (Elvy) of Millbrook, with whom of late years Mrs. Perrin made her home, and Mrs. W. H. Williamson (Bertha) of Vancouver, B.C., are the sole survivors of the Lock family.

Mrs. Perrin was active in the women's groups of St. Andrew's United Church where she was a member. She was a life member of the W.M.S. While attending Cavan United Church she had served as President, both of the W.M.S. and of the W.A. She had taught in the Sunday School there for many years and had been an active member of the Women's Institute.

Mrs. Perrin and her dear friend, Mrs. Albert Brown, spent much of their time in visiting the sick and shut-ins in Millbrook. Their acts of kindness in bringing cheer to lonely people will long be remembered.

Magazine Copy Collector's Item

NEW YORK (CP) — A Toronto man bought a copy of Time Magazine this week that the publishers think may be a collector's item.

The copy was the current issue of the Canadian edition dated Oct. 27 but the cover was dated Nov. 10 and carried pictures of the Democratic presidential nominees, Governor Adlai Stevenson and Senator John Sparkman.

Time, in a press release, said it apparently was a mistake in the magazine's bindery. Time is printing and storing alternate covers for its election issue. The magazine will use the cover showing the winning candidate.

The Torontonian, who was not named in the press release, apparently received one of "a few hundred misbound copies."

So far, Time said, it has heard of no one who received a copy with the alternative cover showing the Republican candidates, Gen. Dwight Eisenhower and Senator Robert Nixon.

Five Groups Visit Coldsprings W.M.S.

COLDSPRINGS (ENS).— The annual Coldsprings W.M.S. autumn thankoffering meeting was held on Thursday afternoon in St. Paul's United Church. Visiting societies were present from Plainville, Bethesda South, Camborne, Gore's Landing, and Bethesda North. Many were present.

Mrs. A. Jamieson, president of Coldsprigns W.M.S., extended a warm welcome to the guests, and introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. H. J. McKinney of Brooklin, first vice-president of the Bay of Quinte Conference. Mrs. McKinney was born at Coldsprings and attended Cobourg Collegiate. She graduated as a registered nurse from Grace Hospital, Toronto, 22 years ago.

Mrs. McKinney spoke on "Freedom." In part she said: "The result of freedom is purpose. Our missionaries have a purpose and are building new lives in Korea, Africa and China. Let us never undermine the value of missionary work, and have faith that comes through purpose in serving Jesus Christ."

The worship service was conducted by Mrs. L. Buttars, rMs. F. Bowman, and Mrs. W. Buttars, members of Plainville W.M.S.

An invitation to Plainville on November 5 was accepted by the Coldsprings W.M.S. Mrs. Jamieson thanked Mrs. McKinney, of Plainville W.M.S., and all those taking part. A salad plate lunch was served by the Coldsprings Society. Thankoffering amounted to $94.36.

Another Nazi, Giesler Given Freedom

HEIDELBERG, Germany (Reuters) — United States authorities today released war criminal Herman Giesler, 53, from Landsberg prison, Bavaria, in continuation of the Allies' general amnesty policy.

Giesler had been condemned to life imprisonment in 1947 for participating in wartime atrocities at the Muehldorf concentration camp. Last year, his sentence was reduced first to 25 years and then to 12.

Giesler's release follows that of Max Wielen, a war criminal held by British authorities in Wesl prison, North Rhine-Westphalia. The ailing, 69-year-old German had been sentenced to life imprisonment in 1947 for taking part in the execution of 50 British and Commonwealth air force officers on Hitler's direct orders. The officers had been rounded up following a break from notorious Stalag Luft III at Sagan, Silesia, in 1944. Six of the airmen were Canadians.

Wielen, head of the Breslau criminal police at the time, left prison yesterday. His original sentence had been reduced first to 21 years and later to 15.

CLAIM 50 AIRMEN

Witnsses at Wielen's trial in Hamburg five years ago testified he and 17 other Germans murdered the 50 airmen on the way back to the camp after their capture. Gestapo chief Heinrich Himmler had sent instructions that official reports should show the men were shot while trying to escape, the witnesses said.

Hitler was described as furious over the prison break, which tied up hundreds of thousands of troops and police for the manhunt.

Hitler grew very excited, witnesses said, and ordered the men caught and shot immediately. When one general protested this would violate the Geneva convention, Chif of Staff Gen. Keitel retorted: "The time has come when an example must be shown or we cannot cope with the number of escapees."

Two Cars Collide On Lindsay Street

LINDSAY (ENS)—A two-car collision last evening on Kent St. West in Lindsay resulted in heavy damage to both cars, and the probability that charges will be laid against one of the drivers. Paul Thomas Galway, of Scotia, N.Y., was driving west on Kent Street behind a vehicle driven by Findlay Harris, of Victoria Ave., Lindsay, when the Harris car swung into the avenue on the north side of the road and back into the path of the Galway vehicle. The two cars collided, causing extensive damage to both, although neither of the drivers were injured. Dr. Arnold examined both at the scene and released them. Charges are being contemplated against Harris, according to Lindsay police, and will be confirmed by Chief Webster after consultation with Crown Attorney Lorne Jordan.

Lemay Believes Missing Wife Remains Alive

MONTREAL (CP) — Contradictory statements about the fate of pretty Huguette Lemay yesterday revived interest in the mystery of her disappearance 10 months ago in Florida.

Georges Lemay, her well-to-do, 26-year-old husband, came out with a statement that he has proof she is alive.

Montreal lawyer Raymond Daoust, a brother of the petite Montreal beauty who was 24 when she vanished at Key West, declared the Lemay family "does not believe she is alive."

DIFFERENT OPINION

James O. Barker, Florida sheriff's deputy who probed the disappearance, said at Key West:

"Evidence indicates she is dead. Blood-stained garments found on the Tamiami Trail were identified as having been in Lemay's car."

Lemay issued his statement when a newspaper dispatch from Key West said he had declared in a telephone interview that Mrs. Lemay is alive and he planned divorce action against her in January.

Lemay confirmed the interview.

Urges Colleges Give Course In Politics

HAMILTON (CP) — A prominent Progressive Conservative member of the Commons last night suggested that Canadian universities consider post-graduate courses in practical politics.

John Diefenbaker, member for Lake Centre in Saskatchewan, made the suggestion in a speech prepared for the autumn convocation at McMaster University.

He also suggested that scholarships be provided to enable graduate students to do post-graduate work for one year as research assistants to private members of Parliament.

GIVEN HONORARY DEGREE

Mr. Diefenbaker, 56-year-old lawyer-graduate of the University of Saskatchewan, spoke after receiving an honorary degree of doctor of laws from McMaster.

Mr. Diefenbaker said: "One or more Canadian universities might consider the establishment of a chair of politics. . . . so that young men and women imbued with a desire to enter Parliament or legislature or the civil service might take post-graduate courses—beyond the political science courses — where practical politics would be studied."

Enoch (indicated by cross), 27, of Youngstown, Ohio, one of two U.S. fliers whose plane failed to return from a night mission in North Korea, January 13. Since their capture they have been tortured by the Communists and forced into making false confessions that they took part in germ warfare.

National Ballet Company Starts Ambitious Theatrical Venture

By JOHN PATERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—The most ambitious Canadian theatrical venture to "hit the road" in many years set out this week to make a coast-to-coast tour. The National Ballet Company, 40 strong, will play some 30 towns and cities from Victoria to Halifax in this, its second season.

Artistic director Celia Franca, internationally-famed ballerina and choreographer, will make major use of the classic ballets but has added several new works with music and choreography by Canadians.

The tour opens in Calgary Oct. 27 and the group will spend a month in Western Canada. In January the company will play Toronto and London, then Montreal Feb. 9 and on to Halifax. In March Ottawa and other Ontario centres will be visited.

A NATIONAL COMPANY

"Big city or small town," Miss Franca said, "if they want us we'll play to them. This is a Canadian national company and we want to visit as much of Canada as is physically possible."

The slender, attractive director starred with Sadler's Wells, Metropolitan Ballet and other European companies before coming to Canada early in 1951 to found the national group. She believes that every company's repertoire should have a backbone of classical works. She has included "Giselle," "Coppelia," "Casse Noisette" and "Les Sylphides" as well as the fiery Polovetzian dances from Prince Igor and, Nijinsky's "Afternoon of a Faun."

Two noted Canadian composers, Louis Applebaum of Ottawa and Toronto, known for his scores for Hollywood and National Film Board films, and Hector Gratton, Montreal conductor, have created the music for new ballets. Miss Franca has choreographed Gratton's "Le Pommier," a French-Canadian folk ballet. Joey Harris of London, Ont., a former leading dancer with top European ballet companies, choreographed an as yet untitled work by Applebaum.

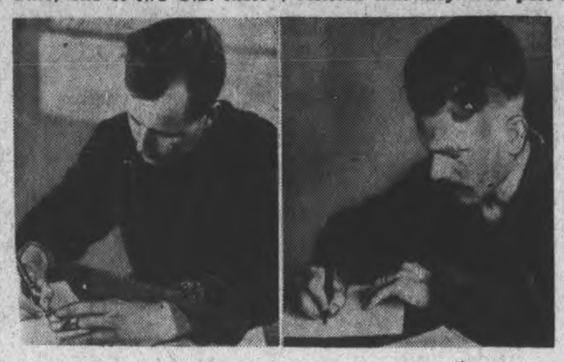
REPRESENTATIVE GROUP

The 30 dancers and staff of 10 represent some 15 Canadian cities and towns. Many interrupted successful careers abroad to return to the National company. David Adams of Winnipeg danced in London and the United States. His wife, Lois Smith, toured with New York musicals. Irene Apine of Halifax was a leading dancer in her native Latvia and in Germany. Lillian Jarvis, Toronto, danced in London musicals. Olivia Wyatt, also of Toronto, was a popular New York magazine cover girl and model.

Ballet mistress Betty Oliphant of Toronto had her classical ballet training with such greats as Karsarvina and Madame Rambert before entering London's musical field. Press representative Kay Ambrose has written seven books. She designed the costumes for this year's Canadian National Exhibition grandstand show and is a brilliant artist and ballet authority. George Crum, musical director, has just returned from Strasbourg festival to which he was invited.

It takes two sleeping cars and one freight car to move the company from point to point. Not the least of the preparations for the tour was the forming of branches of the National Ballet Guild in Toronto, Montreal, London and Edmonton with committees in Kitchener, Guelph and Hamilton.

Western Canadian cities to be visited are Calgary, Red Deer, Edmonton, Vancouver, Victoria, Nelson, Lethbridge, Saskatoon, Regina Winnipeg and Fort William.



Says Toronto Costs Cut To Bone Now

TORONTO (CP) — A city hall spokesman, commenting on Premier Leslie Frost's announcement in the legislature Thursday that the government plans no further "substantial grants to municipalities" said city costs are cut to the bone now.

"Our expenditures have been pruned to the point where we have neglected ordinary sidewalk repairs," said an official. "All we want the province to do is bear its fair share of the cost of social services which are overburdening our taxpayers."

FIRST DEFINED

The crime of kidnapping was first defined as a felony in Britain by a law passed in 1861.

LT. KENNETH ENOCH, left, and Lt. John S. Quinn, 30, of Altadena, Calif., sign "the record of the interrogation by the joint interrogation group of Korean and Chinese specialists." The Air Force Association in Washington said the men would only sign a statement admitting they had been involved in germ warfare under duress.

Former Missionary Holds Gospel Rally

Guest speaker at a two-week gospel rally in Peterborough will be Harold F. Wildish, a missionary evangelist who has spent two years in the Amazon River basin in Brazil.

The gospel campaign will start Sunday in the P.C.V.S. auditorium at 8 p.m. From Monday to Friday of the same week, meetings will be held at Braidwood Gospel Hall at 8 p.m.

The following Sunday, and on the Sunday after that, Mr. Wildish will speak in the Collegiate auditorium. On the week of November 2-9, he will hold all meetings in the auditorium. Each morning he will broadcast at 7.45 a.m. over CHEX for the next two weeks, starting Sunday.

Reds Broadcast New Defiance

TOKYO (AP) — The Communist Peiping and Pyongyang radios last night broadcast new defiance of United Nations troops in Korea and boasted of the toll Red troops have taken since Red China entered the war two years ago tomorrow.

"The Korean and Chinese forces daily grow stronger while the developing war situation in Korea is becoming more and more unfavorable to the enemy," said a message to Chinese troops broadcast from Peiping.

Both messages blamed the U.S. for "breaking off" truce talks and asserted "we will undoubtedly win final victory."

The Pyongyang radio, monitored in Tokyo, said 291,011 Americans have been killed, wounded or captured in Korea.

That is more than double the latest total announced by the defence department in Washington for the 28 months of the war. The defence department Wednesday reported 122,117 U.S. casualties, including 19,184 killed in action.

The Red broadcast also said over-all U.N. casualties were 661,034.

Springville Minister To Give CHEX Sermons

SPRINGVILLE (ENS). — The Rev. A. E. Larke of Springville United Church is scheduled to broadcast morning devotions over CHEX at 8:45 till 9 a.m. each morning next week and Mrs. Larke will sing on each broadcast.

For the Sundays, Oct. 26th and Nov. 2nd, Sunday school will be held as usual at Springville but the church services will be withdrawn so that the congregation can worship with the Fairmount congregation on October 28th and with the Mount Pleasant congregation on November 2. At the former service the Rev. A. A. Chote of the Anglican Church in Millbrook will have charge of the morning service and the Rev. H. B. Herrington of Keene the evening service.

On the same date, October 28, the Rev. A. E. Larke has been invited to preach at the anniversary services, morning and evening, at Bancroft United Church.

Cigarette Smuggler Pays $913 Fine

[illegible] paid a $913.50 fine after pleading guilty to smuggling 30,200 cigarets across the border from the United States. Alternative to the fine was five months in jail. He had previously appeared Oct. 17, entering a plea of not guilty.

An R.C.M.P. officer testified that the accused had been apprehended Oct. 16 with the 151 cartons of cigarets which he was attempting to smuggle across the Niagara River by boat. The cigarets were confiscated. "This attempt seems to have all the outward appearance of commercial activity," Magistrate H.D. Hallette said, after Smith had said a friend had asked him "to bring a few smokes over."

Crooner Ends Amorous Siege

MADRID (Reuters) — Crooner Bob Savage, a lover scorned, returned here from Seville Friday to announce he had called off his amorous siege of Rita Hayworth and would leave Spain this weekend.

Savage flew here from the United States to woo the movie queen Hollywood style, including an air bombardment of roses on her Seville hotel.

But when he tried to manoeuvre his way in for a personal interview Thursday he was rebuffed by an angry count and an irate hotel manager. He left without getting a glimpse of Rita.

The crooner claimed he sacrificed a movie contract to chase the vacationing Miss Hayworth.

4 IN FAMILY DIE IN OAKVILLE CRASH

COMING TO after being knocked out by carbon monoxide gas, 66-year-old Everett Taylor of 214 Aylmer St. is shown being revived by firemen. He was sitting in the open compartment of the trunk, changing his boots after washing the car, when he was stricken. Photo shows the car in the background (the lid now closed) and the inhalator crew giving the semi-conscious man oxygen.. Left to right are Fireman Henry Nokes, Captain Bill Sorrie using the oxygen mask, and Fireman Joe Nolan.

Liberal Workers Told Prepare For Election

OTTAWA (CP) — Key Liberal workers from all over Canada were urged today to embark on "efficient and early" organization in preparation for a federal general election.

The advice was given the advisory council of the National Liberal Federation—the party's high command—by Allan L. Woodrow, of Toronto, its acting president, as the council convened in its annual meeting.

The 235-member council is meeting here for two days, to review party activities of the last year and draft strategy for the future. It will be followed Wednesday by the biennial meeting of the National Federation of Liberal Women.

Prime Minister St. Laurent touched off today's meeting with an address of welcome to the delegates meeting in closed session. He attended the opening sitting with about 13 members of his cabinet.

One of the first items of business of the convention was the adoption of a resolution of "entire confidence" in Mr. St. Laurent and his administration. The resolution also affirmed that the Prime Minister should continue as party leader through the next election.

Deny Canadian Casualties Heavy

OTTAWA (CP) —A Canadian army spokesman describes as "grossly exaggerated" the Communist claim that the 25th Canadian Brigade suffered 230 casualties in heavy fighting at Little Gibraltar Hill, west of Chorwon.

"That, of course, is Communist propaganda," the spokesman said. "We haven't got the final figures on the casualties for publication yet, but I am certain they are nowhere near that number."

Second Typhoon Hits Central Philippines

MANILA (AP) — A raging typhoon—the second in six days — plowed a trail of destruction across the central Philippines today.

Path of the new storm was south of the populous areas levelled by the typhoon which last week took nearly 450 lives.

As the storm lashed Samar, Northern Leyte and Masbate islands this morning and headed over the Sibuyan Sea, its velocity slacked from 150 to 100 miles an hour.

A U.S. B-29 weather plane was missing after it flew into the typhoon 200 miles east of Samar yesterday. There were 15 aboard.

Man Saved From Gassing Oercome After Washing Car

Everett Taylor, 66, of 214 Aylmer St., shortly before 10:30 a.m. today was overcome by carbon monoxide fumes from his own car. He was found unconscious, sprawled across the rear bumper of his car, by a neighbor. Firemen worked on him for 10 minutes and after he was brought around he was removed to hospital on the advice of Dr. T. E. Currier. His condition is satisfactory. A police constable, speeding by motorcycle to the scene of the near-tragedy, collided with Roy Sargent, 30-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Sargent of 288 Sherbrooke Place. The boy was knocked unconscious and taken to Civic Hospital with a fractured skull where his condition is satisfactory.

He received a cut forehead requiring several stitches by Dr. J. E. Howes, and it is believed he is suffering from slight concussion.

WASHED CAR

Mr. Taylor, who is co-proprietor of the H. B. Taylor and Son fuel business, had apparently washed his car and was the victim of a freak accident.

After hosing down the car he drove it back into the garage. As was his custom, he left the engine idling to dry the hood. In the meantime he went to the back of the car, pulled up the trunk lid, and sat in the trunk compartment as he changed back from rubber boots to leather shoes.

Somehow the monoxide fumes gathered under the trunk lid where he was sitting, despite the fact that the double doors of the garage were wide open. He became groggy and fell sideways to the left, his left arm caught on the bumperette. And he lay there almost directly over the exhaust pipe.

FOUND BY NEIGHBOUR

He was discovered by a neighbor, Frank Gray of 218 Aylmer St., who had gone back to get his car out of the garage.

Non-Military Objectives Delayed For NATO, Wilgress

TORONTO (CP)—Dana Wilgress, under-secretary of state for external affairs, today said the North Atlantic Treaty Organization will be able to accomplish its non-military objectives "when we reach that plateau of rearmament on which real security is found . . ."

He said in an address prepared for delivery to the Canadian Club of Toronto that in concentrating on N.A.T.O.'s military goals "we have not been able to devote as much attention as we would wish to the non-military objectives of the North Atlantic Treaty."

Mr. Wilgress, who represented Canada in Moscow, Berne and London during the last 10 years, said the North Atlantic Treaty "has become the main base of Canadian foreign policy."

That did not mean Canada had lost interest in the United Nations. But N.A.T.O. was a measure of collective self - defence permitted under the U.N. charter in the face of a very real threat of aggression.

PROGRESS MADE

Good progress had been made in N.A.T.O.'s first objective—"providing for our own security." But defensive strength could not proceed "unmindful of the economic effects of concentrating efforts on the building up of armies, air forces and navies."

Because these economic effects

"This annual review is now under way in Paris. Some newspapers are already speculating that the results will reveal a failure on the part of N.A.T.O. to reach its objectives.

Russians Have Housing Racket

MOSCOW (AP)—Another housing scandal—this time a millions-of-rubles racket in selling and renting summer houses in Odessa—was reported today in the Soviet press.

Yesterday the newspaper Evening Moscow revealed that building requirements had not been met in remodeling a Moscow apartment building. However, no fuss was made about it, the paper charged, because a deputy minister of housing, a construction official and a Communist party chief were all illegal squatters in the building. In another case, the Soviet Supreme Court cited a woman judge and a man for contriving to take over a woman pensioner's room.

Pravda, the Communist party paper, today denounced a fake building co-operative in the Black Sea port of Odessa for illicit profit and speculation. And though the case is in the hands of the ministry

Polish Envoy Has Bad Day Gun Left, Votes Wrong Way

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) —It was an unfortunate day all-round Saturday for Stanislaw Skrzesezewski, Poland's foreign minister and delegate to the United Nations. He made two errors:

1. When he left his hotel room in the morning he forgot to remove a loaded pistol from beneath his pillow.

2. During a roll-call vote at the U.N. he apparently dozed and abstained instead of voting with the Russian bloc.

A chambermaid discovered the pistol at the Beaux Art hotel after he had left for the U.N. session. She reported it to police who discovered they had no registration for the .38 calibre revolver.

While they didn't want to tread on Skrzesezewski's diplomatic immunity they insisted that he take out a permit to carry the pistol. While the necessary forms were filled out, he was at the U.N. where a vote came up on the question of accepting the credentials of official delegations including Nationalist China.

Poland was the first of the Soviet bloc to vote. Skrzesezewski was apparently drowsing at the moment and voted to abstain. The second Soviet bloc country, the Ukraine, was also caught napping and followed suit. It wasn't until the vote got to the U.S.S.R. that a resounding "no" vote was cast, followed by similar votes from Byelorussia and Czechoslovakia. The result was a split of three no votes and two abstentions for the usually-solid Soviet bloc of five countries.

Red Artillery Drives Marines Off

See-Saw Fighting Sees Area Change Hands Several Times

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—Punishing Red artillery fire tonight drove U.S. Marines off the crest of "The Hook" a few hours after they recaptured the western ridgeline in bitter close-quarter fighting.

A Marine officer at the front said the Marines pulled back from the crest and forward slopes at 8:55 p.m.

There was no indication whether the Chinese Communists moved up to occupy the high ground.

The Reds earlier had attacked with 2,000 men along a three-mile front.

SMALL PENETRATION

The officer said "the Communists made only a small penetration in our line. It was contained and never got out of hand."

Main target was the Hook and Marine outposts along a three-mile sector to the north. The Hook is about 10-12 miles east of Panmunjom, site of the recessed armistice talks.

The officer said the Chinese attack was well-planned and well-executed.

FIGHT WAY TO TOP

The Marines rolled with the punch, then started a series of counter-attacks that had carried them back to the top.

A staff officer told AP correspondent Milo Farneti the Marines forced back the Communist battalion (500 to 750 men) which had seized one end of the Hook, killing an estimated 300 Reds.

"They dug them out of the bunkers and trenches and ran them back with grenades and rifles," the officer said.

After savage hand-to-hand fighting, the Marines secured the fish-hook-shaped mile-long ridge northeast of Panmunjom at 5 p.m., Farneti said. Allied tanks and planes pounded the Reds during the furious battle.

The Reds poured 17,000 rounds of mortar and artillery fire on one Marine regiment from dusk Sunday to dusk Monday.

WRESTLE IN TRENCHES

Farneti said the Reds and Marines "at times were actually wrestling in the trench lines."

By nightfall the Marines had recaptured all but two or three outposts guarding the Hook.

Joseph H. Harris M.P. Dies Suddenly

TORONTO (CP)—Joseph Henry Harris, 63, Progressive Conservative member of the House of Commons for Toronto Danforth, died Saturday of a heart attack. He had represented Toronto east-end ridings in the Commons for 31 years.

He was vice-president of the Harris Coal Co. Ltd., and president of the W. Harris and Co. Ltd., Toronto firms. He also was president of Dominion Glues of Kitchener.

A leader in charity campaigns, he once raised $1,500,000 towards a 200-bed wing for East Toronto General Hospital where he died.

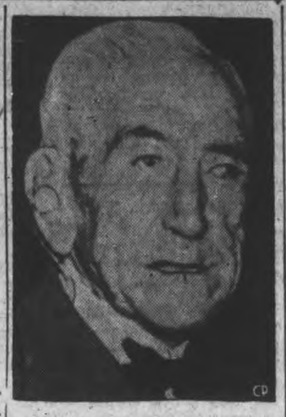
Elephant Wins Tug-Of-War

CALCUTTA (AP) — A terrifying jungle tug-of-war between a giant python and a calf elephant drew villagers from miles around to a clearing in the Manchik forest reserve near here, tribesmen reported today.

The python had seized the elephant by a hind leg and, "mooring" itself to a tree, started a fight to the death.



The fight see - sawed crazily around the clearing for hours, smashing the undergrowth flat as the elephant tried vainly to free its leg.

Eventually the python "swallowed" the elephant's leg.

Then came a deadlock. The elephant couldn't move and the reptile couldn't swallow any more.

Villagers stepped in, hacked the python to pieces with their razor-sharp swords, and freed the elephant.

Seventeen years ago in the same forest villagers watched a three-day tug-of-war between a giant python and a fully-grown elephant. The outcome was the same that time.

FORMER PRIME MINISTER of Australia, William Morris Hughes died in his sleep today. He was a veteran statesman of that country in his 89th year.

Former Aussie Prime Minister W. Hughes Dies

SYDNEY, Australia (CP)—William Morris (Billy) Hughes, Welsh immigrant who rose from umbrella mender to Prime Minister of Australia from 1915 to 1923, died today in his sleep. He was 88 years old.

A wizened little man scarcely over five feet tall, Hughes was known for his leadership of the country during the First World War when he became known as the "Lloyd George of Australia."

The name suited for other reasons—both were Welshmen, both commanded oratory that could sway political audiences, both were fighters in a colorful political period.

EMPIRE FIGURE

He became a prominent empire figure during the war years with the "Big Four" of the dominions—Borden of Canada, Smuts of South Africa and Massey of New Zealand.

He held the distinction of being the only Australian member of the Canadian Privy Council. He was given the honor in 1916 while in Canada in connection with the war effort.

When Gen. Jan Christian Smuts died in 1950, Hughes became the sole surviving signatory to the 1919 Treaty of Versailles.

He was the stormy petrel of the Paris peace conference and figured in several memorable "scenes" with President Woodrow Wilson.

He clashed with Wilson by expounding an Australian "Monroe doctrine" for the Pacific. (The Monroe doctrine, laid down in 1823 by President James Monroe, barred intervention of non-American countries in affairs of the American continents.)

WON MANDATES

But Hughes came away with what he wanted—Australian mandates over former German possessions in the Pacific.

Fear Revolt Brewing In Tense Kenya

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters)—Police announced here today that another Mau Mau murder had been discovered at Nanyuki, 125 miles north of Nairobi.

The body of an African was found in a thicket where a Mau Mau ceremony had been held. The police said 10 suspects had been arrested.

Police also reported today that 39 Africans were arrested at a Mau Mau meeting two nights ago in bush country near Sagati. Mau Mau means "the hidden ones."

Since authorities opened their campaign of mass arrests in a "get-tough" policy against the Mau Mau, thousands of tribesmen have fled from the cities to the mountains. There is widespread fear they may be organizing a revolt there.

Peterborough Man Learns Of Tragedy On Police Radio

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Seven people were killed and three injured in two week-end accidents at Oakville and St. Thomas. Four members of one Lorne Park family were killed Saturday when their car was smashed by a passenger express train at a level crossing near Oakville. Three people died and three others injured, one critically, in a head-on collision between two Michigan cars yesterday three miles west of Talbotville on No. 3 Highway near St. Thomas.

Provincial Constable Russell Pollard of Peterborough was sitting beside the O.P.P. radio when he learned that his sister-in-law, Mrs. Molly Gooder, 40; her husband, Norman Gooder, 42; and his niece and nephew, Leita, 6, and Terrance, 4, had been killed in the Oakville mishap. He was one of the first to learn of the tragedy.

The Gooders had left their home to shop before going to a birthday party at a neighbor's. The accident occurred as the Hamilton-bound Canadian Pacific Railway express raced along at 85 miles an hour. The car was crushed and the family hurled about 150 feet down the line.

NO WITNESS TO COLLISION

There was no witness to the collision. The first person on the scene was Edward Clark, who lives 300 yards down the road from the double-track crossing.

When he reached the crossing, Mr. Clark found the demolished auto in the ditch beside the tracks. Its headlights were still on, beaming through the early evening dusk.

He found the bodies of the two children, almost side by side. The parents were a short distance away, near the ditch.

Police Chief Fred Oliver of Trafalgar township, who investigated, said visibility was clear at the time.

The Gooder auto was believed to be travelling north towards the Queen Elizabeth Highway. The impact sent the auto through the guard rail into the ditch, turning it completely around.

ST. THOMAS CASUALTIES

St. Thomas dead are William R. Tait, 34, of River Rouge, Mich., his mother, Mrs. Bella Tait, about 70; and Mrs. Barbara McNellage, 75, both of Wheatley.

Mrs. Beatrice Tait, 30, wife of the driver of the car, is in critical condition in St. Thomas Memorial Hospital with a fractured skull, fractures of both wrists and severe facial lacerations.

Ollie Veasey, 24, and James Crumie, 26, Both of Detroit, were severely injured.

Lewis Orders Coal Miner Back To Work

The chief of the United Mine Workers wired all union district officers that it was his opinion work should be resumed pending government reconsideration of whether the miners may have a $1.90 a day pay increase which the industry has agreed to. The Wage Stabilization Board trimmed the increase to $1.50, holding that a higher boost would violate the government's anti-inflation program.

Truman asked the United Mine Worker's chief to end the week-long strike in a suddenly-arranged conference at the White House last night. Lewis promised his "co-operation".

The 24-minute meeting between Truman and Lewis, political foes during the last four years, wound up with Truman taking the union leader on a personally-conducted tour of the recently refurbished White House.

Comet Crashes On Take-Off

ROME (AP)—Britain's record-smashing Comet jet airliner roared down the runway at Ciampino Airport last night, lifted a foot or two off the ground and then crunched back to earth in a 120-mile-an-hour belly landing.

All 42 persons aboard escaped injury. All filed from the plane without excitement or panic.

The plane was badly damaged. Its four jets dug into the ground and held the craft back, averting a possible disaster. A drizzle was falling at the time, and the airliner, plowing through mud, stopped less than 10 yards from a heavy fence.

C. H. G. Kent, an official of British Overseas Airways Corporation, which operates the jet, said the cause of the mishap has not been determined. The end of the runway at Ciampino, just outside Rome, was said to have been foggy at the time.

ONE ENGINE DEAD

Airport officials quoted the pilot, Capt. R. E. Foote, as saying one of his four engines went dead just after his plane became airborne. He decided to land immediately.

One of the plane's wheels was thrown 30 yards away. The end of the left wing was snapped off, the left side of the rudder was shat-

13 Get Summonses For Liquor At Game

TORONTO (CP)—In a crackdown on football fans who drink at games, police Saturday issued summonses for 13 persons on charges of having liquor in an illegal place.

Officers said it was the first time they could recall persons being charged over drinking inside a stadium.

The charges were laid at Varsity Stadium during the Toronto Argonaut-Ottawa Roughriders football game.

The police action came four days after a United Church minister, Rev. Charles C. Murray of suburban Leaside, told Toronto centre presbytery there was "wide open drinking" at intercollegiate football games.

Trade Figures Not Good

Thinks US Treating Canada Shabbily

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Que. (CP)—Canada, as the United States' best customer, receives "rather poor treatment" from that country, Alex Gray of Toronto, president of the Canadian Exporters' Association, said today.

Addressing the association's annual meeting, he said Canada's trade figures with the United States "are not good." In the first eight months of this year, Canada's purchases from the U. S. were $413,000,000 in excess of her sales there—"the highest deficit in five years, and the sad part is that our exports are largely raw and semi-raw materials and our imports largely highly-manufactured goods."

"This is a situation in which our government could act, if it was not against its policy."

CHARGE PULP GROUPS

He said the House of Representatives committee headed by Representative Emanuel Celler has been critical of Canadian marketing of newsprint and has charged Canadian manufacturers with monopoly control and price-fixing. "... and this Congressman would like to reduce U.S. imports of our newsprint."

"We have a surplus of cheese, but U.S. controls do not permit such imports. Our cattle and meat products are still shut out, because of foot and mouth disease, eradicated some months ago.

"Simplification of the Customs Act has still not been acted on by Congress, and on top of this is the recent act of the U.S. Customs in refusing to permit Canadian copper and brass products to pass through their country in bond, without a U.S. export permit."

Mr. Gray noted that Canadian exports to all countries have increased and said "it would appear that we should continue to expand."

KEENER COMPETITION

He predicted keener competition ahead.

"Britain, France and other European countries have been receiving defence and Marshall Plan aid from the U.S. This will presumably be reduced, and these countries will have to make every effort to export for dollars.

"And, as the U.S. passes the peak in defence spending and U.S. manufacturers receive reduced business as a result of the cut-down in gifts and loans to Europe, they also will have to fight for business.

"The only answer is harder work, increased efficiency and greater production by Canadians. I am certain Canada can meet the test successfully."

"TAKE LONG RANGE VIEW"

On the Commonwealth market, Mr. Gray said "we must take the long-range view. . .

"We keep hoping and working to have it opened again. But I believe you will have to wait a long time; and, while we should fight for it, in the meantime your energies had better be directed to other markets."

Mr. Gray said Canada's exports for the first eight months of 1952 virtually equalled the entire year of 1949.

"It is little wonder that the Canadian dollar commands a premium in world markets. The premium is a hardship on exporters—a help to importers—and yet, if I could, I would not change it by decree. . .

"The opinions I hear are that the Canadian and U.S. dollars are likely to work closer to one another."

Talks On Saar Collapse; Army Treaty Delayed

PARIS (Reuters)—Collapse of Franco-German talks on the Saar has destroyed chances of early ratification of the European army treaty and arrangements for ending the Allied occupation of West Germany, diplomatic quarters said last night.

The talks which began last June broke down Friday and a final meeting Saturday between German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer and French High Commissioner Andre Francois-Poncet failed to reach any agreement.

Allied hopes of creating a six-country European army and an independent West Germany depended on solving the question of the Saar's future status. The rich industrial region wedged between France and Germany once was German territory. In 1945, the Saar was given an autonomous government but was linked with France in a customs and currency union as part compensation to the French for German wartime aggression.

French and German negotiators sought through the summer for a mutually-acceptable formula to neutralize the Saar by converting it into a "European" area.

TO SET ELECTION DATE

The Saar parliament meets today to set a date for elections. One of the two chief reasons for breakdown of the talks was Germany's insistence that the elections be postponed beyond the scheduled deadline Dec. 17. The other reason was a German demand that parties in the Saar advocating reunion with Germany be permitted to operate openly.

France rejected both arguments Friday following a meeting in Paris between Foreign Minister Robert Schuman and an eight-man Saar delegation. The French feared West Germany's real object was reintegration of the Saar into Germany.

Diplomatic sources see no prospect now of any Saar agreement, although official French quarters hold out vague hopes of continued talks some time in the future.

Strong northwesterly winds associated with an intense disturbance over Hudson Bay are sweeping much colder air across Manitoba into Northern Ontario and are accompanied by cloudy skies and snow. At the same time continuing southwesterly winds will keep afternoon temperatures near 60 degrees in southern regions today. However, the colder air is pushing steadily through the province and will cover all regions by Tuesday.

Regional forecasts valid until midnight Tuesday:

Lake Erie, Lake Ontario, Niagara, Haliburton regions: Windsor, Toronto and Hamilton cities: Sunny with a few cloudy intervals today and Tuesday. Cooler tonight and Tuesday. Winds west 15 today, northwest 15 tonight and Tuesday. Low tonight and high Tuesday at Windsor, St. Catharines and Hamilton 45 and 55, Toronto and Trenton 40 and 55, St. Thomas 40 and 50, Killaloe 32 and 45. Summary for Tuesday—Mostly sunny and cooler.

Hoping Russia Breaks Deadlock

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United Nations Assembly rounds out its second week today on a note of nervous expectancy, hoping but doubtful that Russia will give the word to break the Korean truce talks deadlock.

A pronouncement by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky, before the scheduled Assembly political committee this afternoon (3 p.m. EST) could provide the Russian answer.

But during the week-end Vishinsky kept the U.N. in doubt even on whether he would speak today in answer to the long indictment of Russia in the Korean War, voiced last Friday by the U.S. Secretary of State, Dean Acheson.

Waiting for Vishinsky, other delegates kept their names off the debate list.

Stock Market Prices Improve On Exchange

TORONTO (CP) — Stock market prices improved in slow early afternoon trading today after a weak morning.

Volume for the first three hours totalled 806,000 shares.

Papers, steels and manufacturing companies led the small industrials advance and miscellaneous issues and liquors also gained. Many issues were mixed but utilities slipped.

Senior golds held firm to early gains and junior producers also advanced. A narrow list of gains balanced small losses in the prospects group. Conwest gained while Matachewan slipped. New Hugh moved 25,000 shares for no change in price. Holding companies were firm.

Higher-priced base metals held the section firm although a number of secondary issues slipped. Ascot traded more than 50,000 shares for a gain of pennies and Ontario Pyrites also traded actively for small gains. Golden Manitou and Silver Miller slipped.

Western oils showed a majority of losses in light trading although Ajax and Cons. Rochette gained.

Youth Jailed 3 Years For Assaulting Cabbie

QUEBEC (CP) — David Moore, 23, of Mount Hope, Ont., was sentenced today to three years in penitentiary for assaulting taxi driver Albert Rousseau of Lorette-ville Oct. 4.

Robert James Henry, 25, of Hamilton, was sentenced to 10 years on a similar charge last week.

Moore and Henry admitted stealing $15 from Rousseau and escaping in his automobile near Neuville, 30 miles west of here.

8 Vicious Dogs Kill Semi-Invalid

PHILADELPHIA, Miss. (AP)—A

The victim, 47-year-old William Pierce, was attacked late Saturday as he walked a highway.

A passerby made the gruesome discovery of the dogs eating the bod and attempted to drive the animals away but without success.

tered and one of the right wing ailerons was partially stove in.

All the passengers remained in their seats until the stewardess reassured them there was no danger of fire. The stewardess, Miss Margaret Williams, of Pontypool, England, was commended by all passengers for "remarkable coolness."

The passengers stayed in the plane until the emergency doors of the Comet were opened. Then they left in orderly fashion, walking in soggy mud for 200 yards until they reached buses. They were taken to the air terminal. Another Comet is being sent from London to pick them up and continue their flight.

The Comet completed its first five-stop trip to Johannesburg last May in 16 hours, 35 minutes' actual flying time.

Ticket Mixup Straightened Out

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A 92-year-old Windsor woman saw her hopes for a substantial Irish sweepstakes winning dashed today when it was learned that another local woman of the same name actually held the $800 winning ticket.

Mrs. Mary Nantais believed for a time over the week-end that her sweepstakes ticket, lost sometime after it was purchased about three months ago, was the one which had been drawn in the sweep on Wednesday's Cambridgeshire Stakes in England.

The ticket pays more than $800 for sure, with an outside chance at higher prizes.

The ticket drawn was identified only as being held by "Mary Nantais, Windsor, Ont." It was No. XA11223, on Ormen, one of the horses entered in the race.

Today, it was learned that another Mrs. Mary Nantais was the real holder of the ticket numbered XA11223.

SEIZE PART OF RIDGE

The Communists Sunday knocked a hole in the U.N. lines and seized one end of "the Hook," a mile-long ridge northeast of Panmunjom.

The Red attack opened with a thunderous artillery barrage. Then about 2,000 Chinese swarmed across the three-mile front. They over-ran three of five Allied outposts guarding the fish hook-shaped ridge.

The Marines counter-attacked at 9 p.m., and fought up a trench atop "the Hook" during the night. Allied tanks and planes moved in to support a second counter-attack today.

Farneti said U.N. tanks zeroed in their guns on an estimated 200 Chinese on "the Hook." U. N. planes pounded the Communists with explosives and flaming gasoline. The Reds fought back with artillery and mortar shells.

The Communist advance marked the first Red penetration to the key ridge since Allied forces seized it months ago. However, Farneti said the assault appeared merely a local test of U. N. strength.

The main red blow was seven miles northeast of Allied-held Bunker Hill, where bloody fighting raged earlier this fall. A staff officer said there was no action on Bunker itself.

BRIEF STABS

From the central front, AP correspondent John Randolph reported Chinese troops made brief stabs at U. N. positions on Triangle Hill and Sniper Ridge, scene of bitter fighting last week.

A North Korean communique claimed heavy western front fighting last week at Little Gibraltar Hill, west of Chorwon, resulted in 230 casualties to the 25th Canadian Brigade. A Canadian Army spokesman in Ottawa described the communique as "grossly exaggerated." He added: "We haven't got the final figures on the casualties for publication yet, but I am certain they are nowhere near that number."

Hughes was slightly deaf and cleverly exploited it when statesmen or newspapermen asked embarrassing questions.

Wilson once said of him during one of their Paris clashes, "what can you do with a man who can't hear and won't read?"

Despite his many high offices, Hughes never accepted knighthood, but his wife became a Dame Grand Cross of the Order of the British Empire in 1922. He was twice married and had three sons and four daughters.

He became Labor prime minister in 1915 but soon was rejected by the official Labor party because of his advocacy of conscription. He broke away from the Labor party and formed a Liberal-Labor coalition with himself remaining as Prime Minister until 1923.

LONG SERVICE

Later he served in various cabinet posts and as late as 1940 to 1943 was attorney-general and minister for the navy. At the time of his death he was a member of the governing Liberal-Country coalition.

Hughes went to Australia at the age of 20 and worked as a fruit-picker, seaman, cook, teacher, sheep-shearer, actor, bookseller and umbrella-mender before reaching political prominence. He took part in the development of the trade union movement.

When he succeeded Labor Prime Minister Andrew Fisher in 1915 he firmly backed the latter's declaration that Australia would support England "to the last man and the last shilling."

WAGE ORDER UP IN AIR

There was no word on how the government is going to deal with the action that brought on the strike—denial by the Wage Stabilization Board of part of the $1.90-a-day pay raise Lewis negotiated with the soft coal industry.

The Board ruled on Oct. 18 that the raise was partly inflationary and that only $1.50 of it could be paid, bringing miners' basic wage to $17.85 a day. A walkout in virtually the entire industry followed.

It seemed clear, however, that Lewis expects the government to reverse its wage board's stand, and okay the full $1.90 pay raise. He and Harry M. Moses, president of the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, who speaks for the Northern and Midwestern mine owners, have appealed for such a reversal.

Truman's statement issued after last night's conference said that Economic Stabilizer Roger Putnam had assured Lewis and Moses their appeal would receive "serious and prompt consideration."

PLEDGE BY MOSES

Truman's statement said Moses pledged that the mine owners would pay the miners returning to work the $1.50 increase so far allowed and would set aside the disputed 40 cents, for payment to the miners when and if the government says it's all right.

The Lewis-Moses appeal to Putnam that he approve the full $1.90 raise, despite the W.S.B.'s ruling, contends that the miners don't get certain "fringe" benefits enjoyed by most other workers.

Produce, Livestock Markets

MONTREAL LIVESTOCK

MONTREAL (CP)—Trading was slow on cattle while calves, sheep and lambs were at a near standstill today on Montreal livestock markets.

Sheep and lambs 850; market not established.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO (AP)—Wheat opened firm, while the rest of the grain market tended lower today. Dealings were active.

Continued dry weather in the southwest was a prime factor in the strength of wheat.

Wheat was subjected to hedging pressure as receipts of the cash grain again were large at all terminal markets.

Wheat started ⅛ to ¾ higher, December $2.37-2.37⅛; corn unchanged to ¾ lower, December $1.63¼-⅜; oats unchanged to ¼ lower, December 85⅜-½, and soybeans unchanged to 1¼ lower, November $2.93-2.92.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP)—Most prices of coarse grain futures moved narrowly today in moderately active trade on the Winnipeg grain exchange.

Commercial demand appeared moderate. There were a few shipping orders.

Support from industrial interests and some local demand appeared in flax.

11 a.m. grain prices:

Oats: Oct. ⅛ higher 85⅝b; Dec. ⅛ higher 83B; May ¼ higher 82⅛; July, not open.

Grade A hogs were steady at $26 with dressed sows at $17.

Good ewes and wethers sold at $22 delivered by rail and at $21 delivered by truck. Bucks were at $20 and heavies at $18-20. Good light sheep brought $7-10 with common downward to $4.

Settle 2 Points In Vickers Strike

MONTREAL (CP) — Company and union representatives last night settled two and partially agreed on a third of four points halting settlement of a strike of 1,500 shipyard workers at Canadian Vickers Ltd., which began Aug. 19.

R.K. Thoman, general manager of the company, and Gerard Picard, president of the Canadian Catholic Confederation of Labor, agreed that a check-off would be decided by secret vote 15 days after signing of an agreement and that a five-cent bonus for repair work, in the expired contract, would be continued.

Partial agreement was reached on a third point. The company agreed that all boiler shop workers would get their jobs back but said five per cent of machine shop employees could be given no guarantee because new workers have been hired.

The company refused to allow return to work of 25 strikers now before the courts on charges of violence, but offered to pay half wages of the men until they found other jobs. Mr. Thoman asked the union to pay the other half.

Negotiations were expected to continue today.

CONFIDENT OF VICTORY

"The people of Canada whom he has served so well will, we are confident, confirm his leadership in a new mandate as clear and determined as the mandate of 1949."

Another resolution at the opening session expressed devotion and loyalty to the Queen.

In his presidential report, Mr. Woodrow reiterated the prospect of tax cuts to which cabinet members have referred in the last several weeks.

Mr. Woodrow—filling in as president since the death of Senator J. Gordon Fogo in July—said Liberals have a tremendous task in administering plans for improving living standards and at the same time spending heavily on defence.

EXPECTS TAX CUT

"This is reflected in the tax rate," he said, "but with a continued increase in national production, one may hope for a reduction in the rate."

"Our irresponsible opponents are promising more of everything, which means increasing income tax rates, and at the same time are promising to cut taxes. Let me ask you: do you think this is possible."

"I heard the motor of Mr. Taylor's car going," Mr. Gray told The Examiner. "But when I looked over I saw him lying on the ground behind the muffler.

"I pulled him back, away from the rear of the car, and then I turned the engine off. He was unconscious."

Mr. Gray called the fire department and an inhalator squad—consisting of Captain Bill Sorrie, and Firemen Joe Nolan and Henry Nokes—answered the call. They gave Mr. Taylor oxygen for 10 minutes, until he came to.

Then the stricken man was taken to Civic Hospital and will likely remain there under observation for a couple of days.

The police department were also called. And Constable William A. Scott, driving his motorcycle along Sherbrooke St., collided with young Sargent who dashed out onto the road from behind a truck.

The boy was knocked down and was still unconscious when admitted to hospital.

ONLY FORUM

The United Nations remained "the only forum where East and West can meet," and the only forum of universal international co-operation.

However, three cleavages have become apparent in the U.N. One was the lack of desire for peace on a basis of freedom which divides East and West.

"It has been the lack of co-operation on the part of the Soviet Union that is chiefly responsible for the failure of the United Nations to fulfill the high hopes that were held of it at the time the charter was signed."

Pilot's Body Located In Wreckage

PINKERTON (CP) — R.C.A.F. searchers today found the body of pilot Grant Thomas Stewart, 23, of London, Ont., in the twisted wreckage of his Mustang plane which broke up in mid-air and exploded west of here Saturday.

A crane from Crumlin dug the bulk of the wreckage out of a crater nine feet across and 15 feet deep in a pasture on the farm of William Alexander, Greenock township.

Pinkerton is 12 miles northwest of Walkerton and about 20 miles south of Owen Sound.

Witnesses reported that shortly after 11 a.m. Saturday their attention was attracted by sound and vapor trail of what they thought was a jet plane.

LIKE BALL OF FIRE

Seconds later they saw the plane, smoke pouring from the rear. One described it as looking "like a ball of fire."

Then it exploded, spraying wreckage for 1½ miles. Witnesses said they saw no parachute.

HIGH-ALTITUDE TEST

Air force officers said the pilot, a member of No. 420 City of London fighter squadron reserve, was on high altitude test and would probably have attained 30,000 feet during the flight.

Mrs. Jerry Desmond who lives on a nearby farm said: "we thought it was going to crash right in the kitchen. We could see it out the window—it went about half a mile and then seemed to drop into the woods. There was a cloud of smoke. It was making a terrible noise."

Ready To Battle Ocean In Effort To Find Sloop With Treasure

LEWES, Del. (AP)—Salvagers are ready to battle a tremendous ocean current and a "bad weather witch" in an effort to locate the British sloop-of-war Debraak which sank in 1798 with a treasure reported worth $10,000,000.

Leading the search for the ship, believed to have gone down off Cape Henlopen at the mouth of the Delaware Bay about 100 miles southwest of Wilmington, Del., are two young Lewes dairymen, Archie and Weldon Birttingham.

The job has defied four previous efforts to unloose the sea's secret. A Baltimore salvage firm gave up in the summer of 1932.

In the years from 1934 to 1936 the Colstad Corporation of Providence, R.I., made three vaint attempts to reach the sunken ship.

FIRST SOLID CLUE

The first attempt brought up perhaps the only solid clue obtained to date. The Baltimore firm salvaged a piece of wood it said came from the Debraak's teakwood superstructure. The expedition was abandoned that fall after numerous mishaps to its salvaging equipment.

When folks around this area talk about the Debraak and the jinx which seems to stalk salvage attempts, the logical reasons offered for failure are a tricky current which swirls around the break water at Cape Henlopen and the foul weather which persistently dogs such expeditions.

The Debraak was capsized by a sudden squall, the record books say, and its captain, James Drew, was lost with 38 officers, crew members and Spanish prisoners.

The old records say the ship had just returned from a sortie in which it captured a Spanish vessel headed from South America to Spain.

The first newspaper accounts of the sinking of the Debraak mentioned only a cargo of 200 tons of copper and a quantity of cocoa. But one of the Spanish prisoners rescued from the ship is quoted as telling a Lewes resident "there's all the way from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000 worth of treasure, mostly in gold bullion, in her hold."

IN 80 FEET OF WATER

The sloop, constructed of teakwood, was 125 feet long with a 30-foot beam and a 12-foot depth. British Admiralty records say it went down in a spot where the water now is 82 feet deep.-

Police Have 'Good Idea' Of Bank Thieves

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec Provincial Police said last night they have a "good idea" who robbed a St. Jerome, Que., bank of bonds estimated at $500,000 to $1,000,000 a year ago.

Six Montreal men were arraigned last week charged with receiving the bonds and released on bail.

Deputy-director Hilaire Beauregard said five members of Montreal's underworld are suspected of the actual break-in and theft and only complete proof is needed before arrests are made. He said the robbery was engineered by a "good safecracker."

"No one is being detained and I can't say when anybody will be brought before the courts," Director Beauregard said.

ENTERED THROUGH WINDOW

Entry was made into a branch of the Banque Provinciale du Canada through a basement window. The robbery took place during the visit to this Laurentian district of Queen Elizabeth, then Princess Elizabeth, and Prince Philip during their royal tour of canada last November.

The thieves took bonds, cash, and jewelry from safety deposit boxes. They left $1,000 and $10,000 bonds strewn over the bank floor.

First break in the case came last week when six Montrealers were arraigned at St. Jerome on charges of receiving. Only $25,000 of the stolen goods have been recovered.

The six, who pleaded innocent, were Raoul Rickner, 55; Victor Desautels, 59; Leo Davignon, 45; Leo Asconi, 45; Rosaire Payette, 40, and Louis Desrosiers, 40.

Charged With Murder

CHICAGO (AP)—A cook, who police said set a fire in anger over his girl friend's unexpected absence, was charged with murder yesterday after a hotel blaze in which a fireman perished. Besides the murder charge, Wayne Walbridge, 29, is accused of arson in setting the fire at the hotel.

Many New Faces In Next House

OTTAWA (CP) — Although the date for the next federal election has not been announced, it already is clear there will be many new faces in the next commons.

In the flurry of preparations for the election—generally expected in the fall of 1953—many members are announcing they will not run again. Others are not being renominated by their constituency organizations.

Ill health and changes made by the recent redistribution of constituency boundaries are expected to force others out of the running. Defeats at the polls also will make some changes.

A vacancy in the Progressive Conservative ranks was created Saturday with the death of Joseph Henry Harris, 63, member for Toronto Danforth.

Several Progressive Conservative members, because of changes made by the redistribution, must seek nomination in a new constituency or retire.

The members include Earl Catherwood of Haldimand, Ont.; W.R. Aylesworth of Frontenac-Addington Ont.; and G.S. White of Hastings-Peterborough, Ont.

The seats of Mr. Catherwood, Mr. Aylesworth and Mr. White are being amalgamated with others.

Air Force Postpones Mass Parachute Jump

CAMPBELLFORD — (ENS) — The mass parachute jump which was to have been held this month at the old airport on Highway 30 a few miles north of this town, has been postponed.

The date for the jump was changed twice, and on the last date, which was Saturday, the Army and Air Force officials said the transport planes which were to carry the paratroopers were being used in another part of the country, so the jump was called off.

The venture, sponsored jointly be the Campbellford and Peterborough Rotary clubs will not be held this year, but efforts may be made to hold the jump next summer or fall.

Telephone Lineman Dislocates Shoulder

CAMPBELLFORD — (ENS) — Ralph Finch, 48, of Warkworth suffered a dislocated shoulder and a shaking-up on the weekend when he fell from a telephone pole.

Finch is employed by the Percy [illegible] repairs. As he was about to climb down, the pole suddenly broke off near the ground, and Finch fell to the gravel roadway. He was attended by Dr. R Jolliffe of Warkworth, and after X-rays at the Campbellford hospital, was allowed to go home.

Mrs. Clifford Colmer

The funeral for Mrs. Clifford Colmer, the former Helen Macdonald, 554 Bolivar St., who died Wednesday was held Saturday from the Comstock funeral home.

The Rev. B. S. Morwood of Mark St. United Church conducted the service.

Pallbearers were Dr. George Penhall, George Taylor, Courtland Lillico, John Wolffe, Bob Haye and James Turnbull. Burial was in Little Lake cemetery.

Marmora I.O.D.E. Meets

MARMORA (ENS) — Marmora Chapter of I.O.D.E. met in the Masonic Hall on Thursday evening. The regent, Mrs. W. M. Regan, was in the chair. The financial statement presented by Miss Miriam Savage, disclosed finances to be in good condition and sums of money were voted for the various funds of the Order. Mr. and Mrs. N. F. Langford have donated a model of the "Bluenose" for a draw.

Forced To Choose Philosophy Of God Or Man

Man's greatest choice today lies between the philosophy of God and that of man as proposed by the communists, Herbert A. Mowat told the congregation of All Saints' Anglican Church on Sunday.

Mr. Mowat, one of the leaders of the United Nations Association in Canada and a former Peterborough boy, was guest speaker on layman's Sunday at the church.

FAITH INTO PRACTICE

Warning of the perils of communism, Mr. Mowat told his audience that man needed to put a stronger faith into practice. He needed to develop the Christian point of view. It was not enough merely to have a stronger faith; a man needed to practice it to combat communism.

Mr. Mowat, who is also Ontario regional chairman of the National Laymen's Council, centred his address on Christ's sermon on the mount. He challenged his hearers to practice the principles set forth in that sermon.

Men should reach up to God for energy to reach out and help their fellows; they should recall the sacrifice of Christ for his fellow men.

Show Photostats Of Affidavits

NEW YORK (AP) — Commentator-columnist Walter Winchell showed photostats of seven affidavits on his television show last night and claimed they were proof that President Truman had been a member of the Klu Klux Klan.

Truman frequently has denied he ever was a member of the Klan.

Dates quoted by Winchell from the affidavits were with one possible exception, during October, 1944, while Truman was campaigning for the vice-presidency.

In Winchell's affidavits displayed last night, witnesses testified to seeing a Harry S. Truman at Klan meetings open only to members; to knowledge of Truman's application for membership and its acceptance; to seeing Truman deliver a speech at a Klan meeting, wearing a Klan robe in "the light of three fiery crosses;" to being present when the Klan oath was taken by Truman, and to seeing Truman's membership and dues-payment cards in Klan records.

Far From Ideal, Ike Best Available: Tribune

CHICAGO (CP) — The Chicago Tribune says General Eisenhower is "far from ideal" but prefers him to Adlai Stevenson in the White House.

The newspaper, Republican in its sentiments, Sunday advised voters "with reluctance" to vote for the Republican presidential candidate.

Col. Robert R. McCormick, Tribune editor and publisher, on Aug. 22 urged formation of another political party, which would have been known as the American party. Nothing came of his proposal.

In Independence, M., President Truman's hometown newspaper, the Independence Examiner, a Democratic publication, announced its support of Eisenhower.

Meanwhile, Stevenson picked up the support of the Milwaukee Journal, an independent newspaper that has not endorsed a Democratic presidential candidate since 1936.

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—Three members of Woody Herman's dance band were arrested in Salt Lake City yesterday on narcotics violation charges, following a performance of the band.

Polish Envoy Has Bad Day Gun Left, Votes Wrong Way

WARSAW (AP) —Polish voters Sunday elected their first parliament under the new constitution of the Polish People's Republic. All candidates represented the National (Communist) Front and there was no opposition.

Voters queued up alphabetically at the polling centres which opened at 6 a.m. and remained open for 16 hours. Their identity cards were verified and they were handed pink cards containing the names of the National Front candidates.

After reading the card, the voter folded it and put it in an urn standing in front of the election commission's tables. An area was screened off where voters, if they wished, could go to cross off any names on the card.

There were 425 candidates and 195 deputy candidates. The No. 1 candidate of the National Front is President Boleshaw Bierut. His candidacy was put forward in all of the 67 constituencies, but since he could represent only one, he chose to be the candidate of No. 1 constituency of the city of Warsaw.

The number of candidates chosen corresponded to the number of members to be elected to the new parliament.

Mass voting began between 8 and 9 o'clock. Organized parties came in with banners and posters. Cars brought the aged and sick and in some polling places they were given flowers.

The number of eligible voters has not been announced. Since there was only one election program and since all the candidates were put forward by the National Front, there was no election campaign in the western meaning of the word.

Half-Page Summary

MOSCOW (AP) — Pravda gave Russian readers a half-page summary today of the U.S. presidential campaign, calling both Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Gen. Adlai Stevenson "true servants of American monopolicies."

Becomes Bride

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Red-haired Jackie Loughery gave up the "Miss" in her title of "Miss U.S.A." yesterday and became the bride of singer Guy Mitchell. The 21-year-old Brooklyn-born beauty won her title of "Miss U.S.A." at the Miss Universe contest in Long Beach, Calif., last June. She competed with 39 other winners of state contests.

Key Man in Averagetown, Canada

Everywhere you look, new construction tells a story of progress. Here, perhaps, is a handsome new store. There, a new bridge, office building, power plant, highway, housing project — or some other vital development that makes life better for all.

But do you know that many of these developments are made possible by a certain Key Man? And can you guess who he is?

Because a large part of his premium dollars is invested for him in sound securities which help finance many such projects. Each year, more than 225 million life insurance dollars are put to work in these useful ways from coast to coast!

The life insurance policyholder is a helpful citizen in another way. For the money he puts aside for the future helps safeguard his family from ever becoming a financial burden to others.

All in all, he's an asset to his community and the nation!

AT YOUR SERVICE!

A trained life underwriter — representing one of the more than 90 Canadian, British and United States life insurance companies in Canada — will gladly help you plan for your family's security and your own needs in later years. Rely on him!

Public Holiday June 2nd?

Prime Minister Churchill has announced that June the second next will be a public holiday in Britain. It is the day of the coronation of Queen Elizabeth. The announcement has been greeted with enthusiasm by all parties in Britain.

* * *

On June 2nd Queen Elizabeth will also be crowned Queen of the Realm of Canada. Will a public holiday be declared in Canada? It is not too early to ask this question, for national holidays, unless notified well in advance, have a way of getting lost in a wrangle of business, local proclamations and vagaries of observance. We think that custom demands and the importance merits that the crowning of the reigning monarch of Canada and the whole British Commonwealth be a national festival—in Canada as well as Britain.

* * *

Canadian legislators will have to take into account special customs which do not affect Britain. We do not refer to political or racial differences, but to the Queen's Birthday—Victoria Day, May 24. Britain does not make holiday on the 24th. May 24th is very close to June 2nd. To have two public holidays within ten days—even if in honour of two Queens—may be rather upsetting to the even tenor of Canadian ways. To make the situation more complicated, next year May 24th falls on a Sunday. Therefore, by statute, it will be observed on the following Monday—May 25th. June 2nd falls on the Tuesday of the next week. Some people may advise that the 24th be put aside next year, or linked with June 2nd; thus making one holiday instead of two. But to do this will require an Act of Parliament, and perhaps cause difficulties regarding union contracts.

* * *

How complicated life seems to be, that the simple matter of making holiday when the Queen is crowned can be so difficult. Let us simplify the matter and say: certainly, we must have a holiday on Coronation Day, Queen Victoria notwithstanding.

Mau Mau And Kenyatta

There is something ogrishly fascinating about the look and sound of the words Mau Mau; undoubtedly today the moderate and white residents of Kenya find Mau Mau ogrishly terrible. Mau Mau is an African terrorist secret society, now perpetrating fiendish tricks on white people in the British Crown Colony. Its antics seem like something out of a Dr. Fu Manchu thriller. For instance, this macabre paragraph from a cabled story from Kenya's capital Nairobi, which The Examiner published on Friday:

> Today, the remains of another secret Mau Mau ceremony were found in the outskirts of Nairobi with a dead cat swinging from an archway of banana stalks. A scrawled note pinned to the cat warned that from today on, all Africans working for whites will be killed.

A "dead cat swinging from an archway of banana stalks"! No writer could invent a more startling introduction to a lurid tale.

Despite the headlines and atrocities attributed to Mau Mau, the society is by no means the most powerful native group in Kenya. Politically and nationalistically it is less important than the Kenya African Union, which is the only effective African political organization in the colony. While being thrilled [illegible] eye on the activities and policies of the K.A.U., as it is known.

The Kenya African Union has three wings, under one President. A native called Kenyatta leads the extremist wing which advocates immediate self-government for Africans. The moderate radical wing is led by Eliud Mathu, the first African to have become a member of the Kenya Executive Council, which, with the Governor, rules the colony. Mathua has opposed the attempts of Kenyatta to dominate. The third wing of K.A.U. is conservative, supporting the moderates.

The most important man in the K.A.U. is Kenyatta, who has tremendous popular power with the mass of Africans in the Colony. He is a great mob orator, but he is also extremely intelligent and very well educated. He studied anthropology in London and has written a remarkable study of the culture of his own tribe. He returned to Kenya from London in 1946, and with Mathu built up the K.A.U. which had been made illegal during the war.

Last week Jomo Kenyatta was arrested, along with a hundred other prominent Africans, in the Kenya government's attempts to quell the native disturbances, and to get at the Mau Mau terrorists. But Kenyatta although leader of the extremist faction of the Kenya African Union, is not an extremist in the Mau Mau fashion. Kenyatta recently condemned Mau Mau at a public meeting attended by more than fifteen thousand Africans.

The arrest of Kenyatta is likely to prove more important politically than the Mau Mau activities, and indeed, may push Kenyatta and the extreme wing of the K.A.U. into common cause with the Mau Mau. The banishment of Kenyatta and his associates, following their arrest, to a remote corner of the colony will not cure the ills which beset Kenya. It is not for nothing that the most popular leader has taken the name Kenyatta. A British observer in Nairobi sent us this note last week: "It is clear that until the fundamental causes that produced Mau Mau and enabled Kenyatta to become a power in the land—mainly land-hunger among the Kikuyu (native tribesmen)—are eliminated, there is little prospect of a thorough-going solution that will ensure peaceful development for this important British colony in Africa."

Ungrateful, Perhaps?

When Bernard Shaw died he left his house at Ayot St. Lawrence to the National Trust, to serve as a museum and a memorial to him. But the number of visitors to the house has not been large enough to pay for its upkeep, and the National Trust seems to be a little disgruntled, and the impression has been spread that in some way this is Shaw's fault.

There is no pleasing everybody, and a government body as little as any. If Shaw had left his house as part of his estate, we should surely have heard complaints that such a rich man could have left it to the nation, which would surely wish to acquire it. Shaw was a great philosopher and a great writer; he knew that his home would interest visitors, and he did what he thought right with it. But it has not proved a money-maker in the first few years of its existence as a museum, and Shaw is blamed.

May we offer the National Trust some advice? Sell Shaw's home at once; it will not fetch much, for it is not a remarkable house in itself, but it will fetch something, and it will be off your hands. Shaw's stock is dropping, as the stock of every literary man drops after his death. In time the house will fall into disrepair; it may tumble down altogether. Then, in a century or so, when Shaw's stature is recognized, the National Trust will be eager to acquire it again, and will be able to buy it, probably for more than it will fetch now. If the house is gone, the site can be the scene of a memorial, or a restored house, like that of Shakespeare at Stratford. Bits of the original furniture and fabrics—many of them fakes—will be bought at huge prices. Then a new museum can be set up, and maybe it will make money.

Do not be disturbed by any minority moans that your conduct savours of ingratitude. Do not miss this chance to take a final kick at a great man. You are, after all, in the museum business to make money.

Armistice Alarm

The Americans are really disgruntled, disheartened and distraught that the Korean war drags on while people talk of peace and there is no peace. It is possible that the Korean War is the major underlying domestic force in the American election campaign. They are distressed by the war much more than Canadians are, because so many more homes and towns have been affected by it. Hundreds of thousands of American men are subject at a moment's notice to be drafted and sent off to training camps and then to Korea. Tens of thousands of American families have lost sons in the war, or have had notice that son or husband has been wounded or taken prisoner.

The American Communist Party is preying on this national resentment very hard. While the Communist tactics may not be making converts to Communism, they are increasing the division in Korea, and reviving isolationist sentiment. The Republican Party and General Eisenhower have not without shrewd political reason, professed sympathy for this revived isolationist emotion.

At the beginning of last week a Communist inspired "peace demonstration" took place outside U.N. headquarters in New York. It was a torchlight procession, with much singing and shouting of slogans. So eager are Americans for an armistice in Korea, that workers in the U.N. secretariat seeing the lights and hearing the slogans thought that an armistice had actually been declared. Their joy and tears were both erased when they realized that the old, cold, hard war still continued.

NOTE AND COMMENT

A contemporary asks: "Who now remembers when girls got red cheeks mostly from standing over the kitchen stove?" As we confined our acquaintance to girls who are good cooks, and as good cooks do not hover over the stove, cooking themselves, we really cannot give an answer.

Musical Notes

By PETER PIPER

BRITISH MUSICIANS protest against the appointment of a German conductor to an important post; Canadians deplore the small proportion of Canadian music broadcast by the C.B.C.; Gieseking is barred entry to the U.S.A.: these are all fairly common news stories and could be parallelled by many others. Many music-lovers, on the other hand, will repeat the well-known saying that "Music is international", and will display little patience with the manifestations of nationalism in the musical world such as the ones I have quoted above. To them music cuts clean across all barrier of race, colour and creed. This question, whether music is international, should be of vital interest to Canadians, who, whether they like it or not, are in process of becoming a nation in the sense of sharing a common cultural heritage. Of course Canada is not a nation in quite the sense that France or Germany is. Leaving aside the various racial origins of our population there is still a wide gulf between the English and French-speaking sections of our population which will persist as long as both languages are spoken. Not only are there two different patterns of living, but also there are two different ways of thinking, as anyone who has tried to think in both languages will testify. It is not my purpose to go deeply into his fundamental fact of Canadian life which has been probed so delicately and skilfully in some of its aspects by Hugh McLennan in his novel, Two Solitudes: it suffices to point out that this business of nationalism versus internationalism in music, as in other manifestations of life, far from being a mere academic question is of intimate concern to this country.

✧ ✧ ✧

IN A SENSE, music is international, just as are painting, scientific discovery and other adventures of the human imagination. It is fairly obvious, too, that music, which makes a direct impression on the senses, is more international than literature, which is unintelligible gibberish unless one has knowledge of the language in which it is written. It is true, of course, that Europeans find Oriental music weird and primitive, if not actually comic, and this is largely through ignorance of the conventions which govern it; but it is possible to be impressed by it even without much knowledge of the scales, rhythms and cross-ryhthms, with their symbolic associations.

✧ ✧ ✧

BUT MUSIC DOES NOT live in a rarified atmosphere apart: it is the expression of the life of the people, and its manifestations are different in every land and age. Italian opera, for example, is the reflection in musical dramatic terms, of the expansive and sometimes explosive temperament of a race that has basked for ages in the clear Mediterranean sunshine. In the same way the Negro Spirituals express more poignantly than any book the tragic lot of the Negro slaves in the North American plantations. Even the composers of universal significance, such as Bach and Beethoven, are deeply and fundamentally German. In some cases music has even allied itself with political nationalism. Chopin and Poland, Sibelius and Finland are inseparable. Before the First World War the Russians banned the playing of Finlandia in Finland because it inflamed public opinion against the occupying authorities. During the Second World War the Germans banned Chopin in German-occupied Poland for similar reasons. Of course it is not necessary to be in sympathy with these political aims to enjoy the music; one may, I imagine, heartily detest the Poles, both individually and collectively and yet enjoy the music of Chopin, just as many people during the last war found nothing inconsistent in lapping up Bach, Beethoven and Brahms and at the same time demanding the extirpation of all Germans, both young and old, men, women and children as the one and only foolproof method of ensuring peace in our time. Alas for bloodthirsty theories; now the Germans are being regarded as a "bulwark against Communism" and the Russians are the villians. Yet even now we should be able to enjoy Rimsky-Korsakoff, Prokofieff and the rest wtihout being dubbed crypto-Communists.

✧ ✧ ✧

NOW, HOW DOES this affect us as Canadians in the twentieth century? Political nationalism, though largely discredited as the result of the failure of Fascism, is on the upsurge in the Middle and Far East. As for this country, there is a growing feeling of nationhood, though this is mainly based on increased realization of economic and material strength rather than on the more intangible things of the spirit. This relative backwardness causes a not unnatural diffidence in spite of the fact that a good deal has been accomplished in an astonishingly short space of time. There is as yet no distinctively Canadian music as there is undeniably a distinctly Canadian style of painting. Actually it is improbable that Canadian music will ever develop a distinctive regional flavour of its own; at any rate the Canadian flavour would be of subtle and elusive type. The age of full-blooded nationalistic movements in the musical world appears to have ended, and musicians the world over are relying less and less on a background of folk-songs and national dances for their creations. A new cosmopolitanism is the order of the day, for music has the freshness [illegible] tury, when regional accents in music were considered crude and uncultured. There is no doubt that the nationalistic movements in countries such as Russia, Spain Norway, Czecho-Slovakia and England have been beneficial in infusing new vitality into the main stream of musical tradition from the wellsprings of the common people. The Italians and later the Germans had for too long imposed their own criteria on the rest of the world, and the dead hand of the Leipsig Conservatoire was stifling originality. But on the other hand there has been always a danger of the essential unity of our musical culture breaking up into a number of "splinter groups."

✧ ✧ ✧

CANADA'S DEVELOPMENT as a really musical country is hindered at present by several factors. The great distance between large centres of population present a real difficulty. But perhaps the most insidious danger is represented by the tendency amongst a large section of the population to think of music as though it were a sort of imported luxury article like French perfume or out-of-season strawberries. The musical life of a city is gauged more by its choirs and bands, its local pianists and composers than by the amount of celebrity concerts. Musical appreciation in the form of listening to gramophone records and discussing them is all very well in its place, but more can be learnt about the Unfinished Symphony by actually playing second fiddle than by all the talk and listening in the world.

WELL, WELL, A CAMPAIGN EMBLEM FOR BOTH SIDES

Through Our Rich Rolling Farmlands

(A Progress Report on the Trans-Canada Highway by the Ontario Department of Highways)

AMONG the major projects now under construction by the Department of Highways is the Trans-Canada Highway across Ontario. Conceived upwards of 30 years ago, it has been in the minds of many Canadians as a must in highway construction, not only for economic development and defence reasons, but as a stimulant for national unity and pride.

Particularly significant to Ontario is the fact that the Trans-Canada across the broad reaches of the province will be the connecting link between the Eastern and Western Provinces, providing, when completed, an entirely paved all-weather highway from Quebec to Manitoba.

In Ontario the highway has its beginning at Hawkesbury on the Ottawa river and runs in a westerly direction to its ending at the Manitoba border, covering in all nearly 1,450 miles.

MANY MILES of existing highways will be incorporated into the Trans-Canada, with improvements in alignment, grade and vision in the present roads. Included in these are the sections of Highway No. 15, Ottawa to Carleton Place to Perth; No. 7, Perth to Peterborough to Sunderland Corners, No. 12, Sunderland Corners to Orillia to Waubaushene; No. 17, Sudbury to Iron Bridge, and No. 17, Schreiber to the Manitoba boundary.

Many miles of the highway in Ontario will follow new locations such as Plantagenet to Ottawa where the old, winding highway is completely abandoned, and where several small towns are by-passed, or from Chapleau to White River, across virgin territory where no road or highway of any type now exists. The route of the highway leads it through or by many well-known cities and towns, including Ottawa, Carleton Place, Perth, Peterborough, Lindsay, Orillia, Parry Sound, Sudbury, Blind River, Chapleau, White River, Schreiber, Nipigon, Fort William, Dryden and Kenora.

The ground over which the highway passes is varied and interesting, running through such different types of country as the flat, arable land of the Ottawa Valley and across the rock bound, precipitous north shore of Superior. Here there will be afforded one of the finest scenic drives in the entire route of the Trans-Canada from coast to coast; with many wide panoramas opened up over the rocky shoreline and lake.

✧ ✧ ✧

OTHER TYPICAL SECTIONS which the highway will pass through are the rich, rolling farmlands of the Peterborough and Lindsay districts; the long miles of bald headed rock hills, scrub brush, swamp and lazy water courses intermingled with fast flowing rivers from Port Severn to Parry Sound to Sudbury, and in the north western part of the province many miles of muskeg and jackpine swamp, conquered by the surveyor and engineer in the railroad building era.

Today, as in the days of railroading, a challenge has been offered to the highway engineers, proof of which is shown in the results obtained.

Now in the third construction season, much has been accomplished on the highway. To date contracts for grading and culvert work have been awarded covering 326 miles of which 231 miles are now completed to Trans-Canada standards. It is of interest to note the mileage graded to standard is equal to the distance between Toronto and Windsor. In addition contracts for hot-mix paving to Trans-Canada standards covering 161 miles have been awarded of which 90 miles are completed. The total money alloted to date by the Department for Trans-Canada Highway contracts has now reached the substantial total of $35,000,000.

Bridge construction has been seriously hampered by the shortage of steel, but despite this several permanent bridges have been built in Northern Ontario, including the Oskondaga river, English river, Trout Creek, Bear Creek and Nuggett Creek Bridges. Temporary bridges have been erected, also, the most important being over the French river and Pickerel river on the Parry Sound-Sudbury section. In recent months there has been a welcome easing in the supply of steel, and it is expected full advantage of the increased supply will be taken.

Public Works For Labrador

(St. John's Telegram)

Four years ago Labrador was a dependency of Newfoundland. It was not only neglected, but disgracefully neglected and exploited by the people of this Island. It was regarded as part of "our heritage", something from which Newfoundlanders might some day be able to make profit, and which in the meantime provided them valuable voyages of fish caught the easy way, and cheap fur for traders.

That has all been changed. With the inclusion of Labrador among the voting districts of the province attitudes began gradually to change until today a much more responsible attitude prevails. It will therefore be welcome news to most Newfoundlanders when they hear that comparatively extensive public works projects are planned for Labrador in the coming year.

OCTOBER 27

1922 Mrs. John McCrae, well-known resident of Omemee, dies at the age of 90.

Stan Lowe is presented with a smoking set by the office staff and travellers of Canada Packing Co.

1932 Four firemen are overcome by smoke fighting a fire in the Lakefield home of Leonard Reil.

Dr. H. M. Yelland is elected a director of the Ontario Hospital Association.

W. H. L. Mellis states that some 400 bush workers are needed in the district, the wages being $60 a month and board.

A rationing board for this area is being set up rapidly, Mayor James Hamilton informs the council.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Ye men of Israel, hear these words; Jesus of Nazareth, a man approved of God among you by miracles and wonders and signs, which God did by him in the midst of you, as ye yourselves also know: him, being delivered by the determinate counsel and foreknowledge of God, ye have taken, and by wicked hands have crucified and slain: whom God hath raised up, having loosed the pains of death: because it was not possible that he should be holden of it . . . Therefore let all the house of Israel know assuredly, that God hath made that same Jesus, whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ.

Now when they heard this, they were pricked in their heart, and said unto Peter and to the rest of the apostles, Men and brethren, what shall we do? Then Peter said unto them, Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost. For the promise is unto you, and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call. (Act. 2: 22-24, 36-39.)

✧ ✧ ✧

If the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you, he that raised up Christ from the dead shall also quicken your mortal bodies by his Spirit that dwelleth in you. (Rom. 8: 11.)

Last Frontier

(Saskatoon Star-Phoenix)

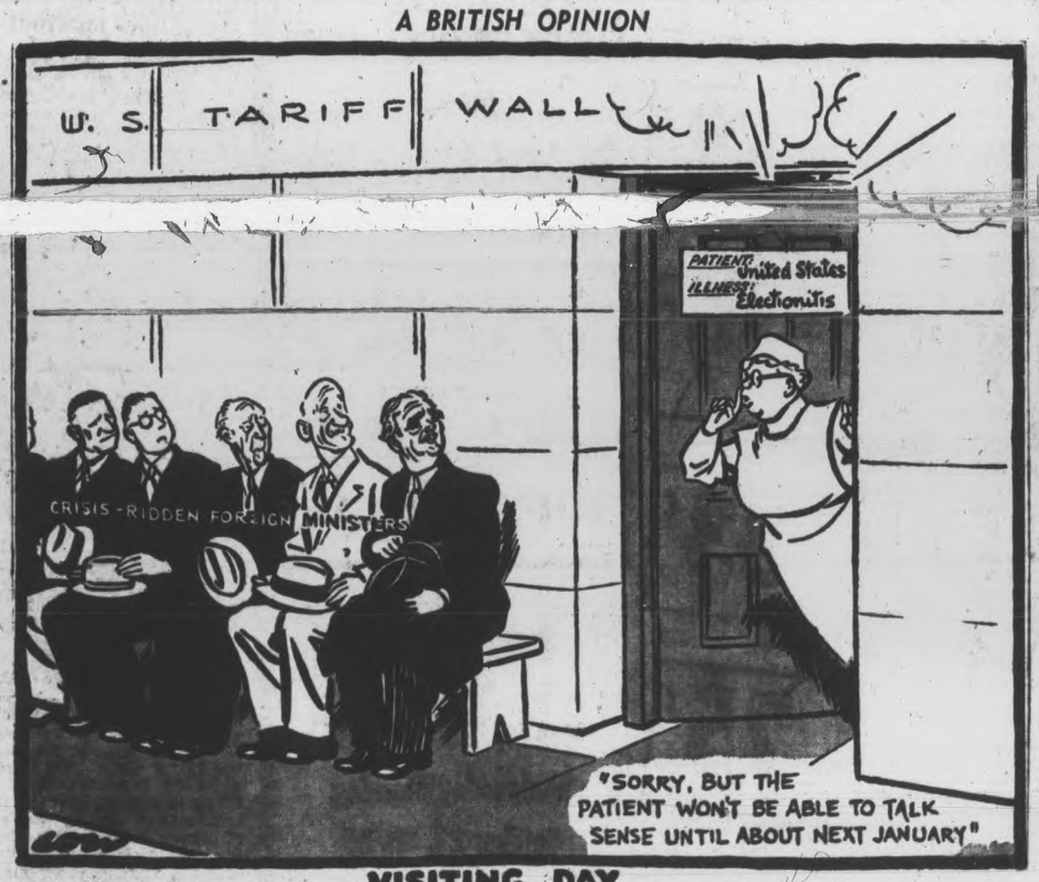
Those fellows who have been grinding out stories describing Northern Saskatchewan as the last frontier will have to eat their own mush now that the trappers up there have set aside 60 square miles for the exclusive use of women pelt-hunters. Whether this is a nice, chivalrous gesture or a device for preventing disputes over trap lines we don't know—or care. For whoever heard of such chivalry or such anxiety to avoid arguments in the unconquered wilderness Up until this happened not even the movie makers had been able to shake our conviction that a frontier was a place where men were men and women were scarcely tolerated.

Unconsidered Trifles

"Heard about Mrs. Green's bad luck?" said Mrs. Blobbs over the fence. "Her husband's run away, and what's more, he's robbed her of every penny she had."

"Well, I never!" gasped Mrs. Nobbs. "Poor dear! And she only married him because she was so scared of burglars!"

✧ ✧ ✧



Having bought a donkey from a friend, a coster took it out on his rounds. Almost at once it walked straight through a plate-glass window.

The next day, for a change, it trotted into a brick wall. By this time the coster was thoroughly annoyed, and went back to the man who had sold him the animal.

"Why didn't you tell me the donkey was blind?" he demanded.

"Oh, 'e ain't blind!" was the reply. "'E just don't give a darn!"

VISITING DAY

TURKISH OFFICERS—Capt. Hakam Hunker (extreme left) and Lieut. Adan Ozaktas (second from right) are the first Turkish Army officers to come to Canada under the N.A.T.O. training plan. They will attend the Canadian Army staff college early next year. At Army headquarters, Ottawa, they are briefed on Commonwealth medals and decorations by Capt. H. Evans (extreme right), officer in charge of honors and awards section. With them is Lt.-Col. Fazil Ciloglu (second from left), Turkish military attache.

Wood Has Host Of Products Forester Relates

Some 1,600 drugs—as well as paper, nylon and other valuable raw materials for manufacturing—are obtained from trees, Alex Kay of the Department of Lands and Forests told the Y's Men's Club Friday night.

Mr. Kay was speaking on conservation and habits of Ontario wild life. He described trees as "one of the greatest assets of our country".

Despite the value of this natural resource few Canadians can tell one tree from another, he said. Many don't even know the Sugar Maple which is the Canadian national emblem.

He drew chuckles from the Y's Men as he related some amusing aspects of bird life. For instance, the Sap Sucker in the spring sometimes mixes three different types of sap and the effect leaves him in a drunken stupor for days.

Mr. Kay was introduced by Woody Roberts and thanked by Jack Richardson. President Cec. Osborne was in the chair.

4,000 Storm Troopers Denounce Allied Troops

VERDEN, Germany (AP)—Four thousand former members of Hitler's S.S. (Elite Guard) cheered former General Hermann Ramcke here yesterday as he accused Allied soldiers of war crimes and demanded the release of all "so-called German war criminals."

(Reuters said Ramcke's speech was punctuated with shouts of "Eisenhower, filthy swine." Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was Supreme Allied Commander in Europe at the end of the Second World War.)

The S.S. troopers assembled in this 1,200-year-old city for their first big post-war reunion.

Ramcke, a paratroop general and one of the most popular German wartime leaders, told the S.S. men they had been fighting for their fatherland as well as any other German soldiers and that therefore, "all defamation of their honor must stop."

"All those allied officers and soldiers who bombed German cities are also war criminals," Ramcke said.

"If our soldiers are convicted as war criminals then it was also a war crime when the allies bombed unprotected German cities and when the allies now invent atom bombs," Ramcke said.

Houses Not Soldiers Needed To Fight Reds—German Says

By GEORGE BOULTWOOD

BONN, Germany (AP)—Chubby, pipe-smoking Erich Ollenhauer, 51, new leader of West Germany's powerful Socialist party, insists "a hundred new houses are worth more than a hundred soldiers" in defending Europe against communism.

With a national election coming up next year for the Bonn republic, Ollenhauer has pledged himself to a platform that puts German unity ahead of rearmament. First of all, he and his party want Germany re-united to "liberate" the 18,000,000 Germans under Soviet rule.

This, Ollenhauer says, must come before any pacts with the west which otherwise would perpetuate the division of the country.

If the Socialists win at the polls next summer, they intend to demand revision of whatever agreements have been signed meanwhile with the western powers and pull West Germany out of the Schuman Plan and Council of Europe.

OPPOSES ALLIANCE

Ollenhauer acknowledges that some form of western defence is necessary but rejects the present plan to bind the western part of Germany into an alliance with five other countries in a European army.

That arrangement does not give the Germans a big enough voice in strategic decisions, he says, and creates only "a little Europe."

"The world will only listen to a strong united and self-assertive Germany, he declares.

Thus Ollenhauer has taken over the "no, no, no" of his party hero, the late Kurt Schumacher. Comparisons between the new party chairman and fiery, embittered Schumacher are inevitable. Ollenhauer was Schumacher's faithful disciple and his deputy for five postwar years.

CHOSE EARLY

A plasterer's son, Ollenhauer was born in Magdeburg, now in the Soviet zone. He decided at 18 to be a politician. He joined the Socialist youth movement and became a cub reporter on the local Social Democrat paper. For 25 years he was general-secretary of the Socialist youth international.

Ollenhauer's outlook is more international than the average German Socialist's, largely because of his 13-year exile and his earlier travels to European capitals on youth work. Forced by the Nazis to quit Germany in 1933, he went to Prague with his wife and two sons.

INTERNED IN FRANCE

When Hitler menaced Czechoslovakia, the Ollenhauers had to leave. France was their haven until 1940 when they were interned. Leon Blum intervened and they were able to leave, crossing the Pyrenees on foot and reaching Britain via Lisbon.

In 1946 Ollenhauer returned to Germany and joined Schumacher in reviving the Social Democratic party. He backed his chief in resisting Soviet-inspired attempts to merge the Socialists and Communists in West Germany.

Although regarded as a moderate in the party, Ollenhauer is a traditional Marxist. At home he stands for the planned economy, welfare state, socialization of basic industry and more say for workers in management of big plants.

Stalin, Food and Vodka Cause Stir At Red Meetings

By DON DALLAS

LONDON (Reuters)—Stalin, food and vodka are topics that cause a big stir when Russia's top-drawer Communists meet in solemn session.

This conclusion emerges from a survey here of speeches at the recent Soviet Communist party congress in Moscow. The survey analyzed the extent of applause accorded the different speakers and the remarks which raised the cheers.

In each case the "applause" was inserted in brackets at strategic points of the speech by the Soviet news agency Tass.

THEY JUST HOLLER

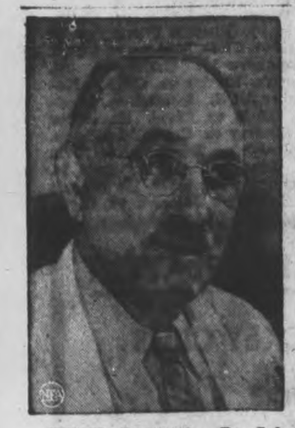
Tass has five main grades of applause: "applause," "stormy applause," "prolonged applause," "stormy and prolonged applause," and "prolonged, stormy applause, turning into an ovation."

The survey pictured the Kremlin chiefs mostly as a serious lot. But one or two of them raised laughs as well as cheers.

Most successful laugh-getter was [illegible] Mikoyen, for almost 20 years Russia's food chief. Mikoyen caused "stirring in the hall and laughter" with his remark that vodka production was slightly below the pre-war level and was increasing at a somewhat lower rate than that of beer.

Georgi Malenkov, who presented the keynote report, raised laughs only twice in his five-hour speech.

But he rated "applause" in one or other category 56 times—straight applause 12 times, stormy applause 12 times, prolonged applause 13 times and stormy and prolonged 19 times.



What about Stalin himself?

EVEN MORE HOLLERS

For him Tass reserves its supreme adjectives. As he advances to the rostrum, "The walls of the Kremlin palace shudder to the echoing hurrahs. Greetings are shouted in divers languages. . .The ovation, like an Alpine avalanche, grows and grows. It comes to an end only as the desire to hear Stalin's words becomes uppermost."

Stalin speaks for about 15 minutes. His first sentence gets [illegible] ing into an ovation. Thereafter he rates stormy applause eight times and prolonged applause twice. His speech ends with the words "down with the warmongers," and thereupon complete pandemonium breaks out.

NOBEL WINNER — Dr. Selman A. Waksman, faculty member of Rutgers University in New Brunswick, N.J., listens to the news that he has been awarded the 1952 Nobel Prize for physiology and medicine. The 64-year-old discoverer of streptomycin says his share of the $32,910.51 will go to research.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Peterborough athletes lost a good friend when Dr. D. W. Clark died suddenly of a heart attack Saturday. He was a kindly man and well liked. We talked with him and his doctor son, Ralph, about curling just a few days ago. Ralph, Al and Grant Clark were all good athletes in various sports, and their dad took a keen interest in such games as hockey, baseball, football and curling. When following hockey at the Brock St. rink for years, Dr. D. W. patched up many injured players and refused to take any money for it. "Nonsense," he'd say when offered pay, "I like to contribute something to amateur sports, too." Nor did he want a word of publicity on it. A very fine citizen and sportsman.

Girls' Basketball League at the Y. W. has commenced its season and will run there each Friday night with double-headers throughout the winter. The first half schedule is elsewhere. Lindsay edged Black's last Friday to open the loop, the game between St. Joseph's and Civic not being played. C. G.E. and Collis are the other entries in this classy circuit of colleen cagers. Players have been advised to wear boots if possible instead of shoes to prevent accidents. A fee of two dollars a team and registration cards must be filled in ere play. Each player must present a medical certificate by Nov. 5. Games go at 8:10 and 9:10, home team providing scorer and visiting team the timer. A contest not played as scheduled goes as a default.

Orfuns Near the Title

Those classy and well-matched grid squads, Orfuns and Ghosts staged a grand game in Cobourg on Saturday aft to end in a 6-6 draw. Meaning the Orfuns can grab group honors if they beat Oshawa here on Wednesday, since Cobourg has two loop losses now to Orfuns' one as the schedule ends. Jim Milligan gambled in the first quarter on a third down to toss a TD pass to Bus Jensen, with Armstrong converting. That was all the scoring then till late in the fourth when Don Hatt of the Gallopers faked a placement attempt and tossed a touchdown pass to Red Alexander, with Jones converting. 'Twas that even, though Orfs got the worst of the penalties by far, and Jack Matthews' kicking and Jim Milligan's passing gave Tony Kotowski's crew a little edge. Also some great line work and plunging. Both sides were brilliant in this important duel, and the Ghosts were plenty downhearted at the finish.

St. Mike's defeated St. Peter's seniors 16-6 in Toronto yesterday to even up their best-of-three Catholic Conference grid playoff series, next one being here at a later date. S. P. S. seemed tired from their game the previous day and played below form for three quarters. Also they weren't hep to the blocking rules used in this tilt. Day before at Morrow Park saw Johnny Lynch's seniors come up with a neat display to defeat the Oshawa Combines "A" club 28-20 and show they could compete in C.O.S.S.A. play this semester. O.C.V.I. were being beaten in junior group play 16-5 by St. Peter's when, with a few minutes to go, they sulked and walked off the field, claiming rough play. Next group game has S. P. S. vs. P. C. V. S. juniors at Riverside Wednesday aft.

Fine Showing By P. C. V. S.

Despite their fine showing and their handy win o'er Woodstock, the senior P.C.V.S. squad wasn't voted the Red Feather tourney title. As the Canadian Press remarks of the judging: "The trophy went to North Toronto Collegiate. Ted Reeve of the Tely commented Saturday: "Peterborough, a hard-driving team in white, and Woodstock, a burly band in red sweaters, were evenly matched everywhere but on the scoreboard as the Petes (what a sports town that is again!) struck suddenly for majors." Anyway, the Garnet and Grey turned in a terrific effort during the big tournament, and Bev Goulding's team has the distinction of being the only one to be in the Red Feather three of the four years it has been held.

A few puck items of local interest this busy morning. The T.V.L. pre-season series begins Nov. 5 and goes Wednesday nights at Civic Arena. Teams in are: Lakefield, Norwood, Hastings and Havelock, with the city players spread around. More on it tomorrow. As for the O.H.A. junior "B" group meeting Frank Buckland held here over the weekend, it looks like four teams will be in. Same set as last year, Peterborough Oddfellows, Kingston, Belleville and Lindsay, though the latter need a few more days to check into financial backing. No word received from Oshawa or from the Cobourg junior "C" club. Also, there was talk of arranging a single schedule interlocking with the Big Six junior "B" group of Toronto, but that's a doubtful angle. A tentative schedule was discussed for the four teams, with Lindsay opening here Nov. 7. Each team would play 26 games, four at home and four away against each team, plus an extra one at home and one away in the case of Lindsay vs. I.O.O.F., and with Belleville vs. Kingston. That's the info at the moment.

CURLING NOTES

By HERB MARTIN

When he will be [illegible] cease to have a friend,
The fans will long remember his greatness and his fame,
A clean, courageous sportsman and a credit to the game.
With the passing of Dr. D. W. Clark at the Civic Hospital on

When the late Dr. Clark came from Pontypool about 30 years ago, he immediately joined up with the curlers and as time went on he became very active in the club.

In none of his many community interests will he be more missed than by his friends in the curling fraternity. He was a keen curler and possessed a sound knowledge of the game.

In everything he did he commanded the respect and esteem of all with whom he came in contact.

He loved sport for sport's sake; he liked it clean and he played it clean; he was a great competitor; a gracious winner and a good loser.

The Curling Club has lost a faithful member; the city of Peterborough a worthy citizen; his family a loving husband and father, and we have lost a very dear friend.

The heartfelt sympathy of the club goes out to his widow and sons Ralph, Grant and Allen.

St. Peter's Win Two Frays From Oshawa

Down 16-5 with four minutes left to play, Oshawa C.V.I.'s football team was pulled off the field Saturday during their game with St. Peter's junior Saints, claiming too much rough play. The game will probably be recorded as a victory for the Saints who are driving towards a league playoff with Oshawa Central.

Meanwhile in the preliminary game St. Peter's High seniors with a tremendous second half drive walloped the Oshawa Collegiates' Combines 28-20. This was their first victory over an "A" team this season and indicates the growing power in the Saints' football.

From the kickoff in the junior game, the Saints took the lead as Gary Kearns placed them in scoring position. John Hickey went across on a quarterback sneak for the TD which went unconverted.

BOARD SHONE

Ron Board who figured prominently in the start of the first touchdown also started off the second major score minutes later. The Saints bogged down and Chambers kicked; the punt was fumbled by Oshawa and recovered by Board. Bob O'Rourke scored after several dives into the Oshawa line. The score was then 10-0.

The Saints rolled again in the second quarter after Kearns recovered a fumble. Masterson scored but the play was called back on a penalty to the Saints.

A bad snap which cost the Saints about 25 yards helped Oshawa to their only score. The Motor City crew took to the air and finally scored as Oldfield went over.

Another intercepted pass late in the third quarter helped the Saints score their final major in the fourth quarter. That interception nipped an Oshawa march. Hickey on quarter sneaks and a pass to Masterson swept the ball up the field until finally Chambers punted; the Saints recovered. Hickey set up the score on the last play of the third and on the second play of the fourth Kearns went over after O'Rourke carried to the one. Chambers converted.

SCORED FIRST

Coach Johnny Lynch's senior Saints drew first blood in their exhibition with Oshawa Combines. After a Saints' march featuring Richardson, Brioux and Snape, Ed Corkery smeared Harris in the end zone for the first point. But before the quarter ended Harris off a fake kick galloped were gone in the second quarter when Harris again fake-kicked successfully and again galloped across for another unconverted touchdown giving Oshawa a 10-1 lead. Harris also featured in the third Oshawa score. Harris again off a fake kick passed to Carnwith for the TD giving Oshawa a 15-1 halftime score.

Then the big rush started for the Saints. Gord Snape shortly after the half started went for a 45-yard jaunt, followed by a penalty to Oshawa. McGillen then scored on a pass from Richardson. But from the kickoff Pascoe romped 100 yards for another Oshawa TD for a 20-6 score.

Then the Saints started to rush and rush. Snape and Fitzpatrick combined to set up the Saints' second scoring play, Carl Brioux scoring and Richardson converting. Minutes later after a fumbling exchange the Saints rolled again, featuring a Richardson-to-Fitzpatrick pass, a Brioux run, and finally a Snape plunge to score. Richardson made the convert attempt good for a 20-18 third quarter score.

An Oshawa fumble in the fourth set the Saints rolling once more. Briuox started the ball rolling, followed by end runs, and a Snape plunge to the five-yard line where Brioux crossed over.

Brioux's hard tackle of the Oshawa quarter in the final minutes gave the Saints' an assurance TD, Fitzpatrick scoring after seesaw action.

A RECEIVING DUEL between John Seymour, of St. Mike's of Toronto, and Terry Fitzpatrick, of St. Peter's, took place in the Ontario Catholic Conference senior "B" game Sunday. Trying to overcome St. Mike's 16-6 score, the Saints in the final minute resorted to passes. Fitzpatrick (lower photo) receives the ball like a hot potato as Seymour (69) misses knocking it down. But Seymour on the final play intercepted the pass (top photo) meant for Fitzpatrick (25).—(Examiner Staff Photos).

St. Mike's Sew Up Series In Conference Play Beating St. Peter's, 16 To 6

St. Peter's High senior Saints lost their chance Sunday to sweep their best-of-three series for the Ontario Catholic Conference senior "B" title from St. Michael's College. St. Mike's after losing the first game several weeks ago, surged back in their home game Sunday to even the series one-all with a 16-6 victory. The final game will be played in Peterborough at a date to be announced shortly. Spiritless, the Saints allowed St. Mike's to run and pass at will for three quarters; they didn't show their fighting form until the game was lost in the fourth quarter.

Two main reasons for their loss was Saturday's exhibition with Oshawa Collegiate's Combines and Ontario Catholic Conference rules.

APPEARED TIRED

The Saints appeared tired from the start. They couldn't block or tackle; they were poor on plunges [illegible] to be on their way to overcoming the lead. But Foreman, a threat all afternoon, again broke loose, this time running in the clear for 55 yards for the final score. John Seymour ran the ball across for the point.

A last-minute Saints' passing attack carried to the St. Mike's five and there it ended with Seymour intercepting a pass in the final play.

LEAFS WIN PROTEST

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs Saturday won a protest against the officiating of referee George Gravel at Boston Oct. 16 when President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League ruled against an official for the first time.

The protest came after a stick-swinging incident between Tod Sloan and Leo Labine of Boston. Sloan received a five-stitch cut. Both men were given match penalties and $100 fines under the "attempt to injure" rule. The Toronto team claimed Labine should have been banished under the more serious "deliberate injury of an opponent" clause because of the injury.

ADDITIONAL SPORT

On Pages 7, 8

customed, paid off at the second half kickoff. Joe Foreman gathered the kick into his arms at the Toronto 10-yard line. Behind his blocking, he broke into the clear, going for another converted touchdown.

A third down gamble in the fourth quarter started the fighting Saints rolling back. Richardson on the third decided to run instead of kicking and wound up with a first down deep in St. Mike's territory. A pass from Richardson to Frank McGillen provided the major while Richardson converted for the sixth point.

North Toronto Awarded Red Feather Title With P.C.V.S. Prominent

By DON GRANT

The only consolation Bev Goulding's Peterborough Collegiate seniors had in their third trip to the Red Feather tournament Friday and Saturday was their first win. They were completely overlooked when judges decided the winner of the tournament of champions even though they played a standout game in defeating Woodstock Collegiate, W.O.S.S.A. representatives, 16-6. Although disappointed, the Garnet and Grey boys were not half as disappointed as the Rams from Etobicoke Collegiate. The Rams, led by Gerry Doucette, a triple-threat performer, ran rough-shod over Stamford's Orange and Black 26-0. Everyone of the practically 18,000 thought the Rams were Ontario's best but the Ted Reeve trophy went to North Toronto Collegiate.

ONE-SIDED TILT

Like Etobicoke, North Toronto also had an easy time. They, with a number of roughing penalties, whitewashed the Scollard Hall team from North Bay, the N.O.S.S.A representatives, 23-0. Even then the North Toronto squad didn't appear as strong, both offensively and defensively, as the Rams.

But the first place went to North Toronto with the Rams a close second.

These selections didn't cause the disappointment of the Garnet and Grey; it was the third and fourth selections, St. Patrick's of Ottawa and Hamilton Westdale. The Saints edged Westdale 7-6 in the second game Friday night.

On Friday night after the games a number of football scribes argued the evening's best, first giving the Garnet and Grey a slight edge. But after further examination they gave both Westdale and St. Patrick's the edge, because the Garnet and Grey lacked depth, steadier passing (they attempted only five, completing two) and had only mediocre punting. The judges apparently saw it the same way.

GAVE THEM A LINE

The tournament gave the Garnet and Grey a chance to see the Stamford Hornets who they'll probably be playing on November 15 for the C.O.S.S.A. championship. What the Garnet and Grey saw they liked.

Minus most of last year's star seniors, the Hornets have a fair line and poor backfield; their kicking is excellent. The Stamford line saved the Hornets from a greater disaster Saturday night against the Rams. The offence was terrible; they couldn't make any headway, and were rescued throughout by the punting.

Unless the P.C.V.S. become too over-confident, the C.O.S.S.A. title and trophy quite likely will stay in P.C.V.S. this season.

Red Feather Tickles: Two St. Catharines sisters thrilled the large crowds both nights with trick baton whirling, they were outstanding; a large Irish setter puppy had a gay time on Friday night running across the field during games, once providing perfect blocking for Woodstock; the Royal Regiment band, De La-Salle, East York and other Toronto school bands supplied musical background both nights; six-man football was featured at half-time; the running competition was won by Hamilton Cathedral, and passing by Belleville; Big Four officials handled the P.C.V.S.-Woodstock game, and at times were rather tough; Garnet and Grey train carried more than 300 to the game.

Orfuns Tie The Ghosts 6-6; Must Defeat Oshawa To Capture League Crown

Saturday's intermediate "A" football struggle between Orfuns and Ghosts in Cobourg lived up to expectations, winding up in a 6-6 deadlock in a swell scrap before a huge crowd. As a result, the Peterborough squad must play out its schedule and must defeat Oshawa Raiders here Wednesday to take the group title and proceed into O.R.F.U. intermediate "A" playdowns. If they do this, Cobourg will take the "B" playdown trail. If Oshawa beats Orfuns, then Cobourg and Orfuns will be tied again with two losses each—and would have to stage a playoff for league laurels.

SUDDEN BREAK

Victory seemed certain Saturday for the Kotowski crew after a touchdown in the first quarter, following a steady downfield drive culminating in a TD pass to Bus Jensen. But a sudden break late in the fourth put Cobourg up on even terms after Orfuns had held them well for about 50 minutes. A blocked kick gave Ghosts possession 14 yards out and, after a pass and plunge failed, they faked a field goal attempt but wily Don Hatt threw a major pass to Red Alexander, and Art Jones booted the convert.

Don McGillis ran Hatt's first hoop to the 15 and Wilde advanced to his 30 on a reverse. They fumbled then but drove once more on a reverse by Wilde, 12-yard buck by Bill Huntley, handoff to Roy Armstrong and another Huntley plunge. The versatile and unpredictable Jim Milligan then threw a 30-yard pass to Clive Naismith to settle the pigskin on the [illegible] Cobourg line then held. Milligan gambled on third down as he faded back and tossed a lovely cross-field floater behind the line, and it was snared securely by Bus Jensen for a try, which Armstrong converted.

AN EVEN GAME

Nearly 50 minutes of scoreless football followed, some grand play being served up by the smart and well-matched squads. There were sudden thrusts, end sweeps and passes, but the opposing lines turned in almost stonewall defences. Jack Matthews and Don Hatt dished up a thrilling punting duel, with honors slightly in favor of the former. At times he kicked into touch to relieve pressure.

Though generally clean, the tilt was marred by 10 penalties, seven to the Petes, as officials ruled strictly. A roughing penalty on Matthews' kick to Alexander in the third put Orfuns back 25 yards to their 17 and it looked grim. Don McGillis saved the day as he intercepted Hatt's pass back of the line and ran it out to the 10 with Matthews booting the ball well down the field to end the quarter.

PENALTIES COSTLY

Lost yardage on Orfuns' three roughing penalties, two for interference, a trip and an offside totalled about 100 yards against only 30 Cobourg lost. Orfuns completed four of nine passes, one for a major, as Ghosts clicked on but two of 19 attempts, one for a bull's-eye.

Defensively Peterborough shone to a man. Much credit for the display must go to Gord Beatty, Frank Fitzgerald, Floyd Ouelette, Moe Fraser, John Berry, Rocky DeCarlo, Reg Burns, Joe Berthelot, Al Beavis, Don McGillis, Naismith, Lou Nickle, White, Bounce Howe, Bill Trimm, Bev Groves, Bill Thompson, McIntyre, Beak Bartley, Johnny Giadino, and John Conlin.

Orfuns' lack of offensive power in the low-scoring game was mainly due to an equally stubborn defence thrown up by the Ghosts, featuring such stalwarts as Bill Jarvis, Homer Seale, Jake Edmiston, Jack Reeves, Vic Garvin, John Brodie, Ri Holman and Art Jones. They all turned in a nifty chore, and that equalizing touchdown on the fake placement in the fourth quarter was as brilliant a piece of work as was Orfuns' touchdown earlier on third-down passing gamble. Cobourg have

Teams:

Orfuns — Flying wing, Wilde; halves, Jensen, Matthews, Armstrong; quarter, Milligan; snap, Newark; insides, Howe, Ouelette; middles, Beatty, Fitzgerald; outsides, D. McGillis, Naismith; alternates, White, Trimm, DeCarlo, Hodson, Huntley, Burns, McIntyre, Berthelot, Beavis, Giardino, Thompson, Fraser, Berry, Bartley, Groves, Conlin, Russell, Nickle.

Stunned Red Wings Take 2 Weekend Losses; Bow To Canadiens 9-0

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

What happened to Detroit Red Wings? Tommy Ivan's National Hockey League champions took two stunning defeats during the weekend just when they seemed well on the way to a repeat performance as league champions. The Wings took what might be the worst beating in club history Saturday night, a 9-0 loss to Montreal Canadiens, then, to cap probably their blackest weekend in history, went down 3-2 Sunday before the lowly New York Rangers. It was New York's first victory in seven games.

In other games, Boston Bruins trounced Joe Primeau's in-and-out Toronto Maple Leafs 4-0 Saturday while Bruins and Chicago Black Hawks played to a 1-1 Sunday tie at Chicago.

Detroit's defeats dropped them to third place, one point behind Chicago. The high-flying Canadiens swept into first place with 10 points, one ahead of the Hawks.

The Hawks' deadlock was their second consecutive tie. Jim McFadden rapped in a first-period tally to put the Hawks ahead, then Johnny Peirson took a Jerry Toppazzini-Jack McIntyre pass for the equalizer.

STODDARD STARS

At New York, Jack Stoddard swatted home two rebounds, the final one giving Rangers their win. Most of the action took place in the second period of the bruising contest.

Stoddard started it with less than four minutes remaining by ticking home Nick Mickoski's rebound. Seconds later the Wings' Gordie Howe grabbed a short pass from Red Kelly near the red line, swung around defenceman Jim Ross and scorched the puck past Gump Worsley in the New York nets.

Rangers went in front soon after when Herb Dickenson slapped home Hy Buller's rebound. Stoddard clinched the struggle shortly after the start of the final period. Hard-working Terry Sawchuk, who made 37 saves, cleared a Jim Conacher shot only to have Stoddard bang the rebound into the left side of the net.

The furious Detroit attack yielded another goal. After Ted Lindsay missed the open net, Alex Delvecchio poked one home with only four minutes left. In the final minute, Howe almost tied it up but Worsley made a fine stop of a blazing shot.

HABS SHOW HOW

An amazed but happy Montreal crowd of 14,538 saw their Canadiens slaughter the Wings Saturday night in what was believed to be the worst defeat ever suffered by Sawchuk. It was goalie Gerry McNeil's first shutout of the season.

Floyd Curry and Dick Gamble each tallied twice. Singletons went to Tom Johnston, Maurice Richard, Bernie Geoffrion, Billy Reay and Bert Olmstead.

Richard's counter sent his all-time N.H.L. total to 322, only two short of the record held by Nels Stewart, former player with the old Montreal Maroons, Boston Bruins and New York Americans. Sawchuk held out 36 of the 45 shots fired at him.

The other whitewashing, a dull affair before 13,397 partisan Toronto fans, gave Boston goalie Jim Henry his first shutout of the young season. The awkward Bruins had a little too much on the ball for the Leafs as they counted one goal in the second period and three in the third.

Johnny Peirson scored the second-period marker while Joe Klukay, traded to the Bruins in the off-season, came back to haunt his former teammates with two goals. Dave Creighton added another. Sugar Jim kicked out 23 shots against 30 for Harry Lumley of the listless Leafs.

Leafs lost left winger Howie Meeker, carried out in a stretcher after he crashed into the boards in the second period. He was taken to hospital with back and head injuries.

Zatopek Breaks Three Records

VIENNA, Austria (Reuters)—Prague Radio reported that Czech marathon runner Emil Zatopek broke three long distance world records yesterday.

Running in a track meet at Houstka, near Prague, the Olympic champion knocked off the marks for 15 miles, 25 kilometres and 30 kilometres. The records were all set during the same run, timekeepers ticking them off as Zatopek circled the track lap after lap.

The Czech Communist radio foreshadowed Zatopek's great performance in a broadcast Friday. A broadcast quoted the runner as having pledged himself to set the records in honor of being recently granted a Communist party card.

Zatopek's times, with existing recognized records in brackets:

15 miles—1:16:26.4 (1:17:28.6).

25 kilometres (about 15¾ miles)—1:19:21.8 (1:20:14.9).

30 kilometres (about 19 miles)—1:35:23.8 (1:38:54.9).

St. Michael's Takes Biltmores For 5-1 Beating

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

St. Michael's Majors are taking all comers in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A battle.

Their latest victims are the player-shy Guelph Biltmores who absorbed a 5-1 beating in Toronto Sunday. Four of the Bilts' best players are still up with New York Rangers of the National Hockey League.

While the Majors climbed steadily toward top spot in the Ontario section, Galt Black Hawks had a rough time on their trip through Quebec. Saturday night they edged Three Rivers Reds 6-5 but Sunday took a 6-3 shellacking from Quebec Citadels. That gives them a won-lost record of two and two for their Quebec trip.

NEW COACH NAMED

A new coach was announced for Toronto Marlboros as they defeated Windsor Spitfires 4-2 in Toronto. Reg Hamilton took over after Buck Houle had a slight heart attack during a game Friday night.

Saturday night Windsor Spitfires lost 5-1 in Oshawa while Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts moved into St. Catharines and trimmed the Teepees 4-2.

Montreal Canadiens took first place alone in the Quebec section by downing Three Rivers Reds 4-2 last night.

GALT, BARRIE ON TOP

As a result of weekend action the Ontario Junior A standing is studded with ties. Galt and Barrie are on top with 11 points each. St. Micael's and Guelph are third with nine. Kitchener is fifth with eight and St. Catharines and Marlboros follow with seven each. Oshawa has five and Windsor one.

Bob Attersley, Don McBeth, Gerry Horton, Jack Armstrong and Bill Stewart each scored one for Oshawa Saturday while Alger Arbour scored the only one for the winless Windsorites.

Kitchener goal-getters Saturday were Orv Tessier, Jack Higgins, Graham Joyce and Len Croke. Brian Cullen scored both St. Catharine markers.

At the Toronto Sunday afternoon doubleheader both home teams won. Guelph's flashy Ron Murphy gave his club a 1-9 lead late in the first period. But Jack Caffery, Marc Reaume and Murray Costello fired three for St. Micahel's within two minutes in the second to give them a lead that was never shaded. Third period goals by Ed Plata and Costello clinched the result.

In the Windsor-Marlboro game Gerry James put Marlies ahead 1-0 early in the second but Gaston Marcotte made it 1-1 before the session ended. Parker MacDonald put Marlboros ahead in the third, Tom McCarthy made it 3-1 and Billy Harris finished off the Toronto scoring. Lou Dietrich added one more for Windsor.

ROUGH GAME

In the Galt-Three Rivers game Saturday nine majors were handed out. Ken Wharram and Ed Switzer scored two goals each for the visitors while others went to Art White and Jim McBurney.

Raymond St. Cyr scored three goals for Three Rivers, one in the first and two in the third, while Jean Leclerc and Michelin scored the others.

Sunday in Quebec City the Citadels had little trouble in defeating Galt. Camille Henri paced the Quebec attack with a pair of goals while singles went to Miche Labadie, Gerard Houle, Adolph Kukulowicz and Robert Chevalier. Ed Switzer scored two for the lost cause and Neil McDonald rapped in the other.

In the only All-Quebec game Montreal Canadiens trimmed Three Rivers. It was an even battle until the third period when Montreal broke a 1-1 tie. Guy Rousseau, Les Lilley, Ronald Pilon and Phil Goyette scored for the Canadiens while Gerard Bergeron and Roger Dubec were the Reds' goal-getters.

Owen Sound Pastes Tabbies In 13-2 Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Ontario Hockey Association Senior A race is only two days and six games old so there aren't enough points to go around.

The teams did their best to spread them around during the weekend and everybody got two but the hapless Hamilton Tigers.

Saturday night saw every team in action but Brantford. Owen Sound Mercurys took advantage of a lack-lustre effort by Hamilton to paste the Tabbies 13-2.

Other Saturday night action saw two contests go into overtime. Sarnia scored two overtime goals to take Stratford 3-1 and Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen also scored two in an extra period to win 5-3 from Chatham St. Clair Maroons.

So with six games completed Friday and Saturday, Owen Sound, Chatham, Stratford, Brantford, Sarnia and Kitchener have two points each with none for Hamilton.

SIX FOR FORSLUND

The Mercurys' Buck Forslund scored two goals in the first 41 seconds of the game with Hamilton at Owen Sound, then went on to pile up another four before the final whistle. Bill McComb came up with a four-goal effort and Bill Allum, Andy Grant and Roy Leckie got singles.

Stan Divinski and Bill Hammond scored for Tigers.

In Sarnia the Sailors battled Stratford Indians for two scoreless periods before Rolly Beauchamp put Sarnia one up early in the third. Five minutes later playing coach Pat Wilson of Stratford forced the game into overtime. Overtime markers were scored by Jim Wilson and Harry O'Connor.

Kitchener-Waterloo spotted the Maroons a first-period 1-0 lead, then overhauled them in the second to take a single goal margin. Chatham tied it 3-3 in the third.

Bill Mitchell scored both overtime goals, one into an open net, plus one other. Howie Lee scored both the others for the Dutchmen.

Ernie Dick, Guy Celletto and Joe Carveth tallied for the Maroons.

Everybody said it couldn't happen, but. . .

Edmonton Eskimos astounded the Canadian sports world Saturday night with an almost-unbelievable comeback to smash Calgary Stampeders 30-7, wipe out a 19-point first-game deficit and advance to the Western Football finals by a 42-38 margin in the home-and-home total-point union final series. The Stamps won the opener 31-12.

The experts also found it hard to believe, but. . .

Montreal Alouettes, the winless wonders of the Big Four, put the foot back into football Sunday and practically kicked out a 21-18 decision—their first in 10 starts—over the league-leading and not-so-ferocious Hamilton Tiger-Cats. They did it by the simple method of restoring the almost-forgotten kicking—or even trying—placements.

Those were the highlights of a weird and wonderful week-end of senior football on Eastern and Western gridirons and will live long in a memory of fans.

ARGOS WIN TOO

And nudging these games for attention was the 20-14 triumph Toronto Argonauts ground out over Ottawa Rough Riders, defending Grey Cup Champions, at Toronto. The loss just about sent Riders into the also-ran category in big four play.

Only a combination of fantastic circumstances could send Riders into the union playoffs with Tiger-cats who have first place tucked in their hip pockets. They are: a double Rider victory over Hamilton and a double Argonaut loss to the Als in the two remaining games of the schedule.

The Edmonton game, played before a crowd of 16,000, was a tremendous comeback thriller that left the partisan fans a screaming, yelling mob. A touchdown by Vancouver-born Rod Pantages in the last three minutes sent the Stampeders to their dressing-room in disbelief.

Eskimos painstakingly whittled down the huge Calgary lead on five converted touchdowns—two each in the second and third quarters and the game-winning plunge from the one-yard line by Pantages who, ironically enough, helped Calgary to its upset 12-7 Grey Cup victory over Ottawa in 1948.

The Stampeders were leading 38-36 on the series and it appeared that they would hold out the gallant Eskimos to advance into the best-of-three finals against Winnipeg Blue Bombers. Then the Eskimos raced downfield and on the sixth play the one-time Stampeder bulled through centre.

ONE LAST TRY

The Stamps gave it one desperate try. The gun sounded as Davie West missed a long pass from quarter Keith Spaith in the Eskimo end zone.

"The officiating stunk the joint out," was Les Lear's comment after the game. The Calgary coach apparently referred to some confusion in the second quarter when the officials gave Calgary the ball in their own territory, ruling that Edmonton captain Rollin Prather was an ineligible receiver on a pass. After a huddle they gave it back to Eskimos and two plays later the Eskimos scored a major.

Big Ed Salem kicked three placements in the Al's victory over Tiger-Cats, his last breaking an 18-18 deadlock for the only point-scoring in the fourth quarter. He booted them from 45, 36 and 31 yards out. Salem also kicked two converts for a total of 11 points—more than half Montreal's total.

Ottawa's hopes of keeping their playoff chances alive were shattered in the back-fire of an intercepted pass. The forward was tossed by Rough Rider quarter Tom O'Malley from behind his own goal line and in five plays Argonauts scored the winning touchdown.

Riders led 6-0 at the end of the first quarter and went into the second half with an 11-7 edge. They made it 13-7 early in the third, but Argonauts, who had a habit of falling apart in the final 30 minutes earlier in the season, roared ahead to victory.

SARNIA WINS TITLE

The other senior games went about as the experts figured.

Sarnia Imperials won their second straight Ontario Rugby Football Union championship with a 35-0 shutout over Brantford Redskins. Johnny Chorestecki, hard-driving half, plunged over for three touchdowns and kicked four converts to pace the champions.

Toronto Balmy Beach, runner-up to Imperials, defeated Oshawa of the Intermediate O.R.F.U. 18-10 in an exhibition game. This was arranged when Windsor Royals, winless since 1950 in Senior competition, dropped out of the union last week.

BACK AS TI-CAT—Ralph Toohy, five years a starry end with Alouettes, went back yesterday with the only once-beaten Hamilton team. Toohy is playing in defensive roles for Carl Voyles. He stands a good chance to get into the Grey Cup gala again. However, they were beaten by Montreal Sunday for the Alouettes' first win this year.

Placements Make Thrilling Play In Weekend College Games

By CRAIG SWAYZE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

They can't say the college boys have forgotten how to play football the Canadian way. Saturday's two Senior Intercollegiate Union games proved it in a thrilling demonstration that the foot hasn't disappeared from the Rah Rah League's brand of football.

Placement kicks, the traditional three-point efforts, were deciding factors in each of the colorful interscholastic clashes. Successful, three brought victory in one game. Veering wide, another turned what might have been victory into defeat in the second tussle.

Ray Truant, a 21-year-old Windsor boy, split the posts three times at London to provide Western Mustangs with their margin of victory in a 16-9 show against McGill Redmen. In Kingston, fleet footed Bill Bewley kicked one of his own and then gathered in a Queen's effort which went wide to gallop 125 yards for the biggest part of the University of Toronto Blues 9-1 edge over Golden Gaels.

McGILL IN EARLY LEAD

Truant's three placements came after McGill had taken a 9-6 second-quarter lead.

Geoff Crain pounded off a 77-yard opening-period touchdown for the Redmen with Fred Wilmot converting, but Cam Church bulled across from the one and Gino Fracas converted to deadlock the issue midway through the second session. Then Wilmot booted a placement of his own to give the visitors their brief edge.

From there on in it was all Western as Truant tied the score with a 21-yard effort and gave the Mustangs a 12-9 lead from the McGill 27, both placements coming before the half. A 31-yard boot in the fourth quarter finished Truant's nine-point afternoon and Bud Obal kicked a single for the final Western point.

Queen's thrilled a capacity homecoming week-end crowd with a strong first-quarter attack which netted them a 1-0 lead on Brian Timmis' kick to the dead line. However, Bill Bewley booted Varsity into a 3-1 half-time edge with a 32-yard second-quarter placement.

The play that broke the Tricolor attack and turned what might have been victory into defeat came a few seconds after the beginning of the final quarter.

Tricolor captain Jackie Roberts had broken into the clear at the Queen's 26 to go all the way to the Varsity 18 on the final play of the third period. The attack stalled on the Toronto 10 and the Gaels decided to try for the field goal.

Ball kicked, but the effort was wide and the same Bewley gathered in the ball deep in his end zone and was pounding his way down the touch line towards the Queen's goal line before the majority of the fans realized what had happened. He went all the way without a Queen's player touching him and to add insult to injury, converted his touchdown for the 9-1 final.

T.C.S. Wins 24-23 Over St. Andrew's

PORT HOPE—Trinity College School kept their title hopes alive in Little Big Four football as they edged a much bigger and stronger St. Andrew's College crew, 24-23, here Saturday. If the TCS can beat Ridley College at Varsity Stadium on Friday, they will force either a two or three-way tie for the title. TCS are the present champions.

Victory was costly for the Port Hope team, as they lost three of their best men—tackle Johnny Bonnycastle, flying wing John Yale, and tackle Tony Higgins.

A missed convert was the margin in the game, as flying wing Crosby booted a good one for St. Andrews after John Ramsell's touchdown, but had it nullified by a holding penalty.

Each team scored four touchdowns to provide the fans with enough excitement. The play was wide open most of the way, and both lines performed well. St. Andrew's line was bigger, but slower than the TCS line. While TCS were outweighed they had much more speed.

It was see-saw all the way.

A Gordon to Yale touchdown pass for TCS was evened by a 75-yard run by Albury for a SAC touchdown. John Board of TCS and Cooper of SAC scored a touchdown each before the half.

TCS again went ahead as Gordon scored on a quarterback sneak but Ramsell paid off on an SAC march with the first of his two majors. Doug Gordon scored the tying touchdown after TCS moved down the field. Gordon converted.

FLYERS GET TWO MEN

BARRIE (CP)—Barrie Flyers, current leaders in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A race, have acquired two new players.

Jim Robertson, an 18-year-old left-winger, comes to Barrie from St. Catharines Teepees and indirectly, Windsor Spitfires. Robertson was sent to Windsor by St. Catharines but did not want to play in the border city. He received permission from Windsor to play for Barrie provided Flyers would meet the Windsor asking price, which they did.

Windsor had a change of heart on the matter but the question was taken to the O.H.A. and Robertson was given permission to go to Barrie.

Gillie Boisvert, a goalkeeper from Montreal Canadiens, comes to the Flyers on a trial basis. He was formerly with Three Rivers Reds of the Quebec Junior League.

GRANITES VS IRONS

MONTREAL (CP)—The Canadian branch of the Royal Caledonian Curling Club, governing body in Eastern Canada, Saturday decided to put to a vote the matter of granites versus irons for the Governor-General's Trophy.

The trophy, top doubles event in Canada is one of the few remaining irons events. The Jubilee trophy is another.

A spokesman for the branch said competing clubs will be asked to vote on the matter, but that irons will be used again this year.

35 HORSES KILLED

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Approximately 35 valuable thoroughbred horses perished last night in a fire that destroyed a 50-stall barn at Douglas Park, one-time race track used now for training and stabling race horses. Officials at Churchill Downs, owner of the track, estimated damage at $120,000, to $140,000 based on approximate value of $3,000 to $4,000 for each horse. They said no big-name horses were in the barn.

There now are 52 probables for the race.

Canada Sending 4-Man Team To Competition

TORONTO (CP)—Canada will send a four-member team to the 1953 world figure-skating championships at Davos, Switzerland Feb. 7-15, it was announced yesterday.

The skaters, chosen at the annual meeting of the governing council of the Canadian Figure-Skating Association, have had previous international experience, including this year's world championships at Paris, and the Oslo, Norway, Olympic games. All from Toronto, they are:

Suzanne Morrow, 21, who placed fourth in the world event and sixth in the Olympics. She will compete in the women's senior singles.

Peter Firstbrook, 18, seventh in the world and fifth in the Olympics. He is the country's representative in the men's singles competition.

Frances Dafoe, 22, and Norris Bowden, 25, who teamed up to take a fourth in the world and a fifth in the Olympics. They will compete in the senior pairs.

Miss Morrow is the veteran of the team. She placed 14th in the ladies' singles and was third with Wally Diestelmeyer of Kitchener in the 1948 Olympic games at St. Moritz, Switzerland.

The C.F.S.A. decided the Canadian 1953 championships will be at Ottawa Feb. 26-27-28.

The Northern Ontario sectional championships will be at the Sudbury figure skating club, Sudbury, early in March.

D. J. Deyell, North Bay, was elected an officer of the Association.

Providence Gets Two Victories

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The league-leading Providence Reds retained their position atop the American Hockey League during the weekend, two victories in as many games being enough to turn the trick.

Providence, unbeaten this season now has nine points, one more than the second-place St. Louis Flyers who also toow their weekend games, defeating Pittsburgh Hornets 4-2 Saturday and Cleveland Barons 6-3 Sunday.

The Reds blanked Syracuse Warriors 2-0 Saturday and defeated the same team 5-2 Sunday.

In the other Sunday game, Hershey Bears outscored Buffalo Bisons 3-1. The Bears dropped a 2-0 decision at Hershey Saturday night.

General Staff Bounces To Victory In Pimlico

BALTIMORE (AP) — General Staff, pride of the racing stable of Larry S. MacPhail, bounced to a front-running victory over One Hitter Saturday in a two-horse Pimlico Special and got back the $25,000 his owner paid for him just three years ago.

The Pimlico Special, being run for the 16th time, was just a romp for the four-year-old son of Mahmoud-Uvira II, as he easily turned back One Hitter's attempt to win his second Special for the Greentree Stable of Jock Whitney and his sister, Mrs. Charles Shipman Payson.

The winner took the lead soon after the start of the 1 3-16-mile race and stayed there for a 2¼-length victory. Glen Lasswell rode General Staff. Ted Atkinson was on One Hitter.

[illegible] — Charlie Norkus, Bayonne, N.J., heavyweight, literally drove Tommy Harrison to the canvas in the ninth round in Providence, R.I. The Los Angeles light-heavy got up to win a split 10-round decision.

McMaster Clips OAC Aggies 44-1 In Exhibition Tilt

HAMILTON (CP)—Sparked by the 23-point performance of Jimmy Dodds, McMaster University Marauders walloped Ontario Agricultural College Aggies 44-1 in an exhibition football game here Saturday.

The Marauders, seeking a berth in the Senior Intercollegiate Union, plastered the Guelph team with a 27-1 first-half lead and then "laid off" in the final 30 minutes.

Completing 16 of 29 passes the Marauders moved 320 yards in the air and didn't suffer an interception. O.A.C. completed four of 12 pass attempts and had four interceptions.

Dodds, 20-year-old back, scored four touchdowns and kicked three converts. Other Mac touchdowns were scored by Wimp Crawford, Paul Shannon, Tom Piper and Al Kocman. Danny Pugliese caught a pass to convert Kocman's major.

The Aggies—missing Dave Francis and Wayne Gerrie, two backfield aces—whipped the Macs 59-0 in intermediate intercollegiate action. This was a revenge game.

ZALESKI BREAKS FINGER

Storage Bins All Filled Grain Piled On Ground

By GRAHAM TROTTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Great golden pyramids dot the flat prairie landscape these autumn days as western farmers put the finishing touches to a record harvest. They have piled on the ground thousands upon thousands of bushels of grain for which there is no immediate storage space.

The West probably never has seen so much grain piled on the ground in a single crop year.

Farmers reaped their grain at a break-neck pace. Modern, high-speed machines which cut, thresh and load all at the same time made harvesting a far cry from the horse-and-buggy days when the harvest lingered far into November.

SET DIZZY PACE

Country elevator and terminal storage facilities and the movement of 50,000 railway box-cars could not keep up with this great volume of grain being harvested faster than ever before.

More than half the country elevators in Saskatchewan and Alberta, Canada's two biggest grain-producing provinces, were reported filled or nearly so when about half of the grain still remained to be harvested.

The big carry-over of grain from the two previous crop seasons, due to damaging frost and early snow, and the near-strike of grain handlers at the Lakehead contributed to the storage squeeze which found many farmers in the middle with a big crop and no place to store it.

Every conceivable farm-storage space—ranging from granaries and emergency field bins to spare bedrooms and haylofts—was rapidly plugged. Some was even stored in empty town buildings.

After farmers had made their allowed deliveries to country elevators and ran out of storage bins, they dumped grain on the ground as fast as trucks could take it from combines and threshing machines.

CUTTING LESS RISKY

As one Southern Alberta farmer put it: "When you've got a 40-bushel-to-the-acre wheat crop standing in the field you figure it's better to take the risk of cutting it than letting it be buried in snow."

The farmers won't lose much by leaving grain on the ground over the winter, as long as it is piled right. Generally, the loss is not more than one grade and in volume not more than one per cent at the most.

The harvest picture was sensational. It was estimated that in Saskatchewan 1,000,000 bushels were harvested daily when the weather was right—and it was for the most part.

In the Hussar district 60 miles northeast of Calgary, a group of farmers mustered 85 men and a parade of 23 combines to sweep up crops covering some 14,000 acres.

INITIAL RETURNS SMALL

The crop is big but farmers aren't splashing money around. It is more of a potential wealth, with cash returns coming in progressively as the grain is marketed. Initial returns to farmers are comparatively small because of restricted delivery quotas at the start and staggered payments on wheat.

Some farmers with bumper crops now have more bills than cash. For instance, an Alberta farmer allowed to deliver five bushels of wheat an acre would get about $1.20 an acre in return for No. 3 wheat, about the average. Yet he would pay an average of $3 or $4 an acre if someone else harvested his crop or if he had only one combine and needed more.

Many farmers have hit the jackpot with wheat production this year. They have 20,000 to 40,000 bushels of high-quality wheat on the farms but they can draw hardly a dollar on it now.

Those farmers who hauled their delivery quota of five bushels an acre before line elevators became clogged found that returns came nowhere near meeting harvesting costs. The few unable to deliver any of their quota and who now find their line elevator unable to accept more wheat are in an even worse predicament.

"We have to live on our reputation and our bills are piling up," commented one farmer.

Regard Souris River Valley As 'Hot Spot' For Oil

ESTEVAN, Sask. (CP)—When Estevan's ship comes in the border town's 4,000 residents confidently expect that it will be fully laden with a cargo of light oil.

The ship is strictly dream-boat stuff but the oil is no pipe dream.

Oil "hot spot" of the prairie is a phrase that reverberates up and down the Souris River Valley and echoes back from the Williston basin.

Mayor Harry Nicholson says "oil prospects in the Estevan area look good." Along Main Street casual conversation will not get far before somebody talks of a derrick, sinks a deep-test well and from there on the discussion wades through a sea of oil—Estevan's sea.

IN WILLISTON BASIN

How come all this optimism? Well, it's part geography, part geology, the favorable circumstance of an old ocean bed and the fact that promising discoveries of oil have been made in territory adjacent to and geologically associated with the Estevan terrain.

Estevan is in the Williston basin. Some 300,000 square miles of this basin run through Montana, North and South Dakota, Manitoba and Saskatchewan. American oil experts have said that this ancient sea channel may prove the biggest of all United States oil fields.

The picture is shaping up that way. At Tioga, N.D., some 55 miles south of Estevan, there now are about 50 commercial wells producing light oil. Other discoveries have been made in North Dakota within 30 miles of Estevan.

Interesting things are also happening on the Canadian side of the border. At Ratcliffe, some 40 miles west of Estevan, test drilling is going ahead in expectation of finding the light-oil zone that proved to be so productive in the Tioga-Williston area of North Dakota.

A small amount of light oil has been found at shallow depth near Tilston, Man., 90 miles northeast of Estevan and in the basin area.

OIL LEASES UP

Oil leases in the Estevan area, which once went for 10 cents an acre, now have reached a high of $25 an acre. The town holds mineral rights on 105 acres for which it turned down $25 an acre for oil-lease rights. This property is one of the few parcels of freehold land in the area still unleased.

Oil leases at Ratcliffe now are going for as high as $65 an acre. Recently, a farmer of the Torquay district 25 miles west of Estevan was offered $30 an acre plus a bonus of $150,000 if oil was found on his property. He turned down the offer.

Farmers are being made tempting offers for oil leases and mineral rights but, with good grain crops this year, they are not rushing to grab the offers. Those who let their acreage go for as little as 10 cents a few years ago now are regretting their haste.

One farmer in the Crosby, N.D., area 28 miles southwest of Estevan reported he had received $50 an acre for his section of land. Others in North Dakota are reported getting as high as $350 an acre.

Red Diplomat Suffering Severe Soviet Illness

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—There's a vacant chair in the high councils of the U.N.

It is that of Konstantine Zinchenko, the highest-ranking Russian on the staff of Secretary-General Trygvie Lie.

Zinchenko reports he is ill in Moscow but diplomats wise in the ways of Soviet ailments speculate the illness is mostly diplomatic and he will not return to the U. N.

Zinchenko is the assistant secretary-general for the Department of Security Council Affairs. He went home on vacation in July and has not returned. He was expected back in September but sent a cable announcing his return was delayed by illness. About 10 days ago Lie wrote asking when he was returning—and has had no answer, informed sources said.

There also is a possibility that there will be high-level Russian in Lie's secretariat for the remainder of Lie's term, which was extended in 1950 to Feb. 1, 1954.

NOT FILLING RANKS

Lie has adopted the course of not filling vacancies in the ranks of the assistant secretaries-general as they occur and he may leave Zinchenko's post vacant if he does not return.

There is a strong chance that Zinchenko is being relieved of his duties in the usual Soviet fashion because he was not forceful enough to suit the Kremlin.

Zinchenko was appointed to the $22,000 post in 1949 after illness delayed the return of Arkady Sobolev and finally caused his resignation.

Zinchenko sat in the expensive office furnished assistant secretaries-general and rode in the car assigned each of the eight members of Lie's cabinet—but informed sources have said he was never given an opportunity of making any real decisions of a major nature affecting U. N. conduct.

Zinchenko seldom appeared in the news. He preferred to stay in the background in the best tradition of the Soviet-trained diplomat.

If the Russians decide to nominate a replacement for Zinchenko, they will run into a problem.

The Russians put Lie on their blacklist when he sided with the United States and the U.N. majority against the aggression in Korea and prevented his re-election by a veto.

SEEMS DEADLOCK

They could not stop an extension of his term, however, and they announced they would deal with him no longer. All communications addressed to U. N. come merely as "the Secretariat."

The Russians boycotted Lie's official parties and he in turn clamped a reciprocal boycott on their receptions.

There is likely to be no successor to Zinchenko unless the Russians knuckle under and send a letter to "Mr. Lie" containing the name, for the diplomats here speculate that Lie will not appoint one of his top officials simply on the basis of a communication addressed to "the secretariat."

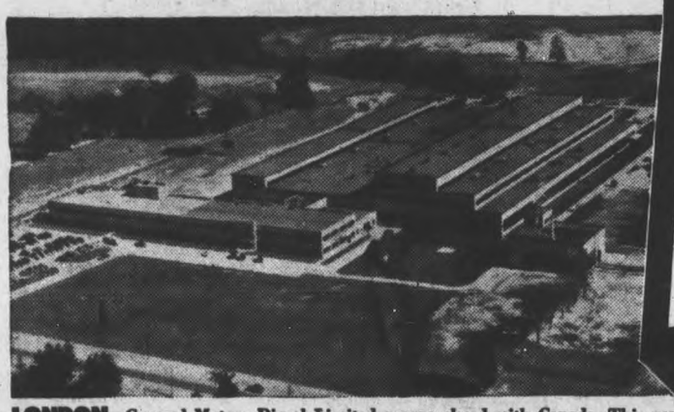
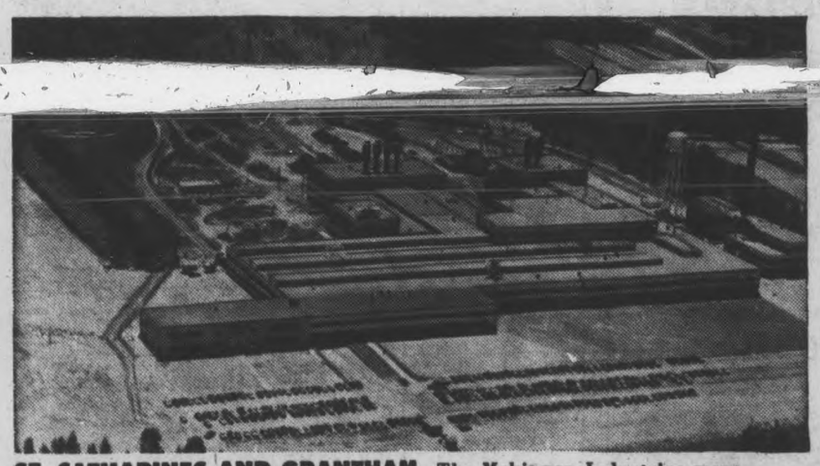
Moving Ahead with Canada



GENERAL MOTORS

OSHAWA—General Motors of Canada Limited moves ahead with Canada, turning out more and better cars and trucks in the tradition of fine craftsmanship established more than 80 years ago by carriage maker Robert McLaughlin. The plant shown has 50 acres of floor space. In addition a new 17-acre truck plant will be opened in 1953 . . . a new six-acre central parts warehouse was opened in 1951, and other new parts warehouses built or under construction are at Vancouver, Winnipeg, London, Montreal and Moncton.



SCARBOROUGH AND LEASIDE—Frigidaire moves ahead with Canada. This new 11-acre plant in Scarborough was opened officially on October 16th. In addition, a large plant at Leaside is occupied on defence contracts.

LONDON—General Motors Diesel Limited moves ahead with Canada. This seven acre plant opened in 1950 has already announced plans for an 85,000 square foot addition, which will enable it to provide the most modern service facilities for locomotives.

WINDSOR—The GM Engine Plant moves ahead with Canada. Producing more engines than ever before, the Engine Plant is constantly expanding to meet production demands at Oshawa. It covers 8 acres.

ST. CATHARINES AND GRANTHAM—The Mckinnon Industries move ahead with Canada. This vast new foundry, opened in Grantham Township on October 15th, makes possible the construction of heavy engine components impossible before. Together with the main plant in the city of St. Catharines, the McKinnon enterprise now has 35 acres under roof and contracts are being let for additional building covering eight acres.

General Motors builds more cars and trucks in Canada than any other manufacturer... and because of GM's unchallenged leadership in motor vehicles, many people think of GM as to the GM story.

True, GM's largest contribution to Canada's industrial strength is in the vast group of plants in Oshawa, which last year turned out 185,000 cars and trucks. But in London, Ontario, the new plant of General Motors Diesel Limited is building every type of diesel locomotive—quick, efficient switchers, mammoth high-speed road locomotives. In St. Catharines, Ontario, the two plants of The McKinnon Industries Limited turn out varied products from heavy malleable and gray iron castings to small electric motors—Delco motors that power a high percentage of home appliances in Canada. Frigidaire Products of Canada Limited, at Scarborough and Leaside plants, builds world-famous home appliances, as well as commercial refrigeration, air-conditioning and humidity control equipment. In Windsor, the GM Engine Plant builds and tests the power plants for GM's Canadian-built cars and trucks.

Pictured here are representative plants of GM's Canadian divisions. They have been growing impressively—in output, in number of employees, in size of plant... striding ahead with our country. Today GM gives employment to over 20,000 Canadians. And what does GM's great industrial strength mean to any one citizen of Canada? It means more things made at home—less to import and thus more to be shared among ourselves in Canada. In addition to turning out more and better things for Canadians, General Motors plants are also contributing to the nation's defence program and to its expanding export markets. That is our proud story. That is General Motors in Canada.

Hollywood Sad At Death Of Susan Peters

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — No event in recent months has saddened Hollywood as much as the death of Susan Peters last Friday.

The movie people had their memories of the brilliant young actress who flashed on the screens during the war years. She appeared opposite Robert Taylor in "Song of Russia" and critics hailed her as a bright new dramatic star.

I first met her in 1945 when she was recovering from the hunting accident wound that paralyzed her from the waist down. She was living in a small Beverly Hills apartment with her husband, Richard Quine.

Susan still had her Irish beauty and spunk. She told proudly of how she had a temperature of 106 after the accident and the doctors gave up hope for her. But she had been able to murmur to her husband, "I just wanted you to know that I'm not going to die."

In her first interview after the accident, she reported she had taken three steps in her new braces. "I ought to be walking pretty well in three months," she enthused.

COMEBACK

Would she act again?

"Just let them try and stop me," she said.

She never was able to walk, but she did act again. Her first job was three months later, on a radio drama with Van Johnson. She came through with flying colors.

Later she was driving her own hand-operated car and even taking flying lessons.

Christmas of 1946 was a joyous one. She and Dick had adopted a baby boy, Timmy. The doctors said she might be able to act in a movie.

The picture was "Sign of the Ram" and she played a mean woman in it. "Sign of the Ram" was not a success, and it was Susan's last picture. After that, her marriage to Quine cracked up. Their friends reported that it was entirely her doing. His loyalty remained steadfast, they said, but she did not want to tie his life to a cripple.

ALONE

Afterwards, Susan made her life alone. She wanted to be independent and worked herself to the limit of her frail health. She toured all over the country in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" and "The Glass Menagerie."

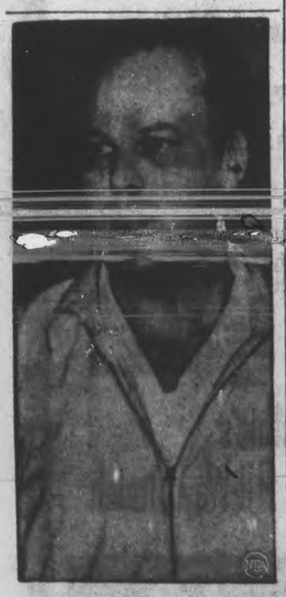
When I saw her for the last time, she proudly brought out her rave reviews.

For the first time, she made no claim that she would walk again.

"How can I—I have no spinal cord," she said. "It will take longer than I live for the doctors to discover how to fix that."

She was running out of hope, and she came to the end of it last week.

"She wouldn't allow anyone to help her recently," said the doctor after she died. "I believe she lost interest in living."



ACTRESS DIES — Film star Susan Peters, 31, shown in the wheel chair to which she had been confined for eight years following a hunting accident, died of a kidney ailment in Visalia, Cal.

Dance Pavilion Burns

ERIN (CP)—Stanley Park Dance Pavilion Friday night burned to the ground. Loss of the building and contents has been estimated at $10,000. A 21-man volunteer fire brigade was credited with saving neighboring buildings and cottages from the blaze. Erin is in the Guelph area.

Plunges Into River

WALLACEBURG (CP) — Plunging with her car down a steep 85-foot slope into the east branch of the Sydenham River at Dawn Mills, Shirley James of Chatham suffered only minor injuries and lost two teeth. Accompanied by Muriel Oliver, 19, of Dresden, Miss James was driving along the river road when the accelerator stuck. The car skidded and swerved over the edge. Miss Oliver jumped seconds before it went over.

CONVICTED — G. Edward Grammer, 36-year-old office manager, stands convicted in Baltimore, Md., of slaying his wife last August by beating her with a steel pipe and making it look like an auto accident. Judge Herman Moser who tried the case without a jury at Grammer's request, termed the convicted man's affair with U.N. employee Mathilda Mizibrocki a "point of no return" which forced him to slay his wife. With three days in which to file an appeal, Grammer faces a death penalty or life imprisonment.

Pinch-Hitting Soprano Takes Audience By Storm

By TOM OCHILTREE

LONDON (AP)—German soprano Helene Wurth of the Hamburg Opera got a sore throat and the Covent Garden management had a big problem.

Who would sing the lead role of Amelia Saturday night in Verdi's "A Masked Ball?"

The management telephoned all over Europe. Ljuba Welisch, who knows the part, couldn't because of an engagement in Vienna in "The Girl of the Golden West." Others were similarly tied up.

Brazilian soprano Constantina Araujo was located in Milan and agreed to fly to London, but the schedule was tight. Cast, stagehands and wardrobe mistresses were drilled in how not to lose a minute's time.

The plane got in 20 minutes late, but customs men hurried the pretty 30-year-old brunette through

REHEARSES IN CAR

With last-minute misgivings, Mrs. Araujo said at the airport she last sang the role at Milan's La Scala Opera House in June—in Italian.

She rehearsed with the Covent Garden music coach, James Gibson, in the car speeding to the theatre.

At the theatre Mrs. Araujo took a few deep breaths and said she was ready just as the house lights went down for the first act.

The result was a triumph of show-stopping ovations, the operatic equivalent of a pinch-hit home run with the bases loaded in the ninth.

Named Candidate

MILTON (CP)—Murray McPhail of nearby Campbellville Saturday was named Liberal candidate for the federal riding of Halton County. Hughes Cleaver of Burlington, the sitting member, announced his retirement after 16 years as Liberal member for Halton.

LABRADOR ROADS—Workmen are completing Labrador's first roads. These are on the R.C.A.F. station at Goose Bay. Work began last month and it is hoped to have the job finished before the heavy snow falls.

Fall Proves Fatal

HAMILTON (CP)—Robert Martinick, 51, was fatally injured Saturday when he fell down the stairs at his rooming house. A post mortem will be held, coroner Dr. D. A. Warren said.

Doctor Dies

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Dr. John Glenville Jose, 50, of St. Mary's collapsed and died Saturday in front of Little Memorial Stadium following an Intercollegiate football game.

Sweeps Ticket Missing After Name Is Drawn

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—The 150-year-old home of Mrs. Mary Nantais was turned upside down during the weekend in a fruitless search for a winning Irish sweepstakes ticket.

Mrs. Emma Nantais, 65, bought the ticket, worth a sure $800 and good for an outside chance on the $150,000 grand prize, three months ago in the name of her mother-in-law, Mrs. Mary Nantais, 92.

She placed the ticket beneath a clock on the older woman's dresser for safekeeping.

A month ago, she said, she noticed the ticket had disappeared but thought the matter of little importance.

But Saturday word came from Ireland that Mrs. Mary Nantais of Windsor had drawn a ticket on Ormen, a starter in Wednesday's Cambridgeshire, on which the sweep draw is based.

During the weekend, the two Mrs. Nantais ransacked every corner of the one-storey frame house.

"I just can't imagine what happened to it," said Mrs. Emma Nantais. "But we are going to keep on looking."

Police On Trail Of Suspect

MONTREAL (CP)—Quebec provincial police said last night they are on the trail of a 27-year-old Cornwall, Ont., farm laborer, sought by Ontario police in connection with the Aug. 16 slaying of Maxville, Ont., business man, Leonard Z. Hurd, 41.

Police said an automobile bearing Ontario licence plates was found yesterday in the Lachute, Que., area, 50 miles northwest of here, and a check proved it to be the car which Marcel Seguin used after the Hurd slaying.

Hurd, operator of a garage, taxi business and trucking service, was found dead of bullet wounds in one of his cabs at Maxville.

Two People Killed In Oakville Collision

OAKVILLE (CP)—Mrs. William J. Palmer, wife of the vice-president and director of the Toronto Type Foundry Company Ltd. was one of two persons killed last night in a two-car crash four miles north of here.

Her husband suffered severe injuries and is in a Toronto hospital with chest and head injuries and possible internal injuries.

Also killed was James P. Pylpeuk of Hamilton.

Mrs. Palmer was the former Mary Elizabeth Wright, a daughter of Dr. Alexander Wright of London, Ont.

Galt Nurse Chosen To Work In Iran

GALT (CP)—A Galt nurse, Marion Hatcher, has been chosen by the World Health Organization to undertake public health work in Tehran, Iran.

Miss Hatcher, daughter of Mrs. H. R. Hatcher, left this week for London. Later she will proceed to Iran.

She has been assistant superintendent at Belleville Hospital and a member of the Galt public health nursing staff.

New Press Club Head

TORONTO (CP)—Norman Johnston, veteran reporter of the Toronto Telegram, Saturday was elected president of the Toronto Men's Press Club at the annual meeting. He succeeds Art Cole of the Globe and Mail. Donald Goudy of the Toronto Star and Ed Simon of The Canadian Press were named vice-presidents. Secretary is John Cranford of the Telegram and treasurer is Wilfred List of the Globe and Mail.

Red-Head Sentenced

TORONTO (CP)—Shirley Deeton, 18, who police described as a "pretty red-head" Saturday was convicted on three house-breaking charges. She was given a year's suspended sentence. Police said loot in two of the break-ins in the West Toronto area totalled $24 and a woman's wrist-watch.

Car Somersaults

TILLSONBURG (CP) — [illegible] storekeeper at [illegible] fered severe injuries Saturday when the car she was driving left the road, struck a culvert and somersaulted over a railway track. The car landed upside down in a ditch.

Polio Fatality

AN ADITORIAL

Plants, Animals and People have a craving for saving

It's a deep instinct of life – the habit of saving – when and while opportunity permits.

• The wise ones do!

* * *

The habit of saving goes far back in human history.

The hunter of old! Enough meat today – but what of tomorrow?

The early farmer! Enough crop this year – but what about next?

The freeman artisan! A good market for wares now – but what of the future?

And so – the habit of saving.

* * *

In 1952, the medium of exchange in Canada is money. The means to food and clothing, shelter, the good things of life, personal and family security, is money. The [illegible] permits.

* * *

Earned and spent? Or earned and partly saved?

* * *

Some people have formed the habit of saving to meet unforeseeable needs – emergencies, illness, joblessness.

Some have formed the habit of saving to meet foreseeable wants – a new house, a car, a university education for a child or children, a long-planned holiday, the needs of old age.

Some have formed the habit of saving to provide means to take advantage of business or investment opportunities that come to all of us.

* * *

A good habit, this saving earnings against – and for – the future. It leads to a fuller life, a securer tomorrow, more enjoyment. It's the stuff that makes dreams come true.

* * *

Do YOU have the saving habit?

* * *

You'll agree that saving today and spending tomorrow doesn't get you very far. The way to save effectively is to save regularly and systematically. Canada Savings Bonds provide you with such a way.

* * *

you now – in easy instalments – through your investment dealer, bank or your Company's Payroll Savings Plan. Better than cash, they are always cashable at any bank at any time – for full face value plus interest.

CANADA SAVINGS BONDS are not available to cacti or beavers – just people – wise people.

G. A. Cooper of Belmont St., Norwood, has a garden which has produced strawberries continuously since June. Even after recent heavy frosts his plants have borne fruit, but they were not as choice as the earlier berries.

THREE FIRE DEPT. CALLS

City firemen were called out to three small fires on Saturday. A chemical extinguisher was used to put out a flooded oil heater at the Bowen Snack Bar, 150 Park St. N. Two handpumps were used to extinguish a rubbish fire at 536 Waterford St. and the third call was when an emergency brake of a city bus was left on causing the brake lining to smoulder. A foam extinguisher snuffed out the fire as the bus was parked at Charlotte and Aylmer Sts.

GET CERTIFICATION

About 50 workers of the Cobourg plant of Richard and B. A. Ryan Ltd., have been certified to Local 1071, Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners (A.F.L.-T.L.C.). As the Ontario Labor Relations Board granted automatic certification to the workers they strongly criticized the company for "inaccuracies" in a list of employees submitted by the company. Ryan Ltd. submitted a list showing 87 eligible employees but an O.L.R.B. examiner found only 42 working at the plant. The union claimed 32 in a bargaining unit of 48.

WINNING RUNNER

John Cronin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Cronin of Hamilton and formerly of Peterborough, captured the running competition at the Red Feather Football tournament held on the weekend in Toronto. Cronin, a student of Cathedral High, Hamilton, was the entry in the contest for the Hamilton area. Each contestant started at the goal line had to pick up the ball at the 15-yard line, cradle it in his arm, then run around four obstacles placed at 2½-yard intervals. He had to zig-zag through each obstacle switching the ball from his right hand to his left between each obstacle, and at the same time he must straighten the obstacle as he passed.

City Students Show Results Of Lesson Series

The fruits of special art classes sponsored by The Examiner for selected pupils of the public, separate and collegiate schools, are now on exhibit at the Public Library gallery. The opening of the exhibit Saturday evening was attended by parents, friends and students themselves.

H. L. Garner, general manager of The Examiner, explained the purpose and scope of the art classes, and the painter-teacher Oscar Schlienger was on hand to discuss the work with visitors.

TO JUDGE LATER

Charles Comfort, R.C.A., noted painter and professor of art in Toronto, was to have judged the work Saturday evening and to have remarked publicly on it. Sudden illness prevented his coming. Mr. Comfort, who has been engaged by The Examiner to assess the work, will come to Peterborough on Wednesday, November 5, when a special public viewing will be held. Meanwhile, the exhibition is open to view any time during Library hours until Thursday.

12-WEEK COURSE

The course of instruction under Mr. Schlienger was made available during 12 summer weeks. Art supervisors of the city schools selected two pupils from each school, and all told 34 took the 12-week course, and 32 of the pupils completed it. Classes were held in rotation once a week, eight pupils to a class. This ensured individual instruction.

The work on display at the Library emphasizes the technical and professional nature of the instruction. The sketches and paintings are exhibited in groups, one for each stage of the course. So we see the work advance from pencil techniques and color sampling to full color washes (with turpentine) and oil paintings.

The sepia designs and depths are most interesting; the pencil drawings most amusing. The oil paintings (each canvas having risen to the dignity and finish of well-made frames) show that Mr. Schlienger has insisted that his pupils walk before they run. The paintings are blocked out, not developed.

Cornerstone For New Church Placed By Bishop Berry

At a midway stage of the completion of the Church of St. John the Baptist, Most Rev. Gerald Berry blessed and placed its cornerstone Sunday afternoon. The ancient liturgy, in which the ceremony was set, quoted the old testament episode of Jacob's dream of the ladder ascending to heaven, his wrestling with the angel and subsequent "blessing of the stone to mark a holy place."

The attendance of some 400 people included members of other parishes in the city.

Bishop Berry was attended by the Rev. V. J. Gillogly of Port Hope, the Rev. Gerard Sullivan, assistant priest of the church of the Sacred Heart, and Rev. J. C. Moloney of Campbellford.

Monsignor J. V. McAuley, of Lindsay, and Monsignor P. P. Butler, of the parent parish of the Sacred Heart, were among those present.

The men's choir of the new parish, directed by Herbert Michel, received special notice in their singing. The music of Ecce Sacerdos was Mr. Michel's own writing. The choir also sang well the Veni Creator, preceding the address by Bishop Berry.

PLACED INSIDE

The inscribed cornerstone, placed in an interior wall overlooking the sanctuary, was the gift of the children of St. John's and Sacred Heart Schools, a contribution that is recorded in the engraving, with the fact that the placing of the stone by His Excellency Bishop Berry took place on the feast of Christ the King, October, 26, 1952.

Assisting briefly in the mechanics of the ceremony were E. J. Turcotte, of Montreal, and William Conway, of Piggott Construction Co., the contractor. The building has risen to the roof, most of which has been covered. The architecture of the church is a modern Gothic of simplified form. The church faces the south. The vestry extends westerly from the sanctuary and to the house of the parish priest, and at the front there is a connecting office between church and house. The site is on the north side of Wilson St.

The cornerstone received records of the present day sealed in a copper box, which fitted into a prepared slot of the ceremonial block. They were placed one by one in the box by the Rev. Dr. Grant, including: a report of the condition of the church in the diocese, written by the Rev. V. J. Corkery, chancellor; a report on the condition of Peterborough written by Ald. P. J. Anglesey; a report of Bishop Berry's financial appeal in 1952 to the members of the diocese, and a statement of its successful result; an account of the work and the progress of the building of the church, written by Mrs. William McCann, wife of the superintendent for the contractor, Pigott Construction Company; copies of the Examiner and the Ensign; coins of the realm for this year; a list of the names of the children and the teachers whose offering provided the cornstone.

Neel Orchestra Received With Pleasure

The Boyd Neel Orchestra was received in Peterborough Saturday evening with unalloyed pleasure. The purity and grace of their playing and the quality of the program made an evening of radiant music, serene, golden, perfect. The audience which overflowed the Collegiate auditorium was ecstatic.

The unsurpassed Boyd Neel string orchestra—how wonderfully rich in tone the strings were, yet unstrained and clear (the double bass playing was a revelation of this instrument)—has been augmented for its first North American tour by two horns and two oboes. One could have wished that the program allowed more numbers which included wind. The delicacy and beauty and blend created by the wind instruments (as, for instance, in the trio of the Haydn symphony) were a joy.

The composition of the orchestra and its balance were precisely what Handel (three pieces from the Water Music), Haydn ('La Passione', symphony Number 49) and Dvorak (Serenade in E major for Strings, Op. 22) require—and not more. Too often they are played too big, with more orchestration than the composer gave. The Bach Air (from his Third Suite in D) was altogether lovely and very moving. It was given to us in its original form, and not as usual now, as a violin solo Air on the G String.

COMPLETE CLASSICS

Three Waltzes from Brahm's Liebeslieder and Grieg's 'Cowkeeper's Tune' completed the more classical part of the program. The Grieg with its rustic rhythm under the tune, was one of the most pleasing pieces of the evening—if one must make a choice—showing the Boyd Neel capacity to bend intelligence and high art to simplicity of heart.

The last two numbers displayed the orchestra's special technical virtuosity; the pizzicato movement from Benjamin Britten's 'The Simple Symphony,' and an arrangement of Paganini's violin scintillation, Moto Perpetuo. The encores following prolonged and repeated applause were a Bach gig and a pavan arranged from Byrd.

Many a hesitant question or two be permitted about a group and evening so perfect? Was there a hint of fatigue in the playing of the Haydn, particularly in the finale? And might we hear, next time, a bit more for the wind, even if show pieces like the Britten and the Paganini have to be sacrificed? A bassoon added to the orchestra would allow Mr. Boyd Neel greater scope in arranging his program. Thus we could hear [illegible] more of and more continuity [illegible] Water Music.

Car Door Opens Child Falls Out

Eight-year-old Barbara Damario, 472 Parnell St., was injured Sunday morning when the rear door of a car driven by her brother flew open and she fell out on the road.

After attending St. Martin's Church in Ennismore, Barbara, her brother, Don Damario who was driving the car and Margaret Damario 6, were returning to their parents' cottage on Chemong Lake.

As they were driving along, Margaret drew her brother's attention to the rear door being opened. He stopped the car and discovered Barbara had fallen out. He saw her a few feet behind the car, lying on the road.

Picking her up, he carried her to the car and rushed her to St. Joseph's Hospital where she was treated for scalp cuts. Her condition today is said to be satisfactory.

G. W. Craw Lays Cornerstone Of New School

At a brief ceremony Saturday afternoon, G. Wilson Craw, chairman of the Board of Education Accommodation committee, laid the cornerstone of the new Armour Heights Public School being built on McFarlane Ave. Before tapping the cornerstone into place with a new silver trowel, and declaring it "well and truly laid," Mr. Craw commented on the length of time it takes to plan a new school before it is completed.

He explained that the site first chosen four or five years ago was farther north, then, the city suggested the present site when the surrounding area was acquired for housing.

It was 18 months ago that the first discussions took place said Mr. Craw, and it will be next September before it is ready for use.

TO COST $250,000

An eight classroom school, the building will cost $250,000 when it is completed, including landscaping, and will also have a kindergarten and playroom. It will be a junior school, for Grades I to VI and is the first school in the city to be heated by radiant heating.

Armour Heights is the seventh school, or addition to an overcrowded school, including Kenner Collegiate, to be built in Peterborough since 1946. The total cost of all the new schools and additions built to relieve overcrowding of existing schools due to expansion of the city and an increasing school population is slightly more than a million and a half dollars.

W. B. Gordon, chairman of the Board of Education, was chairman at the cornerstone laying ceremony attended by representatives of Council, the Board of Education and the Home and School Council. Mr. Gordon said the selection of Mr. Craw, senior member of the Board of Education, to lay the cornerstone was "appropriate" because of his many years of service on the accommodation committee.

He paid tribute to Mr. Craw for "the great thought he has given over a period of 13 years to the planning of accommodation and school financing."

82 PUPILS

Mr. Gordon cited figures of the school attendance in Ashburnham from 1904, when the village became part of the city. Then, he said there was one school with an attendance of 82 and four teachers. By 1913 it had increased to 327 pupils. King George School was opened in that year, with a staff of eight teachers.

By September 1950, Mr. Gordon said it became necessary to find other accommodation for the overflow from King George and space was rented in Mark St. Sunday School hall. This September the number of pupils attending King George had jumped to 645. One Grade 8 class of 35 has been moved to Central School and 31 children from Ashburnham are now attending Queen Alexandra. The [illegible] east of the [illegible] 711, Mr. Gordon said.

Representing Mayor Hugh Waddell who was unable to be present, Alderman T. D. Miller complimented the board "for the manner

400 Strikers, Company May Settle

First Move Made To End Strike Now Three Weeks Old

TORONTO (CP) — Louis Fine, chief conciliation officer for the Ontario Labor Relations Board, said today representatives of Deloro Smelting and Refining Company will meet here tomorrow with union officials to try to settle a strike that started more than three weeks ago.

He said Ontario Labor Minister Daly will attend the meeting between company and International Union of Mine Mill and Smelter Workers representatives. The Peterborough district plant has been idle since Oct. 3.

IN FOURTH WEEK

Some 400 smelter workers at the plant, four miles northeast of Marmora, are now in the fourth week of their strike for a substantial wage increase, a 40-hour week, and fringe benefits — including a greater company share of the cost of sick-pay insurance.

The men also claim that working conditions at the plant are unhealthy. Because of the high rate of sickness they say the Continental Casualty Insurance Company cancelled a sick-pay insurance policy this July.

They contend that the arsenic fumes cause skin diseases, irritate the mucous membranes of the nose and throat; and that cobalt and its compounds have caused lung cancer

The company say they are paying wages comparable to other rates in the district. They deny that working conditions are unhealthy, though they concede that arsenic may cause skin irritations.

An Ontario government investigation on lung cancer has been inconclusive.

R. G. Walsh, general manager, said the insurance policy was cancelled by Continental Casualty Insurance Company because they found that the men "abused the scheme for increased benefits."

Deloro is the largest cobalt smelting and refining plant in North America. It manufactures a valuable stellite alloy, needed in defence production for gun barrels, jet blades, machine tools and other equipment in the precision tool field.

Hit By Car, Child Only Shaken Up

Susan Oliphant, 6, 716 Chesterfield Ave., escaped with bruises and a shaking up Saturday afternoon, when she stepped from the east curb of George St., into the path of a car. The car travelling north, was driven by Angus A. Hart, 358 Joicey Blvd., Toronto.

Witnesses reported the car was moving only slowly and stopped a few feet after knocking the child down. The accident occurred in front of the Y.M.C.A. and was investigated by Constable Gerald Emmons.

ANOTHER HAZY DAY

Autumn haze this morning obscured the outlines of the city from the prominence of Armour Hill. The westerly margin was about Aylmer St. Probs mentioned an approach of cooler air, against the hopes of the community for more of October's confection.

Resort Operators To Hear Travel Official

Leo Dolan, director of the Canadian Government Travel Bureau, will be the after-dinner speaker at the 4th annual Kawartha District Resort Operators' Conference and quarterly dinner of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce to be held at the Empress hotel Wednesday.

Mr. Dolan has directed the activities of the travel bureau since 1934. The bureau is a Canadian government organization functioning under the Department of Resources and Development.

TOURIST TRADE

The topic of Mr. Dolan's address will be, Canada's Tourist Trade.

A former newspaperman, Mr. Dolan is a native of Fredericton, New Brunswick, where he started his newspaper career. He has been on the staff of newspapers in Fredericton, Sydney, Saint John, Regina and Saskatoon. At the age of 20 he was a member of the parliamentary press gallery of the Canadian House of Commons.

He was a former president of the Canadian Tourist Association and is the only Canadian holding an honorary membership in the National Association of Travel Officials—the official travel association of the United States. In 1939, he was elected president of the First Inter-American Travel Congress, an organization representing 20 Latin-American Republics and the United States and Canada.

Two years ago Mr. Dolan was honored at a testimonial banquet in Toronto by his associates and friends in the United States and Canada. Tribute was paid to the outstanding work he had done in developing Canada's tourist industry and fostering goodwill between the two countries.

$1,500 Gear Stolen From 8 Cottages

Summer Homes On Catchacoma Looted By Thieves

More than $1,500 worth of clothing, tools and outboard motors is missing from eight cottages on the west shore of Catchacoma Lake which were broken into some time last week.

O.P.P. Constable Jim Healey, who is in charge of the investigation, said the same method was used to gain entry to all the cottages. The locks on the doors were broken and the doors were jimmied.

OUTBOARDS

Missing are three 10 horsepower outboard motors, which were taken from cottages owned by Ivan Lillico of Peterborough, Frank Edwards of Toronto, and Dr. U. N. Jones, also of Toronto.

More than $200 worth of clothing and tools were taken from another cottage, owned by Orme Payne of Toronto.

The list of missing articles includes mostly various articles of clothing left by cottagers, as well as blankets and tools.

Public School Trustees Urge Committee Study Hope Report

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A resolution urging the provincial government to set up a committee to study implementation of the Hope report on education in Ontario was passed Saturday at closing sessions of a conference of the Ontario Public School Trustees' Association.

Implementation of the report would eliminate separate school education after the sixth grade. The report contains resolutions other than those dealing with separate school education.

Other resolutions recommended:

1. That the federal government pay sums equal to school taxes on federal buildings throughout the country. The federal government pays no taxes on its properties.

2. That the public and separate schools act be changed to provide that ratepayers who change their school assessment be bound by such a change for a period of five years.

3. That the department of education establish a system of school fire insurance available at cost.

4. That the public school system be extended to provide for the education of Indians on reservations. They now are educated by the federal immigration department.

C. H. Hulse of Ottawa was elected 1952-53 president to succeed Lorne Shantz of Kitchener. Percy B. McCallum, Windsor, was elected first vice-president, Herbert Orliffe, Toronto, second vice-president and Orval Grant, Sault Ste. Marie, third vice-president.

Directors include Mrs. Edwin Bryce, Kingston; Mrs. J. Brewer, Timmins; D. M. Bishop, Woodstock; Rev. Douglas McDonald, Tillsonburg; K. S. Rabb, Waterloo; Dr. J. J. Hewitt, Smiths Falls; Rev. Gron Morgan, Port Arthur; Walter Watts, Thorold; John A. House, St. Catharines; Roy Reavely, Harley.

France 'Pained' At U.N. Action

DONZERE - MONDRAGON, France (AP)—President Vincent Auriol said Saturday the agreement in the United Nations to discuss complaints of French mistreatment of Tunisian and Moroccan peoples caused "pain and bitterness" in France.

He made the statement at the dedication of a $225,000,000 power dam and canal built here on the Rhone river.

France "feels gravely offended," Auriol said, "when, before that noble (U.N.) organization, whose mission is to organize peace and not create trouble, to unite nations in mutual confidence and not to divide them, France is accused of oppressing men and peoples."

This is particularly annoying to France, he said, "for nowhere else in the world do you see sitting in the Parliaments men of all races, of all colors, and of all religions . . ."

Canadian Corporal Rescues Wounded Pals Accidentaly Trapped In Mine Field

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA (CP) — Patiently, deftly the corporal, working on his hands and knees, felt in the darkness for the mines. Gradually he worked his way, clearing a path through the minefield to trapped, wounded members of a Royal 22nd Regiment patrol, led them out and returned to re-arm the mines.

The corporal was J.P.R. Pierce of Sudbury, Ont., whose cool nerves saved further casualties when the patrol accidentally stumbled into one of its own mine fields recently. Two men were killed and three wounded.

Led by L. Cpl. J.G. Lussier of Montreal, the eight men had been making for a battalion outpost.

LAID "JUMPING" MINES

Only the night before, Canadian sappers under Lieut. Al Slater of Vancouver had finished laying the field between the outpost and the Van Doos' main defences.

It was a deadly lay-out of "jumping" mines that spring up to waist height before exploding. It was thought impossible to take two successive steps safely in it.

But Lussier proved himself lucky.

He walked across 30 yards literally infested with mines and emerged at the far side of the field without realizing he had been in one. Investigators later found Lussier had just missed six mines and had actually stepped on the prong of the last one, bending it.

His first man, Pte. Richard Roy of Montmorency, Que., was almost as lucky for a while. Ten yards behind Lussier, he followed the corporal and also missed them.

But the second—Pte. Joseph St. Germain of St. Hyacinthe, Que.—hit it and was killed while Roy was wounded.

WOUNDED OTHERS

The same explosion wounded three other men following—Ptes. Albert Leclerc of Cap de la Madeleine, Que., Lucien Pelerin of Coaticook, Que., and Arsene Blanchette of St. Onesime, Que. The remainder of the patrol froze in its tracks outside the field.

Leclerc, Pelerin and Blanchette were only slightly injured. Blanchette stepped back and the one step took him out of the field. Leclerc froze as he fell, kept one leg a few inches off the ground for an hour until Cpl. Pierce came along and guided it down—safely beside a mine.

Lieut. Haldene Merrithew of Toronto, the pioneer officer, led a rescue party that included Pierce and Pte. A. Dion of Ile Verte, Que., both pioneers. He also had Cpl. J. Leblanc of Halifax as medical assistant.

Already Maj. Andre Letourneay of Montreal, the forward company commander, had organized an escort patrol under Sgt. J.S. Comeau of Kentville, N.S., to stay outside the minefield and guard the approaches.

Merrithew organized the work, deployed the guard, encouraged the wounded, and, to drown out the noise of the operation, had artillery fire sent down.

DETECTOR USELESS

Pierce, unable to use a detector because the ground was littered with shell fragments, cleared through 10 yards of mines to reach Roy, still conscious though in pain, and weak. Leblanc patched him up, administered morphine and then he and Dion carried him out. Roy died later in the regimental aid post.

Pierce then reached St. Germain who was dead. Now 20 yards inside the field, Pierce worked on to Leclerc and Pelerin, led them out and then returned to re-arm the mines and restore the field's effectiveness.

Within 11 hours of the first signal, Merrithew's group had removed the casualties and re-armed the field.

Tiny Switzerland Prepared To Turn Back Any Enemy

By SIDNEY TAYLOR

BERNE, Switzerland (Reuters) —Tiny Switzerland, whose armed preparedness has kept her out of two world wars, is preparing to defend herself in a war she is sure Russia and satellites would lose.

Swiss confidence that Russia will be defeated if she pits her strength against the Western block of nations is based on the "1,000 days theory."

This theory assumes that the deadline for Russia to succeed in such an attempt passed a year ago. At the end of two more years—roughly 1,000 days in all—a re-armed West will be so strong that it need not fear attack.

HUGE INFORMATION RING

Through a peculiarly Swiss system in which private Swiss citizens in various parts of the world augment reports of legations and embassies, the Swiss are able to assess shrewdly world conditions.

As a consequence, much of her present defence planning is based on the lesson of the Korean War.

She is placing emphasis on light brigades, anti-tank and anti-aircraft defences.

By spring of 1955, the expenditure will be more than 3,700,000,000 Swiss francs ($863,240,000).

The Swiss realize that if war comes they will have to fight for their independence. They do not expect a direct attack.

The threat, as the government sees it, is an indirect attack—an attempt by an enemy from the east to outflank the Rhine defences.

In the last war, the defence plan was that if the frontier was pierced by strong enemy forces, the prosperous midlands—containing 80 per cent of the population and 90 per cent of the country's industry—would be abandoned in a retreat to the central redoubt in the Alps.

CAVE VILLAGES

This redoubt is an amazing labyrinth of barracks, communicating passages, ammunition dumps, food stores, water tanks, electric power stations, repair shops and hospitals built deep in the natural rock of mountains 10,000 feet high.

It is based on a line of powerful defences stretching from the Rhine at the Austrian frontier to near where the Rhine rushes out of Lake Geneva at Geneva.

Swiss President Paul Kobelt explains that the present idea is for the Swiss Army to fight as close as possible to the frontier in the hope of sparing a large proportion of the population the hardships of enemy occupation.

The army would have to fall back. But as it did so, mountain sides would cave in and villages would blow up, loosing avalanches of snow and stone and torrents of water.

PREPARE TO DIVE? — No, just the opposite. Passengers aboard jam-packed buses in Hamburg, Germany, will no longer have to dive for the exit. Bus conductors, as the one seen above, wil be able to eye the exit through a periscope, until all passengers clear the doors.

Russians Push Expansion Of Television

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union is in the midst of a large and varied program of television expansion and experimentation.

The biggest station is in Moscow, but others are being installed around the country.

The Moscow station has one channel at present, but plans three by next year. This channel operates six days a week.

On an average the programs begin just before 8 p.m. when a pretty blonde with a sweet voice says: "Greetings, Comrades!" She then announces the program for the evening and the next few days.

Then comes the first offering. It may be a newsreel, a documentary about some part of the Soviet Union, or a group of people from a nearby collective farm who relate their activities.

LONG FEATURES

The big feature follows: this may be a film, full length feature, or a show televised directly from the Bolshoi Theatre, home of the ballet or from Moscow's two dramatic theatres.

The shows are televised right from the theatre with the audience present.

Between the acts there are newsreels or music. Some of these programs are quite long. A recent one was an operetta direct from the theatre, running from 8 p.m. to 12:15 a.m.

The long summer evenings here provide plenty of light for televising outside sports events. Most popular of all is soccer.

I am seeing television here under interesting, but different circumstances, for I have an American set converted to the Russian system. Up to now it works well.

CHILDREN'S SHOWS

The Soviets are very careful what they show children and all Sunday afternoon is devoted to their programs.

The children's day starts with an animated cartoon based on old Russian fairy tales put to music.

The cartoons are followed by documentaries and movies. One of these—shown the day before the Soviet schools opened was a full-length feature of a girl's first year in school.

Tillsonburg Farmer Held For Manslaughter

TILLSONBURG (CP)—Fred E. Clarke, 43, Tillsonburg farmer was arrested Saturday and charged with motor manslaughter in the death Thursday of 10-year old Horst Holler of Tillsonburg.

A piece of the radiator ornament found at the scene fitted on the accused's car, police said.

Claxton Denies Plans Review Meyer Case

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Claxton said Saturday it is not true that the Canadian government will shortly review the case of Kurt Meyer, German general now serving a life sentence in Western Germany for his part in the shooting of Canadian prisoners.

"That's a good invention," Mr. Claxton said of the report, published in Toronto. "It's not true."

Release Of Kesselring Approved By Germans

ESSEN, Germany (Reuters)— [illegible] release of former Field Marshal Albert Kesselring from a war criminals prison was a "great step toward Anglo-German understanding."

In a telegram to Lord Hankey, former British minister who has championed a reconsideration of German war criminals' cases, he said:

"Settlement of the so-called war criminals issue by the Western powers will create a better possibility of releasing our German comrades still detained as prisoners of war in Soviet Russia."

Say Forced To Stop Supplying Gas Soon

STRATFORD (CP)—The public utility commission will be forced to stop supplying gas to consumers in six months because of the condition of the city gas plant, a subcommittee of Stratford City Council was informed Saturday.

The gas plant which was taken over by the city from Stratford Gas Company in 1926 has never operated at a profit. The commission advised that there has been a continual decrease of consumers.

Malcolm Laver Heads Warkworth Club

WARKWORTH (ENS). — The Badminton Club met in the Community Hall on Wednesday. Election of officers resulted as follows: Malcolm Laver, president; Ronald Isaac, vice-president; Mrs. J. W. Mowat, secretary-treasurer.

It was voted that the secretary write a letter to the recreation commission stating their desire to withdraw. The fee for adult membership will be $5 and it is to be paid on or before November 2.

Monday and Wednesday evenings will be the nights for playing unless the hall has been reserved.

The Junior Club has been invited to play from 7 until 8:30 and the fee is to be $1.00.

Truce Talks Fail Bring Peace To Cat World

By SAUL PETT

NEW YORK (AP)—Latest truce negotiations have failed to bring real peace to the cat world.

Both camps remain adamant.

National Cat Week, Inc., of Pittsburgh, Pa., insists "the original National Cat Week" is Nov. 2-9. But the American Feline Society of New York is equally insistent. Its "National Cat Week" is Nov. 5-11.

"I offered them the olive branch, but they didn't even answer my letter," said Robert Lothar Kendell, president of the Feline Society.

"It's stupid for both groups to tear our hearts out over two cat weeks. In the interest of harmony, for the sake of 200,000,000 cats we're both trying to help, we ought tc get together on one week. Having two only confuses the public."

OTHER VIEWS

From the other side of the fence, came this statement from National president Guy Bogart:

"Personally, I wish both groups God speed. . .Anyone who will help inform the American public on the value and lovable qualities of all cats belongs to our fellowship."

Then Bogart added:

"Well may England claim the Lion as her symbol; the Eagle for the United States and the Bear for California; but with lifted tail and unfathomable eyes, the Cat remains as the true symbol of human civilization."

ADLAI LIKES CATS

Cat enthusiasts the world over, Kendell said, have a warm spot for Governor Adlai Stevenson. In 1949, in a message vetoing an Illinois bird lovers' bill to prohibit cats from running wild, the governor said:

"It is in the nature of cats to do a certain amount of unescorted roaming."

Kendell wrote the Democratic presidential nominee, expressing the Feline Society's gratitude and extending to him "our very best wishes for success in November."

"This, however, is not necessarily a political endorsement," Kendall later explained to a reporter.

HARRY WAS DIFFICULT

Kendall has had difficulty with the Truman branch of the Democratic Party. He wrote the President asking for a proclamation of National Cat Week.

Joseph Short, late press secretary to the President, answered: ". . .I am sorry to have to tell you that it would not be possible for the President to comply with your request. The fact is similar requests for special proclamations are so numerous as to preclude issuing any except those occasioned by a national emergency or when specifically authorized by Congress. . ."

Kendell didn't take this lying down. He wrote another letter to Stevenson asking for a Cat Week statement and asking him to use his influence with Truman for a presidential proclamation.

Stevenson hasn't answered the letter yet.

"I think they're just kicking the whole thing around in Washington," Kendell said.-

Won't Pay $8 A Week, Starts 5th Year On Jail Farm

PUTNAMVILLE, Ind. (AP)—Edwin K. Myer has started his fifth year at the Indiana State Prison Farm because he won't pay $8 a week to support his son.

"He can stay there until Hell freezes over, as far as I'm concerned," said Judge L. Niblack when he sentenced Myer to the farm for contempt of court in Indianapolis Oct. 4, 1948.

After more than four years behind bars, the 40-year-old farmhand still refuses to pay.

"I don't have any desire to stay here the rest of my life. It isn't the money. I wouldn't pay it if it were 50 cents a week. Just paying money—any amount—wouldn't pay my obligations to my child."

ONE SON KILLED

The older of his sons, Donald Kent Myer, 13, was killed in an automobile accident last September.

"They asked me if I wanted to go to his funeral. I didn't. It was too late then for me to do anything for him."

So far, Myer's only concession has been his repeatedly expressed desire to rear the surviving son, Philip, 12, who lives with his mother, remarried in May, 1948.

Myer's wife obtained a divorce in 1946 and he took care of the boys as best he could. Then she remarried and obtained custody of the children.

"Her lawyers kept writing me about the $8 a week I was supposed to be paying after the divorce," he recalls. "I didn't pay any attention because—well, I was raising the kids myself."

When Myer relinquished custody of the children he sold his car and household goods and sent his father-in-law $100 and a quantity of canned goods and meat.

"I figured it would carry over the payments to the first of October," Myer explained.

When he appeared before Judge Niblack, his ex-wife's lawyers claimed Myer was $120 behind in his payments and $50 arrears for attorney fees.

"But I had the boys myself over that period," Myer argues, "and I couldn't have owed anything, really."

CONSCIENTIOUS WORKER

Nevertheless, Myer was sent to the state farm until he raised the $170, plus $6 costs and agreed to pay the $8 a week.

Myer is considered a conscientious worker by fellow prisoners and farm officials. He has spent most of his four years at the institution as a cook in the prison hospital.

Unless Myer changes his mind, prison officials say no way for freedom for him except through a pardong from the governor.

Canadian Consumers Reach Biggest Debt In History

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer...

Growth of the "on-the-cuff" buying has sparked the biggest consumer debt in history.

But it also has helped retail stores keep goods moving, increased automobile sales through financing and generally pepped up industry to keep the economy humming.

Total consumer-credit debt was estimated at a peak $1,226,000,000 on June 30 by the Bank of Canada in its September summary of current financial trends.

This was an increase of $119,000,000 from $1,107,000,000 a year ago and almost a doubling of outstanding debt in the last four years from $748,000,000 in 1948.

SEE LITTLE THREAT

In bad times a big outstanding debt, such as the June peak, would pose a threat to the economy. Without jobs, debtors would find it tough to meet periodic instalments, choking off the flow of cash into tills and making it tough for the storekeeper to pay his bills and buy new goods.

But in current, relatively buoyant times, the debt doesn't pose any threat like the June peak. For one thing savings were high, and for another jobs were plentiful. These were two safeguards against the credit.

Probably one of the main reasons for the peak, the experts believe, was the government's move to eliminate credit controls last May. Many Canadians with dollars to spend had been holding off, waiting for such a move.

Charge accounts in retail stores climbed to $397,000,000 on June 30, up $40,000,000 from $357,000,000 a year ago. Instalment credit jumped to $409,000,000 from $350,000,000.

MANY AUTO LOANS

Of the instalment credit, the biggest portion was in loans by finance companies, dealing mostly in auto financing. Their credit climbed to $271,000,000 from $228,000,000.

Personal cash loans which the consumer obtained either from banks, credit unions or loan companies increased to $420,000,000 from $400,000,000.

These transactions were made at a time when retail sales were climbing. In the first eight months of 1952 they jumped to $7,196,000,000 from $6,743,000,000 last year.

Canadians Get Itch To Save Banker Claims

OTTAWA (CP)—One of Canada's top bankers added up some figures recently and concluded that the itch to save has turned into a mighty big habit for Canadians.

And for that reason, said James E. Coyne, deputy governor of the Bank of Canada, chances look good for sales of Canada's new savings bond drive going over the top.

Mr. Coyne was fingering financial tables showing that savings deposits in Canadian banks had reached an all-time high of $4,870,000,000 on Aug. 30—up $300,000,000 from a year ago.

"Canadians continue to show evidence of a strong inclination to save," said Mr. Coyne in an interview. "We expect this will be reflected in sales of the seventh series of Canadian Savings Bonds."

MAY TOP 1951

The central bank is endeavoring to surpass last year's sales of $393,000,000. Mr. Coyne said advance reports were that the total $175,000,000 sales through the payroll savings plan will be exceeded in the new campaign by a "substantial margin."

The Canadian savings habit, while helping the individual, also was helping the country. The big investment in government bonds and other government offerings help spread the $11,000,000,000 public debt throughout the country.

Mr. Coyne said he had no precise figures on the ownership of the public debt by individuals, but he believed it is "proportionately as high or higher in Canada than in any other country."

"Canadian Savings Bonds outstanding alone account for nearly seven per cent of Canada's funded debt," he said. "Every effort will be made by banks, investment dealers and payroll savings organizers to maintain this desirable ownership distribution."

FOR BOND RETIREMENT

Money from the current bond drive will be used to help pay off some $925,000,000 worth of government bonds maturing during the next five months.

The new series will pay a higher interest rate than any previous issue with 10 coupons at 3¾ per cent (compared with 3½ per cent in 1951) cashable over a period of 10¾ years.

Dutch Ports Now Crowded With Tramp Freighter Fleet

By DAVID SHEARS

ROTTERDAM (Reuters) —Attracted by The Netherlands's low port charges, a polygot collection of tramp freighters, forced off the shipping lanes by a recession, is seeking an inexpensive resting place in Dutch ports.

More than 20 tramps with a total displacement of 85,000 tons have laid up in Holland in recent weeks.

And they are still coming.

The strangest feature of this situation is that so far not one of the laid-up tramp steamers is Dutch, due partly to the fact that The Netherlands merchant fleet is still not back to its pre-war size and partly to the fact that the few Dutch tramps still have plenty of work bringing cargoes of phosphate and pyrites from the Mediterranean.

LEAN TIMES FOR NOMADS

Like the charter airplane, the ocean tramp exists primarily to do the "odd jobs" which the big shipping lines are unfitted or unwilling to do.

In times of boom, when merchants and traders are scrambling for shipping space, the tramp steamer enjoys a prosperous, nomadic existence.

But these are lean times. Germany, Italy and Japan are rebuilding their merchant fleets, bringing keen competition once more after the boom post-war days. Costs have risen, too, particularly in fuel oil and coal, and slow turn-around time in many of the world's ports also impose a burden.

Worst of all is the fact that countries in all parts of the world have been forced by economic stringency to cut their imports.

Another example is Britain's coal exports. Since the war they have never reached their pre-war size because Britain herself needs almost very ton for home consumption.

Thus, there are more ships and fewer cargoes and freight rates are dropping all over the world, despite rising costs.-

Etiquette Old Fashioned—Mrs. Vanderbilt

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — That funny noise you hear may be Mrs. Grundy spinning in her final resting place.

Amy Vanderbilt, author of the new "The Complete Book of Etiquette," has come out in favor of elopements and against debuts. She thinks formal dinners are a lot of nonsense.

"Etiquette," said Miss Vanderbilt, "is an old word for itsy-bitsy manners — where to put your feet, how to hold your hands, how to sit down. For goodness sake, modern furniture is so wide and so big, it's impossible to sit down like a lady, and most of the time you need help to get back on your feet."

Miss Vanderbilt has written a five-pound tome which she feels is mainly a guide to modern living. There are chapters devoted to the traditional items such as when to turn down the corner of a calling card, how to address the younger sons of a duke, and the proper uniform for a chambermaid.

But her heart is really in portions devoted to informal entertaining, household budgeting, painless methods of getting rid of obnoxious guests, coping with gossip columnists, applying television makeup, and other problems more likely to vex today's men and women.

She thinks an elopement is a handy device if the couple is expected to have a big wedding and doesn't want one. She thinks debuts are silly and tokens of shallow social success.

"I feel living has changed so that it's almost silly to go into such things as the traditional formal dinner for 34 with a butler for each three guests," she said. "In the first place, where would you find that many butlers?"

Her publishers insisted that people like to read about such things, so she finally gave in.

Manners are directly related to economics and sociology. Informality became important in war time.

"I think we'll never go back to stereotyped living," she said.

"And if people are foolish enough to maintain a big house for reasons of pure social prestige, they'll just have to keep their help on eight-hour shifts."

CHANGE IN MANNERS

There are many signs of a change in manners. Miss Vanderbilt spoke of a friend in Washington — where etiquette and protocol is still pretty important — who hires a taxi driver to make the rounds of the embassies dropping the required calling cards.

"In some regions the bridal shower has gone co-ed," she said. "They are being held in the evening and men are coming to them. The bridegroom receives garden tools, socks and bar supplies."

Miss Vanderbilt — who admits that the magic name she inherited is a good one for an arbiter of manners — is a wife, mother of three, indefatigable hostess and formerly a successful business woman.

Visitors To U.S. Impressed By High Degree Of Prosperity

By R.J. ANDERSON

NEW YORK (CP)—No one can visit the United States today without being impressed by its prosperity.

Taxes are high, the prices of almost everything are sharply higher than when this writer last was here in 1950, the Korean War and its 20,000 American dead cast a shadow over the land.

Yet there is no doubt that the Democratic slogan of the presidential election campaign — You've Never Had It So Good"—appeals to many voters.

Republicans who admit to doubt as to the outcome Nov. 4 ask: Will the people throw out the Administration in the midst of the prosperity that is America's in 1952?

"HAPPY DAYS. . ."

The Democrats hammer constantly on the theme that the Republicans somehow will take all this away. Politicians say the campaign of Adlai E. Stevenson has gained steam since he began to blast the Republicans as the "party of depression."

On the other hand, a neat listing of Republican charges is: Korea, Communism and corruption. They demand a change on these grounds:

The Korean War needn't have happened. The Administration cannot end what it failed to prevent.

One investigation after another has shown that Communists and fellow travellers hold important places in government and hew to the Kremlin line.

Disclosure of corruption in high places shows that rot had set in in an Administration too long in office.

There is no doubt, too, that the Republican charges have fallen as fertile seed among the electorate. They are a strong counter-attack to the Democrats' attempt to create fear among the voters.

That's what makes this election one of the most difficult to forecast with certainty. Public-opinion polls show that some 14 or 15 per cent of the voters haven't yet made up their minds. What will that imponderable mass say a week from tomorrow?

Among the many questions of this election are these two which will affect the result:

1. What will the "new voters" do? Some 7,500,000 persons are old enough in 1952 to vote in a presidential election for the first time.

2. What will the women do? They outnumber the men of voting age by nearly 2,000,000. They are expected to vote in great numbers and with more independence than in past years.

A torrent of words has been poured out in recent weeks in attempts to sway these voters to one side or the other. More will be unloosed in this, the last week of the campaign.

For despite claims of "landslide" victories by both sides, neither is as confident as it proclaims.

Havelock Auxiliary Presented Charter

HAVELOCK (ENS).—The Ladies' Auxiliary to the Havelock-Belmont Branch of the Canadian Legion No. 389, held a special meeting in the Legion hall for the purpose of receiving their charter and dedicating their new flag.

William Cartwright, president of the local branch of the Legion, presented the charter for the Ladies' Auxiliary to Comrade Edith Gerow. He thanked the ladies for the splendid work they have done since the Auxiliary was organized and congratulated them on the plans they have made for future activities. The flag was dedicated by the Legion Padre, the Rev. R. D. Duncanson.

About 30 ladies were present from the Peterborough Auxiliary among whom were the president Mrs. Albert Mason and the Zone Commander, Mrs. Parrington. The latter gave an address and mentioned that the past provincial president, Mrs. Louise Long of Toronto, was unable to attend owing to illness. Mrs. Parrington recalled that she had been in Havelock for the installation ceremony when the Auxiliary was organized.

Cy Hopkins of Peterborough, zone commander, was also present and congratulated the ladies on the improvements that had been made in the Legion hall since their Auxiliary came into being. He particularly stressed the point that harmony was needed in order that the Ladies' Auxiliary and the Legion might work together to the best interests of both organizations.

After the closing ceremony which was read by Comrade Gerow all joined in community singing with Mrs. Harry Pollock at the piano. George Heath entertained with a number of selections on his piano accordion and Miss Betty Toms played several piano solos.

Tickets were sold during the evening on two prizes, one of which was won by a visitor from [illegible] of Havelock.

Comrade Edith Gerow, thanked all those who had assisted with the evening's program and also the visitors from Peterborough for their attendance.

Accidents Claim Lives Of 22 In Eastern Canada

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Accidents claimed the lives of 22 persons in Eastern Canada during the week-end. Of these 17 died in traffic accidents and five from other causes.

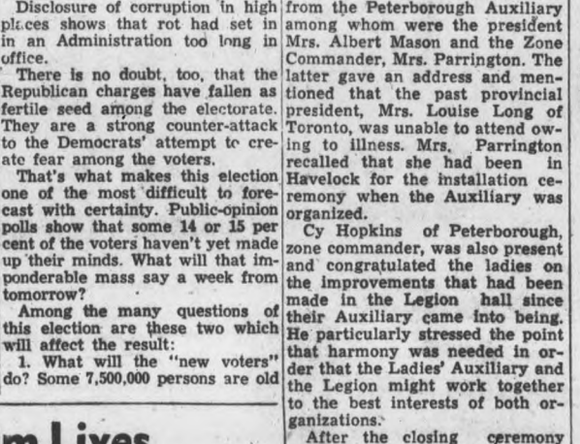
Ontario [illegible] the highest [illegible] Scotia followed with two traffic and two others, and Quebec had three traffic, a survey showed today.

The Oakville district, half way between Toronto and Hamilton, was the scene of two crashes which killed six persons.

FAMILY OF 4 KILLED

The first occurred when a Canadian Pacific Railways passenger express train racing to Hamilton at 85 miles an hour, rammed a car at a level crossing, killing the family of four and throwing their bodies 150 feet. The family consisted of Norman Gooder, 42, his wife Molly, 40, and their children, Leita, 6, and Terrance, 4, all of Lorne Park.

In the second, Mrs. William J. Palmer of Toronto and James P. Pylpeuk of Hamilton died in a two-car collision in Trafalgar township, just north of Oakville.



At Frome Curve, five miles west of St. Thomas, William Robert Tait, 34, of River Rouge, Mich., his mother, Bella Tait, 75, and Mrs. Barbara McNeilage, 75, both of Wheatley, Ont., died when their car crashed into another.

DIES ON BIRTHDAY

A boy celebrating his sixth birthday, Edward Maliszewski, and Frank Cincio, 37, both of Niagara-on-the-Lake, died as a result of a head-on collision with another auto at Welland Canal Bridge at Homer, near St. Catharines.

Tpr. C. J. Blanchard, 23, of Timmins, died after the truck he was driving on the Meaford tank range crashed down an embankment.

Other Ontario deaths: Ireno Holkko, 2, burned when fire de- [illegible] at a Hamilton rooming house; John Gable, 19, of Charlotteville, shot with his .22 calibre rifle while hunting near Simcoe.

Camborne Boy Wins In Oratory At Coldsprings

COLDSPRINGS (ENS)—A large crowd gathered at Coldsprings hall on Friday night for the annual oratorical contest of Hamilton township, sponsored by the Trustees and Ratepayers Association.

Seated on the platform were Dr. F. G. Robertson, M.P.; Mr. Carveth of Newcastle, representative of the Durham public speaking; Luther Cole and Melville Sandercock, Hamilton township councillors; Mrs. Earl Linton, president of the Teachers Association; and Miss Lillian Barker, secretary.

Clarence Willis, representative of Hamilton Township Trustees and Ratepayers Association, was chairman. There were 12 contestants.

Judges were: Mrs. John Galbraith, Mrs. William Lewis, Messrs. Lewis Roberts, Willis Dowler and John Galbraith, all of Port Hope.

Prizes were awarded as follows: First prize, Donald Sandercock, who spoke on "The Canadian Postal Service of Canada"; second, Allan Cusworth, whose subject was "Wishing" and third to June Lander, on "The United Nations and You".

Dr. Robertson and Mr. Carveth spoke briefly and congratulated the pupils on their choice of subjects.

Stewart Bowman, Peterborough, presented the judge's report. The Fraser Trophy was presented to Donald Sandercock by Clarence Willis, the Hamilton Township Cup to Allan Cusworth by Melville Sandercock and the Township Officials Cup was presented June Lander by Luther Cole. All the contestants were presented with a book each.

Between speeches musical numbers were provided by a duet of Marilyn and Eleanor McClelland; a trio composed of Linda, Marlene and Roy Turk; and a solo by Kathryn Harper.

Donald Sandercock, the first prize winner, is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Melville Sandercock of Camborne, and a pupil of Mrs. Edwin Lacey at Camborne school. He will compete at the county contest being held at Brighton on November 7.

Mr. Willis moved a vote of thanks to the judges and all others who had helped to make such a successful event.

Make Flowers From Feathers

LONDON (CP)—One way to lower the price of Christmas fowl, British housewives are told, is to buy flowers made from feathers.

Farmers, especially turkey breeders, are selling feathers as a by-product to cut production costs. If sales are brisk, turkeys may cost less at Christmas.

The flowers-from-feathers idea results in some life-like designs. For instance, there is a vase of lilies made from "satins," the long soft feathers from a goose's underwing. Those have "leaves" of dyed satins and stamens and pistils of turkey quills.

A realistic butterfly made from pheasant feathers adds a final touch.

Sprays, posies, hat ornaments, head-dresses and buttonholes can be teamed with anemonies, carnations, tulips, daisies and asters, all derived from the farmyard.

Evening capes are also being made from feathers. Each feather is stitched by hand to a firm base and a matching hat is available.

Hunting Fatality

SIMCOE (CP)—John Gable, 19, of Charlotteville was killed Saturday while hunting in the woods four miles west of here. His 18-year-old brother, Jim, heard a shot and found John lying on the ground with a bullet wound in the head. Dr. Keith McIntosh, the coroner, said he believed death was accidental.

Aussie Paper Criticizes War Censorship

MELBOURNE, Australia (Reuters)—The Melbourne Herald today criticized military censors in Korea for preventing identification of the British Commonwealth unit engaged in the battle for Little Gibraltar Hill last week.

Describing the censorship as "over rigid," the Herald said editorially:

"The censorship allows the publication of the news that one company of the British Commonwealth Division was practically wiped out, but withholds identification of this company.

"Relatives of every British, Australian and Canadian soldier serving in one of the 50-odd companies of the division are exposed to harrowing anxiety.

ALREADY IDENTIFIED

"The unit involved must have been identified by the enemy forces and there is no point in withholding the information from our own people."

A North Korean communique claimed heavy western front fighting last week at Little Gibraltar Hill; west of Chorwon, resulted in 230 casualties to the 25th Canadian Brigade. A Canadian Army spokesman said the communique was "grossly exaggerated. . . We haven't got the final figures on the casualties for publication yet, but I am certain they are nowhere near that number."

Most Business Found Honest

KINGSTON (CP) — Claude Root, general manager of the Better Business Bureau of Montreal, today told the Kingston Kiwanis Club that the B.B.B. believes "fully 97 per cent of established business has honest intent."

In an address prepared for a luncheon meeting, Mr. Root said: "The villain of the piece is the so-called business man who seems to feel that the end justifies the means, however unsound or injurious to the interests of the public. . ."

"So business has entrusted the B.B.B. with the arduous task of informing, cautioning and protecting the public against sharpsters and their predatory schemes."

All such preventive services were performed without charge, the cost being borne by responsible business firms on an annual membership fee basis.

CLINIC IN A WORKHOUSE: Gilbert Serafini (standing), director of unique Alcoholic Clinic at Warrensville Workhouse in Cleveland, leads a psycho-therapy discussion in a segregated dormitory for participants. Of 159 applicants this year for treatment, only 46 were accepted. Most rejections were because applicant was not a true alcoholic, but thought he'd "enjoy" the treatment.

U.S. Clinic For Alcoholics Reports Encouraging Results

By CLIFF MILLER

CLEVELAND (NEA)—This fall marks the first anniversary of a civic effort to rehabilitate chronic alcoholics that is unique in the land—the Alcoholic Clinic of Warrensville Workhouse in Cleveland.

Only such clinic ever established as part of a correctional institution, its first year of operation has been watched with keen interest by welfare departments throughout the U.S. and "Results are quite encouraging," says Gilbert Serafini, assistant superintendent.

Dr. Joseph Duffy, of the Western Reserve University faculty, agrees with Serafini. Dr. Duffy is the clinic psychiatrist who tries to guide the chronic drunks and Skid Row bums along the torturous road back to clean living, clear thinking and ambition to "go right."

Inspired by demands of the Cleveland Bar Association, Welfare Federation, and the late Judge Lewis Drucker, the clinic's rooms opened last October with a $10,000 appropriation from the city. Now, one year later there is almost $4,000 left.

5 REHABILITATED

Of 35 alcoholic derelicts accepted as participants for treatment in groups of six to ten at a time, five have been completely rehabilitated. They now form a core of dependable "graduates" who work with the clinic and form the basis of a follow-up program based on treatment by psycho-therapy.

That is the only treatment used. "There is no other effective way," says Serafini. It consists of discussion groups led by Dr. Duffy. The psychiatrist introduces an idea, such as asking one man what he thinks of people who do not salute the flag. Or it can be a question about any other undesirable attitude.

As the participants express their ideas, "they go through a complete personality change," says the clinic's director.

When first opened, Tower Dormitory was regarded suspiciously by prisoners in the Workhouse. Rumors of cold-water treatments and electric shocks discouraged applicants.

It was then the clinic met its most successful participant.

"Richard was very discouraging at first," admits Serafini. A confirmed alcoholic at 33, veteran of many so-called cures, his early marriage had broken under the strain of his constant drinking. When his wife entered a mental institution and Richard began his rounds of innumerable alcoholics' hospitals, he still drank uncontrollalby and wound up with a 360-day sentence for non-support.

SHOWED INTEREST

At first skeptical, Richard suddenly began to show interest in the psycho-therapy sessions, and began telling his fellow-prisoners about the clinic.

"We owe Richard our acceptance by the inmates," admits Serafini.

When released he returned to weekly sessions, became an Alcoholics Anonymous member. Today he is completely rehabilitated, working as a machinist and as he says, "Happier than ever before."

There are doubtful cases, too. Most discouraging in the clinic's files is John, 37, back three times —once after a mere 24 hours of freedom. A printer, John has difficulty getting a job because of his record. "But we feel he will eventually come out of it," says Serafini.

Participants come from all parts of the country. One, a Texan aged 47, was arrested in Cleveland for intoxication and begged to be sent to the Workhouse. He had a long history of drunkenness and a ruined teaching career behind him. While in the Tower Dormitory, he inherited part of an oil-lease fortune. After his release and return to Texas he inherited the rest of the money. Today he has won his way back in the teaching field. He credits the clinic for his recovery.

"We help men who would get aid in no other way," summarizes Serafini. "In the Workhouse they have time to reflect and seek help. We are here to offer it."

Auxiliaries Head Mrs. T. J. Lytle Dies In Toronto

President for the past two years of the Ontario Women's Hospital Auxiliaries Association, Mrs. T. J. Lytle, 67, died Friday at her home, 131 Hilton Ave. The association, in session for its annual meeting at the Royal York Hotel, had planned the presentation of a life membership to Mrs. Lytle at her home following the opening lunch on Saturday.

President for seven years of the auxiliary of the Women's College Hospital, she had been made a life member of the organization.

During the First World War Mrs. Lytle served as a V.A.D. at the Royal Herbert Hospital, Woolwich, Eng., and in the Second World War with the Emergency Service, Red Cross. She had received a special award for service with the Red Cross.

Formerly Laura M. Harper, she was born in Winona and was a resident for some time of Hamilton. She was a graduate of the Hamilton General Hospital School of Nursing and for several years was matron of the Mineral Springs Sanatorium, Manitoba. Mrs. Lytle had been an active church worker in Hamilton and a member of the Elgar and Century United Church choirs.

She was a member of the Mendelssohn Choir, Toronto, and St. Columba United Church.

Her husband died a year ago. She leaves five step-children, Robert, John and Craig Lytle, all of Winnipeg, and Irene Lytle and Mrs. Dorothy Smith, Toronto; four sisters, Mrs. G. A. Glidden, Vinemount; Mrs. Fred Mather, Stoney Creek; Miss Myrta Harper, New York, and Mrs. Gerald Simpson, Hamilton, and one brother, Hillard Harper, Vinemount.

Belgium Promises Do 'Full Share' In Korea

NEW YORK (AP). — Paul van Zeeland, Belgium's Foreign Minister, said Sunday his country is prepared to do "her full share" in any collective action in Korea.

"Our position is that if any collective action is taken, we will do our full part as we have done," he told reporters on his arrival here by plane. "But the other nations should also do the same." ván Zeeland did not elaborate. Belgium has a battalion fighting in Korea.

To Spend 10 Billion

SEATTLE (AP) — The United States will spend $10,000,000,000 on its high speed atom bomb striking force, the B-47 and B-52 jet bombers, a Boeing airplane company executive said yesterday. Wellwood Beall, Boeing senior vice-president, told a group of visiting San Francisco newspapermen he believed the expenditure to be one of the largest by any nation on a single type weapon.

OBITUARIES

MRS. SAMUEL COTTINGHAM

Mrs. Samuel Cottingham, the former Isabella MacDonald, 87, of Chatham, and formerly of Peterborough, died Saturday in Chatham.

Born in Smith township, Mrs. Cottingham was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Neil MacDonald and had lived in Chatham for the past two and one half years. Formerly she resided in Peterborough.

She was a member of Murray St. Baptist Church.

She leaves one daughter, Mrs. Clarence Moulthrop (Mayme), of Chatham; one son, Morgan K. Cottingham, Manhasset, Long Island; one sister, Mrs. William Lewis, Peterborough; three grandchildren and six great-grandchildren. Her husband, Samuel Cottingham, predeceased her in 1950.

The body will arrive by train from Chatham early Tuesday morning for the funeral to be held at the Comstock funeral home Tuesday, at 1 p.m. The Rev. Ivan C. Morgan, of Murray St. Baptist Church, will conduct the service. Burial will be in Little Lake cemetery.

MRS. THOMAS H. BROOKS

A resident of Peterborough for the past 56 years, Mrs. Thomas H. Brooks, 81, of 665 Montrose Ave., died today at her home after a long illness. She was the wife of Thomas Brooks, an envoy in the Salvation Army.

Formerly Rebecca Nelson, she was born and educated in England, a daughter of the late George Nelson and Mary Moone. She lived in Brighton before coming to Peterborough and was a member of the Salvation Army.

Mr. and Mrs. Brooks celebrated their 62nd wedding anniversary on April 19 this year.

Surviving her are five daughters and a son: Mrs. Julia Webb, Brantford, Mrs. Winnifred Robinson, Lakeport; Mrs. Mossie Elms, Thornhill; Mrs. Mildred Stone, Toronto; Mrs. Beryl Tyres and William Edward Brooks of Peterborough. There is one granddaughter, Mrs. Art Hunter, of Peterborough.

Funeral service will be conducted Wednesday at 2 p.m. at the Kaye funeral home, Major H. G. Roberts of the Salvation Army officiating. Burial will be in Little Lake cemetery.

HOBART ARTHUR SUTHERLAND

One of the most widely known resort operators in the Peterborough district, Hobart Arthur (Bob) Sutherland of R.R. 4 Peterborough, died Sunday in a city hospital. Death was sudden and came in his 58th year.

Mr. Sutherland was proprietor of Wenonah Camp, north of Peterborough on the Lakefield Highway, and he was one of the first motel operators in the district.

He was born and educated at Thurso, Quebec, son of the late Arthur Sutherland and Emma Hammond..

After moving from Thurso Mr. Sutherland lived for some time in Belleville and he has lived in the Peterborough district for 22 years. He has been operating Wanonah Camp for about 15 years.

He was recognized as one of the most active members of the resort operators' section of the Chamber of Commerce since it was organized in 1948.

He leaves his wife, the former Leapha Clark, a daughter, Marion Sutherland, and a sister, Mrs. D. McKenzie (Berdie) of Ottawa

Mr. Sutherland was a member of George Street United Church and he was a veteran of the First World War.

The funeral will be at 2 p.m. Tuesday at the Belleghem funeral home, the Rev. Arnold Mathews of George Street United Church officiating. Burial will be in Little Lake cemetery.

Church Service Tribute To 12th Dragoons

VIRDEN, Man.—Memoirs of a gallant advance across a bullet-swept bridge in Belgium came fresh to the minds of many Canadians Sunday when a ceremony in St. Mary's Anglican Church paid tribute to the gallantry of a Canadian regiment.

In the presence of governmental, army and civic officials, the Belgian consul at Winnipeg, S. J. Dale, presented a stained-glass window in memory of the relief of Bruges, in Belgium, by the 12th Manitoba Dragoons. The gift recalled the Canadian advance in 1944, when the regiment smashed its way across the river and freed the city.

Present for the ceremony were many former officers of the regiment, among them Brig. James Roberts of Oakville, and Rev. John L. Duncan of St. Thomas, who was padre of the unit during the engagement. Maj. - Gen. Elliott Roger, commander of the prairie company, was also present.

In 1948 a detachment of the regiment journeyed to Belgium for a special ceremony, when the city of Bruges dedicated to Canada the bridge across which the Canadians had advanced. Today's ceremony was a final chapter of that occasion, at which Lt.-Col. J. R. Rocky Fulton, present commander of the unit, headed the march of the regiment to the church.

Jailed 2 Years For Bossing Big Scandal

TOKYO (AP)—Setsuzo Hinohara, a businessman charged with masterminding a $56,000,000 scandal, was sentenced to two years in jail today.

Suehiro Nishio, former Socialist vice-premier convicted of taking bribes, was given a one-year sentence, deferred for three years. The deferment amounts to a parole.

The bribery scandal toppled the Hitoshi Ashida cabinet in 1948. Hinohara was fined 50,000 yen (about $150) in addition to his sentence. He pleaded guilty.

Hinohara rebuilt his war-wrecked Showa Denko Chemical Fertilizer Co. into one of post-war Japan's largest firms. The rebuilding was financed by huge loans from the government's reconversion finance bank. The prosecution charged he got the loans through bribery.

Fails To Set Record Of Mile Under Sea

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Otis Barton descended 3,630 feet into the ocean in his benthoscope Saturday, again failing in his attempt to set a record of one mile.

He failed to reach his goal because the steel benthoscope drifted into shallow water; engineers unreeling the cable to which the steel ball was attached feared it might strike subterranean rocks.

Barton, who descended 4,500 feet in the ball off Santa Cruz Island in 1949 to establish a world record, failed last September in an attempt to go down a mile. A twisted cable was to blame that time.

The dive was made in a deep ocean hole off San Clemente Island.

Ban On T-V At Coronation Arouses Ire Of Britons

LONDON (REUTERS) —Prime Minister Churchill, hounded by indignant protests over the decision to ban television cameras from the Coronation ceremony next year, today called a special cabinet session to help him draft a [illegible]

It is considered unlikely that he will be able to do much about getting a reversal of the decision, officially announced last Monday by the Coronation committee on advice from the cabinet. Observers say the best he can do is hint that a reconsideration would be welcome.

He was originally due to answer questions in parliament tomorrow. Now he has sought more time.

Objections to the ban, which will let some 20,000,000 viewers see the procesions and trapping next June but will bar them from the actual crowning in Westminster Abbey, broke out in an angry rash in today's Sunday press.

Only the Conservative London Sunday Times supports the ban, claiming Elizabeth wanted it and that it was in the best interest of "a young Queen dedicating herself before God."

"If direct television means adding any needless distraction or self-consciousness to the strain upon her, that should be decisive," the Times says.

"Is watching (the Coronation) on a television screen a real sharing or only a curious eavesdroppping?" the Times asks.

But since the making of a movie inside the Abbey will be permitted, the Times' arguments were not generally echoed.

Most other papers take the line that Buckingham Palace officials inspired the ban to keep the people as far away from the Throne as possible.

[illegible] Beaverbrook's Daily [illegible] charge the Archbishop of Canterbury was responsible, supported by the Earl Marshal (the Duke of Norfolk), Chairman of the Coronation Committee.

The socialist Reynolds News blames the decision on Churchill and "his Tory government." It adds that the Duke of Edinburgh has demanded a full report on the ban from the Earl Marshal in a campaign to get it rescinded.

SIGNING THE MARRIAGE REGISTER of Christ Church (Anglican) Omemee, is Mrs. Robert Gordon Lewis, the former Miss Ethel Laidley of Omemee. The couple will live in Lindsay.—(R. G. Brook Photo)

Wed In Omemee Church

In Christ Church, Anglican, Omemee, Saturday afternoon the Rev. Charles Richmond heard the nuptial vows and performed the marriage of Ethel May, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Harvey Laidley of Omemee, to Robert Gordon Lewis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Franklin Lewis of Lindsay.

White flowers were laid on the altar and the church was decorated with bronze and yellow chrysanthemums. Mr. Milburn Jones played the wedding music and Miss Dorothy Connell of Peterborough was soloist. Before the bride entered Miss Connell sang "The Lord's Prayer" and during the signing of the register she sang "Because."

The bride's gown was fashioned with a strapless bodice of imported Chantilly lace atop a skirt of baronet satin and nylon overskirts which fell over a padded hipline, and worn with a jecket of the imported lace which extended at the back in a long, fan-shaped train. Her veil of nylon net was just shoulder length and caught to her white feathered bandeau. She carried a bouquet of white poms with green ivy.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attended by her twin sister Miss Bethel Laidley, a graduate nurse at Civic Hospital, Peterborough, who wore a frock in toast color with floor-length skirt of net trimmed with an abundance of net frills and strapless bodice of Chantilly lace topped with a Queen Ann jacket of the lace with long sleeves. She wore a rustfeathered bandeau and carried a bouquet of yellow poms.

Bridesmaids were Miss June Nokes of Lindsay and Mrs. Glenn Sage of Peterborough. Their dresses were of green net with lace bodices and lace jackets with cap sleeves, finished with stand-up collars. They wore matching net mitts and green, feathered bandeaux and carried bouquets of mixed yellow and mauve poms.

The groom's attendant was his brother Mr. Jack Lewis. Ushers were Robert Laidley and Robert Everson. The bride's train was carried by a small page boy David Richmond.

The reception following the ceremony was in the church basement. Mrs. Laidley, mother of the bride, received in a gown of pure silk ottoman cord in burnt sugar shade and wore a brown velour hat with gold bead trim and a corsage of bronze poms. The groom's mother was gowned in steel grey triple sheer and her hat was of black velour with black osprey feather. Her corsage was of deep pink roses.

Leaving later on a honeymoon trip to Montreal and eastern points the bride was wearing an all wool worsted grey suit and topcoat, a red feather hat and red leather shoes, purse and gloves.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis will live in Lindsay on return.

G.A. Holds Hallowe'en Tea

The Girls' Auxiliary of St. John's Anglican Church, an organization which is increasing in membership and progressing wonderfully in knowledge under the leadership of Mrs. W. C. Boate, held its first tea Saturday afternoon.

The tea was at the home of Mrs. Boate, 171 Antrim St., and was managed entirely by the girls with supervision of several mothers and leaders. For many of the girls it was their first tea but they were faced with the usual problem of what to wear on this occasion for Mrs. Boate and each of the members was in the G.A. uniform, a dark skirt and white blouse or middy.

A fearsome skeleton on the glass panel of the door warned guests that it was a Hallowe'en tea. Decorations on the lace-covered tea tale were in keeping with black witches and cats and a big orange pumpkin. Orange and black fluted streamers were hung along the wall and were festooned on the skirts of candy and home baking tables.

The girls had sold more than 200 tickets before the tea and a number of friends paid admission at the door so that, with proceeds of their sale tables, the Axiliary expects to gain about $85 from this event. The money will be used to buy materials for their leathercraft classes and to make donations to three Diocesan missions supported by G.A. funds. This tea will take the place of the booth which the girls operated other years at the church bazaar.

Mrs. Boate was assisted in receiving by the G.A. president, Miss Beth Conley, and the convener of the tea, Miss Gloria Clemens.

Daughter Alma Boate, youngest member of the Auxiliary, and Sheila Nicholls attended the door and also supplied a convenient baby sitting service.

Treasurer Carol Calhoun was assisted by Sherry Hope in taking tickets.

An interesting sideline of the tea was the sale of earrings made by the girls after just one lesson in the craft. The sale table was in charge of Josa Hendron [illegible] enson and Mrs. Claire Stuart, assistant leaders.

Tea pourers for one hour periods were Mrs. T. H. Floyd, Mrs. H. C. Sootheran, Mrs. F. E. Hooper, Mrs. W. P. Robertson, Mrs. G. H Moore and Mrs W. E. Franks. The servers were Carol Caldwell, Ann Merrett, Carolyn Ball and Patricia Gunn.

The kitchen work was done by Ann Gardner, Doris Milne, June Valois, Judy Reynolds, Lorraine Gunn and Eleanor Biddle, with Mrs. L. W. Milne and Mrs. Paul Evans in charge.

Convener of the home-made candy table was Mary Sutton and she was assisted by Donna Milne and Katherine Nisbett. The home cooking table was convened by Evelyn James and Beverley Farrance, Shirley Maudsley and Pauline Evans assisted.

MR. AND MRS. RONALD G. MONGRAW of Peterborough were married Saturday afternoon in Knox United Church. The bride is the former Miss Jean Alice Bulmer, Reg.N., from Belleville.—(Choate Studio Photo)

Mongraw-Bulmer Wedding

With a background of bronze and yellow chrysanthemums at the altar of Knox United Church the marriage was solemnized Saturday afternoon of Jean Alice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Bulmer of Belleville, and Ronald Clarence Mongraw, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Mongraw of Peterborough.

The Rev. H. G. Douglas performed the ceremony and the wedding music was played by Mr. W. R. Potter, organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a navy gabardine suit and she wore pale blue accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses. Her attendant was Miss Betty Barr, Reg. N., of Peterborough who wore a grey flannel suit with navy accessories and had a corsage of yellow 'mums.

The groom was attended by Mr. Ross Kidd and his brother Mr. Gordon Mongraw ushered.

The reception following was in the church parlor with guests present from Belleville, Wellington, Lindsay, Toronto and Peterborough. The bride's mother received in a navy silk dress and navy accessories and the groom's mother was dressed in light blue and wore black accessories. Each had a corsage of pink roses.

The bridal couple left afterward on a trip to Quebec and United States. On return they will live at 475 King St.

Miss Eleanor Drope Weds

Two graduates of the University of Toronto were married Saturday afternoon in Bethesda United Church at Harwood with the Rev. A. E. Larke of Springville officiating, assisted by the Rev. W. P. Woodger of Cobourg. The bride, Miss Lettice Eleanor Drope, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Drope of Harwood; and the groom, the Rev. Gordon Moore McKenzie of Los Angeles, California, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. N. McKenzie of Cobourg.

Mr. Drope gave his daughter in marriage and she chose a gown of gleaming satin, the slim bodice featuring a stand-up collar and deep yoke of Guipure lace. The full circular skirt swept into a long train which was appliqued with matching lace. Her long veil was caught to a satin crown encrusted with seed pearls and she carried deep pink roses.

The bride's sisters, Mrs. Shirley Munroe, matron of honor, and Miss Pauline Drope, bridesmaid, were dressed in olive green taffeta frocks and wore headdresses of olive green with pink plumes and matching taffeta mittens. They carried cascade bouquets of pale pink roses. Miss Mary Lynn McKenzie, niece of the groom, as flower girl, was frocked in pale pink taffeta and carried a basket of rosebuds.

Mr. Norman McKenzie of Markham was groomsman for his brother and the ushers were Mr. Kenneth Munroe of St. Catharines and Mr. Earle Fisher of Montreal.

The reception was held in Harwood Community Centre. The bride's mother received the many guests gowned in rosewood crepe with accessories of beige, and the groom's mother was gowned in desert sand crepe and wore brown accessories. Each had a corsage of bronze 'mums.

As Mr. and Mrs. McKenzie left for Los Angeles, California, where they will reside, the bride wore a cocoa brown crepe dress, brown squirrel cape, a pale blue hat and brown accessories.

Kavanagh-Chase Nuptials

A double ring ceremony at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Chase, Havelock, Saturday afternoon, united in marriage their youngest daughter, Beulah Mabel, and Samuel Harry Kavanagh, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Kavanagh of Norwood.

Baskets of fall flowers decorated the house for the occasion. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. G. Newman under an archway decorated with pink and white fluted streamers and centred with a large white bell. The wedding music was played by Donald Pollock and Mrs. John Beatty sang "O Perfect Love" before the ceremony, and "I'll Walk Beside You" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of sky blue crepe, styled with a fitted bodice with a jacket of lace which had a Princess Anne collar and long sleeves coming to points over her hands. She wore a beige hat and carried a bouquet of white 'mums edged with blue.

Mrs. Hugh Rogers of Norwood was bridesmaid for her sister, wearing a wine iridescent taffeta gown fashioned with sweetheart neckline, long sleeves, and full skirt. She wore a grey hat and carried a bouquet of bronze 'mums.

Donald Andrews of Peterborough was the groomsman.

At the reception following the ceremony, the bride's mother wore powder blue crepe with black accessories. Also receiving was the groom's mother wearing navy crepe with matching lace, jacket and matching accessories. Both wore corsages of Sweetheart roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Kavanagh will live in Norwood.

Brockenshire-McCallister

A pretty autumn wedding was solemnized at St. Mark's Anglican Church, Port Hope, at High Noon Saturday, when Miss Arleigh Jean McCallister, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold McCallister of Bewdley, became the bride of Peter Ross Brockenshire, Peterborough, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. George Brockenshire Port Hope.

Amid a setting of gold and white chrysanthemums the Rev. C. H. Boulder performed the double ring ceremony. The wedding music was played by organist Mr. Merrigold and Mr. Reginald Peters of Peterborough was soloist, singing "The Lord's Prayer" before the ceremony and "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a gown of white slipper satin made on Victorian lines, the skirt ending in a train. A standing lace collar framed the neck line. The long sleeves were lily-pointed. She wore a gold cross and chain and her shoulder length veil of silk illusion was enhanced by an embroidered border and her headdress of satin and net was bonnet shape, the edge trimmed with tiny seed pearls. She carried a bride's prayer book and feathered white carnations.

Attending the bride were Miss Barbara Halligan as maid of honor and bridesmaid Miss Kay Lee. They wore similar gowns of gold and rust taffeta made on Imperial lines with shawl collars. Mittens matched each gown, and on the headdresses were feathers of contrasting color. They carried cascades of bronze and yellow 'mums.

David Brockenshire was his brother's groomsman and the ushers were Garth Manley and Raymond Lingard.

A reception was held at Seaton Hall, Port Hope, where the bride's mother received wearing a gown of navy brocaded nylon with navy and white accessories. She wore an orchid corsage. The groom's mother wore a gown of mauve nylon tulle over taffeta with Chantilly lace bodice and a slightly darker shade of accessories. Her corsage was of gold and white 'mums.

Later the bride and groom left on a trip to points west, the bride travelling in a dress of gold wool, a camel hair coat, accessories in brown. Her corsage was of Talisman roses.

On return they will live at 763 Curtis Road, Peterborough.

Guests at the wedding were from Peterborough, Toronto, Cobourg, Oshawa, Georgetown, Guelph, Port Hope and Bewdley.

Yeo of Port Hope, Mrs. Harold Wilson and Miss Millicent Hudson of Pontypool.

Confederation Fun Night Highly Successful

Confederation School was "bursting at the seams" Friday evening when more than 700 adults and children enjoyed the Home and School Association's "Fun Night." There was fun galore from the girls' basement where there was small fry dancing to the top floor where films were continuously shown. Main floor rooms were converted into snack bars, euchre, bridge, and bingo rooms and for adult dancing.

The films, each shown twice, were the Royal Visit, Lake Superior Adventure, Three Bruins in the Woods, and Birds of Canada. The adults danced to orchestra music and the small fry to square dance records.

All attractions were supervised by teachers and executive members of the Association, helped very capably by their husbands.

Adult door prizes were won by Mrs. S. Townsend, and Mr. R. Dyer, and the children's by Elizabeth Pollock and Brian Reid.

Bridge prize-winners were Mrs. E. N. Beswick and Mrs. M. Stenner and Mr. Ken Robertson and Mrs. F. W. Williams. Euchre prizes went to Mrs. A. Howarth and Mrs. Sutton, and consolation to Mr. Stewart. Lone hand prize went to Mrs. A. Millard and the lucky chair prize to Mr. Stewart.

This was the second very successful fun night held by this Association. Proceeds will go toward purchasing a 16-mm projector for the school. The support received from the community is very much appreciated. General conveners of the program were Mrs. Howard Powell and Mrs. Fraser Wade.

Bride-Elect Feted

HAVELOCK (ENS) — Miss Beulah Chase, who became the bride of Samuel Kavanagh, of Norwood, on Saturday, was guest of honor at two social gatherings prior to her marriage.

Misses Lois Wilde and Edith Thompson were hostesses for the first event held at the home of the latter when the girl friends of the bride-elect gathered to present her with a miscellaneous shower.

A novel manner of presenting the fifts was followed by hanging a fancy umbrella in the archway to which was attached heart-shaped cards with the information [illegible] had been placed and Lois Wilde.

Miss Eleanor Forsyth was hostess for the second shower which was also held at the home of Miss Edith Thompson, when the members of the Young People's Union of Havelock United Church presented the guest of honor with a walnut end table. Miss Forsyth gave the address and the gift was presented by Paul Newman and James Thompson.

Guests attending the Kavanagh-Chase wedding on Saturday were: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dale, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Wright, Mr. Donald Andrews, of Peterborough; Miss Elva Gerow, of Toronto; Miss Jean Hay, of Colborne; Mr. and Mrs. J. Skelton and daughter, of Cobourg; Mr. and Mrs. Golden Andrews; Mr. and Mrs. W. Kavanagh, Mrs. B. Cook, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Rogers, of Norwood; Mrs. Lawrence Gerow, Mr. and Mrs. William Harris, of Belmont township; Mr. and Mrs. Fraser Oliver, of Havelock.

MR. WILLIAM D. GEARING of Oshawa and his bride, the former Miss Yvonne Hudson of Peterborough, were pictured following the wedding ceremony in Knox United Church Saturday afternoon.—(Parks Studio Photo)

Gearing-Hudson Wedding

The marriage took place in Knox United Church on Saturday October 25th of Yvonne Millicent, daughter of Mrs. Vera Hudson and the late Robert Henry Hudson of Peterborough, to William Douglas Gearing, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gearing of Oshawa. The Rev. H. G. Douglas officiated.

The church was decorated with ferns and yellow and bronze chrysanthemums and the music was played by Mr. William R. Potter.

The bride was given in marriage by Mr. John Howard Hall. She wore a dress of copper kettle ticatina crepe, styled in the cocktail length, with a strapless bodice, topped with a jacket of matching material. She wore elbow-length brown velvet mittens and brown feather hat, and carried a bouquet of cream colored roses.

She was attended by her sister Mrs. Bob Kennedy. Her dress was also in the cocktail length of the same material in autumn glow shade. Her hat was of black velvet and she had matching mittens. She carried a nosegay of bronze baby 'mums.

Groomsman was Mr. Barry Johnson of Oshawa. The ushers were Mr. Bob Kennedy and Mr Bob Johnson.

The reception was held in Knox banquet hall, where the bride's mother received, wearing a dress of cameo blue with black accessories and a corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother, who also received, wore a dress of navy faille with matching accessories. She wore a corsage of pink roses.

Later the bride and groom left for a trip to the United States.

For travelling the bride wore a navy suit with red accessories and a grey topcoat. Her corsage was of red roses.

On their return Mr. and Mrs. Gearing will live three miles east of Oshawa.

Helen Ingham Wins Millbrook Oratory Contest

MILLBROOK (ENS) — Public speaking contests for the pupils of Millbrook public school were held in the town hall on Friday evening. There were two contests, one for the pupils of Grades 3, 4 and 5 of Miss Burnham's room and the other for Grades 6, 7 and 8 of Mr. Hamilton's room. Both the principal, Percy Hamilton, and the judges commented on the high calibre of all the speeches this year. The five best speakers from the junior room, and seven best from the senior one had been chosen to compete in the town hall. In the junior contest, which was held first, Elinore Crowley placed 1st, speaking on "Bridges," Bernard Ingham second (Through the Thousand Islands) and Nancy Powell third (Power, Light and Heat).

In the seniors Helen Ingham placed first speaking on "Stories from the life of Winston Churchill", Lenore Ouellette and Glen Hickey tied for second with the subjects "The Earthworm" and "How I prepared my public Speech," Judy Hobbs was third telling about "Candy Land", a visit to a candy factory.

Between the two contests the pupils of Miss Burnham's room entertained with choruses, and Mr. Hamilton's pupils sang while the judges were making their decisions. The singing was directed by Miss Diann Hogaboam, new music supervisor.

Helen Ingham goes on to speak in the semi-finals in the town hall on October 28.

The winners of first place in each contest received $2. Other contestants were given $1 and all were treated from a basket of fruit donated by Alex Gilbert, Home and School president, for platform decoration.

The judges were Mrs. W. W. Kennedy of the public school board, the Rev. Margaret Butler, and Harry Williams of the high school staff.

"Hot Flashes" Stopped or strikingly relieved in tests by doctors!

• If you're miserable from the "hot flashes," and accompanying irritable, restless feelings of "change of life"—you may be suffering unnecessarily!

For, in tests by doctors, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought relief from such functionally-caused suffering—in case after case! Complete or striking relief.

Yes! Research has proved Lydia Pinkham's thoroughly modern in action . . . has shown you where to look for relief from those distressing, nervous, "out of sorts" feelings of mid-life "change"!

So get Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, or new, improved Tablets. Both are grand, too, for functional pains and "weak" feelings of monthly periods.

It acts through a woman's sympathetic nervous system to relieve distress of these awful "heat waves"!

What's Right?

You are leaving a large party early in order to go on to another party.

WRONG: Let everyone know why you are having to leave early.

RIGHT: Leave as quietly and as inconspicuously as possible.

DOROTHY DIX

Romantic Complication When Two Girls vs. 1 Man

DEAR MISS DIX: Several months ago I began dating a young man who worked in my office. I knew he was going steady with another girl, but he said they were breaking up. As time went on, we fell in love, but he continued to date the other girl. Finally he did make the break, which lasted a month. Then he told me he wasn't sure how he felt about either of us. He didn't know which one he loved. We decided not to see each other for awhile, and perhaps he could make up his mind. After a week, he decided he missed me too much. In other words, he simply can't seem to be away from either of us. He's 25 years old. He says he knows he loves me, but isn't sure of his feelings for the other girl. She's 24, so he may feel that he has already spoiled her chance for happiness. What can I do? Should I forget him, or try to stand up under the situation until he makes up his mind? C.F.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Hand him over to the other girl, bag and baggage! At 25 a man should be mature enough to make up his mind between two girls. Moreover, it seems to me this young man is deliberately stringing the matter out to make the best of two romances. He is unstable, undependable, and a very, very bad prospect as a husband. The pattern he has established now will be followed in matrimony. Is that the sort of life you want? I doubt it! Probably he would marry you, then decide it was the other girl he wanted all the time; or vice versa. Better get out of the mess while you can. Heartache now will be much easier to cure than a heartache after marriage. This dangling will do you no good emotionally or physically, so end it once and for all!

ANONYMOUS LETTERS

DEAR MISS DIX: Often you express annoyance because you receive "anonymous" letters. You believe no doubt that people who write such letters are cowards. Perhaps in some cases they are, but more likely such letters are the result of sensible discretion? People don't want their names revealed when they share a problem with you. ANONYMOUS.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: I certainly am not "annoyed" at anonymous letters I receive; I am only sorry because I can't send the personal reply that I think the letter deserves. Such a case is yours; I should very much like to have replied to it personally.

No one need ever fear a name being revealed through this column. True names are never used, so even if a reader thinks he can identify the writer of a letter from a name or initials, he's wrong. I use such identification as the reader wishes.

Of course, anonymous letters written to others than columnists are something else again. They are, and can never be classed as anything but, contemptible. They usually purport to be friendly missives revealing knowledge that the writer is sure the reader is all too happy to receive. Emphatically this isn't true, and the writer knows it. Anonymous letters received by private individuals should be destroyed—preferably unread.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My folks wouldn't let me date until I was 17, so from 14, when most of my friends began to date, I have devoted myself to other activities. I am a good cook and seamstress, have been active in debate, music, was in the 4H where I won several prizes and am now ready to enter the university. During those three years I think I have matured more than the average girl. Now, my parents want me to associate with those of my own age group, and I prefer older people. F.A.S.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your parents are wrong to insist on your associating with younger people when your abilities and tendencies fit you into another age group. Naturally, with the capabilities you have developed over the three years since you were 14, older boys and girls are bound to be more interesting. Perhaps a teacher, or someone associated with you in one of your activities, can make your parents realize their error.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Family Trivia And Some Meals For Two

It really only takes one polite little query from your reader-friends to start me off on a flood of talk—especially if you happen to make the mistake of asking me about Marianne and Pete.

But today several letters asked how they were and how Pete was enjoying medical college. I love telling.

When these two bairns of mine finally made up their shifting minds about their respective professions, and they turned out to be nursing and doctoring I warned them. I said, "Now look here, you two, don't you come back home and expect to cure me of all my ills with pills—for I won't take 'em." "Furthermore," I said in a stern manner, "I can still outlast you both in working-man-hours, and rather enjoy my little ailments." "Yes Mother." "Okay Mother."

On Thanksgiving weekend they were both at home in force. By that I mean Pete brought one of his fraternity buddies and Marianne had invited Arthur (her boy friend with whom I am in love—in a motherly way understand).

The arguments have started. Pete is only in pre-med school of course, but he's trying to tell Marianne how to study anatomy—it seems she knows where one's os innominatum is, but he has it located differently. As long as they don't interfere with mine, which I think I sit on, thy can can argue all night.

By the end of that day with the house full of them and their followers and meals being prepared or dishes being washed all of the time when I wasn't typing—well, I had a headache. Innocently enough I started to take two aspirins, Marianne looked at me with some doubt and said, "Mother, we aren't allowed to take those things in the hospital without special permission." Pete chimed in, "I'll take you for a fast walk Mum—that's what you need." My jaw dropped open. I thought I was going to be doped on pills by both of them soon. Now I don't know where I'm at—except that I still had that self-same headache until I went to sleep on Thanksgiving night!

Pete's a Nu Sigma Nu. That's good. But it seems that those noon dinners are a wonderful drawing-card to the fraternity, for since it is too crowded for him to live there, he boards, and thus gets two full-size dinners every day. Need I remind you of the paramount importance of the stomach of an 18-year-old?

MEALS FOR TWO

(for business housekeepers)

I would like to suggest to those business wives in this audience who have to prepare meals in nothing flat, a pressure cooker is a life-saver.

(1) Cheese omelette; salad bowl of lettuce, drained, canned diced beets; chopped celery and lemon-y mayonnaise; whole wheat bread and butter; canned grapefruit sections and cookies; coffee.

(2) Canned pea soup and crackers; quick-seared hamburgers (on buns if for lunch, but with spinach if for dinner); thick French bread and butter; sliced oranges sprinkled with moist cocoanut; bakers' bran muffins; tea or coffee.

(3) Canned clam chowder; split broiled wieners filled with processed cheese; wiener rolls; celery hearts and carrot strips; generous serving of seedless green grapes; rye wafers and cheese; milk.

(4) Sauteed canned codfish cakes with bacon; canned tomatoes; toasted rye bread and butter; sliced bananas and cream; gingersnaps; coffee or milk.

(5) Fried ham and eggs; whole wheat toast; sliced tomatoes; dessert pears or apples; crackers and imported cheese; coffee or milk. (Often now that I am alone about half of the time, I prepare this last menu for myself, and it is by far my favorite. In fact in about two minutes I am going to leave this typewriter and have it).

All across Canada women say only Shadow Wave HOME PERMANENT gives such NATURALLY WAVY HAIR
with NO NEUTRALIZER—NO RINSE

Read What These Delighted Users Say

"My hair has always been difficult to manage. But this new Shadow Wave has turned my unattractive hair into lovely soft natural curls—without any neutralizing or rinsing, and in 40 minutes!"
Mrs. E. J. Kershaw
Regina, Sask.

"I must have tried every other home permanent on the market before I discovered Shadow Wave, and none of them ever gave me such naturally curly hair."
G. A. Florence Peterson
Calgary, Alberta

WAVES AND NEUTRALIZES IN ONE APPLICATION

1. Use with any plastic curlers—or the new French style
End papers attached to use again and again. So soft you can sleep on them!
2. Apply lotion . . . no timing just let dry.
The only lotion that waves and neutralizes without timing or rinsing. Takes less time than any other home permanent.
3. Brush out just like naturally wavy hair.
When dry, simply remove curlers—brush out and your set becomes a lovely, lasting wave.

SHADOW WAVE HOME PERMANENT $1.50 plus 2.00 including curlers

6—In Memoriam

BURNS—In loving memory of Ronald George Burns, who passed away October 26, 1939.
We think of him in silence,
No eye can see us weep,
But many silent tears are shed
When others are asleep.
—Always remembered by mom, daddy, John and Beverley.

McLAREN—In loving remembrance of Billie McLaren, dear husband and dad, who passed away October 27, 1941.
—Still sadly missed by his wife and family.

ROLLINS—In loving memory of dear Gordon, who passed away October 27, 1947.
Peacefully sleeping, resting at last,
His weary trials and troubles past,
In silence he suffered, in patience he bore,
Till God called him home to suffer no more.
—Always remembered by his mother and father, brother and sister.

Rev. H. A. Kent Speaks At Anniversary

A capacity congregation attended St. James' United Church Sunday morning to hear the Rev. H. A. Kent, M.A., D.D., principal emeritus of Queen's Theological College, Kingston.

Dr. Kent was the guest preacher for the 47th anniversary services celebrated at St. James' United Church.

Blessed are the meek; for they shall inherit the earth, Mathew 5:5, was the text for the morning sermon.

Dr. Kent explained that the meek are not weak, but have a kind of strength that accomplishes important things. They have the strength of Jesus Christ, which results in creative and redemptive actions of love.

DEDICATED TO SAVING

They are humble enough to look beyond themselves and to know what they should do with their lives. As a result their lives are dedicated to lifting and saving rather than destroying.

The anthems, Judge Me O God, by Mendelssohn, and, With A Voice Of Singing, by Shaw, were sung by the senior choir. The junior choir sang, Now Let Heaven and Earth Adore Thee, by Bach. Mrs. Charles M. Renaud is the director of both choirs.

At the evening service, Dr. Kent pointed to the life and work of the Apostle Paul, as an example for the Christian individual and church. Special stress was place on Paul's missionary zeal.

Mrs. Charles Holmes of Murray St. Baptist Church choir was the soloist at the evening service. She sang, The Publican, by Van de Water. The senior choir sang, Hear My Prayer, by James, and a double trio sang, Lift Thine Eyes, by Mendelssohn. The members of the double trio were Mrs. A. Davies, Mrs. V. Davies, Miss D. Stanbury, Mrs. H. Doig, Mrs. E. Kitney, and Mrs. H. D. McCormack.

FIRESIDE

A fireside fellowship hour followed the evening service. The guest speaker was Dr. William B. Arnup of Peterborough, who related his experiences during his term as a United Church medical missionary in China.

Music for the hour was provided by the junior choir.

At the close, the Excelsior and other Bible Clases of the Sunday School served refreshments.

The final event of the anniversary celebrations will be a turkey dinner Tuesday evening in the church under the auspices of the Women's Association.

Organ Dedicated In Emily Church

A new reredos, electric organ and carpet, were dedicated Sunday at St. James' Anglican Church, Emily, by the Rev. Dr. G. H. Johnston of Toronto, a former rector of St. James'.

The present rector, the Rev. Charles E. Richmond, assisted in the service and the prayers of dedication. Dr. Johnston's sermon was based on "The Church, the House of Prayer." Present were members of the sister churches of St. John's, Emily, and Christ Church, Omemee.

After the service all were invited by the Ladies' Guild to the parish hall to enable each to renew old acquaintances with Dr. and Mrs. Johnston and their daughter Joanne.

From a lace covered table centred with white 'mums, tea was poured by Mrs. Rev. Charles E. Richmond and Miss Alta Moncrieff, president of the Ladies' Guild of St. James. Rector's Warden Alton Clark extended to Dr. Johnston on behalf of Mrs. Richmond and all the members of St. James' a special word of thanks, followed by Donald Franks, People's Warden, thanking the ladies for their hospitality.

Neighbour's Car Hits Rear Of Parked Auto

As he was driving south on Rubidge Street, early Sunday morning, Thomas Ashby, 200 Rubidge Street, said he didn't notice a neighbor's car, owned by Thomas McMillan, parked in front of his house at 197 Rubidge Street.

Extensive damage resulted to the front end of Ashby's car and the rear of McMillan's as Ashby's car ran into the rear of the parked vehicle.

Ashby's head was thrown forward against the steering wheel by the impact, cutting his lips and knocking out a couple of teeth. Constable Eldon McDonald investigated.

G. W. Craw

It is forseeing the requirements [illegible] paid tribute to the members of the board for the extra work they have done in connection with building new schools "which is above the function of running a board of education."

In delivering the prayer of dedication, the Rev. B. S. Morwood of Mark St. United church, said: "May it be dedicated to the carrying out of its daily program of the enlightenment of youth." He termed the school "one of the most important institutions in the community," for the part it plays in building into the youth of the city, knowledge and understanding and the widening experience that comes through education.

CHOICE OF NAME

Selection of the name "Armour Heights" was not by coincidence because the Armour family has been outstanding in both the legal and teaching professions in the city said Mr. Gordon who spoke briefly before Mr. Craw laid the cornerstone.

Before the cornerstone was lowered into place, a sealed lead box was dropped into the wall beneath it, containing a list of names of the members of the Board of Education and city council, a brief account of the planning and building of the school, a history of school attendance in Ashburnham, copies of the latest Examiner and Review and the latest report of the superintendent of schools.

Metal Hoop On Wires Blamed For Blackout

ST. THOMAS (CP)—A group of boys who threw a metal hoop on hydro wires were blamed for a seven-minute blackout of the entire city yesterday. The short-circuit exploded a transformer and burned out a 2,300-volt feeder.

Damage was estimated at about $2,000. The south section of the city remained in darkness 33 minutes.

Sunday's blackout was the climax of several weeks of property damage by juveniles, police said.

Cornerstone For

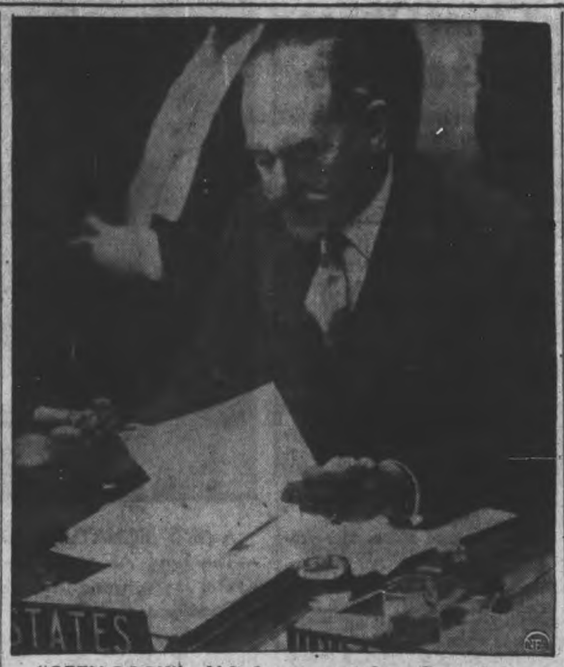
This report was placed in the box of records by Tommy Vyse and Billie Mahoney, on behalf of the other children.

These records, Bishop Berry said, would perpetuate people and circumstances of "the times in which we live."



TO THE HONOR OF GOD

"The blessing of the cornstone and its final placing are done with great solemnity," Bishop Berry said. "The reason is that the temple you see here is being raised to the honor and glory of God. Nothing that we can offer to God is too solemn and wonderful, because He is the creator of all things. So, when we take some of the good things of this world, the stone and steel, the bricks and wood, the materials that enter into the building of this church, they are all from the hand of God. It is only right that we should use them in the place that is to be His house.

"It will be a beautiful house, a monument in stone rising high in the air as [illegible] people of this parish. It will stand as an act of faith in the providence of God. The sum of $300,000 is a good deal of money. Where will it come from, say in the next 25 years? We don't know. But, we do know that the people are living here, that the schools are full of children, and come what may, this church is yours. You will see to it that it is owned by this parish, every stone.

"Having had to make an act of faith in God's providence, I did it because I know you as a people, and your successors for the next fifty years and beyond, will all be imbued with a strong faith in our Lord Jesus Christ. I know you will all want to see this temple possessed by this community."

Bishop Berry gratefully recalled that the late Monsignor O'Brien, who was for 38 years pastor of the parish of the Sacred Heart, left in his will $4,000 for the new church. He had previously provided the site of St. John's School. So, there was something of him and his life in the school and the church, and in thinking of Monsignor O'Brien, the people and the children would be all the more aware of St. John the Baptist. His Excellency said he felt sure that Monsignor Butler would endeavour to keep up the generous example of the parent parish and its pastor toward the new church.

"OPEN BOOK"—U.S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson reads an hours-long speech on the progress of the Korean war at the United Nations in New York. Acheson charged the Soviets with arming the North Koreans for war, but said that the U.N. would confine the conflict to Korea.

Few Accidents In Lindsay Area

LINDSAY (ENS). — Weekend traffic, though heavy, produced few serious accidents in and around Lindsay during the past three days. Town police investigated five minor accidents between Friday night and this morning, but no serious injuries resulted, although one child was struck by a light truck. Provincial officers reported three district accidents, none serious. Two charges have been or will be laid following the accidents.

A Friday night mishap will probably result in a Lindsay man being hauled into court on a charge of careless driving after his car was struck by another while he was making a U-turn on Kent St. West. Another man, Edwin O. Adams, of King St., Lindsay, and Toronto, was charged with drunk driving after Clarence Reeves of Lindsay crashed into the side of Lindsay St. bridge on Saturday afternoon. Adams appeared in court this morning. After being warned that a plea of guilty or a conviction the charge would result in his licence being suspended Adams pleaded guilty to the charge.

Constable Gordon Eberts of the town police testified that he had arrived at the scene of the accident and found a car owned by Clarence Reeves of Lindsay against the end of the bridge. Reeves, who told the officer he was the driver, stated to him that Adams' car had pulled from the east curb on the street and into the centre of the roadway. Thinking that a head-on collision would result, Reeves pulled over sharply and hit the end of the Lindsay St. bridge as he came out of it. Adams stopped his car in the middle of the road according to the constable and was arguing with Reeves. He was intoxicated, said the officer.

Adams testified he had been celebrating with his brother-in-law, Clifford Reil of Gooderham, who was down from the north. Magistrate Gee counselled Adams that he had better stay away from Lindsay and Gooderham in the future. Adams agreed and said he would get away as soon as possible. Magistrate Gee sentenced Adams to seven days in jail and assessed him $14.50 costs. Adams' licence is suspended for three months, but the car, which belongs to Reil, will not be impounded.

Stray Identified

The Hereford cow found by police wandering along Water St., early Saturday morning got out of a pasture on the farm of Morris Telford, R.R. 1, Peterborough, some time during the night. The cow apparently strolled down the centre line of Smith township, then came south on Highway 28 into the city. She gave police quite a tussle before she was subdued and tied up near the Goose Pond on Water St.

200 Attend Dance In Lakefield Hall

Elm Corners Home and School Association sponsored a very successful square dance Friday evening at Lakefield Memorial Hall. About 200 dancers enjoyed the ballroom and square dancing. A grand chain, Paul Jones, spot and elimination dances varied the program.

Among the lucky prize winners were Mr. and Mrs. Orville Payne and Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Gariepy.

Mr. Victor McManus drew great applause for a lively step dance.

Arrangements for the dance were under the direction of Mrs. V. McCaw. Mr. J. Lacey was master of ceremonies. Mrs. W. Dunbar and her committee were in charge of refreshments, assisted by members of the Association.

At close of the evening many enquiries were made as to the date of the next dance in the series. Funds raised by this project will be used to purchase further equipment for the newly opened Ray's School.

Urges Canada Admit Italians

TORONTO (CP)—Giuseppe Spataro, Italian minister of communications and postmaster general, said in a weekend interview Canada should reopen her gates to Italian immigrants.

He said Italian immigrants are practically barred from Canada by new regulations and 46,000,000 Italians live in a country one-third the size of Ontario.

Neither communism nor fascism held much appeal for the Italian people, the minister said.

"Fascism in Italy is dead and the few splinter groups called neo-fascist make a lot of noise but will die too in the near future," he said.

"The Christian sentiment of the people is too great an obstacle for the Communists."

Mr. Spataro is an executive member of Premier de Gasperi's right-wing Christian Democratic Party.

10-Week Strike Ends In Montreal

MONTREAL (CP)—The return of 400 workers to their jobs at Warden King Ltd., manufacturers of heating equipment, today ended a strike which began 10 weeks ago over a jurisdictional dispute.

A company spokesman said the workers, members of the United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.) and the International Moulders and Foundry Union (A.F.L.), reported for the first shift despite threats from a rival union.

The strike was called Aug. 21 by the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, which later was decertified by the Quebec Labor Relations [illegible]

SHE INSURES BEAUTY — Lily Condon takes time out at a Las Vegas, N.M., swimming pool for a breath-taking stretch. Lilly, who is a dancer, has decided to insure those long, lovely legs for $100,000.

Baby Sitter Sees Fire Raze Home

TORONTO (CP)—A baby sitter watched fire destroy her $10,000 home at suburban Lakeview Saturday night. Looking after her charge prevented her from saving anything from the flames.

Elaine Patterson said she noticed a reflection in a mirror and opened the door of the neighbor's home where she was sitting to find her parents' house on fire.

The girl's father is in Greenland installing sprinkler systems as a fire precaution at an air base.

34,000 More Miners Walk Out In Japan

TOKYO (Reuters)—The ranks of Japan's striking coal miners swelled to 275,000 today as 34,000 workers in northern and southern mines walked off the job to back demands for increased pay.

A breakdown in wage negotiations in Kyushu, Japan's southernmost island, sent 28,000 on strike. Another 6,000 staged a one-day strike in the northeast.

George St. United Celebrates 117th Birthday

One of Hamilton's best-known preachers, the Rev. Waldemar Williams of Westdale United Church, spoke Sunday at both services on the 117th anniversary of George St. United Church.

Topics of his sermons were: "The Way to God" and "Does It Matter What One Thinks?"

At the morning service, Mr. Williams said that God stands in the background of every man's life, that "you cannot ignore God, or curse God, or oppose Him, and continue to live a happy Christian life."

At the evening service, Mr. Williams treated on two motivating forces in human life—love and hate—on a psychological basis. He showed how these two forces operate on the emotional, intellectual and moral levels.

Speaking on "The Way to God" in the morning service, Mr. Williams told the story of a couple who had begun their married life by attending church. They became feverishly engaged in making money and lost sight of the vaue of the church.

As their home was on the verge of breaking up, they visited their minister. His advice saved them. "What really saves us," said Mr. Williams, "is the grace of God. We must come to Him as sinners, in the spirit of penitence. We must worship God, not money or pleasure or self-interest. God must become the passion of our life."

Child Run Over Skull Fractured

Lorraine Wade, 3, of 511 Rose Ave., is in Civic Hospital with a fractured skull and multiple bruises as a result of being run over by a taxi on Rose Ave., near St. Catharines, Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. L. J. Wade, the small girl's mother, saw the accident from her front window and rushed across in time to pick her up from beneath the centre of the taxi.

The driver, Ken Saunders, 210 King St., told police he was driving west on Rose Ave., and stopped just west of a driveway in front of a house where he was calling to pick up a passenger.

He said he had noticed a group of children playing near the intersection of Rose Ave., and St. Catherines St., as he drove through the intersection and blew his horn.

Saunders said that he started to back up into the driveway of the house he stopped in front of, and then started to turn into the driveway. He said as he moved ahead, he felt a bump and two children who had moved up on the lawn screamed.

He said he stopped the car and the child was under the right hand side of the car.

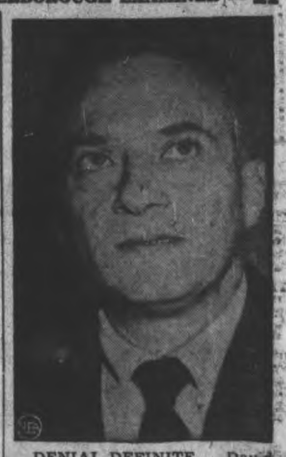
Saunders drove Mrs. Wade and the injured tot to hospital. Constable William G. Scott investigated.

Forest Fires Raging In US.

CHICAGO (AP) — The weather forecast today held forth no hopes for rain in 15 or more states ravaged by drought-induced forest and brush fires.

Except for snow flurries in the Great Lakes region and colder air moving south and east through the Dakatos, Indian summer continued in the eastern United States.

Heavy, soaking rains were needed over hundreds of square miles to relieve tinder-dry conditions in woodlands and plains where thousands of men fought hundreds of fires—many of them out of control.



"Very dangerous conditions" were reported throughout rural New England, where open fires and smoking were banned, some forests were closed to the public, and officials were surveying whether other forests should be closed. The affected states are Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Connecticut.

Thousands of acres are blackened and more are threatened by blazes in Virginia and West Virginia, Kentucky and Ohio.

Other states reporting dire need of a "soaker" to help fight fires breaking out in areas virtually

Dies From Burns

TORONTO (CP)—Rose Cooper, 67, collapsed and died yesterday, 24 hours after she suffered superficial burns to both legs in a fire in her bedroom. Police said the fire started when the woman fell asleep while smoking.

DENIAL DEFINITE — David Zablodowsky, head of the U.N. Publications Division, denied that he had never been a communist as accused by Whittaker Chambers. Zablodowsky, however acknowledged that he had worked with some Red organizations in what he believed "was an underground against Hitler."

Ask World Jews To Help Support Israel

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Unless Jews throughout the world help and support Israel, the new state may collapse, Joseph Nevo, Israeli consul-general, said Saturday night.

Such a collapse would carry with it the hopes of the Jewish world of establishing a national entity, he said at the opening dinner of the 21st convention of the central division of the Zionist organization of Canada.

Maurice Samuel, author and translator, said the establishment of the state of Israel was only a passing phase of a "great renaissance of the Jewish people" out of which will grow a new era for the Jewish race.

ELECTED PRESIDENT

Sol D. Granek of St. Catharines was elected central district president, succeeding Robert H. Soren of Toronto. Jack Pearlstein, Dave Peters and Sheldon Cohen are vice-presidents, Mannie Brown, treasurer and Mrs. Mark A. Lovey, honorary secretary.

District officers are: John H. Devor, Toronto; Sam Smurlick, Hamilton; Ben Sharpe, St. Catharines; Milton Meretski, Windsor; Rabbi D. Kirshenbaum, London; H. Tulchinsky, Brantford; I. Lindenberg, Belleville; Max Kaplan and M. Schwartz, Northern Ontario.

Revisits Home Of Childhood

KITCHENER (CP)—Mrs. H.M. Lay of Barrie came home during the wekeend to the house which she and her brother, Canada's late prime minister, Mackenzie King, shared as children.

"This is the roof we used to slide down when we wanted to get out quickly," the former Janet Lindsey King reminisced as she toured the 11-room house which has been restored even to the furniture it contains.

A considerable amount of material from the old house has been built into the new. When redecorating is complete even the wallpaper will be a duplicate of that in use in the old days.

The same old pump is in the kitchen and the library is filled with the books of John King, father of the prominent politician. A volume of "Essays on Questions of the Day," by Goldwin Smith contains the following inscription: "To father, with the compliments of the season, Willie, Christmas, 1893."

Lindsay Man Fined

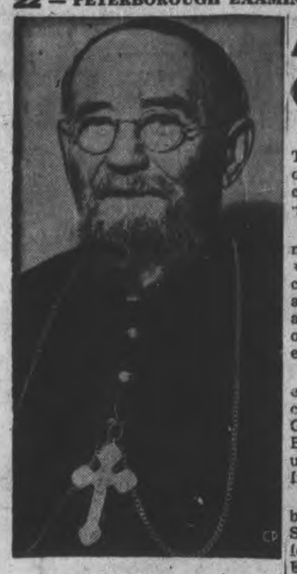
LINDSAY (ENS)— Magistrate Gee imposed a fine of $20 and $5 costs today when Kenneth McArthur of Lindsay pleaded guilty to a charge of having beer in a place other than his residence after a weekend accident of a week ago. Constable Ray Lawson of the Lindsay O.P.P. detachment, testified that he found, in addition to three pints of ale in the car, [illegible] road, along with [illegible] one broken bottle. McArthur acknowledged after some questioning the ownership of the beer, and was charged with the offence. He was defended by Col. R. I. Moore, and pleaded guilty. Magistrate Gee in imposing the fine used a previous similar case as the standard.

Canadian Spy Ring Enters U.S. Presidential Campaign

NEW YORK (CP) — Clare Booth Luce charged last night that President Truman failed to act after the Canadian espionage trials showed a connection between Communist spy rings in Canada and the United States.

The former Republican member of Congress said that after Truman had been given details linking the Canadian ring with spies in the U.S., he said publicly that American security measures had been adequate and still were adequate.

Mrs. Luce, in a radio and television broadcast paid for by the Republican party, discussed the Canadian spy ring, the British Klaus Fuchs spy case and the U.S. spy trials.



She said that two weeks after Truman had maintained the adequacy of U.S. security, disclosures showed that Soviet agenty Harry Gold received from Fuchs in Santa Fe, N.M., "a bundle of scientific documents which contained virtually every secret of the atomic bomb."

Mrs. Luce said Truman also failed to take action on statements by Igor Gouzenko, employee at the Soviet embassy in Ottawa who tipped authorities of the existence of the spy ring and whose testimony resulted in jail sentences for members of the Canadian ring.

She said one of these statements linked the Canadian espionage ring with Alger Hiss, U.S. State department official later convicted of lying about Communist ties.

CCF Leader Hansford St. Boniface Mayor

ST. BONIFACE, Man. (CP)—Edwin A. Hansford, 56-year-old House leader of the C.C.F. in Manitoba, early Saturday was elected mayor of St. Boniface, defeating George MacLean, mayor since 1936.

Mr. Hansford campaigned as an independent in the civic election.

In a previous story, The Canadian Press wrongly identified Mr. Hansford as C.C.F. leader in Manitoba.

A. J. Trebilcock Chief Officer Of Toronto Stock Exchange

A native of Bowmanville, A. J. Trebilcock, Q.C., chief executive officer of the Toronto Stock Exchange, is a brother of Mrs. Norman Hamley, 352 Park St. North.

Mr. Trebilcock, who is recognized as one of Canada's leading authorities on stock brokerage and corporation law, directs the operations of this country's largest financial trading post from his office on the top floor of the Bay Street exchange building.

Two of Mr. Trebilcock's brothers, the late Paul and Fred Trebilcock operated the book store on George St., known as Trebilcock Bros., which still bears their name, until 1927, when they sold it to Irwin and Norman Hamley.

Since 1934, Mr. Trebilcock has been associated with the Toronto Stock Exchange. He was counsel for the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange from 1927 until 1934 when it amalgamated with the Toronto Stock Exchange.

NAMED QUEEN'S COUNSEL

On the recent 100th anniversary of the exchange, Mr. Trebilcock was appointed a Queen's Counsel by Attorney General Dana Porter.

As a frontier lawyer who began practising in the booming mining towns of Northern Ontario, as a city lawyer specializing in corporation law, and as legal counsel and chief executive of the country's leading stock exchange, he can look back on 30 years of being closely associated with Canada's record expansion.

After graduating from Osgoode Hall in 1921, Mr. Trebilcock went to Red Lake in 1925 and set up business with the Hon. J. Earl Lawson, in a weather beaten tent.

TO TORONTO

He decided that lawyers were needed closer to a financial centre like Toronto than on the scene of resource developments and returned to Toronto where he began specializing in mining and corporation law.

This interest led him to a position with the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange in 1927 and began his association with the stock brokerage business which continued with the Toronto Stock Exchange when the two organizations merged in 1934.

Rita Parsons Wins Oratory At Fairview

FAIRVIEW (ENS). — Annual oratorical contest for this district, sponsored by the South Smith Women's Institute, was held in the Fairview United Church when 12 contestants took part.

These pupils, with their teachers came from three schools, Springville school, Miss Eleanor Bowles; S.S. No. 3, "Chemong road," Mrs. Gerald Harrison; and S.S. No. 4, Mrs. Smythe.

Mrs. Clarence Mann, vice-president of the Institute, presided.

The judges were Miss Phyllis Moore, primary supervisor of Peterborough schools; Miss Jean Noble, home economist for Peterborough county, Institute branch, and Miss Margaret Myer, Women's Institue branch, food nutritionist.

Miss Jean Noble gave the commentary and announced the winners as follows: 1 Rita Parsons, S.S. No. 3; 2 Fred McGregor, S.S. No. 3; 3 Allene Mann, S.S. No. 4. Rita Parsons represented her district at the county contest in Norwood.

Each contestant received a book from the Women's Institute presented by Mrs. W. D. Wilson and Mrs. Lorne McKee.

While the judges were making their decision a film was presented entitled "Bicycle Safety," by Harold Lewis.

Mrs. Mann expressed sincere appreciation to the teachers, parents and children for the effort put forth to make this contest a success.

Candidates Turn On Pressure In Final Week Of Campaigning

WASHINGTON AP) — Gen. Dwight Eisenhower and Gov. Adlai Stevenson swung today into the final and decisive week of their battle for the presidency, each concentrating on the vote-rich east.

Stevenson, the Democratic candidate, opens the day's effort with a talk in Quincy, Mass., followed 10 speeches later with a night address in New York City's Harlem.

Eisenhower, the Republican candidate, plans a full day in Pennsylvania. Tomorrow and the next two days he will tour New York City and its suburbs.

Stevenson was in Boston yesterday, making what he called "nonpolitical" speeches there and in nearby cities. He drew big, cheering crowds wherever he went.

TRUMAN STARTS TOUR

The vice-presidential nominees, Democratic senator John J. Sparkman of Alabama and Republican Senator Richard M. Nixon of California, are also stumping.

Nixon flew out of Chicago for Texas to address seven audiences in 10 hours. Sparkman, recovered from laryngitis which had temporarily sidelined him, returned to the political stump at Bakersfield, Calif.

LEWIS HITS G.O.P.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers Union, made his second political speech of the campaign Saturday night at Morgantown, W.Va. Lewis, who is supporting Stevenson, said the Republican party "has dedicated itself to the reflection of the viewpoint of the men of substance and wealth."

Senator Joseph R. McCarthy, Wisconsin Republican, is scheduled to make a country-wide radio and television speech tonight. He has said it will be a "carefully documented history" of Stevenson's acticities during the last 17 years.

U.S. newspaper men believe that, if the election had been held in mid-October, 1952 would go down as a Republican year, with Eisenhower the likely winner over Stevenson.

Newspaper editors and political correspondents made two political surveys for the Associated Press. Around Labor Day they clocked Eisenhower as leading, and estimate he has picked up strength since then in 30 of the 48 states.

SEE CLOSE RACE

But when they made their mid-October estimates they said forces still at work required rating the Nov. 4 election outcome as close and uncertain.

Yet it is the combined judgment of more than 2,000 participating reporters that the October survey showed a general trend toward Eisenhower. As they see it, there is little indication Eisenhower now might capture many more states than expected originally.

The only state believed to have switched allegiance from the Democrats is Stevenson's own Illinois. Newspapermen thought Eisenhower might take it by a hairline margin.

Clarence H. Booth Dies In Detroit

DETROIT (CP)—Clarence H. Booth, for years a leader in Michigan finance, publishing and manufacturing, died yesterday in hospital. He was 76.

Mr. Booth served as first treasurer and a director of Booth Newspapers Incorporated which published daily newspapers in eight Michigan cities.

Born in Toronto, Mr. Booth came to Detroit in 1897.

Provincial Grants System 'Hodge-Podge'—Goodfellow

BELLEVILLE—Welfare Minister Goodfellow slammed Ontario's grant system as a "crazy hodge-podge" Friday night in a speech at the annual meeting of the Thurlow township Progressive Conservative Association.

The province should return to autonomy by municipal councils, he said, and these councils must be given more responsibility in conducting their own affairs.

Mr. Goodfellow backed up his premier's statement of last Thursday, saying he felt it would not be a good thing to give municipalities additional grants at present. At present there was a tendency to encourage municipal councils to spend money.

He suggested it would not be a bad thing for the municipal mill rate to rise until taxpayers felt it excessive. Then they would feel the necessity of paring expenditures.

Mr. Goodfellow praised Progressive Conservative leader George Drew, who, he said, was "the biggest man in Canadian public life, yet at the same time was the most misunderstood man."

Only through Mr. Drew's foresight during his premiership of Ontario, had a critical hydro shortage been averted. Mr. Drew, if given a majority in the House of Commons, would do something to restore trade between Canada and the United Kingdom, said Mr. Goodfellow.

"The shrewdest provincial leader since confederation" was the praise he applied to Leslie Frost, who he said was not excitable and thought things out thoroughly before introducing them as policy.

Roscoe Robson, M.L.A. for Hastings east, introduced Mr. Goodfellow, and other speakers were Hastings Warden Lee Grills, newly chosen P-C candidate for Hastings south, Corah Howard, president-elect of the association, and Mrs. W. J. Tufts, head of the women's association.

New Surgery Technique To Give Patients Lower Blood Pressure

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP)—A new safety technique in surgery is to give people low blood pressure before their operations.

The low pressure means less bleeding, and so less need for blood transfusions. The reduced bleeding also gives the surgeon a clearer view of the tissues under operation.

This low blood pressure is a new kind, created intentionally by giving a drug, hexamethonium, that makes blood vessels expand. The expansion slows the speed of blood flow, and reduces pressure.

The drug is one being tried in attempts to combat high blood pressure, to bring pressure down to normal for hours at a time.

Its use in surgery on people with normal pressure is being studied on humans and animals at Memorial Centre for Cancer and Allied diseases. The method originated in Britain.

DANGER SIGNAL

Low blood pressure usually is a danger signal in surgery. It usually comes from loss of too much blood, and the patient may go into shock.

The drug-created low pressure is different. The person still has a normal amount of blood, and is not in shock. The blood pressure is raised after the operation by giving drugs that make the blood vessels return to normal size again.

At Memorial, members of the surgical and anaesthesia departments have used the drug on nearly 100 patients.

There is less bleeding, a hospital lose only one pint of blood, instead of eight or more during extensive surgery. This saving of his own blood is safer, and less expensive, for the patient.

Part of the technique is to place the patient in such a position that the site of operation becomes the highest part of his body. Due to pull of gravity, less blood rises to the tissues under operation.

The drug-induced low pressure method still is experimental.

BRONCHIAL COUGH

Are you kept awake by a nerve-racking bronchial cough? Is phlegm so tightly packed in your bronchial tubes, no amount of coughing seems able to dislodge it? Try To Help Iran

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Camille Gutt of Belgium, former managing director of the International Monetary Fund, announced yesterday that he will leave tomorrow as head of a United Nation financial - economic mission that will try to help hard-up Iran. The country has been in financial difficulties since it nationalized the British-owned Anglo-Iranian Oil Company in 1951. It has failed to process and sell its oil abroad.

STRIKE BLIGHT HITS SOFT-COAL COUNTRY—Shown above is the area most heavily hit by refusal of John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers to return to their jobs in soft-coal mines, unless the Wage Stabilization Board grants the full $1.90-a-day pay raise recently negotiated by their union. Nearly 350,000 miners are on strike across the nation, with only small independent mines still in operation. Black areas on the Newsmap indicate soft - coal producing regions.

Pakistan Cleaning Up Its Opium Dens

By ADRIENNE FARRELL

KARACHI, Pakistan (Reuters)—Opium-eaters and opium-smokers of Pakistan are being brought down to earth from their cloudy dream worlds with a realistic bump.

Both the central and provincial governments are preparing legislation to ban all smoking of the drug and gradually to eliminate its use in any form but medicine.

Within eight years, the government intends to stamp out completely the smoking, eating and drinking of opium which now claims thousands of addicts throughout the country.

In the Punjab, where a bill prohibiting opium smoking will be introduced during the next session of the legislative assembly, opium addicts have already taken alarm.

SMOKERS TO PROTEST

A deputation, led by a 72-year-old opium smoker, plans to call on the chief minister and protest in the name of the addicts that they will suffer great hardship if separated from their opium pipes.

Many addicts maintain that they become weak and ill if they are not able to obtain supplies of the drug, and that they may even die for lack of it.

Three years ago, Pakistan was importing about 20 tons of opium a year from India. Today, imports have been cut down to 15 tons. Gradually, imports will be eliminated altogether.

Smoking of opium is already prohibited in East Bengal, Sind, Bahawalpur and Karachi, and shortly will also be stopped in the Punjab. But opium-eating, which is less harmful, is widely practised throughout the country and will be more difficult to eliminate.

There still are eight government opium shops in Karachi. One of these alone sells opium and "bhang" (Indian hemp) to about 1,000 customers a day.

POOR CLIENTELE

Most of the clients are poor persons, many of them refugees, who buy only a few annas' worth of opium to chew. For one anna (about two cents), they get a tiny piece of black rubbery opium, about 1-10th the size of a piece of chewing-gum.

Mothers frequently give a tiny piece of opium to their babies to stop them from crying.

The unemployed and destitute eat it to still the pangs of hunger.

In an all-out drive against smokers during the past six months, Karachi police have raided and closed down 23 opium-smoking dens.

But one of the government's main headaches is smuggling. Opium poppies are cultivated in Iran, in Afghanistan and in the tribal areas of Pakistan where police control is not possible, and smuggled into the populous areas.

Dr. Lorne Robertson Ontario Surgeon Dies

STRATFORD (CP)—Dr. Lorne Forbes Robertson, 76, a leading Ontario surgeon and former part-time coach of the old Stratford hockey team, died at his home yesterday.

He retired from practice in 1947. During his career, which began with a partnership with his father in 1903, he delivered about 7,000 babies and considered it part of his duty as a citizen to look after many of them during his lifetime.

Vicar Also Mailman

MATCHING, England (Reuters)—Rev. W. A. Howarth described yesterday how he pays daily door-to-door visits to members of his parish—but it isn't strictly church work. The 42-year-old vicar has taken a job as local mailman for $17.85 weekly. He said he couldn't support his wife and three children on his church pay of $1,260 a year.

Hattie McDaniel Dies

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Hattie McDaniel, 57, the original "Beulah" of radio and television and the movies' outstanding Negro actress, died yesterday after being ill with cancer for more than a year.

Miss McDaniel won the Academy Award for playing the role of Scarlett O'Hara's mammy in "Gone with the Wind."

THE HARD WAY—Using his rifle as a crutch, this wounded United Nations soldier makes his way uphill to a medical aid station, somewhere along the Korean front. Someone has thrown a jacket over his shoulders to protect his open wounds. The soldier's features have been blanked out to prevent identification by relatives back home.

Exciting Moment For UK Archaeologist When He Discovered Pharaoh's Tomb

By EDWARD POLLACK

CAIRO (AP)—The Valley of Kings, burial place of Egypt's fabulous pharoahs, was peaceful the morning of Nov. 4, 1922.

Only the chants of a group of workers, the thumps of their picks, the scrape of shovels, broke the desert stillness.

Abruptly work stopped. A tense group leaned over the excavation to look at a white step carve,d out of rock.

Sixteen steps were uncovered that day and the next. They led down to a sealed door. It was the seal of Tut-Ankh-Amen, young Pharoah who ruled in Thebes between 1375 and 1350 B.C. before he died at 18.

PLACED STRONG GUARD

Carter ordered the excavation refilled and placed a strong guard over the spot. The next morning he cabled his associate, George Edward Molyneux Herbert, Lord Carnarvon, in London.

The secret of the discovery soon leaked out.

Achaeologists, newspapermen, tourists and curious rushed to Egypt.

Newspapers splashed the discovery and subsequent developments under frontpage headlines.

The tomb, first royal grave of a Pharoah found intact, permitted scientists to throw new light on those fabulous ancient times.

Carter sought the Tut-Ankh-Amen tomb for years, starting in 1907.

LIT CANDLE

On Nov. 26, 1922, Lord Carnarvon and his daughter stood beside Carter as workers opened a hole big enough to pass an arm through the outside door.

Carter lit a candle to test the 3,000-year-old air. Then he turned a flashlight on the contents of the chamber.

"Is there anything?" Carnarvon said.

It took more than eight years to clear the five-room tomb of its treasures. Thousands of objects sheltered for centuries had to undergo a special treatment before they could be moved.

The burial room itself was opened Feb. 12, 1924.

GOLD COFFIN

Tut-Ankh-Amen's body was inide a solid gold, beautifully sculpted coffin. The coffin was contained in a second coffin of gold-ornamented wood, which in turn was in a third wooden coffin. The three coffins were placed in a quartzite sarcophagus. The sarcophagus in turn was contained in four granite catafalques or shrines, each one a masterpiece of art.

The King's face and shoulders were covered with a solid gold mask delicately sculpted and enameled. Enameled gold necklaces were around its neck. A gold belt was around its waist. Gold daggers were placed in the coffin.

The tomb contents have been transported to Cairo's museum, where Tut-Ankh-Amen's treasures are still the main attraction. Only the mummy itself and one of the coffins were left on the spot.

The sudden death in 1923 of Lord Carnarvon from pneumonia, followed by the death by his brother a few months later, gave rise to sharp speculation. The press soon was splashing front page stories of the "curse."

One scientist who laughs at the "curse addicts" is Professor Douglas Derry who dissected the mummy of Tut-Ankh-Amen.

If anybody had offended Tut-Ankh-Amen it was Professor Derry. Nevertheless, at 77 he is a healthy man who until recently taught anatomy at Cairo's Fouad University.

Two Men Die In Flames As Tweed House Destroyed

Canadian Company Has Heavy Battle Casualties

OTTAWA (CP)—The army said today that at least 66 Canadian soldiers were casualties, including 14 killed and 13 missing, in the battle last week for Little Gibraltar Hill in Korea. Besides the killed, including one dead of wounds, and missing, 30 were wounded and nine injured in action. The wounded include two officers.

A spokesman said 62 were members of the Royal Canadian Regiment, three of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry and one of the Royal 22nd Regiment. A detailed casualty list will be issued later today.

He confirmed that only a handful of one company of the R C.R. 1st Battalion escaped being casualties in the battle. A company normally contains more than 100 officers and men, but seldom goes into actual battle at full strength.

NUMBER NOT KNOWN

The Reuters dispatch said the company's identification is still being held up by censorship, but that the Chinese Communist radio named the defenders of Little Gibraltar as "Baker" company

The headquarters spokesman said the Korean censorship held good here also.

The battle took place Oct. 23, Korean time; Oct. 22 Canadian time.

Survivors Want Chance To Get Back In Lines

By JOHN STACKHOUSE

WITH THE COMMONWEALTH DIVISION IN KOREA, (Reuters) —A handful of men, only fit survivors of a Canadian company which refused to bow to overwhelming odds, have drawn new weapons, eager to get back at the Chinese Communists.

Last week the Canadians held a position on Little Gibraltar Hill, on the western front, against 1,000 storming Chinese. The Canadians were swamped, but held on until a counter-attack restored the Allied position Friday. A captured Chinese flag symbolized the men's heroism.

Unit identification is subject to censorship, but the Chinese Communist radio first named the defenders as Baker Company of the 1st Royal Canadian Regiment.

The Baker men claim to be the crack unit of the regiment. The company has done a spell of several months in the line and also did guard duty earlier this year at Koje prisoner camp when it was at its most turbulent.

Lieut. John Clark, of Beebe, Que., one of the platoon commanders, said the Chinese opened their assault with a barrage of about 100 shells a minute. Bunkers and trenches in the small company area crumbled and buried nearly all Baker Company's weapons and ammunition.

REDS OVERRUN AREA

As the barrage lifted the Chinese infantry came in yelling and overran the area while the defenders still were dazed. The Chinese must have hidden through the day in a valley ahead of the Canadian positions, biding their time.

Some of the Baker men fought their way back to friendly positions. The others had to stick it out in shell holes and wrecked bunkers.

One platoon commander, Lieut. Russell Gardner of Arnprior, Ont., who recently won the Military Cross, was thrice wounded and collapsed on the wire. He feigned dead and escaped. His corporal, Ellery M. Faulkner, also feigned dead: "A group of 12 Chinese passed within five feet of me but did not look twice."

CARRIED FLAG

Sgt. D. Rennie of Halifax hid in a shellhole. He saw the Chinese carry a flag into advanced positions.

Rennie said:

"One of them was going to plant it in the ground. The lads behind me cut them all down with a Bren gun. Some more tried to stick that flag in and we got them too."

The flag later fell into Canadian hands.

Sgt.-Maj. Duncan K. MacDonald of Pembroke, Ont., compared the impact of the Chinese barrage with his experience in the 1944 Normandy landings: "It was not as tough as that Chinese shelling."

Sudan, Egypt Have Agreement

CAIRO (AP) — Reliable sources said today that Sudanese political leaders and Premier Maj.-Gen. Mohamed Naguib would sign an agreement tonight on the future status of the disputed Sudan and Naguib would put it before Britain later this week.

The informants said the agreement would express the wishes of both Sudanese and Egyptians on a settlement of the long standing Sudanese problem, main obstacle in recent yers to a solution of the Anglo-Egyptian dispute.

Representatives of the pro-independence Sudanese parties as well as delegates of parties favoring union with Egypt have been seeking agreement in discussions which lasted for more than 10 days.

Informants said the accord to be signed will include a request for several amendments to the British-sponsored constitution for the Sudan. This is scheduled to take effect Nov. 8.

Informants said the proposed constitutional amendments bore on the following main points:

1. That the Sudanese themselves determine their future status within three years. The draft constitution provides for establishment of near-self-government in the Sudan by 1953 but sets no date for self-determination of future status.

2. That a commission—two Sudanese, one Egyptian, one Briton and one "neutral" member—be appointed to "advise the governor-general." Informants said it was proposed that his commission have the final word on all affairs except foreign policy and defence. In the case of disagreement between the governor-general and the commission the issue would be referred for final decision to Egypt and Britain.

Game Of "Chicken" Ends In Disaster

FORT PIERCE, Fla. (AP)—Manslaughter charges were filed yesterday against John Henry Jones, 29, driver of an automobile which police said collided with another machine during a game of "chicken."

The car driven by Jones collided head-on Sunday with one driven by Sandy Maynard Peterson, 20, of Fort Pierce, in which the latter's wife, Mrs. Peterson, 19, was a passenger. Mrs. Peterson died in a hospital a few hours after the crash.

The two men, each with a young woman companion, were playing a game in which drivers race their cars toward each other to see which will be the first to turn aside.

Jones and both young women were injured. The cars were demolished.

Man Dies In Fire At Staff-House

Beroski had been living alone in the staff-house, 55 miles north of Belleville. The building normally accommodates 12 men.

Tug Goes To Rescue Loses Own Rudder

QUEBEC (CP)—The tug Foundation Frances, towing the rudderless 10,000-ton freighter Beaverbrae to Halifax, has lost its own rudder and now is drifting helplessly, shipping sources reported today.

Quebec harbor officials said the Frances lost its rudder last night and another tug, the Foundation Vera, took the rudderless Beaverbrae in tow. She is being taken to Halifax.

A third tug, the Foundation Josephine II, left Quebec during the night and headed for Father Point, about 180 miles east of Quebec, where the Frances now is drifting.

The Beaverbrae, en route to Britain from Montreal with a load of grain, lost her rudder yesterday near Cape Magdalen in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Liberals Ask Lowering Of Barriers

Anxious Restrictions On World Trade Should Be Eased

OTTAWA (CP) — Lowering of world trade barriers was urged today by the advisory council of the National Liberal Federation at its annual meeting.

In a resolution on trade, the council particularly called for the removal of "discriminatory restrictions" limiting Canadian exports to Commonwealth countries.

It expressed the hope the Commonwealth economic conference would lead member nations to such action. The conference meets in London Nov. 27, and Prime Minister St. Laurent is expected to lead a Canadian delegation at its sittings.

RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED

On the second day of its convention, the 235-member council also adopted resolutions saying:

1. The federal government should continue resources - development policies "which encourage sound and constructive development by private and co-operative enterprise and other agencies and also advocates, at the same time, the planned development in fields in which the government can best do the job."

2. It endorses the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and Canada's support of the United Nations' anti-aggression action in Korea.

3. It expresses "unwavering support of the contribution of the armed forces of Canada in building up the combined strength of the free nations to prevent a third world war."

4. It supports generally the government's economic policies.

"National production, trade, income and prosperity have reached their all-time high," the economic resolution said. "The best guarantee for the continued progress of our country and the development of our resources is the continuation of the policies of the Liberal government which have made Canada the envy of the world."

Missing Man Drowns In Tub

TORONTO (CP) — Harry Schacter, 51-year-old business executive, was found dead today in a bathtub in a downtown hotel room.

He had been missing since noon yesterday when he suddenly left his office in suburban Mimico.

He was general manager and secretary-treasurer of Schindler Company of Canada Limited, which makes fishing tackle.

Mr. Schacter, formerly of North Bay, apparently was drowned, police said.

Surviving besides his widow, Mrs. Sylvia Schacter, are a son, Dr Bernard Schacter of New York and a daughter, Mrs. Bernard

5 Car Crashes

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) —One person was killed and a number injured today in five auto crashes on a fogbound highway. Commuter traffic was backed up for miles in either direction around the crashes.

Come Within 10 Minutes Of Not Having Any Mayor

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask. (CP)—Prince Albert yesterday came within 10 minutes of having no mayor.

Mayor John M. Cuelenaere, who already has served six years as chief magistrate of this northern Saskatchewan city, had announced that he would again seek office and was expected to be returned by acclamation.

Deadline for nominations for the Nov. 5 civic election was noon yesterday. Shortly after 10 a.m. it was discovered that the mayor's name was not on the voters' list. Unless the list could be amended before noon, the city would be without a mayor Jan. 1, 1953, as there were no other nominations.

Mr. Cuelenaere consulted the regulations and found that a special meeting of the court of revision would be necessary to place his name on the voters' list before he could be a candidate.

But before the court—consisting of all members of council—could take action it would require 100 per cent attendance or agreement in writing from any missing members.

Council members started to arrive at city hall by car and on foot. One alderman was located only at 11:50 a.m. following a radio appeal and a police search.

With but 10 minutes before the nominations deadline, the necessary amendment was drafted, passed, and the mayor's papers properly filed.

Car, Train Crash Mother, Baby Shaken Up

A mother and her six-month old daughter escaped with only a shaking up today when the 11.30 C.P.R. express from Toronto struck a car on the High St. crossing.

The car, driven by Mrs. Marguerite Robinson, of 716 Romaine St., was spun completely around and ended up in the ditch at the southeast corner of the crossing.

Mrs. Robinson's baby daughter, Pamela Jean was in an auto cot on the rear seat of the car and received no apparent injuries. Although the entire right rear corner of the late model car was ripped off, as if it had been cut out with a can opener, the baby's cot was not damaged. The train crew helped Mrs. Robinson out of the car and the baby was also lifted out and did not appear to have suffered any injuries.

Both Mrs. Robinson, who received a slight cut over her left eye and the baby were taken to a doctor for medical examination.

The car was travelling south on High St., just as the C.P.R. express train from Toronto, running late, was approaching the crossing. There are no wig-wag signals at the crossing and the view to the west was obscured by boxcars parked on the C,P,R, siding just north of the through track.

A C.P.R. official who was on the spot shortly after the accident occurred told police the fifth coach of the train stopped opposite the wrecked car. He reported the accident occurred at 11:32 a.m., indicating that the train was late, as it is due at the depot at 11:30.

The C.P.R. official ordered Constable William A. Scott who investigated not to let an Examiner reporter talk to Mrs. Robinson concerning the accident and rudely ordered the driver of a press taxi away from the accident, in an effort to prevent the press from getting information about the crash.

Russ Guards Block Second Allied Patrol

BERLIN (Reuters) — Russian guards today blocked the second Allied attempt in 24 hours to send a patrol along the international highway linking Berlin with the west. The road has been barred to British and United States patrols since last May.

Today they turned back a U.S. jeep at the Berlin entrance to the autobahn. Yesterday they stopped a British jeep making the first attempt since August to penetrate the Soviet roadblocks.

Allied officers in Berlin said today that there would probably be no more attempts to resume patrolling unless the Soviet authorities changed their attitude.

Guards Wound POW's

PUSAN, Korea (AP)—American guards killed one North Korean prisoner and wounded 74 others in breaking up a demonstration on bloody Koje Island Sunday, the army announced today.

The Allied prisoner-of-war command said two platoons of U.S. infantry entered a 500-man compound and used bayonets and gun butts to restore order when the North Korean prisoners refused to break up a military drill.

Convicts Threaten To Kill 7 Hostages

CHESTER, Ill. (AP)—Three hundred rebellious prisoners, threatening seven hostages with death, held out early today inside Illinois' trouble-plagued Menard prison and were reported calling for Governor Adlai Stevenson. The prison was the scene of a 27-hour uprising five weeks ago. That one was quelled with tear gas. Warden Jerome Munie stationed armed guards and state police round the prison and ordered them to "shoot to kill if anyone makes a move."

But he abandoned plans to storm the cell block when convicts threatened to hurl the seven hostages from a 50-foot-high balcony fronting the top tier of cells. The guards were marched to the balcony when the rioting began about 6 p.m. EST Monday.

CALL FOR 'BIG BOSS'

Some prisoners were quoted as calling out: "we want to see the governor." Other shouts of "we want to see the big boss," were reported. Munie said he thought they wanted to see him, not the governor.

Governor Stevenson is campaigning for president on the Democratic ticket in New York. When told that, some prisoners were quoted as saying:

"He flew out there and he can fly back."

The latest violence at the southern Illinois prison set the city of Chester abuzz with false rumors of a mass break. The prison has 1,850 inmates.

BLACKOUT CELLS

The prisoners blacked out their 1,000-cell house. The prison cut off all water. Silence settled over the east house most of the night.

The rebellion started as the prisoners returned from supper Monday. One guard with the keys was seized and six others were held from escaping. An eighth, Leo H. Gosnel, was permitted to leave after he fainted because of a heart condition.

Munie said no action would be taken until a way could be found to save the guards.

Gale Batters Britain Disrupts Shipping

LONDON (Reuters)—A whistling gale swept the British Isles during the night causing waterfront damage and dislocating shipping. Winds ranged up to 60 miles an hour.

The 71,000-ton liner Queen Mary was unable to move into drydock for her annual overhaul at Southampton. Waves 20 feet high roared over the Eastbourne seafront.

Jewelry Thieves Hide In Church

TORONTO (CP)—Two men who robbed a jewelry store of $40,000 worth of gems and $7,000 in cash last May ran into a Roman Catholic Church and stayed for high mass while police scoured the district for them.

This was made known today when James Schroeder, 38, pleaded guilty to a charge of robbery with violence. Schroeder, arrested in Kenora, will be sentenced Thursday.

He told police he received only $700 of the loot and that an accomplice took the rest.

Noise, Flash Spread Terror

QUEBEC (CP)—A tremendous noise and a bright flash visible 30 miles away were reported yesterday to have terrified residents of Les Escoumains, on the north shore of the St. Lawrence River, 150 miles east of here.

The phenomenon, which occurred late last Friday, was seen by many residents of the town. Men loading trucks at a lumber camp were reported to have been thrown from the vehicles.

Residents of the area speculated whether the noise and the light might have been caused by an earthquake, a falling meteorite or an aircraft travelling at the speed of sound.

At Ottawa, the dominion astronomer, Dr. C. S. Beals, said he had received no direct report on the occurrence, but said it could have been a meteorite.

Police Believe Fire Started In Upstairs Stove

TWEED (Special)—Two men were burned to death when fire swept through a frame house on Victoria Ave. here early this morning. The men are Lloyd Enright, 40, and Vincent Gartland, 54. The charred remains of Enright were found this morning in his bed downstairs. The body of Gartland was found behind a door. Gartland's wife escaped when she ran out to phone for the fire department from a neighbor's house. A family dog was also burned in the blaze.

A fourth person a cook for the Therrien Construction Co. where Gartland also worked, escaped from the flames and disappeared. No one as yet knows his name.

Enright's wife, from whom he is separated, lives in Peterborough.

BELIEVED PARTY HELD

The Gartland's had moved into the frame house which Enright owned, just last weekk. It is believed there was a party in the house during the night.

Police think the fire started from an oil stove upstairs. An explosion was heard before the blaze was discovered.

Mrs. Gartland, who suffered burned hands and scorched hair, had been downstairs at the time of the fire, and ran next door to the home of Mrs. R. Bosley. By the time she woke Mrs. Bosley and returned, the house was a mass of flames and she couldn't get in to warn anyone.

SAVE ONE HOUSE

Before the volunteer fire brigade could arrive, the roof fell in. However fire fighters were able to save Mrs. Bosley's house which was scorched on one side. No furniture was saved.

Enright, who was the garbage collector for Tweed, has one son, the Rev. Brother Guy, a member of a religious order in Graymoor, Garrison, N.Y.; and a daughter, Mrs. David Little, Markham.

The Gartlands had moved to Tweed from Deseronto.

Constable George Spratt was in charge of the firefighting assisted by O.P.P. Constable George Bolyea and Fire Chief Claude Barnett. It is believed an inquest will be held.

Thieves Rob Police Court, Get $3,871 Loot

TORONTO (CP)—Thieves broke into suburban North York police court last night and escaped with $3,871 in cash, cheques and money orders. A pistol also was taken.

Police said the break-in was uncovered by Justice of the Peace Russell Pearse when he opened the office today. The back door had been jimmied and the office ransacked.

Mr. Pearse said this was the fourth break-in of his offices. Last month the entrance was forced but only $2 taken. Two days later came another break-in when two guns were removed.

Two weeks ago there was an unsuccessful third attempt to break into the offices.

Baby-Sitter Saves Four Children

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Baby-sitter Madeline Flanigan, 15, saved the lives of four children when fire broke out last night in a two-dwelling house on Third Street.

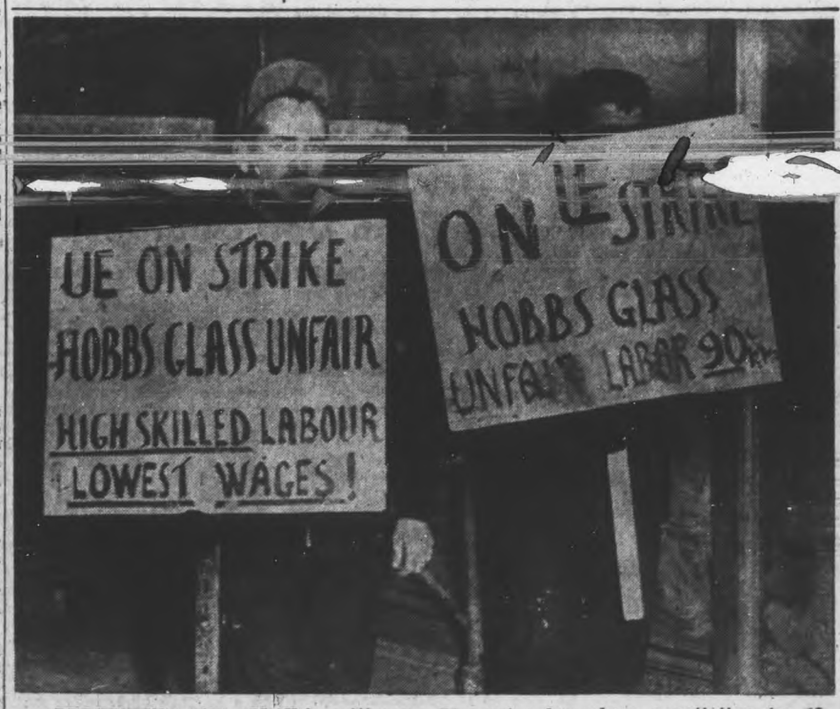
Madeline was doing home work while baby-sitting for the four children of Mr. and Mrs. George Barnes when the fire was discovered. She calmly led the children, the youngest only 19 months old, from the house.

Deputy fire chief Thomas Hepburn said he believed the fire resulted from defective wiring.

2 Racing Ponies Ram Car, 1 Dead

BEAVERTON.—A collision between a car and two racing ponies Monday night about 200 yards beyond the village limits resulted in death to one pony, serious injury to the second, slight injury to a passenger in the car and heavy damage to the auto itself.

Dennis Whalen, proprietor of a Beaverton service station, and his wife were driving north from the village about seven o'clock when the unusual accident occurred.



Two ponies owned by Mason Mitchell of Beaverton were pastured in a field adjoining the road. In some way they broke out of the field and went galloping down the highway.

One pony was struck by the right fender and died instantly. The second may have to be destroyed because of its injuries.

"The first I saw of the ponies was when one landed almost on my windshield," said Mr. Whalen. I heard these hoofs thundering down the road and the next thing they were on top of us. I'm only glad they weren't horses."

Mr. Whalen was knocked to the floor by the impact and suffered a cut forehead and injured knee.

The ponies were racing ponies which Mr. Mitchell showed on the fall fair circuit. They are valued at between $300 and $400 each.

PROTESTING THE DELAY in getting a union contract at Hobbs Glass are two strikers—Baz. Reid and Al. Ray (left to right)—who are walking along George St. outside the new Metropolitan store, where they have been installing show windows. The union have been negotiating for 13 months and still have no contract and the members accuse the company of "stalling". There was a brief mixup at the Hobbs plant at noon and a truck windshield was broken when the vehicle tried to go through the picket line.—(Examiner Staff Photo)

Coal Miners Obey Lewis, Return To Pits

PITSBURGH (AP)—Most of the 350,000 United States soft-coal diggers, heeding the order of Union President John L. Lewis, trooped back to work today after a week-long strike over a wage dispute with the government.

Special meetings were called throughout the coal fields after Lewis wired local United Mine Workers officials across the country to get their men back on the job. The almost unanimous reaction of the miners: "Let's go to work."

A few scattered pits—in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Illinois and other top coal-producing states—managed to start production last night. But resumption of operations at most mines was delayed by the meetings and safety inspections.

MINERS RELIEVED

Miners generally expressed relief when Lewis called off the walkout. Said one miner in southwestern Pennsylvania:

"Christmas is just around the corner. It would have been pretty rough on the kids if I lost much more time."

The walkout began last Monday after the Wage Stabilization Board lopped 40 cents off the $1.90-daily pay boost Lewis won recently in negotiations with the industry. Miners, whose expected $18.25 basic minimum wage for a day's work was cut to $17.85, took the stand that the government had nullified their contract.

Soon after, Lewis assailed the W.S.B. and told his men to stick it out until they got the full $1.90.

PERSONAL APPEAL

However, President Truman met with the U.M.W. chieftain and Harry M. Moses, chief industry negotiator, at the White House during the weekend and personally appealed for an end to the strike. Lewis then sent telegrams, telling miners they should resume production in the best interests of the public and themselves pending a final decision on their pay increase.

Both the union and the Bituminous Coal Operators' Association headed by Moses had appealed the W.S.B. ruling. They took their case to Economic Stabilizer Roger Putnam. Union officials at Washington indicated they expect a decision within a few days.

Canadian Exports Jump $360,000,000 In 9 Months

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's exports jumped by more than $360,000,000 in the first nine months of 1952 as a boost in volume of shipments outweighed the impact of weakening prices. Shipments rose to a peak of $3,180,690,000 for the nine months from $2,818,242,000 in the same period of 1951, the Bureau of Statistics reports.

Officials estimated the current trend may lead to a peak for the year, surpassing the previous record of almost $4,000,000,000 reached a year ago.

Shipments were higher to virtually all parts of the world, with the exception of the United States, Canada's top customer, which has placed an embargo against Canadian cattle and meat because of foot-and-mouth disease in Saskatchewan earlier this year.

PRICES FALLING

The trend toward lower prices, which showed up earlier this year, continued in September. Average prices of Canada's exports dropped almost five per cent from September a year ago, but volume jumped about 10 per cent.

This increased the value of the month's shipments to $341,200,000 from $323,500,000 last year and helped provide the 13-per-cent boost over the nine-month period

However, in a previous preliminary statement, the bureau estimated imports during September at $349,100,000, up from $311,500,000 last year. With imports outpacing exports, a $7,900,000 deficit resulted. The only other monthly deficit this year was a slight $700,000 adverse balance last May.

During the nine-month period, exports to the U.S. slipped to $1,700,000,000 from $1,717,000,000. Shipments to the United Kingdom rose significantly to $580,000,00 from $447,000,000.

Man Fined $100 For Fair Game

OWEN SOUND (CP) — J.D. Hunter, 22, of Toronto was fined $100 and costs or 30 days in jail when he pleaded guilty yesterday to a charge of defrauding two members of the provincial anti-gambling squad.

Evidence was that Hunter was the operator of a "swinger" game at a fall fair Sept. 29. Two police constables spent $5.50 and $6.50 each on the game without winning.

The constables testified that a bowling ball was suspended by a chain over a bowling-pin. Purpose of the game was to swing the ball around the right of the pin and knock the pin over on the way back to the left. The two men testified the pin was set to the right of the centre mark, making it impossible to win.

Prices Continue Mixed On Toronto Exchange

Volume for the first three hours totalled 773,000 shares—lowest three-hour volume in more than a week.

Western oils losses ranged to about 20 cents and the few gains reached the same amount. Anglo-Canadian and New Superior gained but yesterday's decline continued as Central Exploration, Del Rio, Home Oil and Stanwell slipped.

Higher-priced base metals turned mixed after early losses and most other issues slipped. Ascot, Dominion Asbestos and Emerald Glacier declined and Bellekeno lost pennies in a turnover of about 27,000 shares.

Kerr-Addison sparked the golds list with a gain of more than $1 in the first three hours and junior producers held firm to early small gains. Among the prospects, Newlund traded actively for a penny gain and Bevcourt also rose. Holding companies slipped.

Utilities, manufacturing companies and steels bolstered the industrials list and foods also showed strength.

Returned To Rome

ROME (AP)—The right arm of St. Francis Xavier, considered the Roman Catholic Church's greatest missionary since the days of the apostles, was returned yesterday by plane from Lisbon. The arm was taken from its permanent resting place earlier this year and was carried to various countries for ceremonies celebrating the 400th anniversary of the saint's death.

Ottawa Lists Contracts For Defence

OTTAWA (CP)—The defence production department today announced $16,600,000 worth of defence contracts awarded during the first half of October, including orders for snowblowers, trucks, ammunition and aircraft repairs.

Biggest of the lot—a $4,100,000 order—went to Marwell Construction Company of Vancouver to build a cantilever hangar for the R.C.A.F., one of about a half-dozen being built across the country.

Orders for $1,668,000 worth of ammunition and equipment repairs went to the crown-owned Canadian Arsenals Limited of Ottawa.

Other large orders included:

A.V. Roe (Canada) Ltd., Toronto—$1,300,000 for repair and overhaul of seven Lancaster aircraft.

Sicard Inc., Montreal—$1,071,000 for snowblower trucks and repairs to snowblowers.

Western Flyer Coach Ltd., Winnipeg—$500,000 for buses.

Northern Electric Co., Ltd., Ottawa—$483,000 for communication equipment.

8 Refugees Plan To Come To Canada

FRANKFURT (AP)—Eight members of Yugoslavia's Olympic rowing team who refused to return to Yugoslavia after the Helsinki games said today they are emigrating to Canada.

"We have been promised jobs in Toronto and will sail in a few weeks," said Slavko Jankovic, manager of the team.

The rowers stopped in Germany to compete in a regatta on the way back from Helsinki and then decided not to return to their Communist homeland.

They asked and were granted temporary asylum in Germany until they could emigrate.

"Our most important reason for not going back to Yugoslavia is, naturally, political," Jankovic said.

"Also, he added, "We are all young and have our whole lives before us. Life in Yugoslavia is difficult and expensive. Canada is a land where one can work and live in freedom and earn enough to live as an honorable man."

Set Strike Deadline

NEW YORK (AP)—The Newspaper and Mail Deliverers' Union today voted to strike at midnight Nov. 1 if an "acceptable contract" is not achieved with publishers of 10 city dailies. The union's 4,100 members seek a weekly pay increase of $20, welfare and rehiring clauses and other benefits. Current wage scale is $88 a week.

Hogs 100; good to choice N. Y. State hogs $17-18.75; bulk sows $14-16; boars $10-12.

Sheep and lambs 100; market not established.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO (AP) — Grains opened with a firm undertone today, with wheat and corn advancing about one cent.

There were some unconfirmed reports of export business and the continued dry weather pushed up the July wheat contract.

Wheat opened ⅛ to ⅞ higher, December 2.38⅜-¾; corn was ½ to 1 cent higher, December 1.65⅞-66¼; oats were ¼ to ½ higher, December 86¾, and soybeans were ¾ to 1½ higher, November 2.94 ½-¼.

TORONTO PRODUCE

The egg market opened firm on most grades although prices on A medium were down slightly. Quotations for graded eggs in fibre cases were: A large 68-69; A medium 60; A small 45; grade B 47; grade C 28. Wholesale to retail: A large 74; A medium 66-67; A small 51; grade B 52-53; grade C 33.

Butter solids: First grade 61½; no price established on second, third or western butter.

MONTREAL LIVESTOCK

MONTREAL (CP)—Prices failed to establish a trend in slow early dealings today on the Montreal livestock markets.

Receipts were 280 cattle, 275 calves, 2,900 sheep and lambs and 150 hogs. Total offerings Monday were 1,747 cattle, 1,141 calves, 4,189 sheep and lambs and 3,186 hogs.

Hogs were steady at $26 for grade A and sows made $17.

Most of the lambs offered were held over from yesterday.

Included in today's offerings were more than 200 calves not sold Monday. Monday, vealers lost about $2, with good quality at $25, a few at $26, while grassers brought $8-10.

Mixed cattle offerings included more than 200 cattle held over from Monday. Yesterday, all classes of cattle sold at $2 less than last week. Some good steers made $21-22.25, good cows $11-12, canners and cutters $5-8.50. Good bulls brought $12-14, common and medium $9-11.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO (CP)—Cattle trade was dull today at the Ontario stockyards and prices were steady. Receipts: Cattle 760; calves 290; hogs 520; sheep and lambs 330. The holdover from yesterday was 2,300 cattle.

Choice weighty steers sold at $24-26.50 with good weighty steers downward to $15. Common to medium light steers and heifers were at $12-18 with good heifers at $19. Common to medium stockers were at $14-18.75 and fed yearlings at $17-23, Good cows sold at $11-12 with canners at $8-10 and good bulls at $13-14 with common as low as $10.

Choice veal calves were steady at $26-29 with common to medium at $13-24. Grassers sold at $10-11 and heavy calves at $13-17.

Grade A hogs were at $26 with dressed sows at $17.

Lambs were steady at $22 delivered by rail and at $21 by truck. Bucks brought $20 and heavies $18-20. Plain sheep sold at $4-6.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prices generally moved sharply, particularly the nearby contracts in early trade today on the Winnipeg grain exchange.

Moderate demand was prompted by upturns on U.S. markets and by continued drought in many sections on the North American continent.

Commercial demand was not too aggressive, and the advance was due more to light offerings than any broad-scale buying.

11 a.m. grain prices:

Oats: Oct. 1⅛ higher 86⅞A; Dec. ⅝ higher 83⅜A; May ⅞ higher 83½B; July ½ higher 79¾.

Barley: Oct. 5 higher 1.50B; Dec. 2 higher 1.30⅛B; May 1⅛ higher 1.22¾B; July 1 higher 1.17¼.

Rye: Oct. 2½ higher 1.80½B; Dec. 2⅝-2½ higher 1.82A; May 2⅝ higher 1.88⅛A; July, not open.

Flax: Oct. 4⅛ higher 3.50¾; Dec. 3¼ higher 3.47¾; May 4 higher

Joint Commission Holds Closed Session

MONTREAL (CP) — The International Joint Commission met here today in closed executive session to study a joint Canada-United States application for authority to produce power on the international section of the St. Lawrence River.

The commission, which recently completed a series of hearings on the application in Washington, met under the chairmanship of Gen. A.G.L. McNaughton, Canadian co-chairman.

Before the six-man commission was an application from the federal governments of Canada and the United States for permission to have agencies designated by the two administrations—in Canada's case, the Ontario government—develop 2,200,000 horsepower of hydro energy on the International Rapids section in eastern Ontario.

This project, to cost an estimated $400,000,000, is the power end of the $700,000,000 St. Lawrence seaway and hydro development.

Marines Destroy Red Regiment, Regain Ground

SEOUL (AP)—About 700 Chinese Reds, attacking under the light of a bright moon, stormed into the main Allied lines on Sniper Ridge tonight.

On the eastern front, North Korean Reds slammed twice at Allied lines on bleak and rugged Heartbreak Ridge. U.N. troops threw them back with fierce counter-attacks. About 500 Reds powered the twin assault. Each attack forced a slight penetration which was quickly sealed.

Far to the west, U.S. Marines mopped up the last Communist resistance and restored their lines on the U.S. Eighth Army's left flank. The Marines reported destruction of a complete Chinese Communist regiment—about 3,000 men.

On the central front, Allied soldiers hurled back strong Chinese assaults at half a dozen key points and piled up the toll of Red dead.

Maj.-Gen. Edwin Pollack, U.S. 1st Marine Division commander, told correspondents:

"I think we have inflicted terrible losses on the enemy. In fact, I consider one Chinese regiment destroyed.

"We are in complete control of everything we pulled back from."

HOLD THE HOOK

AP correspondent Milo Farneti reported from the front that Marines were in firm possession of the Hook, a ridgeline northeast of Panmunjom, and two outposts to the north.

About 1,500 Reds hit the Marine sector Sunday night. The Marines counter-attacked and kicked the Reds off late Monday. Before dawn today they mopped up small hold-out units. After daybreak the Marines took two outposts without opposition.

Allied planes pounded the Reds with bombs, rockets and flaming gasoline. The Chinese replied with sporadic artillery fire.

AP correspondent John Randolph said up to 750 Chinese knocked the South Koreans off the northernmost position on the ridge and stormed part way up the slopes of Pinpoint Hill, Sniper's dominant height.

The South Koreans counter-attacked and regained all the lost ground.

Wild Prairie

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP)—The southwest corner of Saskatchewan may become known as big-game country. Les McKenzie of the Moose Jaw wild animal park received reports of lynx, timber wolves and cougars being seen in the district.

Foreign Office Indicates Missing Envoy May Be Red

LONDON (Reuters) — Widely-held theories that Donald MacLean, British diplomat who vanished without trace 18 months ago, may have fled behind the Iron Curtain gained some strength today with a government statement in the House of Lords.

Foreign Undersecretary Lord Reading said MacLean made statements before his disappearance suggesting he was a Communist.

It was the first official admission that MacLean held Communist sympathies. At the time he left he was head of the American section of the foreign office.

MacLean left with another foreign office official, Guy Burgess, May 25, 1951. They were traced as far as France but the foreign office has consistently stated since that it does not know where they are.

Reading said in answer to questions today:

"It will be realized that much information about Mr. MacLean has come to light since his disappearance which was not in the possession of the foreign office at the time he was appointed head of the American department in October, 1950.

"It is now known for example that on more than one occasion before his disappearance Mr. MacLean made remarks suggesting he was a Communist or sympathetic to communism.

"This was not known at the time of his appointment."

The question of MacLean's political views was raised by Lord Elton, an independent peer.

Elton claimed the Federal Bureau of Investigation in the U. S. holds a recording of a private speech made in New York by MacLean in which he asserted he was a Communist. He said the speech had been made at a private gathering in a friend's house.

"The record has for many years been available for inspection if required," Elton said.

Liberals Ask Ottawa End Licence Fee

OTTAWA (CP) — The Liberal party's top lieutenants, looking to the next general election, Monday talked of stepped-up organization, lower taxes and abolition of radio licence fees.

The politically-important subjects were in the forefront of matters discussed at opening sessions of the advisory council of the National Liberal Federation, the high command of the Federal party in power.

Major action of the 235-member council was the adoption of a resolution regarded by observers as putting the finish to the $2.50-a-year radio licence fee. The council's resolution, addressed to the government, called on it to "give consideration to the immediate abolition of the radio licence fee."

The licence fee now grosses about $5,000,000 a year. A large part of this is taken up in collection costs.

In apparently paving the way for removal of the radio fee, the council made no reference to television. It worded its resolution this way:

"Recognizing that the use of radio has become universal in Canada and a necessity of modern life, the advisory council recommends that the government give consideration to the immediate abolition of the radio licence fee."

Earlier, the council:

1. Heard a plea from Allan L. Woodrow of Toronto, acting president, for efficient and early organization in the face of a general election, expected to come next year.

2. Heard Mr. Woodrow suggest that lower taxes would follow continued increases in national production.

3. Endorsed the Liberal's federal administration, while calling on Prime Minister St. Laurent to lead the party through the next general election.

Another resolution adopted at the closed session and released later reasserted that the "primary aim" of the Liberal Party was to promote national unity.

In the presidential report of Mr. Woodrow—filling in for Senator J. Gordon Fogo, who died in July—he said that the Liberals have a tremendous task in administering plans for improving living standards and at the same time spending heavily on defence.

"This is reflected in the tax rate," he said, "but with a continued increase in national production, one may hope for a reduction in the rate."

He asked members to "pass along the word" when they got home, advising workers that "a successful election is contingent upon an efficient and early organization."

More Than Don Guards

TORONTO (CP) — Don jail guards receive less pay than Toronto garbage men, J.D. Conover, York county sheriff, said yesterday.

He told the Royal Commission inquiring into conditions in the east-end jail that few men want to become jail guards at the Don because of the low pay. Not until prison guards receive a salary in line with policemen would it be possible to obtain the desired type of guard.

Minimum and maximum salaries of guards now are $2,240 and $2,640. Policemen in Toronto start at about $3,600 and work up to $3,900.

Sheriff Conover said the jail has a standing order with the national employment service and with the personnel director of the city for likely prospects.

"If a man is physically fit and honest, we are loath to turn him down. Men are very hard to get."

No check is made with police under ordinary circumstances, he added.

The sheriff described Governor T.W. Brand, suspended following the escape of the Boyd gang last month, as "a very excellent custodial officer, co-operative and interested in his work."

George Walsh, chief counsel at the hearing, said a dummy quoit with a hacksaw blade inside may have provided the Boyd gang with a means of escape. It might have been thrown over the wall of the jail's exercise yard.

The chief inspector of the reforms institution department, T.M. Gourlay, agreed it was possible for a hacksaw to be smuggled into the jail inside a quoit.

Centreville Church Marks 119th Birthday

MILLBROOK (ENS) — The 119th anniversary services of Centreville Presbyterian Church were held on Sunday.

Mrs. Gordon Muspratt was at the organ and guest soloist for the day was J. Peltz of Peterborough.

The Rev. John Riddell of Port Perry, who had been ordained and inducted in the Centreville church in 1926, conducted the service.

Paul and Silas changed the whole face of western civilization, he told the congregation.

"We today can stand back and look at this great movement which was started by St. Paul. We can see the greatness of Jesus Christ, our heavenly Father, and the power of God. When civilization is crumbling under our feet, remember that one man, one congregation, one institution with God is stronger than all the forces against them."

The 23rd Psalm was the basis of Mr. Riddell's sermon at the evening service. This psalm is the song of the soul, and through all that David had gone he learned to call God his Shepherd.

NIMES, France (Reuters)—The 150-year-old, $300,000 Nimes opera house, the oldest in France, was destroyed by fire last night.

Smear and Fear Tactics Charged By US President

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—President Truman said today the Republicans are trying to win the election by McCarthy tactics of "smear and fear" and "slander and character assassination."

He said that if such tactics succeed "the rights and liberties of all Americans will be in deadly peril."

And he took a slap at what he called the "one-party press" for accusing him of "mud-slinging," saying that he tells "the truth" on the Republicans "and it hurts!"

That was in an address prepared for delivery at St. Paul during a rugged day of campaigning en route to Hibbing, Minn., iron range district for a major address tonight at 9 EST.

Truman didn't reply directly to a speech last night by Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep. Wis.). But he again criticized Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's endorsement of McCarthy's re-election campaign.

TRY FOR CONFUSION

"If the Republicans can't fool the people on the issues. . .they think perhaps the tactics of Joe McCarthy will get the people so confused and fearful and suspicious that they will forget the issues," the President said.

"Of all the issues raised in this campaign, this is the most serious and the most dangerous. If Joe McCarthyism can triumph over a good man like Gene McCarthy, (Democratic representative seeking re-election) the rights and liberties of all Americans will be in deadly peril."

He said his campaign tours have "enraged the Republicans" and "infuriated the one-party press" which has accused him of "mud-slinging."

"If they are startled by the words I've used in this campaign," he said, "they should be shocked and horrified by the facts I have brought out."

Discuss 3 Schemes To Ease Cobourg Housing Shortage

COBOURG (ENS) — Three housing schemes to alleviate the housing shortage in Cobourg were discussed at Monday night's council meeting by D. Y. Lewis of the Department of Planning and Development.

The first, the Land Assembly Scheme was to provide low cost lots for those wishing to build themselves or by contractors. The second was known as the Economic Rental Scheme and the third, the Subsidized Rental Plan.

Under the first plan, the scheme would facilitate channelling municipal services to a broad section and would take into consideration convenience of location to school and shopping areas. Lots would be moderate in price and the governments of the province and the dominion would advance the money to buy the site, pay legal fees and survey costs. The town would be asked to bring services to the edge of the project area and to cover the town's share of the costs the money would be advanced by the government on a 15 year basis and the debentures would be accepted by Central Mortgage and Housing instead of having to sell them on the bond market. There was no financing problem.

To prevent any speculation, the deed would not be turned over to the buyer until it was known that a house was going up and the purchaser had to start building by six months. Taxes would pay the town for its investment in providing the services. The lots would average 50 feet frontage and could go back 100 feet and would range up to $250 or thereabouts.

The rental plan known as the Economic Rental Scheme had a rental charged so as to pay off the sum spent on development in 50 years, the municipality to pay 7½% of the capital cost of the project.

Rental would be $65 a month, a sum which some of the councillors said would be rather stiff for some workers. Mr. Lewis said that $15 of that would be taxes and that the municipality of course would receive the taxes.

PLAN FINDS FAVOR

The Subsidized Plan found favor with the council as the rents were scaled in accordance with income and would range from $35 to $50 a month. This raised the question of how a man in a $65 a month house would like the idea of a neighbour in the same kind of house getting away with a rent much less.

"It is based on your ability to pay," explained Mayor Jack Burnet.

Mr. Lewis said that the rents were figured on 20 per cent income. The houses were 80 per cent brick veneer and ranged from two to three bedrooms. It was a superior type of housing, he said. He suggested that when the town had come to a decision that the needs required one or more plans, to have a resolution in council passed, requesting the institution of the project.

"There is no question that we will have to proceed with one or more of the plans you have outlined," Mayor Burnet told Mr. Lewis.

Atom Scientist Confers With UK Experts

LONDON (Reuters) — Dr. C.J. Mackenzie, Canada's top atomic scientist, has arrived for routine talks with British experts.

Dr. Mackenzie will spend about three weeks visiting research institutions. He is president of Atomic Energy of Canada, Ltd., a crown company handling Canada's atomic program.

A Canadian government spokesman said today that the visit is "normal" and has no special significance.

In a press statement made after his arrival, Mackenzie said Canada was mainly concerned with the industrial uses of atomic energy.

"We do not know all that the United States has done but we in Canada hope to have this problem well ahead within 10 years," he said.

Mackenzie is accompanied by his assistant, Dr. I.N. MacKay.

Offices At Stake In U.S. Election

When U.S. voters go to the polls on Nov. 4 they will cast votes on many offices besides those of the presidency and vice-presidency.

To be voted on are a third of the seats in the Senate, all seats in the House of Representatives, and the governorships of a numbr of states.

A breakdown of the principal offices up for election:

President
Vice-President
35 Senators (x)
435 Representatives (xx)
30 Governors (xxx)

(x)—Normally 32, or a third of the Senate's 96 members. Figure raised by deaths to 35; however, Maine has already elected a senator (Republican) so seats at stake on Nov. 4 will be 34;

(xx)—Maine's three representatives have already been elected (all Republicans); therefore seats at stake will be 432;

(xxx)—Voters to decide on 29; Maine has already elected a governor (Republican).

In addition to the governorships, there are many state offices to be voted on. A voter in one of the five boroughs (counties) making up New York City, for example, would vote on the following offices, federal and state:

President; vice-president; 1 U.S. senator; 1 of 22 U.S. representatives; 1 of 24 state senators; 1 of 17 state assemblymen, 7 justices of the state Supreme Court; 1 justice of the General Sessions Court, and, separately in each borough, 1 judge of the Municipal Court.

MARRIED FIFTY YEARS, Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Thistlethwaite celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Monday at their home in Asphodel township. Both are still active workers in Norwood United Church, although their health has been failing recently. Mr. Thistlethwaite, a lay preacher for the district for a number of years, has also been Sunday school superintendent for 47 years.—(W. W. Reid Photo).

Keen Church Workers, Pair Celebrate Golden Wedding

NORWOOD (ENS)—Both active church workers in the Norwood district, Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Thistlewaite, Asphodel township, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Monday at their home.

Mr. Thistlewaite has been superintendent of Elgin Sunday School for 47 years and is at present honorary superintendent. As well, he has been a lay preacher for the district and an elder of Norwood United Church.

Mrs. Thistlewaite has also been a teacher in the Sunday School and an active member of the Norwood United Church W.A. and W.M.S. Her husband is also a member of L.O.L. 277, Belmont, and of the R.B.P., Norwood, in both of which he has held a number of offices.

Wed on October 27, 1902, at the bride's home—she was formerly Amelia Lobb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Lobb of Norwood—the couple have spent their limetime in the district, where Mr. Thistlewaite farmed.

Officiating minister was the Rev. Robert Taylor of Norwood Methodist Church. Attendants were Miss Mary Metcalfe (now Mrs. James McConnell, Norwood), and Andrew Thistlewaite, the groom's brother.

Although both have been in failing health, they are still active in community affairs, and they are known to many residents of the district as "Uncle and Auntie."

An adopted son, Wilfred, lives in Toronto, and his son Albert lives with Mr. and Mrs. Thistlewaite.

US Shipping Firm Up For Sale, Sealed Bidding

WASHINGTON (AP)—One of the world's major shipping firms, the American President Lines, was up for sale today under sealed bidding.

At least $14,000,000 must be offered to take the line off the government's hands, but bidding was expected to run higher than that. The company claims assets of $70,000,000 before liabilities. The stock being sold has a claimed book value of nearly $25,000,000.

The auction was arranged to end 14 years of government ownership. The agreement setting up the sale wound up five years of court fighting for control of the company between the government and the R. Stanley Dollar interests of San Francisco.

FALL INTO HANDS

The company fell into the hands of the government in 1938 when the old maritime commission loaned the Dollar line $4,500,000 and then subsidized the firm for five years. Under government operation the name was changed to the American President Lines.

At the time of the loan the company put up 92 per cent of its voting stock, representing 77 per cent of the company's stock value. The loan was paid off out of company earnings under government operation. The Dollar interests then asked that the stock be returned to them. The government refused, saying the stock had been made over to the government, not put up as security for the loan.

Dr. J. N. Perry Elected Head Of Boy Scouts Association

Dr. J. N. Perry was elected president of the Peterborough Boy Scouts Association Saturday night at their annual banquet in Trinity United Church hall. Dr. Perry succeeds 1951-52 president Peter Moore.

Guest speaker Art Jackson urged the formation of a "Scout family" within the group, in which fathers would take an active part in the training of others' sons and their own.

He challenged Scout leaders present to be constantly active in church and community service, to live up to the reputation scouting has built up over the years.

GIVE HELPING HAND

The association had its own responsibility—that of acquiring and holding responsible leaders for the various troops and packs of a community. "Don't just give them a job and a blessing," said the speaker, "give them a helping hand."

Best age for scout leaders was 35, and the best men were family men with sons of their own to think of. Sixty-five per cent. of leaders were former scouts 46 per cent. had sons in the organization.

Other officers elected were: first vice-president, E. Trueman; second vice-president, E. J. Wolff; secretary, W. G. Shiner; treasurer, E. J. MacDonald.

Directors are: C. Barnes, C. Davies, E. T. Cotton, H. J. Allen, J. Houghton, A. Cinnamon, Don Dull, and F. McGavin. Past presidents are: B. Ottowell, F. E. Buckland, Peter Moore, and honorary members are Albert Hope and G. E. Groombridge.

Members for the provincial conference are E. J. MacDonald and J. Houghton; auditors are A. Malby and A. Malcolm. District commissioner is Dr. G. R. Langley.

PLANS AHEAD

In his first annual report, Commissioner Langley briefly reviewed the past year's work, and dwelt on the main events to come: a regional conference to be held in Peterborough, a field day, and the Rover Moot in Switzerland.

Mr. Shiner, the secretary, reported that the association had gained a total of 113 over the year: one pack, one troop, 61 Cubs, 48 Scouts, four leaders, two staff, and a decrease of two Rovers.

Salvage drives netted $950.70. Forty-two boys attended the reforestation camps in the Ganarska valley, and 42 leaders joined in the regional conference at Cobourg.

Report of treasurer E. J MacDonald showed Apple Day expenses to be $444.42, $285.25 for upkeep of Nassau camp grounds, $500 allotted to federal and provincial funds, and $878.05 allocated to groups. Total cost was $3,600.99.

Net proceeds from Apple Day are expected to be about $1,000.

Gordon Thompson, Scout leader for Trinity troop, was presented with his official warrant and Queen's Scout Bob Leach was congratulated for his attainments.

Gracie Fields Defends Farouk

LONDON (Reuters) — Singer Gracie Fields today defended former King Farouk, a customer at her restaurant on the Isle of Capri, as a simple man of simple tastes.

The 54-year-old English star was hostess to Farouk just after his abdication last July.

Miss Fields, here for a stage tour of Britain, told reporters: "They say he likes the girls—well, who doesn't at 32?"

She fingered a large brooch of jade and pinpoint diamonds she was wearing and said: "This is a present from him. Farouk was so pleased with our friendship."

"I visited the new baby. They are a lovely family. He himself is a very simple man. He loves to laugh and joke—he does not drink, it is against their religion."

Nurses' Lectures Start On A-Bomb

COBOURG (ENS)—Lectures in nursing aspects of atomic, biological and chemical warfare will commence next Thursday evening at the Collegiate Institute and the invitation has gone out to all registered nurses of Cobourg, Port Hope, Brighton and Campbellford to attend. The course of lectures is sponsored by the provincial government which has assigned to the Registered Nurses Association of Canada the job of instructing the nurses in various parts of the province.

There will be six lectures, each of two-hours duration, and will be held on succeeding Thursday nights, commencing this week. The first lecture will be on civil defence., the second one will be on atomic bomb phenomena, the next on nursing care, followed by one on medical aspects of modern warfare, radiation sickness and the final one, nursing goals.

Driver Will Shave Before Leaving Home

SOLIHULL, England (Reuters)—Henceforth Frederick Evans will shave before he leaves for the office in the morning.

He was fined 4 on a reckless-driving count today for driving to work with one hand on the wheel while he used the other to shave with an electric razor plugged in to the dashboard.

A traffic cop said Evans argued ... do it all the time."

Policeman's Wife Jailed For 12 Years

TOKYO (Reuters) — A policeman's wife was sentenced to 12 years in prison today for strangling her husband, a trick she learned by reading the monthly police bulletin he brought home from the station.

She is Fumiko Itoh, 26. She killed her husband last May, then cut up his body and threw the pieces in a river.

Chevrier Opens Series

COBOURG (ENS) — The Cobourg Y.W.C.A. commences its fall and winter series of addresses by nationally-known personalities with a talk at Cobourg Collegiate auditorium November 7, by the Hon. Lionel Chevrier, Minister of Transport. The first speaker in the series earlier in the year was Mr. Diefenbaker. It is emphasized by the Y.W.C.A. that the talks are non-political. Mr. Diefenbaker spoke on the United Nations and Mr. Chevrier's address is to be on the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Swiss Expedition Two-Thirds Up Peak

NEW DELHI, India (Reuters)—The Swiss expedition on Mount Everest has established a number two camp about two-thirds up the peak and is climbing hard in good weather.

Reports reaching here today said the camp was set up in mid-October at 19,500 feet. Everest is 29,002 feet high.

Fine, crisp weather and good snow conditions have been helping the expedition, led by Dr. Gabriel Chevalley.

It is the 10th attempt made to scale the unconquered peak.

Latest Farouk Rumor Ex-King To Make Film

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Former King Farouk, who pictures himself as a comparatively poor man since he was forced from the Egyptian throne, today was reported planning to make movies with Errol Flynn.

The weekly newspaper Al Nidaa said in a dispatch from Rome that Farouk had agreed to put up $717,500 as his share of the venture.

BUILD-IN FIRE SAFETY WITH THIS FIRE-DEFYING BUILDING BOARD

PLANNING TO BUILD OR REMODEL?

Then start right by building fireproof partitions of Johns-Manville Asbestos Flexboard. Here's a building board with unlimited uses both indoors and out. Made of asbestos and cement, Flexboard is literally a "sheet of stone" yet it can be sawed and nailed like wood. It's ideal for basement and attic — kitchens and bathrooms, too. It never needs painting for preservative purposes but paint goes on smooth if desired. Flexboard comes in large 4 x 8 foot sheets. For full details on this versatile asbestos building board see your J-M dealer or write Canadian Johns-Manville, Dept. 32, 199 Bay St., Toronto, Ontario.

J-M ASBESTOS TEXTILES
Modern asbestos "magic", in the form of fireproof asbestos textiles, today wards off many hazards that once took tragic toll of property, wealth and human lives. Thanks to asbestos clothing for the fire fighter, fire departments are better able to cope with searing, destroying flames. Asbestos oven mitts protect the housewife from burns and even the theatre you attend is made safer thanks to an asbestos curtain.

J-M INDUSTRIAL FRICTION MATERIALS
When a giant derrick lifts a heavy load and sets it down gently it depends on asbestos friction materials for safe, sure, positive stops. When the office elevator handles rush hour loads smoothly it's asbestos that takes the strain. Grants A Crazy Hodge-Podge

Ontario's Minister of Welfare said in a Belleville speech last week that Ontario's system of grants is "a crazy hodge-podge". Municipal officials, both elected and appointed and whatever their political faith, will ruefully agree with him. The system is enough to bamboozle anybody but a wizard used to Provincial edicts. It is reassuring that Mr. Goodfellow, a Minister in the Ontario Government, will admit it. Only wizards of osmosis in Queen's Park, filtering a percentage here to a municipality, a dram of dollars to a county board there, and allowing a nugget to slip outside the treasury bag as a lump sum occasionally; these may know what and how grants are made.

* * *

Mr. Frost, Provincial Treasurer as well as Premier, is remarkably equipped to deal with this "crazy hodge-podge". We remember his masterly financial analysis of the Province's position some years ago, at a political rally. He can keep the score; he knows what (if any) pattern underlies the hodge-podge; but what happens if perchance he is removed from the purlieus of the Treasury? Surely it is time to revise and consolidate the whole system of grants, so that not only Mr. Frost can see the woods for the trees. We shall not impute to him any desire to keep the situation cloudy and bewildering nor suggest that Mr. Frost wants to bamboozle the public in the municipalities. But we cannot help but ask if, when even a colleague admits that the system of grants is crazy, why Mr. Frost has not long ago set about bringing the light of sense into the treasury hoard in these dozen years in which he has been Provincial Treasurer?

* * *

While agreeing with Mr. Goodfellow, and urging the need for reform of the grants system so that it can stand up to close scrutiny and favourable or unfavorable criticism, we hope that Mr. Goodfellow is not setting up a kite for Mr. Frost, and testing the air to see if, under the excuse of a revision, the grants can be reduced, and more Queen's Park strings attached to them. As we said on Saturday, recent statements of Mr. Frost suggest that there may be a move on foot to deprive municipalities of what little ability is left to them to work freely as local governments.

* * *

The need is to increase the grants and to revise the grants system, so as to make it intelligible to municipal officials, and particularly to the people of the townships and towns, so that they can know what they are getting, what they should be getting, and see clearly what strings are attached. Under the present crazy quilt, it is too easy for Queen's Park to play a hidden game to debilitate the municipalities. However, if a thorough revision means consolidating all the strings into a solid rope, to hang the municipalities from the top of the East Block, Queen's Park, Toronto, then let the municipalities at least choose gentlemanly execution rather than to dangle bloodlessly at the pleasure of the central authority. Let Queen's Park take all; the decapitated corpses of the municipalities, and stick the heads on ornamental pikes around the bulging Ontario coffers.

Moscow Does Not Want An Armistice In Korea

poses closed the door on the Korean cease fire negotiations. That is the opinion of several careful western weighers of Russian words and the international political situation. There is much to confirm this analysis, although, as time has proven, guessing about Russian intentions is often as useless as counting straws in a stack: they are so many and so shifting.

The Soviet Foreign Minister supported at U.N. a Polish proposal. This was essentially the same as Mr. Vishinsky himself put forward a year ago. The Soviet group now require the repatriation of all prisoners of war in Korea. It is the same demand that General Namm Il gave as an ultimatum at Panmunjom.

There is such a unanimity in this demand now, that Moscow must not only have supported it, but even foisted it on other Red countries, China included. Perhaps the decision was taken during the visit of Chou En Lai to Moscow.

Why was there a shifting earlier, a tendency to secure an armistice, to come to terms with the American negotiators? Why is there now a final demand which everybody knows the United States and U.N. cannot possibly accept? The reason must be that Russia wants the war to go on, and China and Russia think they can maintain it safely. They must feel it is in the best interests of their side that there be no armistice; in the worst interest of U.N. and the U.S.A.

Earlier, China seemed to have had enough of fighting in Korea. There was danger of their 'volunteer' troops being pushed right back into Manchuria. A year and a half ago, when Mr. Malik first proposed an armistice, the Communist commanders had just had two heavy defeats. Today, after many months of static positions and prolonged negotiations (in which the Chinese were able to draw breath, reinforcements and to reform, despite the heavy artillery and air attacks of the U.S. troops), the Chinese troops in Korea have been reinforced and re-equipped, largely with Russian supplies.

The Stalin thesis, recently publicized in his article "Bolshevik", is that given enough rope the West and its capitalism will hang itself, together or separately. The Communist theory is that, given time, the western camp will disintegrate through rivalry among themselves, and through basic flaws in the capitalist system. The Russians must feel that one of the easiest ways to cause dissensions in the "Imperialist camp" is to prolong the Korean war, without permitting any result other than stalemate and continual casualties.

There is shrewdness in this view. Today the conduct of the campaign and of the armistice negotiations, the apportionment of troops, and continuance of the Korean war are the background for sharp differences of opinion among Western nations. So Russia, pushing China, would keep the Korean War going.

A British analyst, W. N. Ewer, points out that to keep the Korean war hot, or at least warm, costs Russia very little, considering her size, population and wealth; and that Russia will get what she can from China in return for equipment sent. China has given Russia an indefinite extension of her tenure of the Port Arthur fortress and naval base. Russian technicians are getting useful training. The burden on China is great, but Stalin has said that his policy is "directed to the interests of the Soviet Union and nowhere else in the world." He will not be deterred by the burden put on China.

"It is in what Stalin regards as the interest of the Soviet Union that the Korean armistice is to be prevented and the Korean war is to be prolonged," Mr. Ewer says. "Soviet Russia uses 'peace' as an instrument of propaganda. But she uses war as an instrument of Stalinist policy."

Some Ungallant Comment

It is 59 years ago this month that the National Council of Women was organized; in its early days the organization was strongly behind the movement to secure votes for women, and when that end was achieved it gave much effort to encouraging women to take an active part in public affairs. The results have not been on a large scale; there are about 60 women in municipal elective office in Canada, and a small representation of women on appointed public bodies; there are three women in Parliament, three in the Legislature of British Columbia (one in the Cabinet), and two each in the Legislatures of Alberta and Saskatchewan. It is not a large showing, after so remarkable a victory. We wonder if the National Council is contented with its results, and if it feels that the struggle was worth it. The majority of women do not appear to have made much use of the liberty which some of their zealous sisters fought to secure for them.

Women in politics are still chiefly engaged in what the army calls "ancillary work"; the word "ancillary," we point out, is from the Latin word for "handmaiden." The political handmaidens do a good deal of organizing and much of the drudgery of electioneering, but they are not prominent as speakers, candi-certain, be the first to contradict any suggestion that men have kept them in this position; it is the role which they have chosen for themselves.

Only people well advanced in years now recall the time when "Rights for Women" and "Votes for Women" were really burning issues. Women now have an almost embarrassing accumulation of rights—those which they possess as free and equal citizens, and those which they have inherited from a more romantic age; they hug these rights, and guard them jealously, but it cannot be said that they do much with them. We sometimes wonder what the ghosts of the Suffragettes think about it all.

Victoria Day

We erred yesterday in stating that the 24th of May, Victoria Day, will be celebrated next year on Monday, the 25th, since the 24th falls on Sunday. In the last session of Parliament, the Victoria Day Act was amended so that the celebration takes place hereafter on the Monday falling first before the 25th. So the 24th will be celebrated on May 18th, a fortnight before Coronation Day.

U.S. ELECTIONS

The Issues At Stake

By KENNETH HARRIS

A FRIEND of mine has calculated that for every word a British Prime Minister utters in an election campaign, a candidate for the Presidency of the United States utters fifty-five.

I am too busy to follow all that is said here to verify the comparison. But it sounds as if it may well be correct—though possibly on the conservative side. The trouble about all the wordage of the American election campaign is that for Americans, as well as non-Americans, it creates the impression that the election is being fought over dozens and dozens of different and complicated issues. This is not so. The political differences between Eisenhower and the Republicans on the one hand, and Adlai Stevenson and the Democrats on the other, are comparatively few and comparatively simple.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE FIRST DIFFERENCE between Eisenhower and Stevenson, of course, is that the former is a Republican, while the latter is a Democrat. Eisenhower leads the party generally regarded as the conservative party and in which businessmen are on the whole the chief influence. Stevenson leads the party generally regarded as the progressive party in which organised labour exerts the chief influence.

To get a sound idea of how the two men differ from one another, I think it is best to divide the issues of this year's elections into three groups. The general issues, on which both men basically agree and on which they differ in public simply to make political capital; the foreign policy issues, on which both men are also in basic agreement but on which they hammer away at each other to make political points; and the specific issues. These, which relate to domestic questions, are the really important ones.

✧ ✧ ✧

FIRST AMONG the general issues comes taxation and the cost of living. Eisenhower promises to cut taxes, and to reduce the cost of living. Stevenson promises to maintain the present standard of living and says nothing about taxes or cost of living. Next comes the general issue of corruption in government. During the last two years it has been revealed that there has been inefficiency, indiscretion, and, in some cases, downright swindling and embezzlement in several government departments. Eisenhower says that these show that the Democratic Party is now so hopelessly corrupt that it cannot possibly clean up the mess, and that, therefore, "It's time for a change". Stevenson admits the "mess"—but argues that several reforms which President Truman tried to put through were stymied by the Republican Party in Congress, and that under his leadership the Democrats are perfectly capable of cleaning up.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE PRESENCE of Communists in the American Government is a parallel issue. A number of government employees have been proved to have been members of the Communist Party. A few, of whom Alger Hiss is the outstanding example, have been found to have given secret information to foreign agents. Eisenhower says that the Democratic Administration has been shockingly lax—and reminded everybody that during the early days of the Hiss investigation, President Truman dismissed the whole case as a "red herring". Stevenson argues that it was predominately Democratic committees of Congress which uncovered all these subversive activities and that the Republicans are grossly exaggerating the "Communists in Government" danger.

✧ ✧ ✧

ON FOREIGN policy the leading issue is, naturally, Korea. Eisenhower says that the Korean war could have been "avoided", is an unnecessary war, and that the American people were "bungled" into it by the Democratic Administration. Stevenson says that by deliberately committing American troops to defend Korea, the Democratic Administration has checked a wave of open Communist aggression which would have otherwise landed the Americans in World War III. Eisenhower promises to get American boys "back to their mothers and wives" by replacing them with South Korean troops. Stevenson says such promises are "deceitful, cruel and rash".

✧ ✧ ✧

AMERICAN POLICY towards China is also involved. Eisenhower says that the Democratic Administration let China fall into the hands of the Chinese Communists owing to bad judgement, sheer carelessness, and failure to support Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. Stevenson says that the Democratic Administration did everything it possibly could—short of putting an American expeditionary force on Chinese soil — to help Chiang maintain his Nationalist Government.

On foreign policy generally, Eisenhower claims that the Democrats have failed to establish a United States of Europe, and a European Army. Spending more than the country can afford, he says, they have threatened the country's economic strength without giving it military security. Stevenson claims themselves economically and militarily strong, have laid a solid groundwork for the economic, political and military unity of Europe and have prevented a third world war, while equipping America to win such a war should it occur.

LASTLY, there are at least four major specific issues in the election. The first is the Taft-Hartley Act. This Act is the bone of contention between the men who speak for the trade unions, and the men who speak for industrial ownership and management. It was passed in 1947 by a Republican-packed Congress over President Truman's veto. The union leaders have always fought against certain of its clauses which, for instance, enable a President to postpone a strike for eighty days, enable employers to avoid the "closed shop", and generally weight the law in favour of the employer.

While Republicans and Democrats agree that these parts of the Act should be modified, there is so much bitter feeling about the Act on both sides that the election issue is repeal. Stevenson is for repeal. Eisenhower merely promises certain amendments.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE SECOND ISSUE is civil rights. Stevenson is for a Bill by which, if it were passed, Congress would compel the thirty-seven states not already possessing one to set up a Fair Employment Practices Commission (F.E.P.C.). This would guarantee Negroes full economic and political equality.

Eisenhower, however, though he has said that he will do all he can to promote the political and economic equality of the Negro, is against compulsory F.E.P.C. and advocates that the treatment of the Negro be left to individual states. Compulsory F.E.P.C. is a key issue.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE THIRD issue is Tidelands Oil. Stevenson supports a ruling of the Supreme Court, the United States final court of appeal, that the oil deposits lying off the shores of several seaboard states belong to the Federal Government—that is, the Government of the United States—and not to the governments of the individual states, California, Louisiana, Texas and Alabama, off whose shores the oil deposits lie. Eisenhower says that the oil belongs to these states and reasserts the doctrine of States Rights. Stevenson favours Federal control.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE FOURTH issue is fuel and power. Stevenson is for extending the work which the Federal Government has done in establishing publicly-owned electricity, gas and water producing plants up and down the country. Eisenhower is for handing back as many as possible of these plants to private ownership. Stevenson is for nationalisation where it can do and will do what private industry cannot or will not.

Eisenhower is against what he calls "creeping socialism" and wants a return to America's traditional ways of life—"rugged individualism".

Mr. Drew and Gold Coins

(SATURDAY NIGHT)

WE DOUBT whether Mr. Drew has adequately considered all the consequences which would flow from the policy which he advocates, of allowing Canadians to possess gold coins. There are two forms in which that policy might be adopted, and he has not explained which of them he advocates, though in their ultimate consequences they are very different.

Canada might permit the free movement of gold coins within Canadian territory while continuing to prohibit individuals from exporting them out of that territory. This would lead to an enormous accumulation of gold in private hands as a hedge against further depreciation of the currency—for the prospect of a given weight of gold diminishing in value seems vastly less remote than the prospect of the Canadian dollar doing so. Since all the gold in Canada is now in the possession of the government except what is needed for the dental and jewellery industries, this would lead to a heavy drain on the country's gold reserves. Admittedly they are now so high that they could lose a good deal without serious consequences; but the drain might very well become enormous, and at the expense of bank deposits and government bonds, the forms on which Canadians chiefly rely for keeping their funds liquid.

Or Canada might go further and permit the export of this gold. This would withdraw it, not only from circulation, but also from Canada, and would put Canada in the position of maintaining the gold convertibility of its currency in a world in which no other important country is doing anything of the kind. It is highly questionable whether Canada could possibly maintain this free convertibility for any length of time, and a policy of that kind which was not permanent could have only disastrous effects.

The prohibition of private holdings of currency gold is the only means by which a nation can retain the power of revaluing its unit of currency at a lower value. The value of gold is fixed by the world market, and if Canada is full of privately held five-dollar gold pieces, nothing can prevent the dollar remaining at whatever value the world market assigns to one-fifth of the amount of gold in that gold piece. That was an admirable system in 1914, when everybody was practising it; it would be an impossible system for Canada alone in 1952, when nobody else is practising it.

Stevenson Quotes From The Great Books

(NEW YORK TIMES BOOK REVIEW)

ONE THING that's as plain as a pikestaff is that Adlai Stevenson is out to get the literary vote.

As sturdily as he has resisted the temptation to give in to other pressure groups, the Governor, we feel, has capitulated 100 per cent. to the men and women in this country who read and write books. His speeches are studded with literary allusions; he has surrounded himself with a "murderer's row" of writers.

A good example of this new technique in politics is the Governor's talk in Richmond, Va. Did he open his remarks with the customary eulogistic nod to Robert E. Lee? He did not. He praised "Gone With the Wind," Ellen Glasgow, William Faulkner and the Southern literary renaissance. ("So many of your housewives had novels simmering with the soup . . . that many husbands had to wait for supper.") In Los Angeles, for no good reason we can think of, he opened up with a quotation from Disraeli who, you will recall, was a novelist as well as Prime Minister; followed with a reference to Plato, and clinched things by reading a paragraph from the London Times Literary Supplement.

On to Kasson, Minn., and the National Plowing Contest where Adlai buttressed his argument for a sound agricultural policy with a line from Walt Whitman ("Our farms . . . . must grow what Walt Whitman described as the best bar against tyranny—'a large resolute breed of men' "). In Seattle, Wash., fittingly enough, the Governor cued in with a plug for Paul Bunyan and, in Louisville, Ky., he signed off with a quotation from William James.

Shakespeare has been called on at least twice ('Julius Caesar' and 'Henry IV'). But in at least one instance Stevenson blundered: he went around attributing a remark to the late Justice Holmes which actually was made by the justice's father in "The Autocrat of the Breakfast Table". We put this on a par, politically, with forgetting the name of the mayor on a whistle stop.

We don't know where all this will get him, but if he is elected, he can expect this pressure group of readers and bibliophiles to insist on their share of the spoils. Anyway you look at it, the candidate has incurred a political debt, one which he seems to have anticipated in a speech he made at Denver: "Man does not live by words alone, despite the fact that sometimes he has to eat them".

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Enter ye in at the strait gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat: because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it. . .

Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. (Matt. 7:13, 14, 21.)

✧ ✧ ✧

And I say unto you, That many shall come from the east and west, and shall sit down with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, in the kingdom of heaven. But the children of the kingdom shall be cast out into outer darkness: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth. (Matt. 8:11, 12.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Then said one unto him, Lord, are there few that be saved? And he said unto them, Strive to enter in at the strait gate: for many, I say unto you, will seek to enter in, and shall not be able. . . . And, behold, there are last which shall be first, and there are first which shall be last. (Luke 13:23, 24, 30.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Wherefore, my beloved, as ye have always obeyed, not as in my presence only, but how much more in my absence, work out your own salvation with fear and trembling.

For it is God which worketh in you both to will and to do of his good pleasure. (Phil. 2:12, 13.)

Unconsidered Trifles

The slightly inebriated young man entered a ten-storey building. He walked into a lift crowded with five other passengers. The attendant closed the door. "Floors, please," he asked.

"Three, please," said one passenger politely.

"Nine," said another.

"Six," said a third.

"Four," came a request.

"Ten," said another.

The attendant turned to the reveller. "What floor do you want, sir?"

The inebriated one shrugged his shoulders. "That all depends," he murmured. "What have you got left?"

✧ ✧ ✧

The secretary of a big store, obviously upset, dashed into the manager's office. "Good gracious, man," snapped the latter, "whatever's happened?"

The secretary calmed down somewhat. "It's Robinson, our traveller," he explained. "Used more insulting language. Told me to fry my face, and said that you could go and chase yourself."

"He did, did he?" snapped the manager. "We'll fire him without ceremony. Let's see, he's been with us five months. What business has he done?"

"A $100 the first month," said the secretary, reading from a book, "$500 the next month, $3,000 the next, and $9,000 the next."

"H'm," murmured the manager. "I think I ought to take a little more exercise, and I daresay the caretaker will lend you a frying-pan."

"Let's hope you don't win one, sir—we look on your old kind of junk as our bread and butter."

Biblical Epic Being Planned By Demille

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Cecil B. Demille, still leading a vigorous pace at 71, is planning his next biblical epic to hit the screens in 1955. His next project will be "The 10 Commandments."

"About this time next year, I expect to have a crew shooting backgrounds in Egypt," he said. "We plan to shoot at Mount Sinai and other real locations, and I may go along. The following spring, 1954, I will start the filming of the story here in Hollywood. That will take about six months, and the cutting and scoring takes about a year. That will bring us into late 1955.

"The actual shooting is the easiest part of making a picture. It is here in the production office that the picture is really created. A good story is everything. If you have that, the director and the stars do not make much difference. They can help the picture a little or hurt it a little. But they can't make a good script into a bad picture or a bad script into a good picture."

DIFFICULT PROJECT

Demille's research into biblical history is thorough. He said his new project is difficult because of the obscurity of the Moses legend.

"There is a lapse of 26 years between two verses of the Bible," he remarked. "One verse tells of Moses being found among the bulrushes, or papyrus, by the Pharaoh's daughter and in the next verse he is grown and has killed a man.

"We have to find out what happened to him between those two events. There is some data in such books as the Koran, Josephus and the rabbinical writings. We learn that he was a great general, having conquered Ethiopia. Much of the rest has to be surmised.

"And what did the people wear and eat in those times. Did they eat roast beef or lamb chops or what? It would be as bad to show them eating the wrong things as it would to show them dressed in tails and top hat."

LOADED WITH SPECTACLES

The producer said his new film will be loaded with spectacles, but the most notable will doubtless be the parting of the Red Sea. He has done it before, in his original "10 Commandments," filmed in 1922. He explained that the old version was a modern story with a flashback to the days of Moses, whereas the new film will deal strictly with the biblical era.

"I don't know how we will part the sea yet," he commented, "but we are already working on methods."

HUNDREDS OF MAU MAU TERRORIST suspects were rounded up in Kenya and taken away in a police "cage" for questioning as authorities continue their "get tough" policy in an effort to stamp out [illegible] revolution. The Mau Mau is a secret society whose members are sworn to drive the white man out of Kenya. Some 45 persons have been murdered in the spreading violence and Britain has proclaimed a state of emergency in the colony.

Nature's Caprices Influences Canadian Agriculture In 1952

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian agriculture has rarely been more influenced by "the caprice of nature" than in 1952, the Bank of Montreal finds.

In its latest business review, the bank's analysis describes the February outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease, since eradicated, and the present big wheat harvest as "dramatic and contrasting" events, each without precedent.

In pointing up the effect of these circumstances, the Review says 56 per cent of all Canadian farmers' cash income in 1951 was derived from the sale of cattle, hogs and wheat. To this must be added the "incalculable indirect consequences for food processors, distributors, exporters and consumers."

ADEQUATE OUTPUT

In general, output of agricultural products "has been more than adequate to meet demand, and a broad decline of farm prices during the year has underlined the role of agricultural price supports."

The Review says that even before the outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease, exports of cattle and beef to the United States had declined drastically, due to the narrowing differential between Canadian and American beef prices.

Exports of pork products, mainly to the United Kingdom, also dwindled rapidly, with prices declining since mid-1951, though rising domestic consumption was enough to maintain hog marketings. But hogs like cattle, continued to increase in numbers.

Partial solutions to the surplus resulting from the U.S. "foot-and-mouth embargo" were found in governmental price supports and in Canada's supplying of meat to the United Kingdom in a three-way arrangement with the U.S. and New Zealand.

The 1952 wheat crop is of high grade and "the largest ever harvested in this country's history," posing problems of storage and distribution. The carry-over into the current crop year was 213,000,000 bushels, largest since 1945.

HEAVY 1953 CARRY-OVER

The Review says that even if exports again reach last year's level, with domestic consumption continuing steadily, the carry-over at the end of next July would be about 350,000 bushels.

The farmer's cash income during the first half of 1952 was only slightly less than that received in the corresponding period of last year, the Review says. But better grades and the current record bushelage, plus final participation payments for the 1951-52 crops, should bring enlarged receipts. On the other hand, returns from livestock sales "are likely to continue below a year ago."

Army Sergeant On Trial For Treason

NEW YORK (AP)—In one of the country's weirdest court cases, a former U.S. Army sergeant went on trial yesterday for treason as a convert to an ancient, stoic Oriental religion.

The defendant, John David Provoo, 36, faces the possibility of the death penalty if convicted as a renegate to the Japanese in the Second World War.

Captured in the fall of Corregidor 10 years ago, Provoo allegedly shaved his head, donned the robes of the Buddhist priesthood and turned on fellow American captives to single them out for Japanese brutality. One he is said to have named was beaten to death.

TEACHES SUFFERING

Buddhism, a venerable religion of the east, teaches that all life is subject to suffering. It holds forth as its Nirvana—or Heaven—the release from suffering.

Witnesses from Japan, Australia, Korea, Britain and Italy are on call for the strange trial.

Federal Judge Gregory F. Boonan ordered the process of picking a jury to proceed after refusing defence requests to dismiss the charges.

The 12 charges of treason also cite Provoo for allegedly informing on American prisoners as "anti-Japanese and un-co-operative." Provoo ended the war in a prisoner-of-war camp in Japan.

40 Dignitaries Tossed As Platform Falls

NEW LONDON, Conn. (AP)—Seconds before Adlai Stevenson platform in front of the railroad platform in fromt of the railroad station here late yesterday, the structure collapsed, carrying with it about 40 Democratic dignitaries.

Stevenson himself was uninjured and apparently no one else was. Among those carried to the pavement, but seemingly unhurt, were film actors Lauren Bacall and Robert Ryan.

Stevenson, unperturbed, delivered his talk.

Show Missionary Film To Springville Band

SPRINGVILLE (ENS).—Springville Mission Band's October meeting was held in the basement of the church on Saturday afternoon with 11 members and five guests present. The worship theme was suggested by the beauty of the world in the month of October. Mrs. Clifford Johnston, leader, read a poem on October. Scripture readings were given by Freddie Flokstra, Keith Johnston, Lynda Northey and Nelson Edgerton. The temperance report was given by Lynda Northey and the peace report by Nancy Johnston. Joy Seymour read a missionary poem, Keith Johnston received the offering and Donna Northey led in the prayer of dedication. Joy Seymour pronounced the benediction.

The social part of the meeting included a missionary film "Butch Finds a New Home," with Mrs. Clifford Johnston in charge of the projector and Mrs. Manson Cathcart as narrator. Donald Dunford played a guitar solo.

CommonwealthParley Very Important–Drew

DAUPHIN, Man. (CP)—The Commonwealth conference to be held next month at London may be the most important of its kind ever convened, George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said yesterday.

Mr. Drew, on a tour of Manitoba, spoke at a public luncheon in the town hall. In a plea for re-establishment of "normal trade relations," he said the major concern of the conference will be to remove dollar-pound roadblocks in international trade.

Oliver Says Frost Forgets Municipalities

TORONTO (CP) — Farquhar Oliver, Liberal house leader in the Ontario legislature, said last night that Premier Frost's government has turned its back on the need for redress on the part of municipalities in their hour of greatest need.

In a radio address, Mr. Oliver said public opinion will be molded which will bring the government to a realization of its responsibility to the municipal taxpayers

He said it was a reasonable hope of the municipalities that they would benefit from the extra $25,000,000 which the province will receive from the tax rental agreement with Ottawa.

NO MORE PASSES?—Joe (King) Krol, 33, a deadly passer in his prime with Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four Football Union, doesn't get a chance to throw the ball these days as he nears the end of his career in senior competition. The Hamilton-born athlete, chosen Canada's outstanding sports competitor in 1946, now specializes in booting kick-offs and third-down punts. He still figures he could be a big help in other departments if given the chance by Coach Frank Clair.

Joe Krol's Kicking Remains Highlight Of Great Career

By WILF GRUSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Joe Krol, Toronto Argonaut dashing triple-threat star of a few years ago, admits he hasn't his old zip, but he won't concede yet that his football gear should be packed up for good after this season.

The 33-year-old veteran, "King Krol" to thousands of fans when he was helping Argonauts to three successive Grey Cup titles in 1945-46-47, still is in the line-up every week. But what he would like to do and what coach Frank Clair has him doing is something on which the two don't entirely agree.

Clair, who came to the Toronto club after Krol's most successful years, has him doing little else but kicking—a job he does almost as well as when he was in his prime after breaking into senior football with the University of Western Ontario Mustangs in 1939

COOL COMPETITOR

But Joe, a cool, relaxed competitor who got Argonauts out of many a tight spot in the past, believes he still can help them for a few years with his passing and running.

The five-foot-nine, 207-pound halfback admitted in an interview that naturally after 13 years in senior competition he has slowed a bit. But while most players at his age are washed up, he wasn't among them yet.

"I've felt better the last couple of years than at any time since the 1946 season," he said. "I still can run and pass and there's always the threat of a quick kick if I'm in the backfield. It's up to Clair though and I'll go on doing what he wants."

Although Joe warms the bench when he is not trotting on the field for kick-offs and third-down punts, he is well paid for it. He received $500 when he first came to Argos in 1945 after three seasons with Hamilton Wildcats of the Ontario Rugby Football Union, but in the last few years he has been one of Argonauts' highest-paid players. This season he is reported to be receiving a minimum of $4,000.

DAYS ARE NUMBERED

His football pay may be finished after this season as Clair likely will look around for an import who can kick and be used either as an offensive or defensive player as well. There was some doubt that Joe would even make the team this season, but Clair lacked a kicker as dependable as Joe.

He's still booming punts 50 to 65 yards and his ability to get them away while rushed amazes the fans. He has kicked five singles and eight converts but no longer holds down the convert-kicking job. He took over after import Bob Heck was released but when he missed a couple in a vital game Clair left him on the bench and called in snap Red Ettinger to do the job.

Joe's scoring points this season include a touchdown, his first in two years. It came when Argos trounced Montreal Alouettes 43-0, the big lead they piled up early giving him the chance to carry the ball once again. Quarter Nobby Wirkowski kept feeding him the ball, much to the delight of the crowd who still remember when Krol and Royal Copeland were the mainstays of the team with their famous Krol-to-Copeland pass play.

Zatopek Holds Seven World Marks

LONDON (AP)—Emil Zatopek, the incredible Czech runner, has rewritten the world record book for long distance races.

The holder of three Olympic records, all set in Helsinki this summer, now holds seven world marks—every recognized distance event in the books from 10,000 metres onwards.

Here are his seven world marks—set at different periods since 1950 (the 25,000, 30,000 metres and 15 miles Sunday):

10,000 metres: 29 minutes, 02.6 seconds.

20,000 metres: 59 minutes, 51.8 seconds.

25,000 metres: 1 hour, 19 minutes, 21.8 seconds.

30,000 metres: 1 hour, 35 minutes, 23.8 seconds.

10-mile run: 48 minutes, 12 seconds.

One-hour run: 12 miles, 810 yards.

Unofficially, Zatopek also has annihilated the six-mile world record of 28:30.8, set in 1949 by Viljo Heino of Finland.

The Czech army major's clocking of 29.02.6 for the 10,000 metres (six miles, 376 yards) in 1950 meant that he sped the six-mile mark some 25 seconds or so faster than Heino's world record. But on that day in Turku, Finland, the officials had failed to put watches on him at the six-mile distance.

The schedule for the week of November 3: Legion 12, v. Glens 1, Orphans 2 v. Red Patch 11, L.O.L. 6 v. Fire Hall 4, S.O.E. 8 v. Legion 5, Fire Hall 9 v. Legion 7, Legion 3 v. Legion 10.

Results of last week's play:

Legion 12 was at home against Legion 5. The first game was 12 all the way after the first end, and they won it going away by a score of 17-3. The second was much closer; 12 was leading, then 5 made 10-all in the tenth frame and again scored one in the next end, but 12 scored a two and won 12-11. At the Legion Hall the Orphans were the hosts to Fire Hall 4 and the Smokeaters scored a seven in the first frame, and that was the difference in that game as the Fire Hall won 16-7. The Orphans scored in eight frames in the second game to take it 16-9. L.O.L. 6 visited the Legion Hall and won both games from Legion 7 by scores of 11-6 and 13-4. The second game was tied twice before L.O.L. 6 forged ahead. S.O.E. 8 also captured both games at the Legion against Legion 10 by scores of 10-8 and 26-8.

Fire Hall 9 were at home against the Glens and Glens won the first game by scoring seven in the last two ends, taking it 13-10. The second was closely fought also, being deadlocked several times until the last frame, and it finished 12-all.

No report has been received from Legion 3 v. Legion 11; also the games from the previous week Legion 5 v. L.O.L. 6, and Legion 11 v. Legion 12. Will the skip of Legion 10 turn in the scores of the 10 v. 9 game of the week of October 13?

Once again you are reminded that the entry fees are now due. Skips are asked to submit the names of their team's roster at once. The league standing will be submitted next week, so get those back games played.

ZULUETA WINS

BROOKLYN (AP)—Orlando Zulueta of Cuba outboxed a ring-rusty Paddy Demarco last night to gain a 10-round split decision verdict over the Brooklyn lightweight contender at Eastern Parkway Arena. Zulueta weighed 133 to Demarco's 136.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

Lakefield, Havelock, Hastings and Norwood are set to start next week in a pre-season puck series. It's a T.V.L. setup but being run early and independently of the rest of that large circuit, with twin bills each Wednesday night at Civic Arena. Sheeny Stevenson of Hastings is president, Cam Wasson of Lakefield secretary, Dave Hall of Norwood treasurer, and Ace Reid of Havelock an executive member. Schedule to be drawn up shortly opens Nov. 5, a week from tomorrow, with Lakefield vs. Norwood at 7:30 and Hastings vs. Havelock at nine. Bob Scriver is in charge of refs, with George Chappell, Joe Blewett and Charles Puffer other arbiters.

* * * * * *

Each team must present a list of players to the secretary by opening night, and the senior players from Peterborough will be spread around in the four lineups to make for a better-balanced loop in this pre-season setup. D. A. McGillis, sponsor of the Norwood club, is putting up a trophy for competition. Jack Jopling is coaching Lakefield and he expects a strong squad. Havelock plans to ice pretty much the same crew as last winter, but Hastings has been rebuilding and might prove the dark horse. T.V.L. tilts always provide a lot of interest for the village fans, and this early competition should also interest folks here as so many Peterborough puckists will appear in lineups.

Glens Get Set For Petes

A couple of chaps from up this way have been trying out with Belleville Glens. We note the names of Jack Richlark and Red Wasson among Quinte prospects as Coach Alfie Moore puts 'em through stiff drills. Their season opens this Friday night here against the Petes, so both teams are hustling to be in shape for it. Other names listed in trials down that way are: Goyer, MacDonald, Mulvihill, Desjardins, DeGray, Strahan, Doran, Bastedo, Reeves, Hurst, McRae, Plumley, Jones, Wardhaugh, Day and a few more. We imagine the Glens will come up with a pretty fair club of puck-chasers this winter.

Barring a bad letdown against Oshawa Red Raiders here on the morrow, our grid Orfuns are "in". Meaning, they should take this final schedule game Wednesday—having three wins in as many starts o'er the Raiders this autumn—and capture their O.R.F.U. intermediate group honors. This will permit them to go into provincial "A" playdowns, and would put the runners-up, Cobourg Ghosts, in "B" playdowns. However, if Orfuns were upset by Oshawa, then Ghosts and Orfuns would be tied at schedule's end, forcing a playoff for that coveted "A" crown. The eastern winner in intermediate "A" this year goes to Winnipeg in quest of the Canadian championship. Tony Kotowski's scrappy crew, aided by Orillia talent, deserve much credit and fan support for their showing this season, especially against the gallant Ghosts. We haven't beaten them out for group honors since before the Second World War. But it looks like we will this year.

Says Better Club Won

Cobourg columnist remarks of the Saturday scrap: "Don Hatt's passes were tinged with desperation. The Petes had the brilliant Jim Milligan heaving nicely most of the game. The Milligan-to-Naismith plays were clicking and that was the difference between the teams. That and the lack of a good long-distance kicker on the Ghosts gave the Petes the edge. They tried hard but didn't have it in the end, and the final summing up of the game might be—Peterborough the better team by a shade." At this time it appears as though Cobourg will be meeting the Kitchener-Waterloo "B" club in playdowns this weekend, winner of the series (if it is a two-game set) to play off with Sudbury for the all-Ontario "B" title. Also, it looks as if Orfuns (always provided they beat Oshawa here Wednesday) may be meeting the potent Hamilton Panthers in "A" playoffs this weekend. More again as we get it.

* * * * * *

A good turnout at the Petes' puck drill last p.m., including three chaps from Midland, Connie Adams, Young Henderson and Morley Spiker; also another forward from Markham. Jim Ellis has been on the prowl but could still use a defenceman or two. Others on deck were: Harding, Byers, Collins, West, Floyd, Gus Leonard, Fryia, Mason, Garvey, Fennell, Greenlaw, Lough, Wasson, Jack Mortimer and Landry. Some of the officials feel that a few of the better Eagles may be available shortly for the Petes' lineup, as well. Brantford purchased the releases the other day of Jake Wade and Arn Dugan, though both Owen Sound and Sudbury offered the Peterborough club considerably more money for these releases. However, the players in question preferred the Brantford setup. George Steele is at Clinton, N. Y.

Early Wynn Tops Moundsmen In Night-Game Performance

NEW YORK (AP)—Pitchers are supposed to fare better in night games. But Cleveland's Early Wynn, who depends mainly on slow stuff, did right well for himself under the lights during the 1952 major league baseball season.

Wynn, whose repertoire features knucklers, sliders and changes of pace, picked up 13 of his 23 victories in arc-light play. His .867 percentage (13-2) topped all American League moundsmen in night-game competition, Associated Press figures revealed today.

In the National league, big winner Robin Roberts of Philadelphia Phillies racked up 15 triumphs against only three setbacks. In percentage, the husky Phillies' hurler was tied with New York's Hoyt Wilhelm and Preacher Roe of Brooklyn, each with .833. But the latter pair had only six night decisions.

SHANTZ WELL UP

Bobby Shantz, Philadelphia Athletics' lefty who won 24 and dropped only seven during the year, was runner-up to Wynn with a 10-3 record. New York's Allie Reynolds, with 7-3, was third.

Sal Maglie, New York, 8-3, Carl Erskine, Brooklyn, and Bob Rush, Chicago, 5-2 each and Ken Raffensberger, Cincinnati, 11-6, also posted impressive marks among the National League pitchers.

Dave Koslo, New York Giant southpaw, was the lone unbeaten hurler in the major league crop of "154 innings or more" pitchers. Koslo had a 3-0 slate.

School Teams Draw

Queen Alex and Grove battled to a 1-1 draw in senior school soccer Monday in Morrow Park. There was no score in the first half and Patterson put Grove one up in the second, but Johnston tied it shortly before the finish on a penalty kick. Merrett, Griffin and Keene turned in a fine fray for Grove, and Druce was outstanding for Queen Alex. The latter play King Edward at King Edward Park on Wednesday. Teams:

Grove: Davey, Keene, Griffin, Casey, Merrett, Wood, Simmons, Hargreaves, Patterson, Copping, Sherry, Heard, Wood, Duncan.

Q. A.: Macklin, Druce, Seifried, Sanderson, Stewart, Kilborn, Moore, Johnston, Hamilton, Lech, Madigan, Dovener, Dallin, Ingram.

Returns To England

NEW YORK (AP) — Willwyn—who did—is headed back to England. The English horse, winner of the $50,000 Laurel Handicap, was shipped via air last night. He was accompanied by owner Robert Boucher of England, trainer John Waugh and four grooms.

Galloping Ghosts Eye Playoffs With Sudbury

COBOURG—"Well, it looks like we'll go northwest with West in '52," declared Cobourg Galloping Ghost President Fred Dufton on Monday as he looked back at the Peterborough Orfun game here Saturday that settled the Ghost hopes for the "A" playoffs.

Dufton was referring to the fact that this year the Intermediate O.R.F.U. "B" winner will play Sudbury, something which has never happened before in football history. This will give the winner the all-Ontario "B" title. The Ghosts, howeevr, must get past Kitchener-Waterloo who came second to Hamilton Panthers in the Western Ontario loop.

The playoff with the K.-W. team will be a two-game series, points to count, it was disclosed. When it will start will be decided by the O.R.F.U. today, but it's probable the Ghosts will ask the first game be played here next Saturday at Kiwanis Park.

The Gallopers are still nursing their injured and would be disinclined to any mid-week game in order to rest some of the players who went through a gruelling struggle against the Peterborough Orfuns Saturday.

"Given a decent break in recoveries by the injured ones and we'll salvage the 'B' title anyway," declared a team official.

Plan Annual Meeting For Lakeshore League

COBOURG — The Lakeshore Baseball League will wind up the season's work in Port Hope on Thursday night President R. D. Dodge, Cobourg, announced here Monday.

The teams will elect the most valuable player of the year which carries with it a $25 cash award and a cup as well. This year the award lies between Maxie Yourth, playing manager of Bowmanville, pitcher-outfielder Gordon Neal of Whitby, first baseman John Bidgood, of the same team, pitcher Jerry Lawless, and catcher Chub McIvor of Cobourg, pitcher Bill Ball of Colborne and pitchers John Holman and Karl Lenahan of Port Hope.

The league will also decide on the spring meeting date and expects to hear an application from an Oshawa club for entry in 1953.

Cap Of Gold Holds Firm As 10-1 Favorite

LONDON (AP)—Cap of Gold held firm as the 10 to 1 favorite last night as two 100 to 1 shots—Kara Tepe and Nightman—were withdrawn from Wednesday's Cambridgeshire Stakes at Newmarket.

With the withdrawal of the two outsiders, 50 horses still were left in the field for the 1⅛-mile event.

Richer and Hilltop each were quoted at 100 to 9 odds, second choice to Cap of Gold, in the bookmakers' call-over at the Victoria Club. A final call-over at odds will be made at the club tonight.

Odds on other horses included Nicky Nook, 100 to 6; Valdesco, 20 to 1; Brunetto, 22 to 1; Stranger, 25 to 1; Antrycide and Longstone, 28 to 1; Fleeting Moment and High Principle, 33 to 1.

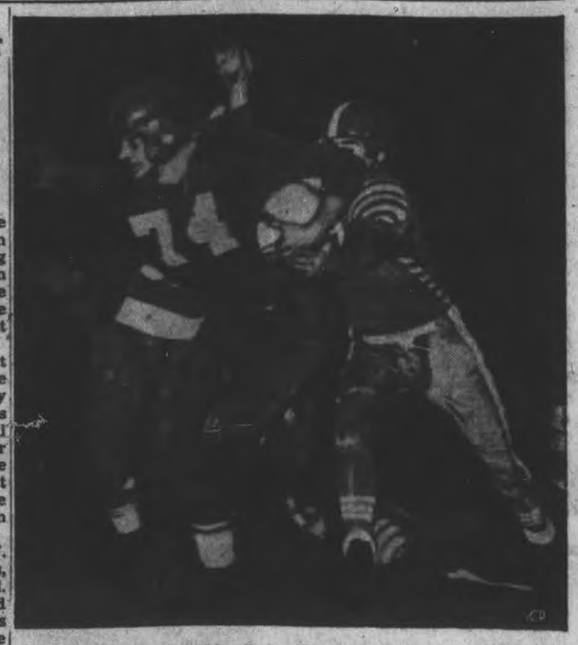
Given Good News Reise Returning Soon

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Rangers, last in the National Hockey League, received good news today when their ailing defenceman, Leo Reise, said he'll be rejoining the team sooner than expected.

The hard-hitting backliner, sidelined with a shoulder injury since Oct. 16, said he'll rejoin the team next Monday. Originally, he was to have been out of action at least two more weeks.

M. Selkirk Leads

Marg Selkirk rolled high this week in the Girls' City Bowling League with a single of 299, which along with 298 and 265 tries, gave her top triple of 862. Black's led teams with 3403 and a single of 1161. Blind score of 651 went to J. Moore with that total. Black's Sevenaires, and Cardinals had 3-0 2-1 victories from Bassel's and Curtin's.



Good singles included: B. Morrow 734, P. Richardson 692, J. Snape 684, L. Vincent 672, B. Castle 656, M. Timm 656, and J. Moore 651; neat singles were: M. Batley 293, B. Morrow 291 and 265, J. Moore 279, E. Flint 272, M. Morton 270, P. Richardson 266, B. Castle 261, J. Castle 254, and L. Vincent 253.

Cleveland Indians of the American Baseball League closed one of the most bizarre chapters in baseball history 12 years ago today by dismissing the team's manager, Oscar Vitt. His ouster had been demanded by 12 of the players in an unprecedented "rebellion" some months earlier.

UPSET VICTORY—Rolin Prather, Edmonton Eskimos end, heads for the Calgary Stampeders' goal line after catching a pass from quarterback Claude Arnold. Edmonton, on home grounds, roared back from a 19-point deficit after the first game in the Western Interprovincial Football Conference to defeat Calgary 42-38 in the two-game, total-point playoff series. Prather, Kansas import and Conference all-star, scored one touchdown and caught many ground-gaining passes in the second game. Edmonton now meets Winnipeg for the western title.

Oshawa and S.P.S. In Tie For First Place In Group

St. Peter's High junior Saints received a break Saturday in their drive for the lakeshore district title and the right to enter the C.O.S.S.A. "A" playdowns. Undefeated Oshawa Central was thumped 16-11 by Lindsay Collegiate.

That Oshawa defeat ties the Saints and Central for the league's first place. The Saints to win must defeat P.C.V.S.' Garnet and Grey Wednesday at four p.m. at Riverside Park and then also defeat Central Saturday in Oshawa.

AT FULL STRENGTH

For both these deciding games the Saints, one of the school's best junior teams since football returned there after war years, will be at full strength. If they receive game breaks, the Saints should win group honors.

The Saints or Central, whichever wins the league, will enter C.O.S.S.A. semi-finals against Belleville Collegiate's junior team. So far this year the Bay of Quinte boys have shown ability but have lacked the zip and fire to produce results.

Meanwhile on the senior football scene for this week the St. Peter's senior Saints have also an important encounter. They will match up with St. Michael's College of Toronto Friday in the deciding game for the Ontario Catholic Conference senior "B" championship. Both teams have won one in the best of three series.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

The teams battling in Canada's two great football conferences, the Interprovincial in the east, the Western Interprovincial on the prairies, are nearing the end of the long, hard trail, and the Grey Cup classic played annually in Toronto is almost in sight.

This is Canada's biggest, most spectacular, one-day sports spree, where amid a riot of color and white 10-gallon hats, east meets west, perhaps in snow, perhaps in mud, perhaps on a clear, fast greenish field. It is our greatest sports spectacle, it is also the meeting of two contrasting type of folks, the jovial, friendly, breezy westerners, the more conservative easterners.

All this we admit, the glory and the color of it all. But you'll pardon us if we again go on record as stating that we don't be[illegible] ostracized from better social circles in fair Toronto, a city in which we have, hitherto, been received with warmth and hospitality. But even at the risk of suffering the cold shoulders and icy disdain of Bay, Bloor, College and other centres, we still insist that the football customers, the humble gents who make the whole thing possible, aren't getting a fair break.

We're thinking of the good sports folk of Regina, Calgary, Edmonton and Winnipeg, who have dug generously and deeply into their jeans when deficits faced their beloved clubs, fans who paid their way in to every game, fans without whose support none of the teams could exist. And the same applies to Ottawa, Montreal and Hamilton, though in lesser degree, because these cities are within easy reach of Toronto, for those who have plane, bus or train fare, and can get a ticket.

We think this series should be home-and-home games, at least, in the cities of the two champion teams. Perhaps this wouldn't draw so much money as the one-day show in Toronto, because none of the other cities have anything approaching the capacity of the huge Toronto Varsity stadium, excepting possibly Montreal, where the games are played in the baseball park, on a bob-tailed field.

But, of course, if money is the fundamental consideration, our argument is all wrong. We were figuring, merely from the sporting angle for a sort of grand finale in which the customer, instead of being deprived of the finale of the big drama, would get a chance to see the thing he had helped create, like the Stanley Cup, or world's baseball series. These do pretty well financially, at that.

Your comments and suggestions for this column will be welcomed by Elmer Ferguson, c/o Calvert House, 431 Yonge St., Toronto.

Disaster Moves In On Wings Along All NHL Fronts

MONTREAL (CP)—Whole gobs of disaster and only a little good fortune moved in on Detroit Red Wings in last week's National Hockey League scramble. A three-game reverse dropped the 1951-52 champions from the leadership into a tie for third place. Montreal Canadiens took over top spot. Goalie Terry Sawchuk of the Red Wings, winner of the Vezina Trophy last season as low-average net-minder, watched 17 pucks whiz past him and his shining 1.86 average turned to a rusty 3.11.

There was this solace for the Wings: Gordie Howe and Ted Lindsay closed in on Toronto Leafs' Ted Kennedy to share the point-scoring leadership.

EACH HAVE 10 POINTS

The N.H.L.'s weekly statistics, released today, show each of the three leaders with 10 points. Peculiarly, none of the three picked up an assist in last week's games. Howe added two goals and now is tied with Kennedy for goal-scoring honors. Each has six goals and four assists.

Chasing the leaders is the Red Wings' Metro Prystai with nine points.

And look who's right behind with eight points—Maurice Richard of Canadiens, tied with Paul Ronty of New York Rangers. From far down in the list with no goals and three assists, Richard went rocketing toward the top with three goals and two more assists. Ronty, in the first 10 top men a week ago, lifted his total with one goal and one assist.

In addition to Richard, two other newcomers crowded into the first 10—Wally Hergersheimer and Herb Dickenson of the last place, but suddenly stirring Rangers. Each has seven points, tied with Alex Delvecchio and Marcel Pronovost of the Red Wings, who dropped a notch.

GOAL AVERAGE HIGH

Maybe some of the goalies don't know it or fret over it, but the goal scoring has been higher so far this year than last. In 23 games to date the average a game is 5.1 goals. For the first 23 games last year the average was only 4.0. The average for the whole 1951-52 season was 5.0.

Jim Henry of the Boston Bruins is still top goalie. He trimmed his average of 1.50 a week ago to 1.43. Gerry McNeil of Canadiens follows with 1.87, compared with his 2.17 a week ago. Lorne Worsley of Rangers and Al Rollins of the second place Chicago Black Hawks also whittled their averages to 2.25 and 3.00, respectively.

Only Sawchuk and Harry Lumley of the fifth-place Toronto Leafs saw their averages worsen. Lumley, in sixth place for the third consecutive week since the season opened, had a 3.57 average compared with 3.40 a week ago.

The doubtful distinction of most penalized player and most penalized team belongs to the Red Wings. Ted Lindsay has spent 30 minutes in the cooler and his team has amassed 138 minutes in penalties. The runner-up place belongs to Toronto Leafs, also on both counts. Tod Sloan has served 27 minutes and the Leaf team 126 minutes.

Curtis Holds 15-Point Scoring Lead

TORONTO (CP)—Ulysses (Crazy Legs) Curtis, the Florida A and M flash who is playing his third season with Toronto Argonauts, holds a 15-point lead at the top of the Big Four Football Union scoring race.

The Negro half crossed over for two touchdowns in Argonauts' 20-14 victory over Ottawa Rough Riders Saturday to bring his point-total to 65 on 13 touchdowns. Hal Waggoner of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, former Tulane University half, picked up one touchdown Sunday to bring his total to 50, on 10 majors.

Statistics compiled by The Canadian Press show Tip Logan, native of Fort Erie, Ont., and convert kicker with the league-leading Tiger-Cats, the only Canadian in the first 10. He hold third spot with 44 points, four ahead of Argonauts' Al Bruno in the fourth slot.

DUCHENE TOPS O.R.F.UN

Corky Duchene of Sarnia Imperials went over for one touchdown as the Imps clinched their second straight Ontario Rugby Football Union championship and the five points gave him a total of 70—highest in senior football in eastern Canada. Johnny Pont, released from Green Bay Packers a few weeks ago and who caught on with Toronto Balmy Beach, holds the runner-up spot with 65.

In the intercollegiate race, Bill Bewley of Varsity Blues held his one-point advantage over Ray Truant of University of Western Ontario Mustangs. Bewley scored all points as the Blues defeated Queen's Golden Gaels 9-1 at Kingston Saturday and Truant kicked three placements as Mustangs hurdled McGill Redmen 16-0 at London.

Pogue Leading AHL Scorers

NEW YORK (CP)—Eric Pogue, St. Louis Flyers rightwinger, picked up six points during the last week to take over the American Hockey League scoring leadership with five goals and three assists in five games. Pogue was tied in goal scoring with Vern Kaiser of Buffalo Bisons.

Arnie Kullman of Hershey Bears was second in points with three goals and four assists for seven points. Tied for third place with six points were six players—Kaiser, Lorne Davis of Buffalo, Eddie Olson of Cleveland, Sam Bettio of Hershey, Guyle Fielder of St. Louis and Kenny Hayden of Syracuse.

Harvey Bennett, Providence goalie, had a record of permitting only seven goals in five games for a league-leading average of 1.40 a game. He and Phil McAtee of Buffalo were the only netminders to have registered a shutout.

Gault Takes Title

QUEBEC (CP)—Pappy Gault of Spartanburg, S.C., last night won the North American bantamweight boxing championship with a 12-round unanimous decision over Fernando Gagnon of Quebec.

Choose 2 Sites For Ontario Ski Championships

LONDON (CP) — Temiskaming and Orangeville were chosen as sites for men's and women's Ontario ski championships this winter, at a meeting of the southern Ontario ski zone held here this weekend.

Senior men's competitions—downhill, slalom, cross-country and jumping—will be held Feb. 14 and 15 at Temiskaming ski club, about 40 miles from North Bay.

Top women skiers of the province will clash Feb. 15 at the Orangeville property of Cedar Springs ski club.

SET CONTEST DATES

Dates and locations for other major meets were set at the fall zone meeting, attended by club representatives from as far north as Huntsville. London ski club was host to the delegates.

Following competitions were arranged:

Jan. 11—Men's invitation meet downhill and salom, by Cedar Springs ski club at its Orangeville property.

Jan. 17-18—Men's invitation meet, four-way, at Huntsville ski club.

Jan. 31—Feb 1—Southern Ontario senior men's and juniors' jumping and cross-country championship at Chicopee ski club.

Feb. 17-18—Southern Ontario senior men's and juniors' downhill and slalom races at Osler Bluff ski club, Collingwood.

Feb. 21-22—Ontario junior championships, with downhill and slalom at Toronto ski club's Collingwood property, and cross-country and jumping at Midland ski club.

SENIOR MEN'S

Feb. 28-March 1—Senior men's three-way invitation meet at Oshawa ski club.

Plans are being made for a junior jumping school again this year, probably at Christmas, at Huntsville.

Huntsville also was chosen as the site for the spring meeting of the southern Ontario ski zone. March 28 and 29 were named tentative dates.

MEXICAN JUMPERS WIN

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—The hard-riding Mexican army team last night won its second straight international jumping event at the Pennsylvania National Horse Show beating out the United States' civilian team by 1 2-5 seconds. Mexico, the United States and Canada each finished the eight-obstacle course without a fault for their three entries. Time was the deciding factor.

Canada's third-place team consisted of James Elderon on Kokokobana; W. R. Ballard on Reject and Lt.-Col. Charles Baker on Starclift. All are from Toronto.

Milt Schmidt Can't Get Hockey Out Of His System

BOSTON (AP)—Big-time hockey has been Milt Schmidt's way of life with Boston Bruins for 15 years and he can't get it out of his system though it costs him money.

"Every spring I say I'm going to quit," says the National Hockey League's oldest player in point of service. "And then it comes fall and I get itchy-footed. It's in my blood. I love the game, I guess. I don't think any player could get very far if he didn't."

Schmidt, a native of Kitchener, at 34 is Boston's meal ticket. Coach Lynn Patrick calls him the greatest two-way player who ever lived—greater than Maurice Richard or Gordie Howe even today.

"He never plays a bad game," Lynn says. "And he never has a bad practice. Even in the work-outs, he hates to lose."

STRONG TEMPTATION

But the temptation to chuck it all must be strong for Schmidt, who has a profitable sales job out of Cambridge, Mass., in the off-season.

"I could probably do better selling," says Schmidt, who draws down around $15,000 plus bonuses out of hockey. "But hockey and the Bruins have been good to me and I can't let them down. In training last month my left knee swelled up. I thought I'd have to quit. But Art Ross just told me to lay off a few days. When I got back on skates again, I felt good. Next year, who can say?"

There have been reports that Ross, the Bruins' general manager, will step down after this season with Lynn Patrick moving into the front office and Schmidt taking over as coach. Milt would be happy to coach.

"If not the Bruins," he says, "then some kid team."

Hamilton Bows To Maroons 7-0

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hamilton Tigers took another beating last night.

The unfortunate Bengals, struggling to do an extensive rebuilding job in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series, are replacing their retiring veterans with young untried players. They lost 7-0 to Chatham St. Clair Maroons. Last Saturday the Tigers took a 13-2 licking from Owen Sound Mercurys.

The win vaults Chatham into first place with four points, two above the other five idle clubs and four above the young Tigers.

Hamilton's best line was Murray Dunnette, Gord Pebbles and Bill Hammond.

Charge U.S. Violating Geneva Tariff Agreement

By FORBES RHUDE

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Que. (CP)—The United States was charged yesterday by the Canadian Exporters Association with violating the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade signed in Geneva in 1947.

Also the manner of administration of U.S. customs regulations was tagged with creating a barrier to the sale in the U.S. of the goods of other countries.

The charge of violation of the General Agreement came in connection with existing American import quotas on Canadian dairy products "especially aimed at cheese."

CUSTOMS RULES HAMPER

In regard to customs regulations and their administration, the association said they had "reduced" if not nullified" the benefits of many international trade agreements concluded since the war, insofar as their effect on U.S. imports is concerned.

"These administrative obstacles," said the association, Affect Canada's export trade "not only directly but also indirectly by limiting the dollar-earning capacity of many other countries which would otherwise export more to the United States."

The Association recommended further representations by the Canadian government with a view to repeal of the "Andresen amendment" to the U.S. Defence Production Act, which established the dairy quotas; and with a view to passage by the next Congress of the U.S. Customs Simplification Act of 1950.

The amendment was named for August H. Andresen, Republican member of the House of Representatives from Minnesota. It restricts U.S. imports of some dairy products from Canada and other countries.

Says Hospitals Understaffed

TORONTO (CP)—Nearly every hospital in Ontario is understaffed, R. J. Weatherill, president of the Ontario Hospital Association, said yesterday.

He told the opening session of the association's three-day convention that new hospital wings are being built which cannot be used because of the lack of trained personnel. He said:

"These conditions are very unhealthy and if allowed to continue, may have a disastrous effect on the public's attitude toward hospitals. Positive action to provide for training hospital personnel is needed."

The shortage of nurses in Ontario is still serious, said Helen McArthur, president of the Canadian Nurses Association.

"We need a larger proportion of the young women graduating from our high schools entering nursing."

Robbed of Car

NORTH BAY (CP) — Oliver Schmidt, 23, of Waterloo, told police early Sunday he was beaten and robbed of his car by three men he met in a beverage room.

His car was found on highway 17 yesterday.

Unemployment Continues Drop

In its monthly survey, the department said there were 142,800 registered unemployed at Oct. 2 compared with 147,800 Sept. 4, and 134,800 Oct. 4, 1951.

Large-scale development projects in Labrador, Northern British Columbia and other undeveloped areas were creating many new jobs for the record working force of 5,400,000, said the department.

Established industries were expanding and increasing their staffs. Employment in aircraft and shipbuilding had increased by approximately 50 per cent over last year.

Number of registered unemployed at Oct. 2 for the Ontario region was 42,200 against 46,900 on Oct. 4, 1951.

Three Escape As Car Rolls Over In Ditch

Three members of an Apsley family escaped injury Sunday when the right wheels of their car struck the sandy shoulder of the East Coe Hill Road and the vehicle turned upside down in the ditch.

Leslie Lindsay, 44, his wife, and 11-year-old daughter, Mary, were able to crawl out of the car after getting only a shaking up. The 1938-model car received about $80 damage.

The accident occurred about 12 miles east of Apsley on the East Coe Hill Road. Lindsay was driving east along the road when he met a westbound car. He turned out to the right to give the other driver plenty of room and the right wheels of his car struck the soft sand on the shoulder.

His car went out of control and rolled over in the four-foot ditch, coming to rest on its roof.

Provincial Constable Wallace Mohns investigated.

Must Bear Big Burden To Secure Peace

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—The free world will have to bear heavy burdens if world peace is to be assured, John Marshall, associate editor of the Windsor Daily Star, said yesterday.

Mr. Marshall, who has been covering the United Nations Assembly in New York, told the Windsor Rotary Club he believes Communist Russia is unwilling to risk war and is attempting to split the free nations.

"We must be willing to bear heavy burdens perhaps for many years," he said.

Truck Cut In Two

MALTON (CP)—A train today sliced a truck in two at a level crossing in this village 10 miles northwest of Toronto, police said. The Canadian National Railways flyer travelling between Toronto and North Bay was almost derailed. The truck had stalled on the tracks and the impact tossed the cab to one side, the trailer to the other.

Elected President

MONTREAL (CP)—George H. Shink, comptroller of revenue for Quebec, Saturday was elected president of the Institute of Public Administration of Canada at the close of the annual general meeting of the institute. Philip T. Clark, comptroller of revenue for Ontario, was elected secretary-treasurer.

Restrict Expenditures To $1,500,000 Year

SARNIA (CP)—Restriction of capital expenditures to $1,500,000 a year was reaffirmed by City Council last night, on recommendation of City Manager E.R. Colter.

Mr. Colter said current capital commitments of the city totalled more than $4,646,000, which in view of the recommended restriction would have to be spread over a three-year period.

Queen Attends Command Film

LONDON (CP)—The Queen attended the first Royal Command movie of her reign last night when the American film, "Because You're Mine," starring Mario Lanza, was shown to a glamor-studded audience.

The Queen set a new evening fashion style by discarding the crinolines usually worn by royalty on such occasions in favor of a black and white satin gown with halter V-shaped neckline.

Princess Margaret wore a black tulle gown with ruched hem.

It was the first time a Hollywood musical has been chosen for this top event of Britain's movie year.

Lakefield Church Holds Anniversary Service

LAKEFIELD (ENS).—The Rev. John Kitchen of Orono was guest speaker at both services when Lakefield United Church commemorated its anniversary on Sunday.

"The Challenge of Life" was the topic of the morning address. Mr. Kitchen cited three things a man can do with life as being, he can run from life; he can run with life and he can take hold of life.

The text for the evening address was titled "Roads to a Vital Christian Faith."

"I would like you to think of life as four lanes on a great highway," said Mr. Kitchen. "They are the Damascus Road, which is the road of spiritual awakening; the Jericho Road, which is the road of service to man; the Jerusalem Road, the road of pain and sorrow and the Emmaus Road, the loveliest road of all, the road il[illegible] We travel the last one, only if we have travelled the other three."

"This is not a highway that leads nowhere, but one that leads to the inevitable Kingdom."

Special music by the choir, with Mrs. T. E. Rath at the organ included two anthems, solos by Miss Muereta Hull, a trio by Misses Bette Millage, Nancy Doubt and Betty Jane Rath and a duet by Harry Wannamaker and Elmer Trethewey.

Ask Further Inquiry Chief Insulted Woman

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—City Council last night urged the police commission further to investigate the case of a woman who claims she was insulted by Police Chief I.L. Robertson.

Mrs. Alice Giroux appeared before council to charge the police chief with questioning her honesty in connection with tickets she was selling on a car raffle to raise money for a church building fund. Chief Robertson denied the charge.

Mrs. Giroux appeared before the police commission earlier in the week but said it skirted the issue and all but ignored her complaint. Mayor Herb Smale, who also sits on the police commission, and the aldermen said they were in sympathy with Mrs. Giroux.

U.S. Buyers Take Holstein Cattle

TORONTO (CP) — Sixty-eight head of cattle sold at the all-Canadian Holstein sale yesterday. Nineteen went to American buyers in spite of the embargo imposed by the United States government following the outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in Saskatchewan earlier this year.

A spokesman for the Holstein-Friesian Association said this was almost as many as in normal times.

Total cash intake was $57,135 or an average of $840 a head. The average last year was $1,175.

Top price was for a bull—Romandale Rea-Echo Reflection—consigned by S. B. Roman of King and bought by Massey Harris farms at Milliken, for $5,100.

Elect John Ferrie Exporters' President

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Que. (CP)—John H. Ferrie of Montreal yesterday was elected president of the Canadian Exporters' Association, succeeding Alex Gray of Toronto.

Mr. Ferrie is vice-president of Canadian Bronze Powder Works Ltd.

Britain Continues To Approach Iran

LONDON (CP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said last night Britain will "go on trying to reach a sensible agreement" with Iran but will never "beg forgiveness."

Expressing regret that Iran had broken off diplomatic relations with Britain, Eden said: "It merely makes more difficult a return to friendly understanding with the Persian people."

In an address to the Royal Society of St. George, Eden said a settlement of the oil quarrel is much more important to Iran than to Britain.

Referring to Premier Mohammed Mossadegh's nationalist movement, Eden said: "It is our policy to encourage genuine national sentiment—but unreasoning nationalism is an obstacle to true democracy."

Refused Name, Fined $25

Joseph Watson's refusal to give his name and address at an accident early Thursday morning, cost him $25 and $2.50 costs or a month in jail, when he pleaded guilty to leaving the scene of an accident Monday.

Angered at being cut off by a car at Park Hill Rd. and George St., Beverly Johnston, 709 Aylmer St., told police he tried to stop the car but it drove east on Park Hill Rd.

CAUGHT UP

After following it east on Park Hill Rd., then south on Armour Rd., Johnston said he was pulling by the car on the left side when the driver swung into the right side of his car.

He stopped across the intersection of Armour Rd., and Hunter St., and went back to the car. The driver refused to give his name and address Johnston reported. He took the licence number and phoned the police, when the driver drove off.

Watson was picked up later at his home, 29 Aberdeen Ave., and taken to the police station. He admitted being the driver of the car involved and spent the night in jail.

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw gave a short summary of the incident when Watson pleaded guilty to leaving the scene of the accident.

Triggs is a millhand at the Quaker Oats Co. He is chairman of the political action and education committee.

Coroner Orders Inquest Into Nobes Death

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — An inquest will be held at 3 p.m. Wednesday in Havelock into the death of 36-year-old Raymond Nobes of Marmora, killed September 14 in a motor accident on Highway 7 just east of Havelock.

The car, driven by William Cain, 27, of Deloro, was travelling west when it went out of control, skidded 800 feet, hitting a telephone pole and throwing a 10-foot section of the pole 200 feet.

Nobes died of a fractured skull and internal chest injuries. Cain suffered scalp and face cuts and severe shock, but is now considered to be in sufficiently good condition to testify at the inquest.

Dr. Herbert N. Young, Peterborough coroner, ordered the inquest.

Flying Saucers In Formation

GAILLAC, France (Reuters)—This southern France village claimed something of a flying saucer record today.

More than 100 residents said they saw 16 saucers flying in formation around a larger "flying cigar" yesterday.

The saucers were "circular with a raised part in the centre, giving out a bluish glow from the edges as they revolved."

One report said the "glass wool" floated down on to treetops but disintegrated before it could be taken to a laboratory for analysis.

The reports said the saucers approached from the southeast, cruised over Gaillac, 30 miles northeast of Toulouse, for about 10 minutes and disappeared in single file towards the northwest.

Fire Chief Expected To Resign

Poor Health Of George Smith Reason For Move

The resignation of Fire Chief George Smith will probably be received by the council at its meeting next Monday night.

That was the intimation from Ald. A. B. Burrows, chairman of the fire, water and light committee, and Mayor Waddell at the meeting of the whole council in board of works last night. They reported conversations last week with Chief Smith including the advice of his doctor that he should not return to active duty as head of the department.

Chief Smith has been 29 years in the city's fire fighting service, Mayor Waddell said. He joined the staff on October 23, 1923, has been chief for the last five years, and previously assistant chief some 15 years. Mayor Waddell said the work of Chief Smith was greatly appreciated by successive councils, and it was with reluctance that the question of his continuing direction of the department had to be discussed with him. His Worship said that an interview with his physician confirmed Chief Smith's statement.

TOOK REST

About two years ago a heart condition required Chief Smith to take a temporary rest. His present absence from his office has been since the beginning of September. The medical report of his condition, Mayor Waddell said, would permit him to engage in some light business, if he wished, but it was not advisable for him to resume supervision and management of the department.

Ald. Harold Rehill said the council was sympathetic to Chief Smith, but also had to recognize its responsibility to property owners in their investments and insurance. The place of the Fire Department in the city's services was important.

Mayor Waddell said that it was the intention of Chief Smith to submit his resignation to the council at its meeting next Monday.

VIRGIL CARR

It was also reported to the council that Assistant Chief Virgil Carr has been off duty, and a question was asked about his physical condition on account of recurrence of illness, committee proposed that a physical examination by an independent doctor be obtained.

Assistant Chief Stewart Foster has been acting chief during the absence of Chief Smith.

DURHAM (CP) — An official of the Durham Furniture Co. Ltd., said today about 60 persons are working at its strike-bound plant, which normally employs about 150.

The official said most of those at work are former employees but a few are new men.

Local 152 of the International Woodworkers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) called the strike July 21.

Say Reassessment WouldBeUnwarranted

MILTON (CP)—A Toronto business planning consultant, J. P. Coombe, said yesterday after a six-week survey that a reassessment of Halton county at an estimated cost of $125,000 would be unwarranted.

Judge W.N. Robinson said he will rule before the end of the year on an appeal by Oakville and Burlington against the county's tax levy on the 1951 assessment roll.

Civic Employees Negotiate New Contract

Members of the union at Civic Hospital have now started negotiating with the Board of Governors on their second annual contract.

The union is Local 19, National Union of Public Service Employees (C.C.L.), representing about 120 workers at the hospital.

They are asking for a substantial wage increase; Rand Formula (i.e. all employees must pay union dues but do not have to belong to the union); pension fund similar to other Civic employees; sickness and accident fund, and cumulative sick leave; a work week reduced from 48 to 44 hours with the same take-home pay; unemployment insurance; extra pay for employees on the 3 a.m.-11 a.m. and 11 a.m.-7 p.m. shifts; taxi fare if no buses are running at the time the employee starts work; and other contract improvements.

The first meeting with the special committee of the Board of Governors took place on Oct. 23. The contract ends Nov. 21.

On Local 19's negotiating committee are W. G. Painter, president, and George Linsdell, Bob Morris, Ernest Kettle and Mrs. Florence Coons.

LEO DOLAN, director of the Canadian Government Travel Bureau, who will be the after-dinner speaker at the 4th annual Kawartha District Resort Operators' Conference and quarterly dinner of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce to be held at the Empress Hotel, Wednesday.

Gardening Awards Pesented By Society To 15 Winners

The Peterborough Horticultural Society's Lawn and Garden Awards and Trophies were presented to 15 winners Monday night in the Y.W.C.A. at the society's first meeting of the winter series. The presentations were made by Mrs. G. K. Fraser, president; Clarence Bacon, 1st vice-president, and Donald Emery, 2nd vice-president.

Herbert Knox, teacher, and four students of the union schools 10-9-14, Burleigh, Harvey and Smith at Burleigh Falls, were presented with the G. K. Fraser trophy for the greatest improvement of rural school grounds in the county.

This school placed third in the provincial championships.

DONE BY STUDENTS.

"The work at this chool was all done by the 18 students under the supervision of Mr. Knox," Mrs. Fraser said when she presented the ward. "The children planted the seeds and roots, which were donated, and during the summer weeded and watered the grounds."

The Board of Education trophy for the beautification of school grounds was received by H. O. Anderson on behalf of the teachers and students of Prince of Wales School.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Henry, 604 Sherbrooke St., were presented with the J. S. Bell Trophy for improvement of home grounds on the 42-mile scenic drive.

J. S. Mason on behalf of the De Laval Co. received the Braund trophy for the beautification of industrial areas.

The Fraser trophy for the best lawn, garden and floral display of homes built prior to 1947, was presented to L. G. Dunstan, 740 Hurley St. Second prize went to Miss C. Millard, 424 Stewart St., and third prize to R. Delahaye, 352 George Street.

CHALLENGE TROPHY.

Mrs. A. E. Kettle, 660 Gillespie Avenue, was awarded the Horticultural Challenge trophy for the best lawn, garden and floral display homes built since 1947. Mrs. J. O. Meehan, 727 Locke St., won second prize and Mrs. S. A. Perks, 509 Cambridge St. placed third.

Mrs. Meehan also was awarded the prize for the best pool.

The award for the best vegetable garden was presented to Harry Gabbutt, 533 Chamberlain St. Mrs. Meehan placed second and Mrs. A. C. Simmons, 350 Euclid Ave., third.

Miss Mary Lou Dimma, 1248 Clonsilla Ave., was awarded the S. O. Shields trophy for the best dining table decoration.

The P. C. V. S. Girls' Triple Trio provided the musical entertainment for the evening. They sang Kentucky Babe, O Promise Me, Rendez-vous, The Green Cathedral, and Oklahoma. The girls and their director, M. J. Curtis, were thanked by Jack Smith, past president of the society.

Urges First Aid Kits In All City Vehicles

Board of works received Monday night a suggestion from George Farrance, one of its employees, that a first aid kit be included in the equipment of trucks and tractors operated by the city. He also proposed that, if a qualified first aid man be employed on any of those machines, he be allowed extra compensation of 25c a day.

"I think it is a good idea," City Engineer Chalmers said. "We bought several kits costing around $11.50 each. They were contained in heavy metal cases. The difficulty is to find some way of keeping the kit intact—so it doesn't get stolen."

"We have injuries," Mr. Chalmers said. "If anything looks serious at all, we have the injured man taken to a doctor at once."

Ald. T. D. Miller said small kits costing $3.50 or $6.50 were available. They fitted into the glove compartment of a truck.

Mr. Chalmers was asked for a report on the recommendation, and a motion by Aldermen Anglesey and Beggs authorized City Clerk Outram to make grateful acknowledgment of the suggestion of Mr. Farrance, and also of his interest in the department.

As to the detail of qualified first aid men, it was considered a desirable accomplishment, "but there would probably be some difficulty in getting volunteers for the course."

Open Secret Sessions On Defence In Halifax

HALIFAX (CP)—The men who plan the defence of Canada and the United States under the North Atlantic Treaty program opened secret sessions in Halifax today.

High ranking officers of the armed services on the regional planning committee are directly responsible to the chiefs of staff of both countries.

The meetings are being held under heavy guard.

Labor To Ask For Change In Voting System

City council will again hear a request from organized labor in Peterborough that the voting system at municipal elections be changed.

At a meeting of the Peterborough and District Labor Council (C.C.L.) Monday night the municipal committee were instructed to draft a letter to be forwarded to city council. It will be approved at the next meeting of the labor council on Nov. 10.

The letter will recommend that "plumping" be allowed. That is, a voter need mark his ballot in favor of only one of the candidates who are contesting the five vacancies on council. At present he must mark his ballot for four of the five or it is a spoiled ballot.

"You only have to vote for one on the Board of Education," said William Triggs of Local 293, U.P.W.A. (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) who introduced the motion. "That's a good system, but you have to vote for four of the five vacancies on city council."

ONLY ONE

Mr. Triggs said that Peterborough is the only city in Ontario that he knows of where a voter is required to do this.

"The system should be changed," he said.

(The requirement of voting for four was started in 1921 after a special bill was put through the Ontario Legislature. Its purpose was to eliminate pressure groups from plumping for one alderman, favorable to their cause.)

It was suggested by one of the labor council delegates that if a petition were circulated and a certain percentage of names attached, the city council would be obliged to submit this question to the ratepayers. However the delegates felt there was not enough time left for this so they decided to write to city council asking for the change—or that it should be voted on.

(City Clerk E. A. Outram explained this morning that this is a misconception. On such matters a petition is not binding on a municipal council. Mr. Outram said that the public may be confused because of a special case—the amendment to the Lord's Day Act in 1950, permitting Sunday sports. If 10 per cent of the eligible voters sign a petition advocating a vote on the Sunday sports question the council may submit it to the people.)

Young Conservatives To Elect Officers

Mike Starr, mayor of Oshawa and M. P. for [illegible] will address the Progressive Conservatives annual general meeting Wednesday evening.

The meeting will be held in the Orange Hall, Brock Street.

The Y. P. C.'s will conduct their election of officers Wednesday evening. The 1951-52 president is Paul Thompson.

The Members of Kawartha Encampment No. 6 I.O.O.F. are requested to attend the Installation Services in the Lodge Rooms tonight at 8 o'clock.

Truck Windshield Shattered Trying To Cross Picket Line At Hobbs Glass

11 Production Workers Go On Strike Accuse Company of Stalling; Truck Drives On After Man Ordered Aside

Trouble broke out on the picket line shortly before 1 p.m. today when a truck tried to drive out of the Hobbs Glass plant on Sherbrooke St. with a load on. Strikers, who had been on the picket line since 7:30 a.m. today, milled around the truck. In the confusion the windshield of the truck was shattered and the truck-driver made no further attempt to leave the plant until police reinforcements came.

The police ordered the strikers to one side and the truck drove away. The whole incident took only 10 minutes. There were no arrests and nobody was injured.

A company official suggested that it was a stick that broke the windshield of the truck.

The strike at Hobbs Glass started officially at 8 a.m. today when the 11 production workers, members of Local 527, United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America (Indep.), accused the company of stalling on contract negotiations.

Local 527 are asking for a general wage increase of 15 cents an hour, paid to an unspecified retroactive date; overtime after eight hours of work or after a 40-hour week; the checkoff as a measure of union security; eight statutory holidays with pay; and a change in the company's management rights.

MADE REPORT

A conciliation board, set up by the Ontario Labor Relations Board, made its report eight days ago.

The majority report recommended no wage increase, no retroactivity, and no overtime on a daily basis.

(The dispute is complicated because the two parties are not agreed on what contract issues were to be discussed by the conciliation board. Management claim that they took the advice of an O.L.R.B. conciliation officer, who tried to settle the dispute before a board was set up, and gave an increase of 10 cents an hour over the previous rate.

(The union claim that the officer, A. C. Dennis, mentioned 20 cents an hour and retroactivity. And the matter cannot be settled because the Board's chairman, Judge W. S. Lane of Picton, said that it was against policy to get a statement from a conciliation officer.)

The company gave increases of five to 13 cents an hour about the time Mr. Dennis was meeting with the parties. Starting rates are now 90 cents to $1 an hour, union officials say. And top rates are $1.30 in the plant.

"That's not much for skilled men who put in those fancy store windows—such as you see at Pulver's and the new Metropolitan store—" said Len Velleman, U.E. organizer.

"The strike was brought about as a result of the company's failure to meet and negotiate a settlement arising out of the Conciliation Board report."

NO CONTRACT YET

The Hobbs Glass employees were certified 13 months ago today and have still not signed their first contract. Findings of the Conciliation Board were given on Oct. 20.

Today the men assembled in a mass picket outside the plant at 7:30 a.m. Later they picketed the outside of several downtown stores where they have been doing glass installation. At noon they had the run-in with the trucker and the police when the loaded truck tried to get through their picket lines.

Company officials were not available for comment.

Crossing Signals To Cost $2,500 Plus $425 Yearly

Erection of automatic traffic signals at the C.P.R. crossing on Monaghan Road will cost the city approximately $2,500, and the annual maintenance bill will be $425.

Those sums are close estimates from a report received by the board of works Monday night from the law department of the railway The crossing is at the intersection of Romaine St.

Both the city council and C.P.R. have approved the proposal which has been submitted to the Board of Transport Commissioners. Estimated cost of setting up the signals is $8,650, of which, it is expected, 40 per cent. will be paid out of the railway grades fund, and the remainder a 50-50 liability on the city and C.P.R. Annual maintenance cost is about $850 a year, to be borne equally by the two requesting parties.

A consideration appealing to the C.P.R. will be permission to increase their passenger train speeds through the city to 25 miles an hour from the present 10 m.p.h. The report to the board of works was only informative, and as such was received.

LACK SIGNALS

Prospect of the eventual increase of train speed across the industrial section of the city raised a question some time ago about the number of remaining streets still without automatic signals. Apart from the crossings east of the river, George and Aylmer Streets are protected, but there are no wigwags at Townsend and Rink Streets. The warning system is placed at Park St., but not at Romaine St. Further west, Monaghan Road will have automatic bells and lights, as also at Lansdowne St., but High St. will be a blank. Timber Structures and the new garage for the Bell Telephone fleet of trucks are situated on either side of the C.P.R. crossing on High St. City council has been planning the widening of that street, the south end of which is only a block from the property the city bought for industrial sites.

Governor Warns Rotary Club Keep To Aims

Has the road Rotary has travelled since its inception been worthwhile? was the question put to Peterborough Rotary Club by the District Governor, Stan Everson.

Mr. Everson, who is a native of Oshawa, made his annual visit as governor of district 247 to the Peterborough club Monday.

"The fellowship found in Rotary is unique among men's organizations," the governor said. "It is a fellowship quite different than that found in religious, sporting or fraternal groups. This service club fellowship has resulted in service to mankind that is a byword around the world."

The speaker explained that Rotary had originally been formed on a business basis but since has evolved into a service organization. Now Rotary has one object —"to encourage and foster the ideal of service as a basis of worthy enterprise."

Service in Rotary has branched out three ways, the speaker said. The three are international service, community service and vocational service.

BEWARE OF RAT RACE

"Community service has advertised Rotary the most because it is the most noticeable," he said. "But be careful. This is apt to lead to a rat race between service clubs. You don't need a lot of money to render a service to a community. Rather your club can act as an organizing medium for getting things done."

Under international service, the governor suggested that efforts be made to help new Canadians in the community. But it was to vocational service that the speaker gave the greatest emphasis.

"There have been two world wars since Rotary began in 1905," he said. "We were prepared for neither. Businessmen have also been engaged in a war since that time which they were not prepared for. This war has included a terrific volume of business, terrific costs, terrific profit and terrific taxes.

MUST FOLLOW ETHICS

"In this war businessmen have got to be made to realize that there are ethics to be followed. If Rotary can lead in this, it will stand when halls, swimming pools and other projects have been forgotten."

During his speech, Mr. Everson warned against the danger of a club becoming old. Unless young men are brought in, the club grows old, he said.

The speaker pointed to the two hallmarks of Rotary—the classification principle and the compulsory attendance rule.

"Don't let these hallmarks create problems," he warned. "Make use of the senior active membership which is provided to release classifications for younger men. And remember that the attendance rule is to provide fellowship — the motive power by which Rotary runs. Each member is needed at every meeting to represent his classification for true fellowship in Rotary."

The district governor was introduced by Clare Collins and thanked by Bob Maybee.

NIGHT SKY IN KOREA—Tracers, mortar shells and phosphorous bombs from artillery, plus a galaxy of flares dropped from planes, tear open the black Korean skies in the Pike's Peak and Triangle Hill area. In this rugged terrain, U.N. troops are putting up large scale battles against screaming hordes of Chinese Reds who attack after dusk and fight until dawn.

Korean Issue Dominating Campaign

By R.J. ANDERSON

NEW YORK (CP)—The Korean issue today all but submerged everything else in the United States election campaign.

Controversy over what caused the war and how it can be ended was at such heat that a Republican's personal attack upon the Democratic presidential candidate fell only with a dull thud. It would have created a sensation in other years.

President Truman last night launched his strongest attack against the Republicans on the issue. He charged Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Republican candidate for president, with responsibility for the withdrawal of U.S. occupation troops from Korea in 1948.

VOTE-LURING PROMISES

Adlai E. Stevenson, the Democrats' nominee, in New England asserted that Eisenhower had made vote-luring promises of "a quick and easy end" to the conflict and said his opponent "may have delayed an armistice."

Eisenhower has attributed to the state department the 1948 decision to withdraw troops from Korea. He has termed this part of the "terrible record" which led to the Communist invasion of South Korea in 1949. He promised again yesterday that, if elected, he will go to Korea to try to "diminish this flow of American blood."

The big-gun cannonading took the spotlight from Wisconsin's Senator Joseph McCarthy, who from Chicago last night laid before the American people his promised "coldly-documented background of this man who wants to be president." His target was Stevenson and "the people who are guiding him."

SAYS ADVISERS PRO-RED

It was a long, rambling attack which charged Stevenson's advisers with being Communists, fellow - travellers or parlor-pink left-wingers. Though the Illinois governor was not accused of being a Communist or pro-Communist, he was blamed for endorsing "suidical Kremlin - dictated policies" for the U.S.

McCarthy's speech, made on a country-wide television and radio network, was paid for by some 1,300 persons who attended a $50-a-plate dinner. The Republican party played no official part in the proceedings.

Before McCarthy spoke Eisenhower, who has endorsed the senator in his campaign for re-election without saying whether or not he approves of "McCarthyism," announced his position: While subversives must be cleaned out of government, the reputation of innocent men must not suffer.

The Senator charged:

1. That Stevenson "endorses and would continue the suicidal, Kremlin-dictated policies of this nation."

2. Stevenson, assigned to the task of formulating U.S. post-war policy in Italy after Mussolini's fall, had a plan for "foisting Communism" on the Itlians.

3. The governor has been given "complete endorsement" by the Communist New York Daily Worker.

Denials of those mentioned in the speech as being Communist inclined started pouring in after the broadcast. The Daily Worker said it supports the Progressive party ticket in the election.

THOROUGHLY DISHONEST

President Truman's statement on Korea said Eisenhower, as chief of staff and a member of the joint chiefs of staff at the time, recommended that American troops be pulled out of Korea. The general's "effort to shift responsibility" to the state department was "thoroughly dishonest."

Truman added:

"I do not say that the decision to withdraw the troops was wrong. It was made with knowledge of the facts and of the risks and dangers involved. But I do say that if it was wrong, then Gen. Eisenhower's advice was wrong."

Asked to comment on the president's assertion, Eisenhower aides said in Pittsburgh that the general had answered it in San Francisco Oct. 8 when he said the administration's decision that the Asian "defence perimeter" did not touch Korea was made by civilian officials. "The military has never decided questions of foreign policy," he said.

2-Mile Zone Dangerous After Blast

TORONTO (CP)—The area of most concern to firemen after an atomic explosion from 2,000 feet would be the zone from one half to two miles from the centre of the blast, Dr. E. E. Massey of the defence research board said yesterday.

In an address to the Canadian civil defence tactical fire study forum, Dr. Massey said a nominal atomic bomb—one releasing energy equivalent to 20,000 tons of TNT—would destroy all buildings within a half mile of the blast and rubble might be expected to smother any fires. Beyond two miles it is unlikely fires would be started, he said. He said out to 1½ miles, homes would be damaged beyond repair.

Burns caused by radiation could be prevented if exposed parts of the body were covered by material not readily inflammable, he said.

Maj.-Gen. F. F. Worthington, federal civil defence co-ordinator, said fire is the greatest hazard from a mass bombing attack.

Dragged To Death Behind Runaway Team

RUTHERGIEN (CP)—Michael J. McNulty, 45, was dragged to death behind a team of runaway horses late yesterday on his farm near this community 20 miles east of North Bay.

He was plowing with the reins tied behind his back when the team apparently broke away and he was knocked unconscious before he could free himself. His body was dragged into the barnyard before the eyes of his wife and several of his five children.

3 Montreal People Reported Drowned

MONTREAL (CP)—Quebec Provincial Police reported three Montreal residents were drowned today in the Richelieu River about five miles from St. John's, Que.

One body has been recovered.

No details of the drownings were immediately available.

Young Maharajah Succeeds To Throne Of Bhutan

NEW DELHI, India (Reuters)—Moon-faced young Maharajah Jigmie Dorji Wangchuk yesterday formally acceded to the throne of Bhutan, a remote Himalayan state visited by few white men.

A solemn Buddhist ceremony in Paro, the religious capital ushered in the 24-year-old Maharajah's reign over the mountainous, 18,000-square-mile area between Tibet and India. It is known to the west as "the land of the last horizon."

A 1949 treaty with India granted Bhutan compete internal independence but provided for Indian guidance in foreign affairs. The feudalistic state has no main roads, no taxes in money, no national army, no political parties and virtually no foreign trade. Foreigners are barred from the state unless they have the Maharajah's personal permission to cross the border.

HAS 300,000 PEOPLE

The new ruler over 300,000 persons is the eldest son of the late Maharajah, Sir Jigmir Wangchuk, who died last March.

The young Maharajah toured Britain in 1950 to acquaint himself with western life. One of his first steps in trying to modernize his land was a recommendation that Bhutan inaugurate a postal system and the use of stamps.

The Maharajah studied the British penal code—a far cry from Bhutan's usual way of dealing with criminals. Condemned men are sewn into bullock skins and tossed in the river to drown.

Kicks Bus Conductor Who Wasn't Helpful

SIDCUP, England (CP)—Dark haired Teresa Bradford lost her temper and kicked a bus conductor. She said he was unhelpful.

"Years of frustration went into that kick and I thoroughly enjoyed it," she told the judge.

"Although you enjoyed it, you've got to pay for it," reported the judge. She paid a £3 fine.

City Officials Deny Stealing Ballot Idea

TORONTO (CP)—City officials were slightly taken aback last night over a claim they stole a composite ballot idea from Victoria.

Frank Hunter, Victoria city clerk, claimed Toronto stole his idea and said if necessary he will take legal steps to protect his copyright.

"Mr. Hunter's ballot might be all right for a small city but it would not do for a big city like Toronto," Mayor Lamport said.

"In the first place, Mr. Hunter hasn't got a composite ballot. It is a series of individual ballots stapled together. Ours is all on one sheet, where the names can be seen at a glance."

He admitted the names used on the ballot submitted to the civic legislation committee had been lifted from Mr. Hunter's ballots.

McNaughton Hopeful Green Light Soon

KINGSTON (CP)—Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton said last night the green light may soon be given for the St. Lawrence seaway project.

Gen. McNaughton, chairman of the Canadian section of the International Joint Commission, said the commission's order on the applications of the governments of United States and Canada to proceed with the power side of the project may be issued shortly.

He was speaking on the purpose and background of the I.J.C. to cadets of the Royal Military College.

The order will open the way for the deepening of channels to accommodate vessels up to 27-foot draft and the development of 2,000,000 horsepower of electric power.

Have No Further Clues In Seguin Search

MONTREAL (CP)—Quebec provincial police said last night they had no further clues in their search for Henri Seguin, 27, a Cornwall farm hand, wanted by Ontario police for question in connection with the Aug. 16 slaying of Leonard Z. Hurd, Maxville, Ont., business man.

The automobile allegedly used by Seguin to make his getaway following Hurd's death, was found Sunday in the Lachute, Que., area, 50 miles northwest of here, bearing Ontario licence plates.

Hurd, owner of a taxi business and trucking firm, was found dead in one of his own cabs with five bullets in his body.

Mrs. Frank Schiarizza

Solemn requiem mass was sung Monday for Mrs. Frank Schiarizza, 69, of 582 Bethune St., who died Friday in hospital after a long illness. Celebrant was the Rev. L. M. Dubbery, assisted by the Rev. G. J. Weis and the Rev. R. J. Garvey. In the sanctuary was the Rev. F. A. Marrocco, of Ottawa.

Service was held from the Anglesey funeral home to St. Peter's Cathedral.

Pallbearers were Edward Ridley, Joseph Marino, Leo English, William Gannon, Jack Marchen and William Holroyd. Burial was in St. Peter's cemetery where graveside prayers were said by Father Weis.

New Musical Big Hit At Premiere

By MARK BARRON

NEW YORK (AP) — Librettist Charles Friedman must have had the thrill of a job well done last night at the Winter Garden Theatre when he heard a first-night audience cheer the Broadway premiere of his new musical "My Darlin' Aida."

Friedman for six years studied how to write a libretto and lyrics and how to compose music. The result is an impressive, exciting and poignant musical play, which transfers the scene and story of Verdi's opera "Aida" from Memphis, Egypt, to Memphis, Tenn.

About 60 per cent of the music is still Verdi's. Friedman has composed the rest, has written the lyrics and the new story as suggested by Verdi's original.

"My Darlin' Aida" is the story of a confederate captain who returns to the Farrow plantation to marry beautiful Jessie Farrow. Instead he falls in love with Aida, beautiful slave girl to his fiancee.

They plan to elope, but they are stopped when Aida's father is almost killed by some angry white men. Captain Demarest saves the father's life when he agrees to marry Jessie and thus becomes the master of the father. But he cannot forget Aida and, through his love, is almost trapped into leading the slaves in an attack against his friends.

Vote On 2-Year Term

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto voters will be asked again to vote on a two-year term for members of City Council and Board of Education. City Council decided last night. This will be the sixth time the question has been put to the municipal voters in a referendum in 12 years. The last time, in 1950, it was defeated by 40,000 votes. The term now is one year.

Bus Service Vote

WOODSTOCK (CP)—Whether or not this busless city has a bus service depands largely upon the voters at the next election. City Council last night decided to put the question to a vote at the next election. If approved by voters the matter of a franchise will be dealt with by next year's council.

Former Mayor Dies

GODERICH (CP)—H. J. A MacEwan, mayor of Goderich from 1925 to 1930 and 1935 to 1940, died yesterday at his home. He was a director of the Goderich Elevator and Transit company, was one of the oldest members of knox Presbyterian church and was also active in Masonic circles.

Reeve Dies

PLANTAGENET (CP) — Donat Parent, 51, reeve of the municipal council of South Plantagenet for the last eight years, died Sunday after a brief illness. He was also a member of the Prescott and Russell County Council.

Lost Bride Inquiry Opens

LIVERPOOL, England (Reuters). — An inquiry began here Monday into the death of Mrs. Bonita King, 22-year-old Canadian bride, who disappeared overboard from the Cunard liner Ascania July 30 on a honeymoon trip to Europe.

The scarf, sunglasses, and purse of the missing girl were found on deck after her husband, Robert W. King of Edmonton, reported her disappearance. In the purse were her engagement and wedding rings.

King said he awoke early in the morning and found that his wife was not in the cabin.

"I immediately looked for her, and after an unsuccessful search I reported the matter to the officer of the watch and a thorough search of the ship was organized," he said.

The inquiry, which was postponed until the ship completed its current Atlantic run, was adjourned until Wednesday, when the Ascania's commander, Capt. Andrew MacKellar, will testify.

Fined For Drinking

Joseph Huard, 40, 189 Lake St., was fined $15 and $2.50 costs Monday when he pleaded guilty to drinking while on the interdicted list.

18 Mos. In Korea Near Front Saw No Action

A Peterborough soldier who didn't see a shot fired in anger during the 18 months he spent in Korea came home on Sunday.

He is Pte. J. C. O'Dette, who spent his time overseas attached to the Ordnance Corps. Most of his overseas service was in Seoul, capital of South Korea, with several journeys to points near the front.

LIKED TOKYO

Glad to be home, Pte. O'Dette said that at the same time Tokyo is one city he would like to live in. Clean and cheap to live in, the capital of Japan was a city that exactly suited his tastes.

Of Korea itself, he said that food—supplied by the U.S. army—was fair, and living conditions good. The biggest problem Ordnance Corps men faced was the natives who would loot ordnance depots every chance they would get.

"Guard duty was the toughest work we had over there," he said. "We'd arrest two or three every night. They're pretty slick, and they'll steal anything they can lay their hands on."

Pte. O'Dette enlisted in Kingston, trained at Montreal and Fort Lewis, Washington, then embarked for Korea. First stop was Pusan, then his outfit moved on toward the front, finally settling in Seoul.

He had more than one regret at leaving Japan; his paybook was lost somewhere in Korea, and that left him short of money to buy souvenirs with. He didn't bring any home. Pte. O'Dette's home is at 352 Armstrong Drive.

Overcome By Fumes

WALKERTON (CP) — Four people were admitted to Bruce County Hospital yesterday after they were overcome by fumes escaping from a faulty furnace in their home on the south line, three miles southeast of Walkerton. Treated were elderly Mr. and Mrs. Louis Felsing, their daughter. Florence, and a son, Walter. Their condition was not regarded as serious.

"ACTION MESSING"—During a lull in bombardments on enemy installations off the north coast of Korea, two crew members of the Canadian destoyer Nootka eat a hot supper served at their action station. They are AB. George Wilkinson (left), of Victoria, and LS. Joseph Pattenden, Halifax. Serving meals during operations is called "action messing" by the Canadian navy.

Promised Term In Reformatory Gets 5 Months

When Ray Brown, a 22-year-old sleepy eyed youth rose lazily in the prisoners' dock Monday to answer a vagrancy charge, both the crown attorney and Salvation Army court officer Major Harry Everitt urged the Magistrate to sentence him to reformatory.

Magistrate W. R. Philp commented he remembered promising Brown a reformatory term the last time he appeared on a vagrancy charge and sentenced Brown to five months in reformatory.

Brown is one youth who has solved the problem of the high cost of living and finding suitable accommodation easily. He doesn't work except at part time jobs and when he is working, he doesn't bother to pay board.

Magistrate Philp has repeatedly urged Brown to adopt a more social attitude but Brown pays no heed to the Magistrate's advice and the cycle continues. Ten days in jail for vagrancy. Once out of jail, Brown takes a whirl at his trade of shoe shining or sweeping pool halls. To keep expenses at a minimum, he sleeps on park benches, or curls up on a bench in one of the two railway stations.

However, there's always a warm cot waiting for him at the police station and on a cool evening, he drops in for a free bed in one of the comfortable new jail cells.
